BUSINESS MEN ARE DOING A BIG JOB

TO most business men today, the winning of profits is not of first importance. Their objective is the maximum of materials and equipment for our fighting men. Plants and personnel are at the service of our Government without reservation. Canadian industrial management and workers are doing a war production job that has astounded and gratified our allies. Much more remains to be done—and, it will be done.

The shareholders in business pay a large part of Company earnings to Government in taxes; indirectly by those levied on the Company's earnings and directly by the income tax on dividends received. This is a real sacrifice as often the shareholder's investment represents a lifetime's earnings accumulated through thrift and hard work. Business executives, too, in many instances contribute 50% and more of their income in taxes. The winning of the war—not profits—is the major objective of Canadian business today.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

STILL NEED MOISTURE

Believe it or not, in spite of all the rain during the past month, water is still needed. Residents on Engleburn avenue all had their hoses going Tuesday night because the lawns were parched and cracking, even though the ground toward the river was soggy. The sun is packing a mighty wallop these days when in such a short time it can dispose of nearly a month's moisture.

NEW HAY IN THE BARN

Haying has begun in the Lakefield area. Clarence Coons, manager of the Glen Griffith farm, cut three acres last Friday, and had it in the barn in good shape Wednesday morning.

KEEP STREET CLEAR

Because of the I.O.D.E. street dance on Friday night, the police department asks motorists to note that no cars will be allowed to park on Aylmer street between King and Charlotte streets from 6 o'clock on. This order will be strictly enforced, Inspector Reid announces.

CAR, TRUCK IN ACCIDENT

As P. G. Wallace, London street was driving a truck north on Water street, just south of Hunter street, a car driven by Philip Woodcock, 242 Munro avenue pulled out from the east curb and the two vehicles came into contact. Neither machine was damaged badly.

FINED IN LIQUOR CHARGES

Two men employed at the head of Stoney Lake pleaded guilty in writing before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to consuming liquor in a place other than a residence and each was fined $10 and $2.50 costs. Magistrate Langley suggested that in all such cases, a better effect might be produced by making the accused appear in person. The charges were laid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock.

WILL BE BROUGHT HERE

A Belleville traveller, C. H. Sproule, charged by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling under the special wartime regulations with driving faster than 40 miles an hour on Highway 7 failed to appear in police court this morning.

There had been several adjournments in this case and today Magistrate Langley suggested that the accused might be brought here for the trial under a warrant.

GETS WEEK'S ADJOURNMENT

There was another adjournment this morning in a charge against R. H. Biston of failing, without lawful excuse, to attend a drill of the Havelock company of the 2nd Midland Battalion. Several other members of the unit were fined last week on the same charge and on that occasion Biston was granted an adjournment. This morning his counsel W. J. Arthur Fair asked for another week's delay so that he could consider the case. Capt. E. C. Johnston of the Midlands was not present and Magistrate Langley ordered a week's engagement.

THE HARD WAY

It is nice to go camping after the equipment has been taken out, at least that is the opinion of one family who have had their own troubles. A model T Ford was roaring up Water street, laden down with supplies and on the top a large canoe was tied on. Just in front of Victoria Park, the motor died and everyone had to pile out and lend a shoulder to the pushing and cranking. The motor finally "caught" and then there was a wild scramble to regain places while everything was O.K.

HOPE SCHOOL AREA

The first school area in Durham county was organized Saturday by nine school sections of Hope township. They are all in the northern part of the township comprising school sections 10 and 18 inclusive.

MEAT PIES

Residents on Water street near St. Paul's Church have been awakened the last two mornings, not to the sound of the bugle, but the sound of a gun. Some ambitious soul has been picking off a few of the large flock of pigeons which hang around the church tower, and presumably has enjoyed a few pigeon pies.

CUTTING HAY

Belleville reports the first cutting of new hay on the farm of Morley Sine, Sidney township. The Intelligencer also say red clover and sweet clover were in full blossom, although no bloom had been seen on the alfalfa, reversing the usual order. Strawberries are down to 30 cents and the first local potatoes are reported.

SAYS GARY COOPER

Peeking into a main street 'mag' yuo might notice that Gary Cooper has the following comment about women: "A man always feels that he can't do quite as much as he'd like for the people who mean something to him. But women, on the other hand, always seem to be doing more for everybody around them than anybody has a right to expect. I think that when you boil it all down, that's why men love women."

Old Dummer Boy Alf Francis Killed By Cow

DUNDALK, June 10.— Trampled by a cow which he was attempting to milk, Alfred Francis, 73, was killed yesterday in Proton township, ten miles south of here. The man and his wife, who reside with their only son Allan, had gone to the barn to milk. The fatally injured man undertook to milk a heifer with a sore teat. The enraged animal trampled Francis to death while his wife looked on powerless to do anything. The body was not recovered until the son, Allan, returned from a neighbor's farm.

Dr. Frank Martin and Dr. T. P. Carter of Dundalk, who were called to the scene, said the man's chest had been crushed and several ribs broken. A native of Dummer township, Peterborough county, Francis had resided in the district over fifty years. He married the former Catherine McQuarrie of Proton forty-nine years ago. Besides the son Allan, two brothers and a sister survive.

Cyclist Hurt In Crash

Sixteen-year-old J. Anderson, Burnham street, received head injuries when he was knocked off his bicycle in collision with a motor car at George and Hunter streets this morning.

Frank J. Driscoll, 232 Woodbine avenue, was driving his car east on Hunter street as young Anderson, riding his bicycle west on Hunter street, started to make a left turn into George street.

The bicycle collided with the front of the automobile and the rider was thrown to the pavement. He was taken to his home.

Peterborough Group At Oshawa Clinic

Representatives of Peterborough's blood donors clinic attended the Oshawa clinic Monday. They were Dr. C. B. Waite, Dr. R. S. Chenoweth, Mrs. Roy Taylor and Mrs. Donald Hill.

Referring to the Monday clinic the Oshawa Times said: "Another out-of-town visitor was Miss Alma Taylor, R.N., Hamilton. As the local clinic is second to none in the country as far as arrangement and equipment are concerned, no doubt the visitors will carry some constructive ideas away with them."

Organization of the blood donors clinic in Peterborough is progressing.. The number of volunteer nurses and blood donors is encouragingly highly, but the local staff is not yet complete.

Joseph Cleary Goes To Penitentiary

Doctor Urges Quarantine Be More Strict

Although there is a rigid control system over school children for checking communicable diseases, there has been some difficulty with others, particularly in the matter of measles, due to the fact that it has been the custom here to remove the placard when the patients were released from isolation, which is about a week after the start of the disease. It is safe in so far as the patient is concerned, but the contacts show no symptoms for ten days and if they are permitted to move around outside the disease soon spreads. Dr. D. B. Avison revealed at the monthly meeting of the Board of Health on Tuesday.

A recommendation was made by the Medical Health Officer that a bylaw be passed that placards be left on for the duration of the quarantine, a thing being done in several other communities. It was also suggested, after more information has been received, that a bylaw be considered that would not allow men to return to work after an illness without a certificate from the Medical Health Officer.

Beats Province

On Dr. Avison's recommendation earlier, the School Boards passed compulsory regulations for Old Tuberculin skin tests on all teachers to be followed up by physical and X-ray examinations on positive reactors. The skin tests in the public schools and collegiate have been completed now and the results will be reported later. It was pointed out that in this measure, Peterborough is a jump ahead of the province, which expects to have a similar legislation soon.

Correction was made at the East City Disposal Plant, of the sewage which was being passed through the tanks directly as rapidly as it entered. Visits to the Burnham Point septic tank and that of the Isolation Hospital showed that both had open grills for ventilation which permits the entrance of flies. This condition was ordered corrected by the use of screens, but it was thought a recommendation should be presented to the City Council about the establishment of "Breather" pipes.

Improvement Needed

A visit to soft drink manufacturing establishments was made by Dr. Avison and he found that while all of those plants produce a sanitary product, some of them do so under conditions below that required of other food-handling establishments. He explained that there were two reasons for this (1) the buildings were never designed for the purpose for which they were being used and (2) the volume of business is far greater than they can handle in their limited space.

The regular inspection of the schools was made this month by Dr. Avison, M.O.H., and R. M. MacPherson, sanitary inspector, and they gave special attention to the drinking fountain facilities. The majority of the schools have the old type bubbler system which permits the child to place his lips on the orifice if he so desires. The more modern type such as the city uses, prevents this. They advised changes and notified the Board of Education about the change.

Must Have Help

The Medical Health Officer and Public Health nurses have decided that a part-time clerk-typist would be a very valuable asset at the present time, since the secretary, Miss Blanchard, is so busy. It was suggested that an experienced girl for half-time might be arranged for by an agreement with A. G. Metheral, Relief Administrator, for the use of Miss Madeline Whaley for half of each day, preferably coming in at noon so that the office would be open during that hour to receive calls and thus perhaps lessen the congestion later on. The transfer would take place immediately.

"The mumps epidemic is practically a thing of the past," Dr. Avison declared. "Since last October we have handled 1,155 cases, and with a peak for 1942 of 293 cases in February, it is expected that there will only be about 40 in June. With the reduction in mumps, there has been a sharp drop in the number of patients in the Isolation Hospital with a consequent reduction in staff. One maid who is essential in busier times is being retained and she will do the laundry in slack periods."

Cleanliness Maintained

An inspection of restaurants and booths during the past month found them in good sanitary condition for the most part, R. M. MacPherson said. Kitchen wastes are being given more adequate care and dining rooms and kitcheners are well attended. Sanitization of utensils is being carefully carried out.

In the majority of grocery stores visited, it was noted that the meat cutting machines are now being given more attention. Of all the stores visited, only one had to have attention drawn to this point. One grocery store which had been found insufficiently clean and tidy to warrant approval of a license, was thoroughly cleaned and put in order within twenty four hours. The license was subsequently approved on condition that such cleanliness be maintained.

There was a full attendance of board members and Alderman James Dutton presided as chairman.

Dairy Farmers Planning Price Protest

Their patience with promises of compensations at an end, dairy farmers of the province are planning a protest meeting in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, Saturday next at 1 p.m.

V. S. Milburn of Toronto told the Examiner today that this action had been directed by the executive of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, and that an appeal was now going out to the membership to make the trip, converging on Toronto in numbers calculated to impress the representatives of the federal government who have been invited to meet the dairy farmers.

Hon. Mr. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, Hon. Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture; Donald Gordon, chairman of Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and J. G. Taggart, food co-ordinator of that department.

The primary cause of this organized protest has been a strong feeling that the interests of dairy farmers were not adequately considered when milk price ceilings were being set last fall. A concession was granted in winter conditions amounting to 30 cents a hundred pounds on fluid milk going to dairies for city delivery, but that assistance ended on April 30 with the return of pasturage.

In the meantime dairy farmers have been promised the advantage of certain economies which could be put into effect by peremptory order of governmental authority, and probably some sharing of profit might also be available to the producers. At any rate the new season is already far advanced, the months of spring are passed and the dairy farmers have received no assistance from the prices and trade controller.

Action By Fall

It is understood that the dairymen are not now asking for a bonus; but they do want the promised economies in lieu of bonus, and furthermore they are urging that the price structure of their industry be reviewed during the summer with some decision by the end of August in regard to prices to prevail in the industry next winter.

Mr. Milburn said the producers believed with the federal control authorities that long established extravagant practices in the distribution of milk could be eliminated for wartime. Some of these 'luxuries' have already been suspended, especially in the number of deliveries of milk and cream daily, and other changes which the distributing companies readily adopted.

"If there is to be no bonus, then bring on the economies and give us the benefit of them, if you want us to keep our cows and supply milk to the people of this province," say the producers' executive.

Mr. Milburn said the members were being urged to make the trip to Toronto, some way or other.

F. Skitch Delegate I.O.O.F. Grand Lodge

The annual sessions of the Independent Order of Oddfellows will be held in Toronto next week, beginning Monday, June 15. The I.O.O.F. was instituted in Baltimore, Md., April 26, 1819, and the Grand Lodge of Ontario at Brockville August 23, 1855.

The 88th annual sessions of Ontario Grand Lodge will be held in the King Edward Hotel. W. F. Skitch will represent Otonabee Lodge No. 13, of Peterborough.

The Rebekahs, ladies' branch of the Order, was founded 89 years ago, and the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario was established in 1891. The Oddfellows maintain on this continent 65 homes for orphan children and for aged and indigent members.

Flower Holders To Give Aid To War Victims

With the approach of Father's Day on June 21 and Decoration Day on June 28, the thoughts of a great many people will undoubtedly turn towards decorating the last resting place of their loved ones who have passed on to that land from which no traveller ever returns.

One of our local residents, Bill Naish, who has on a number of times assisted the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, has made quite a number of flower holders for the purpose of decorating graves, and through the assistance and co-operation of M. Isaac Harrison, who is in charge of the greenhouses at Little Lake Cemetery, these can be procured from him at small cost, in itself a convenience to all who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity with the added satisfaction of knowing that every cent of the money thus spent will go on a mission of mercy to help those yet living, who have suffered the ravages of a war in which the very freedom and liberty of humanity is at stake.

Already a number of these have been sold for this purpose, and in anticipation of a need and demand a fair stock is now available and can be procured from Mr. Harrison. In connection with approaching Decoration Day, the secretary of the fund would like to offer the suggestion that relatives and friends could honor the memory of those who have passed on, by making a contribution to this fund in their memory, and thus in their name do much to alleviate the suffering of those in need, which those who have passed on would undoubtedly endorse if they were able to do so.

In today's receipts, the Peterborough Churchill Club, of which R. L. Dobbin is chairman comes a bit nearer to obtaining the three star objective of having raised a thousand dollars for the fun, by a donation of $5 which brings their total within $17 of that mark. This comes as a result of the work of committee members O. G. H. Melton and G. Gimblett.

The boxes at the Canadian Bank of Commerce were among the first to add to the work of this fund, and once again today a donation from them is listed which this time amounts to $3.60.

The Peterborough Barnardo Club, a small group who work to send boxes of clothing etc. to England to help in the increased need due to the effects of the war, are holding a draw for three prizes which are a woollen afghan 70 x 84, a man's dress shirt and tie, and a pair of hand embroidered pillow cases, which will take place in Brock Street Gardens on June 24. Tickets which are 15 cents or two for 25 cents may be procured from any member of the club, and part proceeds of this effort will come to the fund.

Burnham's Point Mail Delivery

The occupants of the eighty-two wartime houses at Burnham's Point are now receiving daily mail delivery by the postal department once a day. This service was begun Tuesday, and will be extended to the 225 houses in the Jackson Park area as soon as the work on the roads is completed.

The mail service to Burnham's Point has been carried on by Wartime Housing Limited who had engaged a man to obtain the mail at the post office and deliver it to the Point. This expedient is being continued in the north end for the time being.

The letter carrier in the south section of Ashburnham extends his route to give the Point colony one delivery a day.

Handed 2 Years For Slugging Boy With Bottle

Two years in the penitentiary was the sentence handed down at noon Wednesday by Judge Sheldon Smoke, when he found Joseph Cleary, 20, of Peterborough guilty of robbery with violence.

The charge arose out of a complaint laid by Warden Andrews, 17, of Mark street, Peterborough, who stated that he had been slugged over the head with a beer bottle by Cleary and robbed of $25.00 and a watch after the two had paddled in a canoe to Chip Island, in the Otonabee river, just north of the C.P.R. Bridge on May 8 last. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution and G. N. Gordon, K.C., defended Cleary.

In passing sentence Judge Smoke referred to Cleary's record from 1936 until 1940, when he was convicted of theft several times, of shop breaking and of a charge of robbery with violence. He expressed the opinion that reformatory sentences had not served the purpose of making Cleary respect the law, and therefore a more severe penalty had to be given. He urged the young man to rehabilitate himself and become a good citizen. No defence was offered by Mr. Gordon at the conclusion of the evidence.

One unusual bit of testimony other than that which was given at the preliminary hearing when Cleary was committed for trial, came when David Baker of 389 King street, told the court he had talked with Cleary while standing on Water street near the police station on Monday following the crime. Cleary was speaking through the bars of a small window in the police cell block. He said he knew Cleary because the latter had worked with him at the Grand Hotel. "He said he had beaten up a fellow and had a charge laid against him."

"Did he not say that a charge of beating a fellow up had been laid against him" asked Mr. Gordon.

Yes, that's right," replied Baker, apparently not noticing that what he had told Mr. McElderry had a great deal more significance.

Just 17 Years

Warden Andrews, 485 Mark street, first Crown witness, gave his age as 17 and occupation as a factory worker at the Western Clock Co.

He described his activities on May 8, when he went downtown to cash his cheque at Louis Billiards. The cheque amounted to $33.00. He said Cleary was in the store then. After paying a clothes bill, he went to American Hotel seeking a friend, who was not there, but he found Cleary there, and Cleary offered him a drink.

"How many drinks had you?"

"Four glasses of beer."

Refused Beer

Andrews added that he, Cleary, and two others then went to the Windsor Hotel, where the others had more beer, but he had none.

"Cleary suggested we go to O'Dette's and rent a canoe" he said. Continuing his evidence he told of Cleary getting the canoe and of both of them going out to an island in the Otonabee river, north of the C.P.R. bridge. As he got out of the boat he was struck over the head from behind.

"I was unconscious for quite some time." He told of reviving some time later and swimming ashore. A few days later in company with Det. Sgt. William Meagher and Constable Archie Menzies he visited the island where they found two empty beer bottles and a key to Andrews' brother's home.

In cross-examination G. N. Gordon, K.C., questioned Andrews closely on the amount of beer he had consumed.

Fooled Waiter

"What plan did you work to get beer in the American Hotel, in view of your age."

"I went to the washroom while the beer was being ordered, and the second time I kept my back turned to the waiter."

"Was there any beer bought at the Brewery warehouse."

"No."

John Sullivan, 16, next Crown witness told of seeing Andrews on the C.P.R. bridge May 8 with clothing soaking wet from the shoulders down."

Joseph Nolan, 17, Downer's corners, said he met Andrews at corner of Burnham and Hunter streets and Andrews' clothing was wet.

Harry Andrews, Douglas avenue, brother of Warden Andrews, in his testimony said his brother had come to another brother's house on Mark street." He had two wounds on his head."

Ken Cullen, waiter at American Hotel, told of seeing Cleary in the hotel on May 8.

Edmund Johnston, Highway 28, an employee of the Windsor Hotel, said Cleary, a soldier and two other civilians, came in to drink beer.

"Do you know Warden Andrews."

Yes—I refused to serve him beer, then there was a disturbance and we put the four of them out."

What was his condition.

"He wasn't drunk."

Gus Yeotes, a clerk at Louis Billiards, said Cleary and Andrews were in the store the morning of May 8.

Vernon O'Dette said that Cleary brought a canoe back at 4 o'clock on Friday, May 8.

David Baker, 389 King street, an employee of Grand Hotel, said he knew Cleary, because he formerly worked at Grand Hotel. He said on Monday, May 11, he saw Cleary peeking through a barred window at police station.

"I asked him what he was in for," he said he was in for a rest.

"What else did he say."

"He said he had beaten a fellow up and a charge was laid against him."

Det. Sgt. Megher told of going to the island, finding two beer bottles and a key. The beer bottles along with a police record fingerprint sheet of Cleary were sent to Oliver E. Borland, fingerprint expert of Toronto.

Oliver E. Borland, the last Crown witness, told of making an examination of the beer bottles and of finding Cleary's fingerprints on one of the beer bottles.

Thursday's Drive For Salvage Covers Southend

The salvage collection Thursday is an important one as it will complete residential coverage of the whole city, which started just five weeks ago. A tremendous amount of salvage material had been turned in by the citizens and it is expected the south end of the city, District No. 5, will make a heavy contribution. A further collection of the business centre only will be made on a day to be announced later.

The district Thursday is from both sides of Wolfe street down to the River and Cameron street in North Monaghan and west from the River to Western Avenue. The depot will be at the South Central School for the paper, rags, rubber, magazines, and bottles, and will continue on Friday if not all picked up. The metal collection will start at 6 o'clock and will be taken to the lacrosse bowl. Those volunteering to help the ladies will please go to the South Central School instead of to the Reid Street depot. The reason of the change is the extra haulage from the south end of the city to Reid street.

Every citizen in the south end should bend every effort to make their district the largest contributor of the campaign. It is a worth while war effort and every one who helps out can feel they have done something very necessary.

Community Sale Attracts Record Crowd

A community auction sale was held on Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mr. W. D. Wilson, under the auspices of the Lily Lake Women's Association, and proved quite a successful event. The weather was ideal despite a threatening sky and the attendance quite large. Mrs. Clarence Hancock, president of the association, opened the sale with an appropriate little speech outlining some of the activities of this group, and thanked those in attendance for coming, also all who contributed towards making the sale a success and asked the same generosity in bidding as there had been in donations. This seemed to be borne in mind throughout the sale as most items sold very well; many, of course, were bargains. There surely was a great variety of articles for both house and farm. Much credit is due the merchants, farmers and other friends who made donations and especially a group of ladies from Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church who gave most generously, articles for sale, and of their time canvassing their district and making collections, also operating a fish pond at the sale and graciously assisting in many ways.

The farmers' table, consisting of farm produce, home-baking, etc., and in charge of Miss Margaret Robson and Mrs. Ernest Ireland was exceptionally well patronized, about $45.60 being realized. The fishpond netted $6.70. The lunch tables also were very popular. Mrs. Robert Falls had been appointed lunch convener but was unable to attend, being confined in Nicholls Hospital owing to a serious accident. Mrs. Clifford Chapman efficiently acted in her stead. The young girls of the neighborhood served and collected $28.70. Cash contributions amounted to $33. The sale by auction conducted by Messrs W. J. and Gordon Hancock brought the splendid sum of $261.10. Another interesting feature was a draw for a quilt. Mr. Allan B. Mann drew the ticket, and incidentally drew Mrs. Mann's ticket, who with a very generous desire to increase the contribution to the British War Victims' Fund, gave the quilt to the auctioneers to be sold to the highest bidder. Miss Leah Wilson was the purchaser at $5, increasing the amount, including sale of tickets, to practically $35. Mrs. W. C. Steinkrauss was in charge of the quilt. All other proceeds are for war work. Mrs. D. W. Wilson made a splendid general convener and hostess. Expenses to be deducted were not very heavy.

SOUTH END SALVAGE COLLECTION

Thursday Next, June 11th

DISTRICT NUMBER 5

With this week's Salvage collection the whole City will have been thoroughly covered, and it would be fine if the Fifth and last District would contribute as much if not more than the other districts, all of whom have done a mighty fine job.

This week's district comprises everything from both sides of Wolfe Street down to the River and to Cameron Street and East from the River to Western Avenue in the West.

Collection of newspapers, paper boxes, rags, rubber and bottles commences promptly at 8 o'clock in the morning. Have it ready on time so you will not be missed.

Collection of metals at 6 in the evening.

More volunteer help could be used at the depot on Reid Street, men, women and boys and some extra men for the trucks.

Too much importance cannot be placed on the salvage of war materials.

Hear Of John Sunday

The St. Andrew's Young People's Union held its monthly missionary meeting on Tuesday night, when a very interesting story about Shaurindais, later known as John Sunday, was read. It told how he had thought there must be Someone Who put the stars in the heavens and Who governed the lives of the people, but the religion of the Mississauga Indians, of whom he was one, did not satisfy this feeling. He availed himself of the opportunity to hear the Gospel preached and became an ardent follower. He visited many districts where the Ojibways lived, particularly around the Bay of Quinte. There, although he himself could neither read nor write, he preached to the Indians, using as illustrations many of his own experiences and keeping up the interest by his witty manner.

He was a great influence for good, and although not a genius, his name will long be remembered among the early Christian Indians.

Grubby marks lose their stubborn hold with Sunlight's "EXTRA-SOAPINESS"

ANY soap—bar, powder or flakes—will remove the "all-over" dirt from clothes. But almost everything you wash has certain extra dirty parts which require special treatment to get them really clean. Where sheets have been folded down, where heads have rested on pillow-cases, the collars and cuffs of shirts, smocks and children's clothes—these parts call for Sunlight's "extra soapiness"

Sunlight has a wonderful "extra soapiness" which enables you to get right at the extra-dirty parts. Apply it lightly—just a touch of Sunlight and you leave a film of soap right on the dirt. And because it is Sunlight Soap you're using, this thin, soapy film is enough to loosen the last speck of stubborn grime, and the rich Sunlight lather carries it away. That is the Sunlight method of washing—an amazingly effective and safe way of getting clothes spotlessly clean.

You'll find this "extra soapiness" a wonderful help in household cleaning, too. It gets everything spotless in no time. And Sunlight is so pure, it's absolutely safe for hands—keeps them soft and white.

Lakefield Upset Over Rumor No Snowplowing

LAKEFIELD, June 10—(ENS).—Village Council Fathers had a brief spasm of worrying Monday night that passed temporarily in the newly-arrived warm spell,—over the rumor the Department of Highways intends to do no snow plowing this winter.

Reeve Tanner seemed skeptical of the report, and various members asked how supplies were to come in, and the hundred or so war workers would get into the Peterborough factories daily if Highway 28 were left to drift in. Someone suggested each man carry a shovel and that the buses carry one for each passenger. It was rather a gloomy, chilly picture that warmed up as one visioned sweating travellers digging through five-foot drifts of which there are plenty after any kind of a blizzard.

The next topic wasn't much brighter—it evolved for an hour around the subject of garbage collection with the histories of various collection officials under review back to the horse and wagon days of the early 20's.

Herb Viner, holding the job for the past few months, objected to what various citizens included as garbage and proposed he be allowed to charge each call according to the work done. He also suggested a system be set up whereby the village would be divided into sections, and the garbage set outside on certain days, possibly twice a month.

Councillors Graham and Lawrence agreed that many citizens paid little attention to the list that went for garbage, adding anything in the way of refuse to the garbage box or can.

Councillor Millar stated he was in favor of the present fee going for night soil collection only, and letting the garbage and tin cans go, to have each householder dispose of them by other means, or trucker.

George Graham supported the idea claiming people could burn their garbage. Councillor George Charlton said people should have proper containers, tight and small enough that they could be handled by one man.

"Why not put the whole thing on the taxes?" said Fred Lawrence, "at least that would do away with all this trouble the collectors have in getting their money."

Try Old System Again

"I realize there is considerable abuse in this matter," said the reeve, "but I believe we should give the present system another try, urging the people to use good medium-sized containers for their garbage and including in it only kitchen refuse and cans."

Mr. Viner didn't feel he was prepared to carry on at the present fee of 45 cents a month for both collections, and after some further discussion Councillor Millar and Graham moved William Edwards, a previous collector be given the job at the same money as a further trial.

Clark Harry Hill announced the 6,000 gallon car of road oil had arrived, and the various streets to be oiled and the width to be covered were decided on. The Jupp Constructions Company started the job on Tuesday. Before the centre road of the park is done more grading will be necessary and orders were issued to have the power grader on the job. Some fill will be put in holes around other sections of the park driveways, particularly in front of the cookhouse.

It was feared that there will be little oil for road patching next year, and possibly for roads as a dust layer.

Get Coal Early

A letter from the Department of Municipal Affairs urged the council to co-operate in advising the citizens of the possibility of a fuel shortage due to the call of some forty lake freighters to other jobs than carrying coal from the United States mines. Much of Ontario's coal this winter will came from the Canadian West. As a result of this and the heavy demand on the railroads carrying war materials, householders are urged to obtain coal before Fall.

With the hay season about to burst in full swing, Councillor G. H. Charlton keeping the village in line advised the park's crop cut. Sides of the street will also be mowed and cleaned up.

Reeve Tanner asked opinions on selling the village's horsedrawn equipment such as wagons, etc. Councillor Graham stated this was no time to get rid of it with gas and rubber shortage, as the village might be unable to get trucks another year to do their work. Other members believed it would be a good plan, and the equipment will be kept.

Gravel will be put on Concession street walk, and considerable repairs made to Strickland street, using a fill and asphalt patching. The tennis court at the park will be completed this week, the delay having been caused through difficulty in getting asphalt. Other roads will be checked and brought up to standard.

'Phone For The Chief

A phone was ordered installed for Harry T. Hill as Chief Constable, and proper Chief's badge pur? chased.

As soon as possible crossings along Queen street in the two-block downtown section at Reid and Burnham streets, now running level with the two main sidewalks, will be cut down to road level to eliminate the bump caused as cars enter or leave the main street.

With the days of the car on the wane for the present, a citizen remarked this was something that might be let go. With more people walking ,the level crossing for pedestrians might be more appreciated than the reduction in the bump for cars.

Accounts were passed as follows: Pay sheet No. 8, wages, $81.55; H. Viner, sanitary, $9; Lakefield High School Board, adv. rates, $1,800; Lakefield Public School, adv. rates, $700; Bell Telephone, $4.35; Pay sheet, No. 9, wages, $90.35; Lakefield Hydro Commission, $155.30; Peterborough Examiner, advertising, $37.50; W. German Editors my 20-years' stay in Germany I got to know many German editors personally. From them I know how they often blush at what is expected of them. Many feel unhappy and wish they might get out of the meshes of the ministry.

A few years ago we had the case of one such correspondent who felt so humiliated at what was happening in these daily conferences that he secretly took notes (the correspondents must not take notes while the "interpretations" are handed out to them), which he then turned over to the representative of a British daily. Unfortunately this colleague, bent upon scoring a scoop, published textually a number of instructions and "verbotens" given during a certain week.

The propaganda ministry immediately invited two gestapo officials to sit unobtrusively in the conference and to observe who was taking copious notes. The man was discovered, then shadowed for several days and finally arrested as he was about to slip a manuscript to a representative of the British newsman in a billiard hall. He was sent up for life. Since that time there have been few transgressions.

Almost until the very end of my Berlin activity, I was able nevertheless to obtain access to the daily instructions.

Hitler The Final Law.

On many items of news Hitler himself reserves the right to determine what commentary must be given.

After the German editors had taken their instructions, the foreign press was received daily, as most of us could not be regimented (our number, however, became smaller and smaller as Germany occupied one country after another and as representatives of the few remaining neutral countries became more and more afraid), naturally the tone toward us was a cajoling rather than a mandatory one.

Even then on several occasions the official would forget whom he had before him and read from his manuscript: "The press will write as follows." Blushingly, he would quickly change over to "Gentlemen of the foreign press, the German viewpoint on this-or-that situation is...."

Before the advent of Nazism, the German press was one of the freest in the world. It now is one of the most minutely regimented. This is true especially since the outbreak of the war; it was true, however, long before September, 1939. It has made for uniformity and sameness that is nothing short of appalling.

In the pre-1933 days, two German members of our staff spent about three hours every afternoon just marking the items that might be of interest to the American staff. In addition, two of us spent an hour each going most carefully over one well-reputed German daily.

Since the advent of the Hitler regime, one German in one hour can finish practically all the Berlin and most important provincial papers. And after having attended the daily conference for the foreign press we already know what the German press would say editorially.

SPORTING BLOOD

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

CHAPTER I

HUNTER DENT tried to keep his tanned, lean face from showing anger. Strickland Ballard, his boss, chuckled triumphantly.

"Young man whose estate do you work on?"

"Yours naturally, sir," Dent said. His brown eyes were narrow.

"You are aware, of course, that everything produced on an employer's time by one of his employes automatically becomes the employer's property That is the law, sir."

"But, Mr. Ballard, two years of the time I used to develop this strain of prolific corn was during my last two years at the university—"

Strickland Ballard lifted a thick, white hand. "That's beside the point, young man. I do seem to remember your saying something about Ballard's Prolific when you came to manage my estate, but the point is the type was fixed only this past fall, and since planting and seed selection, and all the experimental work, as well as land and fertilizers, came out of my pocket, and on my time, the product must revert to my ownership. You'd not wish to carry the claim to court, would you?"

"N-no, I suppose not, sir."

"Fine, fine! Then it's all settled." Ballard clapped Hunter on the shoulder. He was fatherly and beaming. He started off as the limousine came from the brick garage over at the house and Jeems, the liveried chauffeur, stepped into the sunlight to await Mr. Ballard's coming. The portly man turned. "And as for Firefly—you know that Bella is showing him in the horse show at the tri-state fair next week?"

"How could I forget it?" Hunter Dent asked bitterly.

"Now don't take it so hard, young man," Ballard said. "The same thing applies to the horse that applies to the Ballard strain of corn. It was a wager between us, and I won, that's all."

"Wager!" Hunter echoed. He wanted to take a poke at that beaming, fatherly face, with its under-smile of cunning.

"Certainly!" Mr. Ballard stated without batting an eye. "It was all a wager. I bet my land, money, time, against your skill and book-learning that you could make good here, and so you did, and I won! You have to be a good loser, Dent. You have to learn sportsmanship!"

"I'm learning, sir. Fast. The hard way. You call it sportsmanship, I call it robbery. You think you're a great sport, I just have to tell you to your face, sir, you're a thief."

"Them's hard words pardner. I hope you smile when you say them!" Strickland Ballard broke out in a roar of laughter. Then he sobered, but remained fatherly. "Tut, tut, son. Take it easy. I learned the hard way too. See all this?" He waved his hand at the huge barns, the fine country house over in the trees, the rolling lands, the rich alluvial bottoms where the corn had been grown. Autumn sunlight sparkled in the quiet river. "Thirty years ago I was a country bumpkin. I was as thin as a rail. I chewed some barks and herbs for my stomach. It got well. They laughed at me, even the family doctor hooted at the idea the medicine cured me. 'All right,' I told 'em, 'I'll bet you that was it!' That was the beginning of Ballard's Remedies. Those barks and herbs through that wager became all this. Get the idea?"

"I get it," Hunter Dent nodded. He was not less angry, but he did have a sneaking admiration for this thick-hided man who had won a major bet.

A GIRL on a sleek young Tennessee walking horse came from the stable not far from the two men. She was red-headed. She wore riding breeches and a sweater that gave her contours grace and allure. "Hunter!" she called. Her voice was musical, just a shade husky. In his present mood her beauty shocked and outraged Hunter Dent. "Will you step this way, please "

"Go tend to Bella," Mr. Ballard said. "And I must be going to work."

"Mr. Ballard," Hunter called.

"Yes?" Ballard turned again.

"I just want to lay a new wager with you."

"I'm betting you a year's work next season against making you get on your knees and apologizing to me for stealing everything I didn't have clamped down in a written contract when I came to you four years ago. You're going to restore my corn my horse, and beg my pardon, or next year I work for you without salary. Come on, come on, you wheel-horse of a sportsman! Bet."

Bella Ballard had Firefly leap the gate, and she joined them. "Repeat that in my daughter's presence," Strickland Ballard cried gleefully.

Hunter Dent did so. Bella grinned, looking like her father. When the wager was thoroughly understood the men shook hands. Mr. Ballard then waddled away, got into the flashing car, and was whisked to town seven miles away where the Ballard Laboratories turned out the Ballard remedies.

Bella slipped from the saddle, walking with the moody young man. "Dad will trim you again, Hunter. He never loses. He always bets on sure-things."

"You're telling me! Just the same I'm going to stake everything on this one roll of the dice. I know a thing or two he is over-looking."

"For instance?"

He turned swiftly on her. "You—for one."

She pantomimed a tremendous flutter. "Why, Hunter! This is so sudden!"

He gave her a black look. "Don't misinterpret my wager. Im not trying to marry you and lick your father that way. I know you are engaged to be married to another man. I have no delusions about you, either."

"Ah my!" she sighed, sagging. "And I thought I'd get a proposal this fine autumn morning! It all just goes to show. You said you know a thing or two—what is the other?"

"That irresponsible crack-pot brother of yours, that son of your sporting pappy, one Junior Ballard!" He watched, almost with satisfaction, the fun go out of her eyes. He did not wait for her to ask questions as to what he meant. He stopped. "Now you run along, sweet chile, and take your morning's constitutional on Hunter's hoss. Hunter has to go somewhere and try to find his lost soul."

"Red," the name Hunter knew her by, started to mount Firefly, but as suddenly turned to him, put her arms around his neck, and kissed him. Hunter was momentarily stunned. When he had come here to work, four seasons ago, and she was a filly of a kid, she'd been affectionate and had kissed him, because he must have seemed strong and great to her kid mind; but now she was a young woman and should know what a kiss is worth. Maybe she did, at that. She got into the saddle, looked down at him, impish fires in her eyes again.

"Maybe that would help you find it, Hunter," she said, and moved off on the splendid horse Hunter had bred, reared, trained.

FOR HUNTER it was a tough day. He belabored himself to keep from tearing his hair and going wild and shooting the place up. It was late when he went to the office, which was located in the second story of the garage. Here were a desk, a big steel safe, filing cases for farm records and records of the purebred Jersey herd, the horses and sheep. Everything was registered here at Ballard's. Over at the house some kind of a party was in progress. Hunter could hear music and hilarity. It would last until dawn. He'd have to load the drunks in the morning, likely. He posted his books, and wearily lay down, without removing his clothes, on the office day bed.

Orange Lodge Members Honor Chaplain

HAVELOCK, June 10 (ENS)—On Friday evening the members of Lady McGill Lodge, L.O.B.A. No. 471 held their regular meeting, followed by a social evening for one of their most faithful and regular members, who has served as chaplain for the past 17 years, in the person of Mrs. John Kinnaird. Mrs. Kinnaird is shortly to move to Toronto and she was presented with an Honorary Certificate of Membership and a gift of money in a lovely purse. The following is the address which was read by Mrs. William Harris, and the presentation was made by Mrs. Charlie Ellis.

Dear Sister Kinnaird—We have learned of your intended departure from among us, which we regret very much. You have been a very faithful member and have very efficiently filled the Chaplain's chair for 17 years, and have inspired us to be better members of the L.O.B.A. and all the principles that it stands for. We realize that the Lodge you will attend will have gained immeasurably, but we are losing a member whose place no one can fill. We ask you to accept this purse, as a very small token of our love and esteem for you. Fraternally yours, officers and members of Lady McGill Lodge, L.O.B.A. No. 471.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal—a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Don't you take chances—look at your child's tongue and check the breath every day! And at the first sign of bad odor on the breath or a coated tongue, give Children's Own Tablets. Small, pleasant-tasting tablets made especially for youngsters from runabout age to 15 years, they are wonderfully effective in helping to clean out harmful wastes and sweeten sour, upset stomachs. No drastic weakening flush-out action like many old-fashioned laxatives have.

Get a package of Children's Own Tablets—only 25¢—today from your druggist. Made by the makers of Baby's Own Tablets—your guarantee of a reliable product. Liberal trial sample FREE to Mothers. Address Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

WHY DO MOTHERS BELIEVE SINGLE GIRLS ARE HELPLESS?

Unwed and Efficient Woman Worker Complains of Parent's Attitude

A young woman says: "I am 24 years old. I graduated at the head of my class in college. I have a fine position in a big business firm and am trusted with making important decisions.

"I mean to say that I am an intelligent adult, yet my mother treats me as if I were a feeble-minded child. She doesn't pretend to have the slightest respect for my opinion or knowledge. She tells me when to go to bed and not to sit up reading, as she did when I was 5 years old, and supervises my diet just as carefully and still thinks that I should live on spinach and milk.

"I am a good cook, but I never start toward the kitchen that she doesn't stop me and tell me just how to make a cake, although I have made thousands of them. She still feels it is her duty to read my letters and listen in on my telephone conversations and pick my friends; and every time I go and come I am put through a questionnaire about where I have been, whom I have seen and what they said, and why didn't I come home earlier.

"For, you see, I am still unmarried and, in my mother's eyes and in the eyes of all the other mothers I know, an unmarried daughter is a poor, feeble, helpless creature, incapable of taking care of herself, although she may be 70 years old and, like Lady Kew's daughter in Thackeray's story, have heard all there is to tell. I bet Miss Susan B. Anthony never went out of the house as long as her mother lived without being told to put on her rubbers, and that Florence Nightingale's mother never ceased to warn her to beware of strange men.

Treats Married Sister As Equal

"Now I have a sister five years younger than I am who is a darling but no intellectual prodigy. She married right out of high school, so she has not had the education, nor the training, nor the experience that I have had, yet Mother treats Sally as her equal and me as her inferior.

"I know a thousand things about life and the world in general that Sally, shut up in her nursery and the four walls of her home, hasn't had a chance to learn, but Mother pooh-poohs my views on every subject and quotes Sally as an oracle. She would never dream of regulating Sally's goings and comings as she does mine, or of picking out Sally's acquaintances for her.

"All of which causes me to wonder why married daughters and unmarried daughters have such a different status with their mothers. Do mothers think that a girl can't be right bright who doesn't catch a husband? Or is it that getting married somehow automatically makes girls members of the Amalgamated Order of Wives, with all its pass words and secrets, and so makes a mother feel closer to her married daughter than to her old maid daughter?

Sacrifices Are Ignored

"Anyway, you will notice that mothers always brag about their daughters who can write Mrs. before their names, no matter what sort of sticks they are married to, and that they are always apologetic over the ones who are still Misses, even when it is the spinsters who are supporting them. Why, many a time I have seen a mother proudly displaying some cheap gift that she boasted that her daughters, Mrs. So-and-So, had sent her, while she never said a word about the single daughter who was working her fingers to the bone to keep her soft and comfortable in her old age.

"But all of this is beside the point. What I started to say, before I got lost in the intricacies of mother psychology, is that even more than the lack of any personal freedom, which I regret is our inability to be friends as well as mother and daughter. I know my mother is a very fine and intelligent woman and I would dearly like to have a real companionship with her in which we would meet on a common platform of mutual interests and be able to talk as woman to woman.

"I'd like to be able to discuss with her my problems, especially as regards men and marriage, and ask her why it was that some men attracted me, other repulsed me, and others kept me guessing; and if she thought, deep down in her heart, that marriage was worthwhile. But I can't do it. Mother still thinks I am five years old and too young to be told the facts of life, and when I try to talk seriously with her she waves me off with a platitude that says, in effect, run along, little girl, and play with your dolls. Funny, isn't it?"

"No, tragic," I responded.

He must have been sleepier than he thought. What the hour was when something limp and heavy fell across his bed, waking him, he did not know. A thin moon was sinking. When Hunter got out from under the object and switched on a light he discovered Junior Ballard lying on the floor in a stupor. Junior was in tails and white tie. Hunter put him on the bed. He looked down on the pale, dissipated face. A good kid, in a way, too . . . and a bad one. There was a soft leather satchel lying on the floor. Hunter picked it up, saw the spot was a smear of blood. There was blood on the boy, too. He saw a long scratch on Junior's arm. He opened the bag and after that time, nor anything else, mattered much.

When he finished counting the contents he had $17,000 in cash.

Tea-Leaf Fortunes Help Clever Girls Entertain

Men Like You in a Gipsy Mood

Sure to put your beau in a confidential mood, a cosy tearoom and you reading fortunes in the tea-leaves. Soon you're talking intimately of life . . . luck . . . love!

And it's easy. In your head (or your purse!) is a list of tea-leaf symbols with meanings. You look mysteriously into his cup, decide what symbols the groups of leaves resemble most.

Tea-leaves grouped in the shape of a cross? Your beau has arrived at a crossroads in life! But what momentous choice must he make? Let's look for a clue.

That sceptre? And that crescent moon? Hmm, a VERY momentous choice—for the sceptre is fame, the crescent true love! He'll need your guidance, gypsy. Better look into the cup again.

Isn't that a rake (a sign of grief) near the sceptre, and a star (riches and honor) near the crescent? Yes! "Fame for its own sake will lead you to grief," you can say wisely, "but true love will lead to good fortune."

For more gipsy lore see our 32-page booklet. Has 85 tea-leaf symbols, also tells exciting ways to read cards, the "crystal ball," dominoes, the Mystic Circle. Has a horoscope for each month.

For your copy of "Fun With Fortune-telling" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address ,and the Name of Booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN BE THE BEST LEAD

NOBODY likes to lead an unbid suit headed by the king, without either the ace or queen accompanying it, especially against a slam bid. In some rare situations, however, the bidding of the opponents cries out so loudly for the suit that a player with courage must open it.

North: ♠ A 7 3 ♥ A 9 8 6 4 ♦ 10 4 3 ♣ 8 3

West: ♠ Q 6 5 2 ♥ Q 10 5 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ J 9 2

East: ♠ J 10 9 8 ♥ K 7 3 2 ♦ J 9 ♣ 7 5 4

South: ♠ K 4 ♥ J ♦ A Q 8 6 2 ♣ A K Q 10 6

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 NT

East, a player with real vision, had listened carefully to the bidding of this deal. When North's response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed possession of two aces, East knew that he could have nothing else of importance in the honor line. North's heart rebid, showing a five-card suit, made it certain that he would have opened the bidding instead of passing on his first turn if he had held the heart Q. Since he did not open it, then West almost surely had that important card.

He therefore led the heart 2, instead of the spade K, which would have been preferred by most ordinary players, reckoning that the spades probably were at lease doubly stopped.

The first trick brought forth the heart J, Q and A. North could not see any likelihood of making his contract unless the diamond Q could be finessed successfully, so he tried that. When it failed, the contract was set three with heart tricks. If a spade had been led, the contract would have been easy to make with the loss of one trick in diamonds, North taking two tricks in spades, four in diamonds, five in Clubs and one in hearts.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A Q 4 3 ♥ 5 ♦ 9 6 5 ♣ K J 9 5 4

West: ♠ 8 6 ♥ K J 9 8 ♦ J 10 3 ♣ A 10 8 3

East: ♠ K 2 ♥ A Q 10 6 4 2 ♦ K 8 7 4 ♣ 6

South: ♠ J 10 9 7 5 ♥ 7 3 ♦ A Q 2 ♣ Q 7 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West leads the heart 8, how should East proceed in his effort to set 4-Spades, which West doubled?

Cut Airgraph Rates

OTTAWA, June 9 — (CP). — Reduction of airgraph rates to members of the armed forces overseas, extension of the service to include message to civilians in the United Kingdon, and introduction of a new air letter for use in communication with the armed forces aboard was announced Saturday by Postmaster General Mulock.

The changes are effective June 15.

The present airgraph rate of 10 cents a message to soldiers, sailors and airmen in Britain or the Middle East is cut to six cents.

The airgraph messages sent to civilians will cost 15 cents each.

Persecution Is Weakness Of All Tyrants

BOSTON Mass., June 10. — The great task now confronting a liberated America, which more than three-quarters of a century ago fought a four-years war to free the slaves, is to aid in working out the freedom of the whole world from slavery, The Christian Science Board of Directors told several thousand Christian Scientists gathered in annual meeting in Boston yesterday.

Declaring that this would be the sentiment expressed by the Nation's martyred President Abraham Lincoln, were he here to-day, the directors pointed out that "through the ages tyrants have endeavored to govern and control men by engendering fear," and quoting from Mary Baker Eddy's work. "Miscellany" (p. 191), they further say. "Persecution is the weakness of tyrants engendered by their fear, and love will cast it out."

MRS. ELISABETH F. NORWOOD
Incoming President of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts

The report of the Board of Lectureship, read by Gavin W. Allan, referred to the recent statement of Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few," as a perfect phrasing. But lifting this phrasing out of the setting of war, the Board felt that it could aptly apply to Mrs. Eddy and her small group of followers who, a half-century or more ago, worked for the establishment of a vision that sought to bless all mankind.

To-day the Board found that the establishment of Christian Science in some countries was being limited by the dictators, that some churches and institutions were being closed and confiscated. "But wherever the multitudes of plain people in ordinary, everyday living cherish and practice the truths of their religion," the Board said, "its resurrection is assured."

To the incoming president times appeared to constitute a challenge to Christian Scientists to face unflinchingly "a duty beyond anything they have ever before been called upon to face." Yet in the face of this duty, she said, there is the authority of the Bible that "the Lord's hand is not shortened that it cannot save" and that "Christ's Christianity will free mankind from the bondage in which it is being held."

With this comforting assurance, the incoming president appraised world conditions in the light of another Red Sea of human doubts and fears through which mankind must be guided to higher spiritual ground by the power of divine intelligence. It is true, she said, that it seems necessary in the present-day conflict to resort to human means and methods against evil aggressors, yet the march forward can be taken safely and with confidence by putting on the breastplate of righteousness, the armor of God.

Berlin Claims Hacheim Has Fallen

British Libya Anchor Scene Of Terrific Fighting For Days

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 11—(AP). — The German high command claimed to-day that Bir Hacheim southern anchor of the British line in Libya, had been captured by Axis troops.

A communique said the stronghold (defended by Free French troops recently reinforced by British forces) was occupied this morning.

"In North Africa," the communique said, "the fort of Bir Hacheim, southern pillar of the British defensive system, was this morning taken by storm after several days of bitter resistance by strong enemy units which had been encircled there.

"The German air force successfully took part in the fighting and bombed British troop concentrations and columns."

The high command claimed that a German submarine attack on a strongly-escorted convoy in the Eastern Mediterranean, destined for Tobruk, resulted in the sinking of two heavily-laden tankers totalling 12,000 tons and the damaging of four transports by torpedoes.

The Germans asserted the Royal Air Force lost 21 planes in aerial combats in the Libyan area while German and Italian fighters destroyed eight planes in day and night bomb raids on airfields on Malta.

May Be True.

LONDON, June 11 — (CP).— Military circles in London said today that the German claim to the capture of desert fort of Bir Hacheim in Libya, probably is true, although there has been no confirmation here.

Price-Violating

TORONTO, June 11 (CP). — The Dominion Government is itself one of the principal violators of the price ceiling legislation on beef, Controller Robert H. Saunders said today in asking Mayor Fred Conboy to call a special meeting of the Board to consider the shortage. "Large quantities of beef are bought for army kitchens at a price that is slightly more than two cents per pound higher than the authorized wholesale price," Controller Saunders said.

Peterboro Boys Of S.D. and G.s Take Captives

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 11 (CP)—A man from Glengarry pulled a Sgt. York stunt in the first action of the big spring battle manoeuvres in Southern England where a Canadian Corps battled a British Corps.

He was 24-year-old Sgt. Noel Moran of Lancaster, Ont., in Glengarry county. With a platoon, he captured 200 British officers and men and 14 Bren gun carriers, and, armed with a Tommy gun, marched down the road from the front at the head of the long column of "enemy" prisoners.

A British division was attacking along a broad wooded valley when it hit the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders from Eastern Ontario, and the North Nova Scotia Highlanders. These two battalions were in the vanguard of Canadian Corps.

As British infantry poured over the fields a company of S.D. and G.'s commanded by Archie Hamilton of Peterborough, Ont., lay low in a grove and another company, commanded by Capt. Neil Gemmel of Peterborough, went out to meet the first thrust.

Sgt. Moran, a sailor before the war, led a platoon forward, and ambushed the British. Nearly an entire company was rounded up in 15 minutes. The two companies of Glengarry men stalled the whole attack of the "enemy" division long enough for other Canadian formations to move into position.

Taking part in the roundup led by Moran were 30 to 40 Ontario men including Cpl. J. L. Mackay of Alexandria, Pte. Allan Gray of Cornwall, Pte. Arthur Parnell of Peterborough, Pte. Gordon Phillips of Kingston and Pte. Pat Coogan of Cobourg.

Japs Confess 2 Carriers Sunk in Scrap

Still Claim Aleutian Points Occupied Raiding Bases Ruined

TOKYO, From Japanese Broadcasts), June 11. —(AP) — Japan's leading civilian naval expert, Masanori Ito, said today that "in view of the great success" of the Japanese in the battle of the Pacific "we should not be dissappointed at the loss of two aircraft carriers, for the gain is far greater than the loss."

(This was the first authoritative suggestion from Tokyo that two of the Imperial navy's carriers had been sunk, as officially claimed by the United States. It represented a shift from Tokyo Imperial headquarters' admission that one had been sunk and another severely damaged).

His interpretation of the battles at Midway and Aleutians was broadcast by Domi, Japanese news agency.

"Even if Japanese army forces had not occupied key points— which they did, and the operations reportedly still progressing in the Aleutian group— the naval operation in this area would have been particularly significant in that it destroyed important military objectives which otherwise could have bee nmade a foothold for air-raiding Japan," Domei quoted Ito.

"What is most significant in these operations is the fact that the Japanese navy succeeded in sinking a United States aircraft carrier force consisting of the Enterprise and Hornet," Ito said.

The United States has listed only hits on one aircraft carrier and sinking of a destroyer as its losses).

Vice-Admiral Ichiro Sato of the naval general staff asserted that "the Japanese navy has made a decisive advance toward absolute mastery of the sea" by inflicting "smashing blows" on the United States navy.

MOSCOW, June 11 — (AP).—Germany's armies and air force, increasing their pressure along the entire front, were attacking today at three major points: opening a new push from Kharkov in the Ukraine, hurling whole divisions against besieged Sevastopol, and battering at Murmansk from the air.

Dispatches from the battlefronts suggested the Germans at last were getting their summer campaign under way, rolling into larger-scale action after being held and thrust back for almost six months.

Tass reported from Sevastopol the Germans had attacked repeatedly during the last 24 hours, hurling powerful forces into the front, but said that "despite the intensity and stubborness of the attacks the enemy failed to break the resistance of the Sevastopol defenders...The troops firmly hold their ground."

Aerial activity on both sides was described as intense. Tas said Red Air Force fliers defending the city shot down 29 German planes and damaged 16 others in the past few days, while anti-aircraft guns downed 20 more German aircraft.

In London more than 10 German divisions, perhaps 150,000 men, were reported by a military commentator today to be striking at Sevastopol in the heaviest attack yet made on that Soviet Black Sea port.

The commentator said the Germans were making a particular effort to clear the southern flank of the defences.

In Berlin the German high command claimed today that "desperate" Russian counter-attacks in the battle around Sevastopol were unsuccessful and that German planes had sunk a 3,000-ton merchant ship in the besieged Crimean port.

The high command added that the Russians lost "several places" in fighting on the northern sector of the long front.

"On the Volkhovo front (below Leningrad) strong enemy attacks were repulsed and heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy," the communique said.

"Coastal artillery of the army successfully shelled enemy vessels in the Bight of Kronstadt (Russian naval base near Leningrad). A Soviet submarine leaving Leningrad and an escorting vessel were set afire."

Gen. Stuart Pacific Commander

Replaces Gen Anderson Being Retired; Over All Forces

OTTAWA, June 11 — (CP). — Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, 51, Chief of General Staff, will take over the temporary command of the Pacific area "in order to deal with organization plans arising out of expansion of Army forces in that command," Defence Minister Ralston announced to-day.

The present officer commanding the Pacific Command at Victoria, Maj.-Gen. R. O. Alexander, 54, is appointed Inspector-General of the Army for Central Canada, effective July 1.

He succeeds Maj-Gen. T. V. Anderson, 61, who retires from the service after completion of 42 years' service.

Gen. Stuart will be in command of the Pacific area until a successor to Gen. Alexander is appointed.

Gen. Stuart has just completed an inspection trip to the West Coast, one of a series he has made to that area during the past few months.

Gen. Stuart, Army spokesman said, will be head of the United Navy, Army and Air Force Command at the Pacific Coast, a post held by Gen. Alexander. Air Commodore L. F. Stevenson, formerly head of the R.C.A.F. establishment in London, is in charge of the air defences on the Pacific. The Navy's Pacific Coast commander is Commodore W. J. R. Beech.

Born in Ceylon, son of an English Civil Service family, Gen. Alexander's military career began in 1908 when he received his first commission in Montreal's Victoria Rifles. He joined the Royal Canadian Regiment in 1910 and went with it to Bermuda in 1914.

Recalled to Canada soon after the outbreak of war, he went overseas as adjutant of the 24th Battalion, and after the Battle of the Somme became lieutenant-colonel and was given command of the battalion.

Across the Strait ?

LONDON, June 11—(AP). —Reuters said today it had recorded a Vichy broadcast reporting that the Germans had crossed the Strait of Kerch and landed on the Caucasus mainland, occupying the town of Anapa.

This report has not been confirmed by any other source. The Vichy broadcast quoted "an Ankara dispatch."

Nazis Wipe Out Whole Czech Hamlet in Purge

LONDON, June 11 — (CP). — The toll of Czech lives exacted by the Germans in bloody vengeance for the slaying of Reinhard Heydrich rose to-day to a known total of 306, exclusive of uncounted scores slain in an unprecedented purge which wiped the little town of Lidice off the map.

Announcement of the execution of 31 more Czechs in Prague and Bruenn was made by the Berlin radio a few hours after it reported last night that all men in Lidice had been shot on the charge that the population sheltered the assassins of Heydrich, Nazi ruler of Bohemia and Moravia.

The German radio gave the population of Lidice—a village of coal miners and woodcutters situated a few miles from Prague—as 483, but Czech quarters in London said it was nearer 1,200.

All women residents were sent to concentration camps, the children were placed in "appropriate educational institutions" and the town itself was levelled to the ground, the Germans declared.

In addition to sheltering Heydrich's slayers, they asserted, inhabitants of Lidice were found to have been "in active service of the enemy abroad."

"Evidence was found of hostile actions committed against the Reich, and subversive printed matter, as well as arms and ammunition dumps, an illegal radio transmitting station, and huge war supplies of national commodities were discovered," the Berlin announcement said.

A Vow of Revenge.

LONDON, June 11—(CP) —The Czecho-Slovak Government here vowed vengeance tonight for the execution of the hundreds of persons put to death by the Germans in reprisal for the assassination of the Gestapo hangman, Reinhard Heydrich.

Reckoning Due.

MONTREAL, June 11. —(CP) — —Czech authorities here, horrified at news of the destruction and mass killings in the village of Lidice in their native Czechoslovakia, predicted grimly last night that the Nazis "will pay dearly" for this and other atrocities when the day of reckoning comes.

Molotov, FDR Set 2nd Front; Soviet to Help Rebuild Europe on Atlantic Charter

Red Envoy, U.S. Chiefs Spend 6 Days Laying War Plans

WASHINGTON, June 11 — (AP)). — President Roosevelt and Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, the White House announced today, have reached a "full understanding" in conversations in Washington "with regard to the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

The White House, in a formal statement disclosing that Molotov had visited the United States, gave no additional details on a second front. Nor did the statement say whether the agreement was to open such a front or not to do so.

The White House statement was released only a short while after the momentous announcement in London that Russia and Britain had signed a 20-year mutual assistance treaty.

The President and Molotov, the White House said, also attained a "unity" of views on two other vital questions pertaining to their war efforts:

"Measures for increasing and speeding up the supplies of planes, tanks and other kinds of war materials" from the United States to Russia, and the "fundamental problems of co-operation of the Soviet Union and the United States in safeguarding peace and security to the freedom-loving peoples after the war."

'Both sides state with satisfaction," the statement declared, "the unity of their views on all these questions."

Moscow Drops Claim To Baltic States; Japan Not Mentioned

LONDON, June 11 — (CP). —Pledging themselves to rebuild Europe on the terms of the Churchill-Roosevelt Atlantic charter, Britain and Russia have signed a 20-year mutual assistance treaty "against Hitlerite Germany," Foreign Secretary Eden announced today.

The pact was signed May 21 by Mr. Eden and Russia's Foreign Commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, at the British Foreign Office. The Russian statesman later went to Washington. Molotov now has returned to Moscow.

The United States was kept fully informed of the London negotiations, it was said. Japan is not mentioned in the Anglo-Russian treaty.

The announcement was the first official disclosure that Molotov had been in Britain or the United States.

The Foreign Secretary made his announcement in the House of Commons as Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky smiled broadly in the gallery.

Mr. Eden said that Britain and Russia had reached a "full understanding" with regard to the "urgent task of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

Doom for Hitlerism.

The pact, designed to become the bulwark of a new security system, was quickly interpreted as a new avowal of a battle of extinction against Hitlerism between two European fronts.

In announcing that Britain and Russia are in complete accord on the "urgent task" of opening a new European front against Germany, having paralleled their treaty talks with new military consultation, Mr. Eden did not say positively that it would be opened this year.

In addition to second front strategy, the military discussions which had been carried on also in Washington concerned means of further improving deliveries of planes, and tanks, and other war materials to Russia.

The understanding on the second front also was announced in a Foreign Office communique. It said that Molotov along with the Rus-

Jap, Chinese Toll 2 Million Each

LONDON, June 11. —(CP) —Japanese losses in China to the end of 1941 exceeded 2,000,000 killed and wounded, K. C. George Yeh, director of the Chinese ministry of information in London declared today.

Yeh said he was unable to announce Chinese casualties, but added grimly:—

"I would be lying if I were to say we have suffered smaller losses than our enemy."

He said the Chinese were immobilizing more than 1,000,000 Japanese troops, including the forces in both China and Manchuria.

China, Yeh declared, has more than 300 divisions under arms, with 5,000,000 soldiers in the field and 10,000,000 more men behind the lines.

MP Lineup Stands On Conscription

OTTAWA, June 11—(CP). — No change in the prospective line-up of members of the House of Commons on the Government's amendment to the National Resources Mobilization Act appeared probable today as a result of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech on second reading of the amendment yesterday.

The group of Quebec Liberal members opposed to compulsory overseas service seemed not to have been affected by Mr. King's argument. Their point of view will find expression in the house, probably today, when Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Public Works and Transport, speaks:

"A distinction has been made between the principle and the application of the principle," Mr. Cardin told The Canadian Press today. "We are opposed to the principle."

The amendment will remove from the act the restriction on the use of men called up under the Compulsory Service Law outside Canada. Mr. King said yesterday there was no necessity of using compulsion now with respect to overseas service, but the government wished the restriction removed so that action could be taken when and if the necessity arises.

TORONTO, June 11.—(CP)— A 38 year old Toronto nurse ran without clothing along a street near Dufferin race track here to-day and collapsed on the steps of a house after pounding on its front door, precipitating a police investigation which resulted in the arrest of two men on nominal charges of vagrancy.

Police said the woman had been imprisoned overnight in a building a the Dufferin track, where her clothing and some money were found to-day. Police described the men arrested as horse trainers, and said they were arrested in a stable at track. Their names were withheld.

The woman was taken to hospital suffering a spinal injury police said had been caused by a kick.

Aid Via The Old Silk Route

Land Link From India To China Still Intact

CHUNGKING, June 11—(AP).—The land transport link between Allied forces in India and China is intact despite the Japanese penetration of Burma, a Chinese spokesman said today.

"The route remains passable," he said. "There has been no contact between Japanese and Chinese troops north of Myitkyina (Burmese railhead 185 miles south of the Sinkang Province border.)"

The spokesman declined to disclose the location of the trail, long augmented by aerial transport, but reported "the Japanese say we are using an old silk route through Sinkiang."

At the same time he declared that 8,000 Japanese who pushed 25 miles southward along the Yellow River from Paotow, in Suiyuan Province, had been hurled back 2 miles.

Turning from this theatre near the Mongolian border to the south-eastern front, he said that the walled railway centre of Chuhsien, in western Chekiang Province, "is still in our hands."

At the same time it was acknowledged that Japanese based in the adjacent Kiangsi Province had driven slightly eastward to narrow the gap of some 175 miles of the railway still held by the Chinese.

Japs Fail to Bag a Fortress at Midway

Yanks Beat Nipponese Fliers To Punch Eac Attack—Japs Save the Runways

By CLARK LEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

HONOLULU, June 11.—(AP). — Part of the epic story of the Battle of Midway was told to-day by American army pilots, who with navy and marine fliers smashed the Japanese fleet and saved the Hawaiian islands from invasion.

This part of the story is that of the army's land-based aircraft, and for them the battle started the afternoon of June 3 when they got in the first punch.

Two Japanese fleets were approaching Midway one consisting principally of transports from the west and the other of the battle fleet from another direction

Gen. Willis Hale, commander of the Hawaiian bombardment command, told how his men got in the first decisive blow.

Army bombers made their first contact with the enemy far to the west of Midway the afternoon of June 3. Bombs, dropped in amedium-altitude attack, hit and damaged one cruiser or battleship which was left in flames, as were also one transport and one destroyer.

The following morning, army planes took off anticipating that Japanese planes from the second enemy fleet—much closer than the force bombed the previous afternoon—would hit the island. Marine fliers also hopped off and were in the air when the Japanese arrived.

Twenty minutes later, marine dive bombers swarmed down on Japanese ships, adding further destruction (navy dive bombers and torpedo planes also attacked about the same time but details have not been released).

At 8.30 A.M. army heavy bombers attacked the battle fleet from a high altitude, hitting one carrier (possibly the army bombers also damaged other enemy vessels, inasmuch as at the time of writing all the reports still were not received.)

Meanwhile, Japanese planes from carriers were attacking Midway.

Their first attack made at a high level with heavy demolition bombs, lasted 38 minutes and was directed against both Sand Island and the nearby Eastern Island, which together comprise Midway.

Japanese bombers then slipped out of the sun and attacked Midway's ground installations while pursuit planes followed with strafing attacks At least 180 enemy planes participated in the attacks.

Marine fighters engaged the enemy planes.

The Japanese did not bomb runways, apparently expecting to occupy the Islands and use them for an air base.

Shortly after the Japanese withdrew, the American planes returned

OVERSEAS CONSCRIPTION IS REMOTE PRIME MINISTER TELLS HOUSE

Premier's 135-Min. Speech Leaves Hanson "Cold" Wants Total War Practised

Same Appeasement Policy Says Tory Chief As Prime Minister Claims Canada Must Be Protected First--Quebec In Limelight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 11—(CP).—Political observers today saw conscription for service overseas as only a remote possibility, with the necessity for home defence taking an increasingly important place in the Government's considerations.

This was the conclusion drawn following the 2¼ hours' speech with which Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday launched the conscription debate in the House of Commons.

Mr. King said overseas conscription was not a present necessity and might never be necessary, whereas the growing threats to Canada's Atlantic and Pacific coasts required constant readiness to meet and repel the enemy at home.

He moved second reading of Bill 80—his measure to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act by repealing section three.

This amendment would remove the barrier against sending overseas those called up for compulsory service under the Act.

Mr. King told a crowded and expectant House that the Government desired to have the power from parliament to act quickly if it became necessary to enforce unlimited conscription.

He said the Government had that power now from the War Measures Act of 1914 but he wanted it from the present parliament, although he had no expectation of using it in the near future.

Leaves Hanson "Cold."

Conservative House Leader Hanson followed the Prime Minister and declared Mr. King's speech "left me cold."

He said it would "send a chill of disillusionment down the spine of every loyal Canadian" who, after the plebiscite vote had expected the Prime Minister would "practice total war in deed and in truth."

Mr. Hanson said he would insist that the bill be amended to incorporate mandatory provisions for immediate enforcement of conscription of manpower, wealth and resources.

In a brief sitting, the Senate approved a Canada-United States agreement equalizing income and corporation tax for non-residents. The agreement also is intended to avoid tax evasion.

The Senate also passed an amendment to the Canada Evidence Act to allow admission of photographs of documents as evidence and gave first reading to the $2,000,000,000 War Appropriation Bill and a bill authorizing the raising of up to $750,000,000 by way of loan for redeeming government loans and other purposes.

That Quebec Vote.

In the House of Commons debate, there were references by both Mr. King and Mr. Hanson to the fact that Quebec voted heavily in the plebiscite against releasing the Government from its no-conscription pledges while the other eight Provinces voted strongly in favor of such release.

They referred also to the resignation from the Government of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, who was Public Works and Transport Minister, as a protest when Mr. King introduced

20 Per Cent. of Spring Seeding In County Not Yet Completed, Frank Paterson Reports

Twenty per cent of the seeding in Peterborough County is not yet done, F. C. Paterson, Agricultural representative said today.

"A lot of buckwheat and millet is being sown, also oats and Soudan grass for pasturage. Haying has begun but only a small quantity has been cut. Fall wheat is looking good, but farmers need some continuous dry weather right now," Mr. Paterson added. They are looking forward to a good crop of hay, but the weather needs to be favorable."

Incidentally he quoted several proportional figures to indicate the extent of the increase in farm production in the last few years.

"This country exported 60 times more hogs than we did less than ten years ago. Total export in the last year was 600,000,000 pounds of bacon as compared with 10,000,000 pounds back in 1935 of 1936. We used to export one million dozens of eggs prior to 1938, and in the last year this has mounted to 4,000,000 dozens. These figures alone give some idea of the job Canadian farmers are doing to meet war needs of Great Britain."

rived in Washington on May 29 and left on June 4. He now is safely back home, the White House said.

The statement released to-day was approved by both Molotov and Mr. Roosevelt and withheld until the former had returned. The discussions entered into while the foreign commissar was a secret guest at the White House, apparently ranged over the whole field of military and economic problems of mutual concern to the two nations.

Mr Roosevelt, at their conclusion, asked Molotov to inform Stalin that he "feels these conversations have been most useful in establishing a basis for fruitful and closer relationship between the two governments in the pursuit of the common objectives of the United Nations."

The members of the official Soviet mission to this country were not announced, the White House statement referring only to the Molotov "party."

But participating in the discussions here were Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet ambassador to the United States, whom Molotov succeeded as foreign commissar in April, 1939; Harry Hopkins, key adviser to the President on supply problems; Gen. George C Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Navy; and, in the non-military zone of conversations, State Secretary Cordell Hull.

of military discussions accompanying the treaty negotiations and that the "urgent need" of a second front had been agreed upon.

The two countries, Mr. Eden said, have agreed that they will "work for the organization of security and economic prosperity" in Europe, taking into account the interests of the United Nations.

Britain and Russia are willing "to unite with other like-minded states in adopting proposals for common action to preserve peace and resist aggression," the Foreign Minister declared, forecasting some sort of post-war organization similar to the League of Nations.

The treaty, he said, will remain in force until Russia and Britain recognize it as "supreseded by adoption of proposals for a long-term system of international security," but in default of the adoption of such proposals "it shall remain in force for a period of 20 years and thereafter until terminated by either of the contracting parties."

He said that the "whole of the terms of the agreement" are being published in a white paper and "there are no secret engagements or commitments of any kind whatsoever."

The Soviet Information Bureau announced that Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's army had taken the initiative in the shell-torn region of Karkov, Nazi-held steel centre in the Donets Basin 400 miles South of Moscow.

Beyond saying that "a battle took place," its midnight communique reported no details.

However the defenders of Sevastopol, beseiged Soviet Black Sea naval base buffeted by land and air attacks for six days, were declared to have again "repulsed the enemy offensive and inflicted heavy losses on him."

The Kharkov action was the third in a series of local Nazi drives on sun-hardened Southern reaches of the front that has substituted for Hitler's expected attempt to launch a grand spring offensive. Ground to the North is still soft.

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red Army shock divisions pressed hard upon Kharkov in an 18-day campaign last month. The information bureau said 90,000 Germans were killed or captured, against 75,000 Russians killed or missing.

The Russian offensive— reported to have broken up Nazi plans for a second march immediately upon the Caucasus gateway at Rostov— was instituted as a diversion during the eventually-successful Nazi drive, started May 8, to regain the Kerch Peninsula.

The Kerch campaign, which left the Germans only a short water jump from the Caucasian coast, was their first major offensive after the winter retreats. The attack upon Sevastopol, launched last Friday, was No. 2.

(Elimination of Sevastopol, at the rear of Axis forces in the Crimea, and a plunge Eastward on the mainland would again place defenders of the Caucasus under threat of a pincer action such as was broken at Rostov last November).

Guerillas on the central front occupied a populated place after striking at the German garrison in a surprise action which left the field of battle strewn with the bodies of hundreds of foe.

sian Ambassador in London, Ivan Maisky, Gen. Issayev, representing the Red Army, and Admiral Kharlamov, representing the Russian Navy, participated in the discussions with Prime Minister Churchill, Dominions Secretary Clement Attlee, Mr. Eden, and the British Chiefs of tSaff.

The mutual assistance treaty, in which Rusia and Britain foreswore interference with the internal affairs of other nations and territorial aggrandizement, represented the word of nations controlling five-twelfths of the earth's surface.

When the announcement had been made in London, Russia's radio program were interrupted for a reading of the text. The treaty was the fruit of talks which started last December in Moscow among Premier Joseph Stalin Molotov, and Eden.

It was announced that Molotov had "most useful and satisfactory talks with the President in Washington."

Gives Up Call for Baltics.

In negotiating an accord Russia's first wish was for a treaty guaranteeing her western frontiers, including the Baltic States (Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia) but it was understood that this was abandoned in favor of the present, broader commitments.

Russia absorbed the Baltic States in 1940 but all now are in German possession.

The treaty provides "for common action to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period." It pledges the two nations "not to enter into any negotiations" with Hitler's Government or any German Government that fails to renounce aggression.

The treaty does not mention Japan.

Mr. Eden said that Molotov arrived in London May 21 and the treaty was signed May 26 before he left for the United States. Molotov "has now got back to Moscow," the foreign secretary said.

The Russian foreign commissar was accompanied by M. Sobolev of the Peoples Commissariat for foreign affairs.

Molotov and Mr. Eden signed the treaty with Prime Minister Churchill's gold-mounted fountain pen.

In it Britain and Russia agreed to render one another "all possible economic assistance after the war" and to avoid participation in any alliance directed against the other contracting party.

In the reconstruction of Europe the two nations will be guided by the principles of "not seeking territorial aggrandisement for themselves" and "not interferring in the internal affairs of other states," Mr. Eden said.

Apsley Man Charged With Selling of Liquor

"I advertised for a witness in the Toronto Star and I have not yet located him," said Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., in police court this morning in asking for another adjournment in a charge against Stillman Guyette, Apsley, of keeping liquor for sale.

Mr. Gordon added that the wife of the accused, who was also wanted as a defence witness, was under observation for appendicitis and an operation might be necessary.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., said the Crown was ready to proceed with the case and that a witness was present who was going into the army and who would have to be brought back to testify if the case was not heard.

Finally, however, the case was enlarged until July 6.

"But the enemy didn't come back," said Gen. Hale. "They were too busy protecting themselves. From then on the Japanese were withdrawing and it was a series of mopping up operations."

The army heavy bombers safely completed refueling and rearming and took off again. They located the Japanese battle force once more in the afternoon and damaged one heavy cruiser and possibly another.

Col. Walter Sweeney of San Francisco led the squadron of Flying Fortresses in attacks both June 3 and 4. Col. Sweeney told of the attacks from close up.

"Everyone of our squadrons got into the Midway battle before it ended and my squadron was lucky enough to have been in three attacks . . . .

Crewmen said the Japanese fighters never pressed home attacks on the bombers, not a single one of which was shot down, whereas three and possibly four enemy Zero fighters were shot down.

Crew members said the Zero pilots feared the firepower of the Fortresses and, except for isolated cases seldom came close.

The first is a class in aircraft mechanics at Galt for boys between 18 and 30 years of age. The course lasts for eighteen weeks and begins July 6. Another begins August 5, and from then on a new class will begin every four and a half weeks. This is for ground crew training.

There will be a second class in wireless radio, lasting for twenty weeks, for boys 18 to 24. They must have had approximately three years high school or technical training and a fair knowledge of mathematics. The same qualifications are required for the engine room artificers apprentices in the Royal Canadian Navy at Kingston. The boys must be at least seventeen and a half and not more than twenty-one when they apply.

While the students are in training, they receive $10 a week for room and board and incidentals. They are also supplied with overalls. Application forms can be obtained at the office of the Unemployment Insurance.

Powerful U.S. Naval Units Cross

Enough To Handle Tirpitz, Hipper Ready For Sortie

LONDON, June 11.—(CP).—Powerful United States naval units have joined the British home fleet in the tasks of blockading the Germans and protecting vital Allied shipping lanes by keeping Hitler's mightiest warship from joining the battle of the Atlantic.

The American forces, whose arrival was announced to-day, apparently are sufficiently strong to cope with the German battleship Tirpitz, the cruiser Admiral Hipper and other lesser craft should they venture forth from the Norwegian bases where for weeks they have constituted a potential threat to Russia's Arctic supply line.

Indications that the Tirpitz might soon attempt a dash into the Atlantic were seen here in the Danish radio reports that Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the German navy, had just completed an inspection of that vessel and other warships at Trondheim.

The full strength of the American units was not revealed, but some indication of their power was given by announcement that the King had inspected a United States battleship, a cruiser and several destroyers.

On Duty Over Month

That the American warships have been operating from bases in the United Kingdom for more than a month was evident from the announcement they had been greeted at sea and escorted to port by the British cruiser Edinburgh, which was sunk May 2 while protecting a Russia-bound convoy against attacking German submarines, destroyers and planes.

After inspecting the ships in a colorful ceremony, the King dispatched a message to Rear-Admiral

Frankford Man Is Awarded George Medal

OTTAWA, June 11. —(CP) —An Alberta country schoolteacher and two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force shared the honor to-day of winning the first George medals and the first George Cross bestowed in Canada since the awards were established during the battle of Britain.

The schoolteacher, Mrs. Francis Walsh of Big Springs, received the George Medal for her heroism in attempting to rescue Lac. G. M. Gravell of Vancouver from a flaming aircraft. Her name appeared in a list of King's Birthday honors awarded in Canada which included honors for Royal Canadian navy men and Royal Air Force personell in Canada.

Lac. Gravell received the posthumous award of the George Cross for his efforts to save the pilot of the plane, who died instantly. Gravell ignorant of the pilot's fate, disregarded his own burns in the rescue attempt and the offical citation said he would probably not have lost his life "had he not considered his pilot before his own safety."

To Flt. Sgt. F. B Lummis of Frankford, Ontario, went the other George Medal in extinguishing a fire in a Trenton, Ont., hangar — Bravery which, the citation said, saved 12 aircraft of the British Commonwealth Training Plan.

Three members of the Royal Canadian Navy received Distinguish-Service Cross and eight were cited as mentioned in dispatches. Six of the men mentioned in dispatches were members of the Corvette Windflower which was sunk in a collision last December with loss of 23 of her crew of 67.

Ten R. C. A. F. men were awarded the British Empire Medal, nine received the Air Force Cross, four the Air Force Medal and two won mention in dispatches.

The Air Force Cross went to five R. A. F. men who have been serving in Canada under the Commonwealth Training Plan Three others received the British Empire Medal

All Corned Beef Stocks Frozen

Stocks of canned corned beef held by distributors and retailers are "frozen" as of to-day by an order of Food Administrator Haggart of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, made public on Monday night.

Except for sales of ship's stores to merchant or fishing vessels in Canadian ports, distributors and retailers are prohibited from selling, delivering, or otherwise disposing of any corned beef "unless by further order of the Administrator," the Boards announcement said.

Every retailer with more than 24 net pounds of corned beef on hand is required to report in writing to his distributor, stating the quantity on hand in pounds of each brand and size of container. Distributors are required, within 10 days from date of the order, to report in writing to the Administrator the quantity corned beef on hand in pounds of each brand, size of container, and quantity reported by retailers.

"Any retailer who has corned beef which he himself imported is directed to report particulars to the Administrator," the Board said. "Those who operate more than one place of business are to provide separate reports in respect of stocks."

Mr. Fiske bought a new horse recently and was trying it out yesterday, hitched to another horse, to a drag. Charge Airman In Slaying Of Nfld. Girl 19

BLACK'S HARBOR, N.B., June 11.—(CP).—Charged with murdering Miss Bernice Connors, whose battered and almost nude body was found in a field here last Sunday evening, a sergeant of the Royal Air Force was arrested late yesterday. His name was given as Tom Roland Hutchings, 21, native of England.

The arrest and arraignment were made only a few hours after the dark-haired, 19 year old girl had been buried in Stella Maris Cemetery here with grief-stricken relatives and friends acting as pallbearers.

Immediately after his arrest Hutchings was arraiagned before Magistrate E. A. Nason, who remanded the airman for eight days. He was then taken to the Charlotte County Jail at St Andrews.

The arrest followed an intensive investigation since the discovery of Miss Connors' body in a secluded field at the outskirts of this fishing village last Sunday evening.

Most of the clothing had been stripped from her body, the head was battered and the body was partly hidden under moss.

Police revealed that Sergeant Hutchings, stationed at Pennfield, N.B., had been on this side of the Atlantic for about two months.

Miss Connors, attractive brunette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Connors, was a granddaughter of the late Lewis Connors, who founded the widely known fish canning industry here. She had been employed at the plant.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. Arnold Branch, Saint John, Provincial pathologist, and the result of this will be included among other evidence to be presented at an inquest here next Tuesday night.

The young woman had been missing since she left the regularly weekly dance at the Community Hall here Friday night. At her home it was believed she was staying with friends whom she frequently visited and the latter believed she was at home. It was until Sunday that she was actually known to be missing.

Board to Purchase School Supplies

COBOURG, June 11 (ENS).—Under consideration for some time, a plan whereby the children's school supplies would be bought by the Board, is to be placed into effect at the Cobourg Public School at the start of the next term. The parents of children in Grades 1, 2 and 3 will pay 15c per child per month and the parents of pupils in Grades 4 to 8 will pay 20 cents per child, each month. In order that the local bookstores will not unduly suffer under the new arrangement, they will get a profit of 10 per cent. on the books thus ordered.

TWEED

In Man's Death Blame Fainting

TWEED, June 11 — (ENS). — An inquest looking into the death of 86-year-old John Kiley of Stoco opened before Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson at Belleville on Wednesday afternoon. Following identification, established by Chief Constable J. C. Hayes of Tweed, the body was released for burial and the investigation adjourned.

The elderly man was found lying alongside of the road on the Sixth Concession of the Township of Hungerord on Saturday morning by J. W. Beatty of Tweed. The injured man was suffering from a fractured skull and was removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where he never regained consciousness before succumbing to his injuries early on Wednesday.

Chief Hayes, following extensive investigations, announced there was no indication of Mr. Kiley having been struck by any vehicle.

Relatives announced the elderly man was subject to fainting spells, and as he was found lying on top of a pile of rocks, it is believed he fainted and pitched headlong into the rock pile where he sustained the fracture that resulted in his death.

Rev. John Crooks Safe, On the Job

HAMILTON Ont., June 11—(CP) —Fears that had mounted steadily for the past year as to the safety of Rev. John Crooks, Hamilton, have been dissipated with the receipt of a radiogram yesterday stating that he has escaped from territory now under Japanese control in China, and is carrying on with his missionary work near the front lines.

The news was received by Rev. Donald J. McKay, pastor of Philpott Tabernacle, and came by way of the Chinese listening post in California which picked up a message from Kinghsien, Anhwei Province, where it is believed that the Hamilton missionary is continuing his work. Rev. Mr. Crooks is supported by Philpott Tabernacle and is working under the Chinese Inland Mission. Until to-day his whereabouts have been unknown for more than a year with no letters being able to get through.

His message from Kinghsien reads as follows: 'Carrying on as usual although near the front. Conducting month of evangelism. Have received no letters from home for half a year. Depending on your prayers. Am well and happy."

Further Union For Victory

The establishment of the Production and Resources Board and the Food Board is another unmistakeable earnest of the determination of the United Nations to win this war and of the excellent relations which exist between them. The advantages of pooling resources are obvious and do not need to be labored here. This plan helps to round out a picture of co-operation already presented by the Combined Munitions Assignments Board, the Combined Raw Materials Board, the Combined Shipping Adjustment Board and the Joint Aircraft Committee.

The business of the two new Boards will be, presumably, to see that foods and materials are sent where they are most needed and that no avoidable hardship shall be caused by lack of organization. If the war should continue for two or three more years they will undoubtedly have plenty to do.

The establishment of such boards, however, is an indirect method of hastening the war to its conclusion. Superior organization, allied to the mighty strength of the United Nations should do as much as anything can to prevent war from becoming a dreary stalemate.

It was good to hear of President Roosevelt's remark that U.S. production is now nearing the point where a revelation of its magnitude would hurt, rather than help the enemy. So confident is the President that specific figures on U.S. output might help to undermine German morale that he has instructed his secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, to prepare some figures for release. We shall await their appearance with impatience.

When Hitler began this war he counted heavily upon the supposed inability of the greedy and effete democracies to work together. Such moves as the establishment of these two new Boards will teach him that he was wrong.

More Nerve War?

When the B.B.C. warns the inhabitants of the coastal district of Occupied Europe to leave their homes and their work as soon as they can it may mean a number of things. For instance, it may mean that the R.A.F. is planning extensive bombing operations in that area, and these may be the preliminary moves before an invasion. Or it may mean that the British are attracting attention to the European coast in order to take attention from some other point. Or it may simply mean that they want to cause as much disturbance and trouble for the Germans as possible, and have chosen this way to do it. It is, in fact, nerve war, the game which Dr. Goebbels used to play so well. The enemy is kept guessing at the meaning of the mysterious message, and all the while there is the chance that it may mean exactly what it says and nothing else.

We cannot know what lies behind the B.B.C. warning. We do not want to know. If we knew it would inevitably mean that many other newspapers and other people would know too and the news might leak out. We are content to wait and see what happens. Meanwhile we applaud this stroke in Britain's nerve war. Our side has grown expert in Dr. Goebbels' little game.

School Discipline Again

Some weeks ago this paper expressed itself on the subject of discipline in schools, and gave its opinion that it is foolish to expect a teacher to control thirty or forty children without recourse, now and again, to corporal punishment. This sort of correction is the sharpest, the soonest over, and the least conducive to those long and tormenting feuds between teacher and pupil which waste so much time and nervous energy. But there are limits to a teacher's rights in this matter, and we think that most teachers recognize this and do not abuse their privilege of using the strap or the cane.

But not all. In a recent case in Fort Erie a schoolboy died after having been beaten about the head by a school principal. The coroner's jury finds that death was due to natural causes, though the lad's parents are not so sure. However, the Attorney-General has decided not to take proceedings against the schoolmaster and doubtless he knows best. But this case brings up the question of what constitutes fitting punishment for a schoolchild and what does not? We are very strongly of the opinion that hitting a child about the head, or throwing chalk at it, or shaking it, is not punishment but a mere exhibition of bad manners on the part of the teacher. If children are to be punished, let it be done with fitting solemnity, and let the blows fall upon that sturdy and amply cushioned part of the anatomy which Nature has given to children, apparently with just such a purpose in mind. A child is unlikely to be harmed by a spanking or a caning; throwing things or cuffing is dangerous and ill-bred.

It is hard to establish the principle that it is just as necessary for a teacher to be polite to a pupil as for a pupil to be polite to a teacher. Without courtesy a classroom becames a mere prison, and the teacher an overbearing jailer, and in such an atmosphere little will be learned. The Fort Erie schoolmaster who has so narrowly escaped a charge of manslaughter may stand as an example of the danger of irascibility and indulgence in vicious passions in the teacher's role.

Goose And Gander

Mr. Elliott M. Little, the Director of National Selective Service, made an excellent address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on Monday. He gave out no pleasing generalities, and he indulged in no visions of the future; he talked turkey, and sometimes the turkey was a pretty tough old bird. Canada, said Mr. Little, was approaching the point of extreme labor shortage, and labor in future would have to be obtained from four principal sources. These were workers who were diverted from peacetime occupation; women who were able to fill men's jobs; reclaimed unemployed; and youths taken from school. And in order that the utmost should be done with the labor thus obtained, Mr. Little made a strong recommendation that employers busy themselves thinking up ways in which they could keep their employees interested and happy. He said: "To those who don't want good relations or don't appreciate their value, I say: the country cannot afford to have you as an employer at any time, particularly in wartime. You must change your ways. . . ."

Yes. But we do not think that Mr. Little was saying anything which was news to most of the members of his audience. Most employers know that fat cats hunt better than lean and that contented labor is better than labor with a grievance. Of course, labor disputes arise, and sometimes the employers are at fault, because they are lacking in humanity, or sympathetic understanding, or simply intelligence. But labor can err too. In our search for the brave new world let us not invest the overalls with the sanctity which the cassock enjoyed in the Middle Ages.

For instance, there is a labor dispute now in progress in Kitchener, Ontario, in which members of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing Committee are active. And the Twin-City Labor Council threatens that if the Government continues to withhold action against Dumarts, Limited, it will advise all its members to cancel their subscriptions to war savings certificates. This is dirty fighting. This is hitting below the belt. But it is not uncharacteristic of labor methods of coercion. Labor has highly developed paranoia and it is apt to invoke the strike, the sympathy strike and such means as this when it feels itself threatened.

We think, therefore, that if the manufacturers are to have a good lacing from Mr. Little, he might treat labor to a similar speech. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

The German Churches' Dilemma

The text of the letter which the German bishops caused to be read in all the Catholic Churches of the Reich on Passion Sunday has just appeared in this country. It is a solemn appeal to the conscience of Germany, demanding an end of persecution, an end of Nazi attempts to stamp out Christianity in the Reich, and it pledges eternal faith in Christ and the Church. Upon the face of it this nobly worded document is deeply moving.

But upon reflection it is somewhat less impressive. No one has any sympathy with Hitler's attacks upon the Church, his sequestration of monasteries and convents, and his internment of priests. But we have from the beginning seen that this was part and parcel of the Hitlerian philosophy; the Church would always have stood in the way of complete National Socialist domination in Germany, and so Hitler decided that the Church must go. In this he was less subtle than Napoleon, who had as little use for the Church as Hitler has, but who deprived it of its power by less violent means. Hitler tried to crush the Church by force; he should have known better.

Apparently the German hierarchy did not see the threat in National Socialism. Although the feud between the Church and the Nazis had been going on for some years the Church was prepared to drop the quarrel and support Hitler firmly when he began a war. For six months or so everything went well, but in the Spring of 1940 the persecution of the Church began afresh and now it has reached such proportions that the Church has protested in the letter to which we have referred.

Let us not, therefore, seize upon this letter as a sign that the forces of good have awakened in Germany and will be allied with us against Hitlerism. It is perfectly clear from their conduct that the German bishops are Germans first and Churchmen second. They were able to close their eyes to the uncivilized nature of National Socialism when it appeared likely to bring about a great German victory. They are somewhat slow to recognize the evil of that system of government.

The soul-struggles of people who are at once citizens of Christendom and citizens of a violently nationalistic country such as Germany must always deserve our pity, but we can do little so long as it remains impossible to see whether German or Christian is uppermost. And it was seen in the last war that profound respect for Christianity and the most violent kind of brutality and Prussian stupidity were able to exist simultaneously in German bosoms. We may hope, therefore, that the bishops' letter will cause trouble for the Nazis, but we would be foolish to hope that it is a sign of dawning grace in German hearts.

It is interesting to learn that there was a strong upsurge of the German variety of Christianity among Hitler's armies last winter in Russia. Let the Gestapo do what it might, some of the soldiers would insist on praying, and several officers had to be dismissed from their commands for this same offence. Germans are not supposed to pray. They have a new creed, formulated in thirty articles, and ending with a profession of faith which (our authority is the Manchester Guardian) runs as follows: "We believe in an everlasting National Socialist Greater Reich, in a National Socialist world concept, assured in the person of Adolf Hitler and through the gigantic struggle of German humanity against the forces of the world. We believe that at the prayer of Adolf Hitler the all-merciful God has restored to our soldiers the vision destroyed in the world war. We believe, we see, and we feel this man to be the only savior and destined leader of our nation, our Reich, and of the peoples linked to us by racial ties. We believe in his written word Mein Kampf. We pledge ourselves to observe, to the best of our knowledge and ability, the commandments there laid down. In their loyal fulfilment we believe we shall obtain the right to say: 'Fuehrer we are without sin before thee.' We are united, body and soul, to our leader Adolf Hitler, to our country, and to our people, and together we testify with one view, 'Adolf Hitler, our leader, we will be faithful to thee forever'."

This, of course, is mere pretentious hokum, and people who would swallow it would swallow anything. A sudden reversion to Christianity by people who could be persuaded to accept such nonsense as this profession of faith would not, in our opinion, alter their essential character in the least. Christianity is more a matter of practice than of profession, and what German practice is we, and the German bishops, have seen amply demonstrated.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Are you bothered with ants in your plants these days?

Britain is now engaged in applying the scorched earth policy to Germany.

If you haven't seen your bootlegger around lately, it's probably because he's making some bathtub gas.

The Windsor Star suggests that it might hasten victory if the R.A.F. over Europe dropped menu cards listing two-inch steaks.

TO AN AIRMAN

How like a bird you are, how free!
Triumphant in your flush of youth,
How you exult in spaces wide,
As your unfettered spirit flies
And seeks and strives to gain, by flight,
An answer to the quest of Truth.

I think that in your zeal for war,
In service to your God and King,
You serve your hungry soul's deep need
By satisfying purity
Of air and vastness, rosy dawns,
And moonlit shadows on your wings.

"What's In A Name?" Cried Juliet

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

"WHAT'S in a name? that which we call a rose, By any other name would smell as sweet," cried Juliet to her lover, when he had told her that he was a member of the hated tribe of Montague. The sentiment was a generous and appropriate one at the time but we, studying the matter in tranquillity, cannot hope to agree with the lady. Names matter a great deal. "He that hath an ill name is half hanged" says the old English proverb, and "A good name is better than a golden girdle," says the French one.

It is a serious matter to attach a name to another human being. If you do not believe this, watch a young couple trying to hang some sort of suitable label on their offspring, born or unborn. Dozens of names are suggested and rejected. The names of both parents and all four grandparents, as well as any rich uncles and aunts, are carefully savored and rolled over the tongue. The final choice is rarely made until the child is actually upon the scene, and then matters are even more complicated. The red-faced infant squalls and grimaces, and the parents despair of ever finding a name which will be suitable for it. Few things are as nameless and as unevocative of names as a very small baby. The number of declarations of birth which are sent in to the Vital Statistics Department with the space for Christian names left blank is proof of this.

BUT children must have names of some kind, and very often the choices are surprising. Names for children may be divided roughly into five classes; these may be called Family, Biblical, Ordinary, Romantic and National names, and although the classes sometimes mingle classification is usually easy. Family names are particularly popular in this country and in the U.S. It is common enough for a boy to be given his mother's maiden name as a Christian name; thus a Mrs. Jones whose maiden name was Smith, may call her offspring Smith Jones, and the effect is pleasing and complimentary to herself. The only difficulty about this plan is that the effect is sometimes stiff, and the surname which is being used as a Christian name may not permit of a suitable diminutive. Upon the whole, though, this plan of adding one surname to another is to be avoided as it makes for confusion in later life and poor Smith Jones spends many a weary fifteen minutes explaining over the telephone precisely who he is.

Biblical names are not much in favor at present, which may be just as well. Many of them are long, and few of them are pleasant to the ear, pronounced in the English manner. Most Biblical names, of course, are Anglicised versions of Hebrew names, and they have meanings in Hebrew which are not always complimentary. Thus although the Hebrew name Ann means 'grace,' the once popular Deborah means 'a bee' and Huldah means 'a weasel'; the man's name Abel means 'vain,' and the name Phineas, which our forbears esteemed highly means 'brazen mouthed'! Ann, Mary and David are among the few Biblical names which do not provoke a smile now. But there was a day, and not so very long ago, when Ebenezers, Obadiahs, Ezekiels, Nicodemuses and Ethans bore their names with conscious pride; the fashion may return some day.

ORDINARY names are those well-worn Johns and Marys, Edwards and Dorothys, Georges and Margarets which do such good service. They are a trifle unimaginative, but they are sound. They never make their owners look ridiculous, though they are a little apt to make them inconspicuous. They are the names which novelists give to their good characters, though not always to their heroes. If a man in a book is called John you may safely bet that he is not the one who did the murder. The Kings of England bear ordinary names, chosen from a small group of which John is not one; there was a little trouble with a John back in the thirteenth century.

Romantic names are those among which the rarest flowers of parental fancy are to be found. There was a time when mothers were wont to name their sons after the heroes of novels they had been reading, and many a Norval, Roderick and Gerald was thus equipped. Most of the romantic names are Teutonic in origin; Norse mythology was ransacked to provide names for perfectly ordinary and ungodlike beings. Anglo-Saxon names such as Albert and Alfred had their day, too, and so did French importations such as Algernon and Leroy. In this category too must go the names of plants and jewels which were fastened to children, filling the world with many a female Pansy, Ivy and Pearl, and corresponding number of male Garnets and Rubys. Romantic names are better left alone unless people are absolutely sure what they are doing and what language they are dealing with.

NATIONAL names present few pitfalls. Most children are given more than one name and of these one might as well be characteristic of its race or the race of its parents. A young Irishman might as well have a Patrick or a Michael or a Sean or a Diarmid in his name, and a young Scot may gracefully and sensibly be an Ian or an Angus. Jews ordinarily give their children one Hebrew name, thus preserving a racial tie, and many other races might copy them to advantage in this respect.

A name should run easily off the tongue; clumsy names are a nuisance. And it should be serviceable. A girl may be charming in her youth with a name which will not add to her dignity when she is old. And it is not wise to call your son Hercules unless you are able to guarantee that he will achieve at least normal stature. In naming babies, as in almost everything else, common sense and a grain of imagination will give the best results.

COMING HOME TO ROOST

—St. Louis Star-Times.

• Tokyo Cloaks Her Defeat

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

BETWEEN the lines of Tokyo's belated report on the Midway-Dutch Harbor battles is virtual admission that a stinging American blow has been dealt Nipponese air-sea power in the Pacific.

If that was not true, there would be no reason for Tokyo to sugar-coat the admitted loss of one plane carrier and serious damage to another with a claim that two American carriers had been sunk and 120 planes shot down; and with a vague intimation that a Japanese invasion of the Aleutian Islands is under way.

The official Tokyo hand-out itself made no such claim. As relayed from Berlin—where it probably was accepted with tongue in cheek—it spoke of the "reduction" or "destruction" of American positions in the Aleutians. It required a Tokyo naval press spokesman to translate that into a verbal invasion for the edification of Japanese radio listeners.

With one element of the Tokyo version the official word from Washington seemed to agree, as of the time of issue. Both reported operations continuing in the North-Central Pacific. But they were continuing westward, not eastward, until broken off Saturday night when contact was lost.

LONG WAY TO SWIM

If Japanese forces of any type had been landed anywhere in the Aleutians, they would have to swim a long way to rejoin their retreating comrades.

Since it is probable that no important percentage of the Japanese people have heard American reports of two to four Japanese carriers down with all their planes lost and a dozen other warships or supply-train vessels sunk and damaged, Tokyo did not have to attempt to reconcile its own with the American account. It did have to admit some loss; and the most obvious purpose of the method taken was to put those losses into a setting of victory, not defeat, even if that setting had to be manufactured verbally.

To achieve that the Midway operations became a mere diversion, to intercept reinforcements. The Dutch Harbor show became the main event although it had already been disclosed as a minor affair involving four enemy bombers and a dozen or so escorting fighters. Seizure of the Aleutian Island bridge to the North American Continent became the reputed objective.

It sounds silly. Harassment air raiding of the Alaskan outpost islands is always possible if Japan can risk the carriers or planes for minor operations of that sort; but while American naval power holds the whip hand in the Eastern and Central Pacific, as it unquestionably does, and can extend its own task force forays far westward of the date line, as it has done, the notion of a Japanese march on Washington via the Aleutians is pure fantasy.

• Russia's Airwomen

KUIBYSHEV.—In our Soviet fatherland we feel it perfectly natural that women should face the hazards of war actively since they have enjoyed the luxuries of peacetime. Women make good pilots, and soldiers, too. Before the war, parachute-jumping had become a national sport in our Russia as tennis and golf has been in the western countries. We have fighter-pilots whose ages range from sixteen to eighteen. We have women flyers up to forty-five years.

It is commonly thought that women flyers must be a tough and adventurous type. That is wrong. I know young women pilots who blush in conversation but who have piloted bombers behind the German lines. I have a girl friend who brought down a German plane just three weeks before she gave birth to a baby girl. Five weeks later she took to the air and brought down four more German planes. And she is only twenty-one.

I, myself, was only seventeen years old when I began taking lessons in gliding. That was fourteen years ago. My five-year-old son is affectionately known as "Baby Falcon" because both my husband and my father are pilots.

Only a few days ago I was bombing a German communication center. Escorted by Soviet fighters I came through safely. As a squadron leader it is a common assignment for me to take the air.

Our women flyers are playing a great part in the war; in the air as well as on the field. We have women bomber pilots, fighter pilots and women air crews. Many of our women pilots have flown over Germany. Some of the girl pilots have 1,000 hour flying records.

When men have to take orders from women they do not mind at all.

It may be true, as some cheerful philosophers tell us, that money does not bring happiness, but it does help one to be miserable in comfort.

The oldest town in the world is said to be the ruins of Tepe Gawra, in northern Mesopotamia.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads. . . . And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him. . . .

And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them.—Rev. xii, 3, 7-12.

Flier Lavishes Praise On Ground Crew

By ALAN NCKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.A.F. SOMEWHERE N ENGLAND, June 11.—(CP). —Take it from Po. Art Warner—and his statement is backed by hundreds of pilots who risk their lives each day in combat—the hard-working ground crews who keep 'em flyin' don't get nearly the credit they deserve.

Warner, 42 year old Calgary resident and maintenance engineer of a crack Canadian fighter squadron, should know. With nearly 2 years' experience behind him, his job is supervising maintenance of Spitfires and he's 'mighty proud of my boys.'

Sitting before a roaring fireplace in an ancestral mansion that serves as an officers' billet, Warner said "75 per cent. of the ground crews are just as vitally interested in the aircraft they service as the pilots who wheel them through the skies.'

"Its tough enough up there without the pilots having to worry about their kites," he added. 'During heavy times my boys work night and day and it's just as good as getting a medal when a pilot passes along a few words of appreciation to them.

"Maintenace crews of each flight vie with with one another to see which can keep the planes in the best shape. There are plenty of friendly arguments and some not too friendly."

Hard at work in the workshop and clambering about planes on the green grass outside where Cpl. Bill Worrell of London, Ont. and Lac. Bill Wojack of Preston, Ont.

They swear by Warner, who joinedo the R'C.A.F. in 1923 as a fitter and was commissioned a year ago for outstanding work.

During his years of service, he took part in a 15-month survey of icing conditions with the Hudson's Strait expedition of 1927-28 and for nine years prior to the war was engaged in photographic work in British Columbia in connection with coastal defences and highways.

He was promoted to warrant officer with a fighter squadron in Vancouver in 1938 and came to Britain a few months after war was declared.

The Pope Should Know

LONDON, June 11—(CP).—Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, told the House of Commons today that every effort is being made to present evidence of brutal treatment of priests in Germany to "the attention of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America, Eire and elsewhere."

Lady Astor asked: "Would it not be better to bring it to the notice of the Pope, who has just recognized Japan?"

"I have no means of communicating with the Pope," Mr. Bracken replied.

Suspect Sabotage

NEW YORK, June 11—(AP).—A fire of suspicious origin broke out today on the S.S. Irene Dupont, which the fire department reported was being loaded with a cargo of rubber tires, aviation oil and cartridges at its Brooklyn pier.

The fire department dispatched two fireboats to fight the blaze, which it said was discovered at 6.54 a.m., E.D.T., in the No. 2 hatchway of the ship and was raging between-decks.

Priority Permit Issued for Work

OTTAWA, June 11 — (CP). — Quebec Paving Co. was granted a permit for construction of a residence at Lac Tremblant, Que., for the use of James Franceschini, said a reply tabled in the House of Commons yesterday for G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West).

(Franceschini was at one time interned under the Defence of Canada Regulations.)

The permit was issued on the basis of a prior commitment work having been started in November, 1941, the reply said. When regulations covering dwellings came into effect January 30, 1941, licences were issued for all houses on which work had been started.

Miss Vera Bars Wins Easily

SEAFORTH, June 11 — (CP).— Hot weather and hot contests helped to make the afternoon's race program here yesterday one of the best waged in this town in many years. Calf's Ears Are Slit In Shape of "V"

MARMORA, June 11—(ENS).—A ten-day-old heifer calf belonging to William Forestell set its owner thinking a day or so ago. This thriving creature straightening out its ears after taking its evening meal, showed that the tip of each ear was slit to form a "V," the sides of which were half an inch in length. The animal is part Durham and part Jersey. Son of a well known agriculturist of Rawdon township of former days, Mr. Forestell has in his lifetime seen various calves born of freakish nature, but this is the first for him to see start out in life with the "V" on each ear.

Jamaica Track Tops Belmont

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AUP).— The Jamaica Race Track, which had promised to equal the $107,420 contribution of Belmont to service organizations, has surpassed that amount by nearly $20,000

Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the Turf Committee of America, announced yesterday that Jamaica has presented its cheque for $125,000, and that 50 per cent. of the Belmont purse won by Shut Out, as well as 50 per cent. of the earnings of Trainer John M Gaver and Jockey Eddie Arcaro, has been donated to relief funds.

Shut Out's share of the purse came to $44,520, of which Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, owner of the Greentree Stable, gave $22,260 to three service organizations. Gaver donated $2,296 of his $4,452 share, and Arcaro gave $1,436, which is 50 per cent. of his $4452 share less commission and expenses.

The total of the Belmont and Jamaica donations, plus the Greentree donations and a $2,000 contribution from a publishing firm, bring the total contribution by New York tracks to date to $261,560.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

It was a half holiday and a hot one, but despite the heat many mixed doubles enjoyed an afternoon of bowling—and then again in the evening as many more mixed rinks turned out. True it was a hurried up programme but nevertheless it did provide bowling for those who chose to bowl.

Many have been asking why was men's scheduled for yesterday postponed until July. Why? Well, its a long story, yet a simple one. But we see no point in discussing the matter at this stage of the season; but we do humbly suggest to those who are interested in the success of our organization to mak sure and attend the annual meetings held in the Fall, At these meetings who have a perfect right to ask all the questions you like regarding the affairs of our club, and you have a perfect right to expect that they will be answered.

To-morrow night (Friday) it will be a men's rink tournament. Draw from the board at 7.30 o'clock. All other details are the same as usual.

We have received no word from the boys who attended the tournaments held at Campbellford and Whitby, Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The winners of the afternoon competion were Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Martin, first, Mrs. J. Coursey and Jim McDonald, second and Mrs. Harry Northrop and Jack Sedgewick, third.

The winners at night were George Soulby and Victor Tully. All the winners received war saving stamps.

O.L.A. Executive Refuses Etobicoke 2 Men

TORONTO, June 11 — (CP). — The Battle of the Players—between Mimico and Etobicoke of the Ontario Lacrosse Association—is over for the time being.

An O.L.A. executive meeting last night accepted the certificates of two Etobicoke players, Dom Campbell and V. Gilkinson, but refused to accept those of Gordon Gair and Joe Murphy. The latter two may make a personal appeal to have their cases reviewed.

The argument began when Mimico refused to release the four, but Etobicoke signed them nevertheless and used them in their first three games. Mimico-Brampton protested the game in which the four appeared against them, but Owen Sound and St. Catharines, who also played against the Combines made no protest.

Question of a protest was dropped last night, however, when Mimico-Brampton withdrew their protest.

By a vote of 7-5 the executive decided on refusing to pass the certificates of Gair and Murphy. Those voting in favor of the motion were: A. McLeod, Ted Johnston, Bruce Leighton, Ed. McDermott, F. Scott, C. Rowan and V. Vipond.

It was opposed by J. MacKenzie, Major Lancaster, Jack McDonald, Fred Sandford, and Gene Dopp.

Hamilton Tigers were officially accepted into Senior lacrosse with the payment of their bond by Manager Jim MacKenzie.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 11 — (CP). — It appears that not many people believed Dave Castilloux when he announced from the midst of R.C.A.F. training last week that he was retiring from the ring and vacating his Canadian lightweight and welterweight championships. ....Montrealers are talking now of a big benefit fight show in mid-July, with Castilloux meeting Sammy Angott (world lightweight titlist), Harry Hurst vs. Boom Boom Mancini (wonder what his mother calls him?), Maxie Berger vs. A. N. Other (an all-round athlete), and Sammy Jacobs vs. Angelo Callura.

Plans are stictrly nebulous, but some big men in Montreal's fight and newspapering circles are in favor. The lineup may be changed here and there, but the show probably will come off.

Probably the oldest active thorough bred on first-class Canadian tracks is 13-year-old Lorraine S., who placed the other day at Thorncliffe in Toronto....Brooms Sentry, the Canadian Derby candidate, is by Brooms, as Snapshots has been told frequently since crediting (by some freak reasoning) this fine thoroughbred to Cudget.

Incidentally:

Griffin's Team Wins 3-2 In Snappy Game

Manager Griffin's Luckies came from behind to take a surprise 3 to 2 win over the Military Training Centre team in the snappiest City Softball League game of the season at the Bowl last night.

Luckies started Frank McCormick on the mound and he justified his selection by pitching steady, effective ball. The Soldiers managed to break through his service for nine hits but he kept them well scattered with the exception of one frame and was at his best in the clutches with the result that 12 soldiers died on the bases for the lack of a timely hit. Luckies played good ball behind McCormick's steady tossing and deserved their win.

Left-handed Ken Fleming pitched for the losers and held Luckies to four hits but he issued three passes as against one by McCormick and two of the complimentaries blossomed into runs.

There was no scoring until the sixth when the Soldiers bunched three hits for two runs but Luckies came right back in their half to register two markers on a single, a walk, an error and an infield out and won the game in the seventh on a pass, an infield out and Joe Stewart's timely two-base hit over third.

The fielding feature was contributed by Nick Sero, Soldier shortstop. In the fourth when he leaped high in the air and pulled down a screaming liner from the bat of Bill Lewis with his right hand. Luke Jameson was on second base at the time by virtue of a two-base hit and he was doubled on the play. Sero's catch robbed Lewis of a hit and Luckies of a run.

Soldiers had several chances to score in the early stages. In the second they filled the bases on a double by Sero, an error and McKerrigan's single but Mortimer popped to Jameson and Fleming fanned. They had the sacks loaded again in the fourth but failed to score when Herrick rolled weakly in front of the plate and Jackson was out trying to register on the play.

The team from the Military Training Centre finally broke into the run column in the sixth. Irish Kilfoyle opened with a single to centre but was forced at second by Herrick. McKerrigan rifled a triple to right centre, scoring Herrick and he ran home when Mortimer singled to left. The next two were easy.

Luckies tied it up in their half. After McCormick had flied out Watson singled to centre and advanced to third on two wild pitches. Jameson drew a walk. When he started to steal second, Barnes' high toss got away from McKerrigan and Watson scored and Jameson reached third. He carried the tieing run over while Jackson was tossing out M. Caccavella. A. Caccavella also rolled to third.

Luckies won the argument in the last of the seventh. A. Caccavella drew a walk to start the inning. Patterson struck out. Shaughnessy rolled to Fleming and A. Caccavella ran to second on the play. Joe Stewart shot a double past third and Caccavella went in with the winning run. McCormick walked but Watson struck out.

The Soldiers had a chance in the ninth. Barnes rolled to Watson but McIlveen was safe on an error. Rosa batted for Jackson and fanned but Sero drew a walk and both advanced on a wild pitch. With the tieing and winning runs on third and second Kilfoyle boomed a fly to short left and Bill Lewis ran in to make the catch and end the ball game.

Luckies: —Watson 3b, Jameson 1b, Lewis rf, M. Caccavella ss, A. Caccavella 2b Patterson c, Shaughnessy rf Stewart cf, McCormick p.

Soldiers: — Barnes c, McIlveen rf, Jackson 3b, Sero ss, Kilfoyle lf, Herrick 1b, McKerrigan 2b, Mortimer cf, Fleming p. Rosa batted for Jackson in the ninth.

By innings:

Luckies	000 002 10x	—3	4	3
Soldiers	000 002 000	—2	9	2

Bombers Win Over The Flying Cats

Tuesday afternoon the Bombers in the intermediate section of St. Peter's softball organization lambasted the Flying Cats 27 to 9. Another exciting and interesting game with play closer than the score indicates. They meet again this Thursday for the second of their two out of three final series.

On Wednesday afternoon the Yanks in the junior section took the Dodgers to camp for a 21-10 lacing. Some good hitting including two home runs helped the winners to victory. Murphy was the pick of his team as well as that of the two pitchers on the mound. They play their second game on Friday night which will be the second of a two of three final series.

The seniors next game because of exams has been postponed till Wednesday of next week.

(London Free Press) Burns tells a story on Tim Daly, goodwill ambassador for Toronto's baseball Leafs and train, for the hockey Leafs....It appears that Daly and a pal saw Houdini escape from a locked trunk during a show in a Newark theatre, and decided it would make a good dressing-room joke....Daly was to crawl into the trunk and his pal would make a great show of padlocking it, but wouldn't....Then Daly would appear triumphantly, to astound his friends and confound his enemies.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

With Luckies rarin' to go after taking the Soldiers into camp in the most quickly played game of the season last night by 3 to 2 the battle between Manager Griffin's team and the Royals tonight looms up like one of the best arguments of the year. Luckies won a lot of friends for themselves by the fine ball they played in coming from behind to defeat the Military Training Centre team and they will be pulling for them to repeat that exploit at the expense of the undefeated Royals tonight. If the Luckies do come through with a win over the Parnell outfit the league will be tied in a knot. Here is the standing to date:

	Won	Lost
Royals	2	0
Plazas	3	1
Luckies	1	1
Juveniles	0	2

In other words a triumph for Luckies tonight would put Plazas half a game in front and see Royals and Luckies tied for second while a Royal win would leave them on top, half a game in the lead of Plazas. It will likely be Bill Lewis on the mound for Luckies and either Ronnie Akers or Bill Fraser doing the heaving for Royals. The game will be at the Bowl at 7 o'clock sharp.

City League fans pronounced last night's Luckies - Soldiers clash, won by the former 3 to 2, as easily the best game of the season. Luckies, newcomers to the loop played good ball to take the verdict and there is a special orchid for Pitcher Frank McCormick who made his City League debut notable by very effective work in the pinches. He was at his best when the Soldiers were in a scoring position, turning them back time after time when a hit would have meant disaster. The Military Training Centre were without the services of Centrefielder Eddie Dixon who has been transferred and Second Basemah Ossie Anderson, but McKerrigan who filled in the gap at second contributed a triple that played a big part in scoring the two Soldier runs and Doug Mortimer who played centre led the Soldier attack with three hits. Nick Sero, shortstop for the losers, kicked in with the fielding gem of the season when he went high to pull down a screaming liner with his right hand. It was labelled hit all the way until he came down with the ball.

C.G.E. Porcelains who opened their Girls' Softball League campaign with a win over Brintons the other night will go right back into action tomorrow night when they meet the C.G.E. team in a league game at the Ashburnham Bowl, starting at 7 o'clock sharp. Porcelains, who are under the management and coaching of Bob Batley say that they got a bad game out of their systems Tuesday night, even although they won, and that they will give Mike O'Brien's club a real battle for the honors tomorrow night. The C.G.E. team will probably start Norma Strickland, former Westclox pitcher, against Porcelain tomorrow night with A. DeCarlo, left-handed catcher working behind the bat. M. Larmer, southpaw twirler will do the tossing for Porcelains with R. Milburn in charge of the receiving department. Porcelains would like nothing better than to trip up the other team from the big plant and they should make the tussle decidedly interesting.

They Can Be Beaten

Once in a while even the Yanks can be beaten. Detroit proved that yesterday by taking an eleven innings win over the men of McCarthy by 4 to 1 and they turned one of the favorite New York methods against the Yanks to turn the trick. Rookie Ned Harris, who formerly cavorted around in the uniform of the Buffalo Bisons stepped up there in the eleventh frame with two of his mates on the paths and pickled one of Johnny Murphy's best ones for a homer to score three runs and salt away the game. Incidentally it was the first loss of the season for Fireman Johnny. The other Detroit run was also the result of a circuit clout, Jim Bloodworthy plastering one off Marvin Breuer who started the game for the Yanks, Benton went the route for the Tigers to take the decision.

* * * * * *

Boston Red Sox gave evidence of their desire to hang on to that second berth by walloping St. Louis Browns 10 to 3. In doing so they handed quite a shellacking to Johnny Niggeling who has been more or less of a puzzle to them all season. Dom DiMaggio walloped his seventh homer of the year with one on and Catcher Conroy hammered his second in two days, also with a runner on the paths. Chartak, former Newark Bear, delivered the most effective blow against Hughson who toiled on the mound for the Sox, clipping a homer with two on. It was Hughson's fourth win as against two defeats. In the other afternoon game in the American the Chicago White Sox handed the tail-end Philadelphia A's a 4 to 1 trimming with Humphries and Haynes pitching for the winners and Knott and Shirley for the A's. It was Humphries' win and Knott's loss.

* * * * * *

In the National League's lone game of the afternoon Big Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs hung up his eighth win of the season as against four defeats when the Cubs defeated the faltering Phils 5 to 2. Johnny Podgayny was the unsuccessful Philadelphia pitcher. He was the victim of the Cubs ganging up in the seventh frame that produced all five of the Chicago runs.

A Merited Tribute

Red Dutton's oldest boy, Joe, who was with the Royal Canadian Air Force, is reported missing after aerial operations with the enemy. Jim Colman in the Globe and Mail sport column has the following timely reference that will be read with interest by all hockey fans who admire the fiery pilot of the Brooklyn Amerks: "Joe Dutton was 21 when he went overseas, and he was just like your son, or just like those kid brothers of yours and mine, and just like the rest of the youngsters from down the block who tossed aside their books and hockey sticks and answered the call so willingly. Young Joe was a bomber pilot. His number came up a few nights ago. There's still a chance that he may have come down safely, but no one can tell for certain about those things. Hundreds of our finest young men have paid with their lives for our freedom already, and their passing has been marked only by a brief line in the casualty lists. And so, when we pay this brief, awkward tribute to Joe Dutton, we pay to your sons and your kid brothers. It just happens that we didn't know your boys—and that was our loss—but we knew young Joe when he was a tiny kid. We know his old man, too; his friendship is something of which we're proud. Red is just like a lot of the rest of us. He loves his kids with a fierce pride. When Joe and Joe's 18-year-old brother, Alex, joined the air force, the old man ranted and swore and told them that they were too young. But, they had him there. They reminded him that he was only 17 when he went overseas with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the last war. He gave up the argument."

Ken Downey Wins Senior Cup Coveted School Athletic Award

PORT HOPE, June 11—(ENS).— On Wednesday, June 10, the staff and student body of the Port Hope High School gathered in the Assembly Hall for the presentation of the Field Day award.

The opening exercises were conducted in the Assembly Hall with G. L. Brackenbury in charge.

Mr. Brackenbury, in his opening remarks, told the student body that they had been given the most perfect and beautiful piece of mechanism, and it was up to them to develop this piece of machinery, their body, mentally, physically, morally and spiritually. He congatulated the student body as a whole, saying that all can't be first, but that those who tried had added much to the school as well as helping develop their own bodies.

Senior Girls

The first award to be given was the presentation of the cup and crests to the Senior Girls' basketball team, which won the championship. This tea mincluded Loretta Smith, Helen Brown, Betty and Peggy O'Neil, June Robinson, Shirley Harness, Frances Stalter, Dorish Inch, Doris Jennings.

Mr. Comfort, the physical director for the boys, made a few remarks, and informed the student body that the one mile race had been won by Lorne Smith. Mr. Comfort then called on Miss Betty O'Neil, president of the Girls' Athletic Association, to make the presentations to boys for the field day events.

CRAMER TIGER OUTFIELDER ENTERS MAGIC CIRCLE WITH 2001 HITS

Detroit Pounds Champ Yanks In 4-1 Struggle

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Step by step the present stars of the Major Leagues are finding their way into the hallowed company of baseball's old-time all-time standouts.

The latest to earn a place on the permanent honor roll of the game is Roger (Doc) Cramer, Detroit Tigers' outfielder, who made three hits against New York Yankees yesterday to lift his lifetime total to 2,001, a level that has been reached by only seven other players still active in the major leagues.

Cramer's achievement in his 14th year in the American League called attention again to Paul (Big Poison) Waner, who in his 17th season needs only six hits to total 3,000.

The three hits by Cramer were important individually, but they had nothing to do with the Tigers beating the world champions 4-1. The blows that counted in that battle were a homer in the fifth by Jim Bloodworth and another by Ned Harris with two on in the 11th inning.

It was the first time this year that the Yanks had been beaten in extra innings, but the overtime was not entirely wasted by New York in this game. Joe Gordon got an added turn at bat and, with two out in the last of the 11th, singled to extend his hitting streak to 27 consecutive games.

Waner in Hit Clouds

Paul Waner notched his 2,995th hit last night, but his Boston mates only collected three others off Rip Sewell, who pitched Pittsburg Pirates to a 3-0 shutout over the Braves.

It was the sixth straight victory in the longest streak of the season for the Bucs and the ninth straight setback for the Braves. Sewell drove in two of the runs by singling with the bases loaded.

In another night contest, New York Giants climbed into a third-place tie in the National League with Cincinnati by beating the Reds 3-1. Their fifth straight victory over the Redlegs.

Johnny Mize and Harry Danning led the nine-hit attack on three Cincinnati hurlers, driving in two runs each. Mize had three hits in four times at bat, including a pair of doubles.

Big Bill Lee acquired his eighth victory of the season as Chicago Cubs rallied for five runs in the seventh inning to beat the Phils 5-2. The Cubs were held to four hits, but made all of them in their big rally as John Podgajny's victory vanished along with his vision of a no-hitter.

Weather kept Brooklyn Dodgers idle at St. Louis again.

Boston Red Sox reinforced their hold on second place in the American League by squashing St. Louis Browns 10-3. All the losers' runs off Tex Hughson came on a homer by Mike Chartak. Dom DiMaggio and Bill Conroy homered for the Sox.

Chicago White Sox made Philadelphia Athletics exchange places in the cellar by beating the A's 4-1.

Cleveland Indians, held scoreless for eight innings by Buck Newsom, moved ahead with a three-run rally in the ninth, but had to go 12 innings to beat Washington Senators, 4-3, in a night game. The Senators tied the score in their half of the ninth with the help of an error by Lou Boudreau.

Ray Mack scored the winning run. He singled, moved to third on a single by Otto Denning and came home on a fielder's choice, scoring on a close play at the plate.

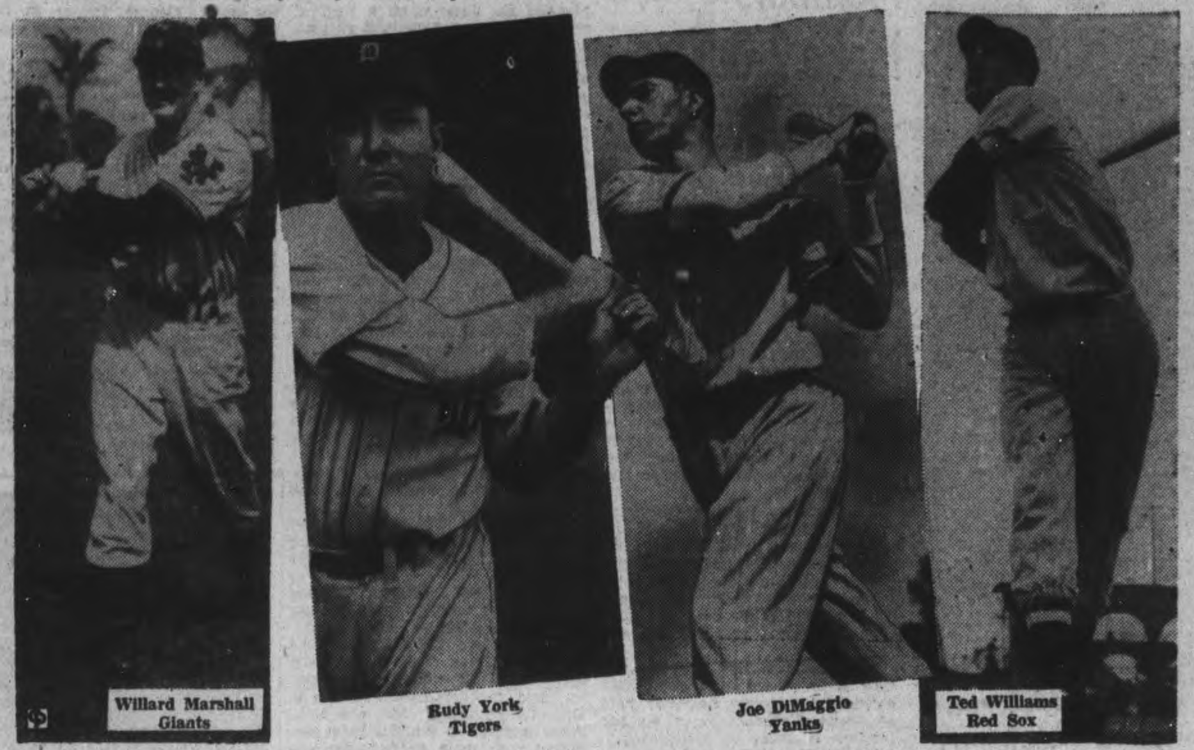
Fence Busters Keep Up Steady Home Run Pace



Willard Marshall Giants — Rudy York Tigers — Joe DiMaggio Yanks — Ted Williams Red Sox

Distance clouting in the major leagues is booming this year as always with old reliables busting fences day after day. In the American League, Ted Williams, the lanky outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, is in the lead, having knocked out 15 home runs in 45 games. Closely following him are Rudy York, the socking first baseman of the Tigers, and Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper whose bat average has taken a fall. In the senior loop, Dolf Camilli of the Dodgers and Mel Ott of the New York Giants are having a bit of competition from Willard Marshall, the hard-hitting Giant rookie up from Atlanta. Marshall plays the outfield.

Fairaris Fades By 3 Lengths BehindDogpatch

NEW YORK, June 11 — (AP). — The threatened fireworks Fairaris was supposed to pack in the three-year-old racing whirl didn't give Alsab and Shutout anything in particular to worry about yesterday.

The "English refugee," who was imported by R. S. McLaughlin, the Oshawa, Ontario, motor magnate, and equalled the track record at Belmont in his last outing, wound up a well-beaten second in the fifteenth running of the Shevlin Stakes—three full lengths behind Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Chicago-owned Dogpatch, a high-priced yearling of a couple of years ago.

Got Worst of It.

To give him his due Fairaris had tough luck wrapped up for him in this mile-and-a-sixteenth three-year-old fixture. He was bumped in a tangle going to the first turn, was shut off by W. W. Crenshaw's Zoca Rosa in the back stretch and was carried wide around the stretch turn. But, despite his rough trip, he was in front going into the stretch and just didn't have enough to stall off Dogpatch's closing rush.

Dogpatch, himself, stumbled coming out of the gate, but recovered under Al Schmidl's handling and came like a bullet in the last quarter of a mile. He won by a clear three lengths and picked up $5,050 winner's share in chalking up his first victory of 1942 after seven unsuccessful tries.

The son of Bull Dog was clocked in the comparatively slow time of 1:44 2-5, two full seconds off the track record. This in itself made it appear that Fairaris is going to have a tough time muscling in on the territory of Shut Out and Alsab in the championship of the three-year-olds.

Not At Best.

It was only the blazing speed the English importation showed in the recent Peter Pan handicap at Belmont that made many racegoers regard him as a surprise package for the two big guys.

Although he was backed down to 3 to 10 in the betting yesterday by the 14,761 customers he didn't show anything like his usual speed in beating William Woodward's Trierarch by two lengths for the place. Alf Vanderbilt's Rascal was fourth.

Dogpatch returned $24.20 for each $2.00 win ticket, $4.40 for place and $3.40 for show. Fairaris, knocked down to 1 to 4 in the win pool by 14,761 fans who turned out for the card, was $2.40 and $2.20 to place and show. Trierarch paid $3.20 for show supporters.

Dogpatch, winning his first race in eight starts this year, carried 114 pounds, compared to Fairaris' top weight 120. Fairaris had previously won three of four Belmont starts, including the $8,000 Peter Pan Handicap last week.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, June 11—(AP). — Charley Grimm, the Milwaukee Brewers' manager, says he's planning to buy a couple of Jeeps for his Missouri farm when hostilities cease.

Looking Ahead

If the pro hockey leagues have to suspend operations next winter, Eddie Shore plans to organize whatever talent is available into a New England circuit, including his own Springfield club, Boston, Providence, New Haven and maybe New York....The hockey school Eddie has run for two season may provide a lot of the players....Shore also reports sadly that his 11-year-old son, Ted, shows promise of developing into a real ice star—but he'd rather be a baseball player.

Some of Harlem's leading citizens plan to erect a monument to Joe Louis, topped by a statue of Joe nine feet high....That's about the size he appears to guys who have to face him in the ring....John Henry Lewis, ex-light heavyweight champ, has gone to work in a San Francisco shipyard.

But A Good Cigar Is A Smoke

When big Ted Norbert of the Portland Beavers became a pappy a few weeks ago, his supply of cigars ran out before he got around to L. G. Gregory, the Oregonian sports editor, so Ted promised to dedicate a home run to him instead...."Let me know before you go to the plate," Greg requested. ....A few nights ago, Norbert strolled over to the press box and remarked: "Remember the promise, Greg? Well, here it goes"....And on the first pitch he slammed one over the fence."

Royals and Bears Split Pair; Burge Hits 14th

By The Associated Press

Les Burge is making himself the most feared batsman in the International League. The slugging Montreal first baseman has found the home-run range which had endeared him to Atlanta fans last season.

While performing for Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association in 1941, Burge connected for 38 home runs, and he was voted the most valuable player at the end of the season by unanimous consent of Dixie managers.

He was purchased by Brooklyn Dodgers and was sent to the Royals for further experience.

The Royals advanced to within 1½ games of the league-leading Newark Bears as they walloped them, 15-2, in the opener of a double-header yesterday but Newark regained its pre-game lead of 2½ games by winning the nightcap, 3-2 in eight innings.

The first game saw Texas Jack Kraus hang up his sixth victory for the Royals as he limited the Bears to five hits while his mates pounded three Newark hurlers for 18, including home runs by Gene Moore and Burge. Burge's roundtripper was his 14th, and came with two on in a six-run sixth inning.

The Bears broke even for the day as Bobby Byrne hurled a two-hitter in registering his sixth triumph of the campaign. The winning run came when Frank Kelleher walked with the bases loaded to score Bill Johnson who had led off the overtime eighth inning with a double.

Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs battled to a seven inning, 7-7 tie in the only other game played. The game was called at the end of the seventh to allow the Red Wings catch a train to Baltimore. Jim Bottarini of the Chiefs hit a home run in the second with one on.

The Infantry's Job

TORONTO, June 11—(CP).—The infantry will, in the final analysis, win any war, Major-General C. F. Constantine told representatives of 67 civic organizations meeting here last night to form a committee for Toronto's army week.

"I am not detracting from the navy and air force when I say that," he said. "But neither the navy nor the air force can sit down at Berlin and stay there. The army can. We can tramp over German fields and through German cities and make the German people feel that they have been conquered."

Cochrane Picks 13 Soldier 10 Sailor Stars

By Gayle Talbot,
Associated Press Sport Writer.

WASHINGTON, June 11. —(AP)—Lieut. Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane, manager of the service all-stars, has chosen 13 soldiers and 10 sailors to make up his team for the benefit game at Cleveland July 17 against the winner of the annual American League-National League all-star contest.

Furthermore, Manager Mickey is serious about winning the Cleveland classic. He has asked that his players be relieved of their military duties in time to report to him for hard practice.

It is a powerful squad that Cochrane has picked, comprising the cream of big league talent that has answered the colors Bobby Feller, Hank Greenberg, Cecil Travis, Dan Padgett, Johnny Rigney and the others.

As his coaches Cochrane named Hank Gowdy of the Cincinnati Reds, who was the first big leaguer to enlist in the other World War, and George Earnshaw, former great pitcher with the Philadelphia Athletics and other clubs, now in the navy.

If they still are within reach, all the players Mickey asked for will report to him on the date requested. The military wants to win this game as much as Cochrane does. Pitcher Mickey Harris, formerly with the Boston Red Sox, will be flown up from the Canal Zone, the clearance will be granted every other player as soon as possible.

1st Base for Hank.

Greenberg, who drew the game's top salary of $52,500 a year before entering the army, has been listed as an infielder by Cochrane and probably will be stationed on first base in the benefit game. He played left field his last two seasons with the Tigers and helped club them to the American League flag in 1940.

Cochrane included another first baseman on his roster Johnny Sturm of the Yankees, but it is doubtful that Sturm will break into the line-up. Since joining the army he lost a finger in a training accident.

Following is the roster submitted by Cochrane, with the players' former clubs and their branch of service ("A" army; "N" navy).

Catchers: Frank Pytlak, Boston Red sox (N); Ken Sylvestri, New York Yankees (A); Vinnie Smith, Pittsburgh Pirates (N).

Pitchers: Bobby Feller, Cleveland Indians (N); John Rigney, Chicago White Sox (N); Hugh Mulchay, Philadelphia Phils (A); Mickey Harris, Boston Red Sox (A); Fred Hutchinson, Detroit Tigers (N); John Grodzicki, St. Louis Cards (A).

Infielders: Emmett Mueller, Philadelphia Phils (A); Benny McCoy, Philadelphia Athletics (N); John Lucadello, St. Louis Browns (N); Cecil Travis, Washington (A); Buddy Lewis Washington (A); Johnny Berrardino, St. Louis Browns (A; Hank Greenberg, Detroit (A); Johnny Sturm, New York Yankees (A).

Outfielders: Don Padgett, Brooklyn (N); Pat Mullin, Detroit (A); Sam Chapman, Philadelphia Athletics (N); Joe Grace, St. Louis Browns (N); Morrie Arnovich, New York Giants (A); Joe Marty, Philadelphia Phils (A).

By The Canadian Press.

New oYrk Yankees invaded Columbia University 18 years ago today to sign Lou Gehrig, pitcher and first baseman. 'Columbia Lou' started making baseball history and was voted the American League's most valuable player in 1927, 1931, 1934 and 1936. He did not miss a schedule game from Jan. 1, 1925 until illness forced his retirement May 2, 1939. He died on June 2, 1941.

According to Corporal Robert Watson of the plant police, eight matches were found in a change compartment of McEwan's purse which he carried in a hip pocket. No cigarettes or tobacco were found on the accused's person. McEwan told the court he didn't know the matches were in his purse.

A similar charge against Mrs. Frances Hoffman, another employee, was dismiss-'. Judgment was reserved on a third charge under the Defence of Canada Regulations against Frederick Bouskill of Port Hope of smoking within the plant.

Mrs. P. Dalmage, matron in charge of the women's change house at the plant, stated that on May 27 she found a match in the jacket pocket of Mrs. Hoffman, which was hanging in her locker. Mrs. Hoffman denied any knowledge of the match being there, stating that her pockets had been emptied before she came to work.

Premier's Speech

bill 80 last May 11.

Mr. King said Quebec opposition was partly engendered by the mistaken idea that the Government had interpreted the plebicite vote as a mandate for immediate conscription for service overseas.

He said conscription was "the most controversial issue that has arisen in Canada since Confederation" and it had been the aim of all political leaders to keep it in the background where it had been kept until about a year ago.

It was true that the enemy had to be defeated overseas if war was to be kept away from Canada but it was equally true that Canada must have an army strong enough to repel an attack which was a possibility "by no means remote."

"With those possibilities before our eyes can we afford to allow any question of conscription to become the occasion of a political battle in parliament or of political warfare throughout the country" he asked.

"Can we allow the country itself to become distratced by and divided over such an issue?

Would Feel Free Then.

Mr. King gave a clear indication that if the bill was passed the Government would feel free to impcse conscription if that became necessary without again referring the matter to parliament.

"I am certain that, with war on every side, members of parliament would not wish two debates on the subject of conscription when one should suffice," he said.

"I am even more certain that the people of Canada would not view with patience any such action on the part of their representatives," he added.

On this point Mr. Hanson said the prime minister's stand was 'skilful political strategy—just such strategy as we should expect from the right honorable gentleman who, above everything else, desires to preserve his political position."

There were murmurings in the House at this comment from the opposition leader and at times it was difficult to hear him in the gallery.

Same Old Game

Mr. Hanson continued:

"It is the same old policy of appeasement—a game which the prime minister had played to the limit with the avowed purpose of maintaining national unity but which, correctly interpreted, in practice means unity of the Liberal party and nothing else.

"At this time in our history I say that policy had failed and today, as a result of the prime minister's strategy, this nation is more divided than at any time in its history."

At another point Mr. Hanson said "Let us have from the Prime Minister, instead of this battle of words, a full and frank statement of the future course of the government.

"Let them say they will or they won't. Do they propose to exercise the powers which this bill will give them or don't they—yes or no?

"Let us know where they stand and not continue to straddle the fence after 32 months of war."

No Change in Policy

Mr. King assured the House that the amendment indicated no change in government policy but merely extended the scope of authority vested in the government by the National Resources Mobilization Act which became operative June 21, 1940.

Since that time conscription of property and of manpower for service in Canada or its territorial waters had been the law of the land, and it had been operating to the degree decided upon by the government from time to time.

Now the government was asking extension of that power to the end that men might be called up without restriction of the theatre of war in which they might be required to serve.

Procedure under the act as amended would be exactly the same as that now being followed with publication in The Canada Gazette and report to Parliament of all orders issued under the authority of the act.

The act was enabling legislation and had always been treated as such and would continue to be so treated, said Mr. King.

It merely proposed that the Government would be free to act on its own responsibility to Parliament, in the light of whatever circumstances the war might develop.

Mr. Hanson said this amendment would give the Government more power than that possessed by any other democratic government in the world.

But the Government had indicated that "it will not exercise that power and really practice total war with total effort."

Mr. King had said there was no change in policy and, if that were true, Mr. Hanson said, "Can anyone assert that this bill is anything more than shadow-boxing, or window dressing—worse—procrastination?"

Mr. Hanson reiterated his belief, often stressed since the war, that a complete national war effort is possible only under a National Government composed the best men of all political beliefs.

Some Already Sent Out.

In the course of Mr King's speech the Prime Minister observed that under the authority vested in the government by the War Measures Act of 1914 men called up under the Mobilization Act had already been sent out of Canada for prisoner escort duty through the United States.

Now, said Mr. King, one of the reasons he desired immediate removal of the ban against sending such men outside Canada was to obtain authority from the present Parliament to send N.R.M.A. troops to Newfoundland, the United States and islands and areas in the western hemisphere.

M. J. Coldwell, House leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation will resume the debate this afternoon, to be followed by John Blackmore, New Democracy leader.

It is expected the next speaker after Mr. Blackmore will be Mr. Cardin who will explain his reasons for leaving the government and lead off the Quebec Liberal Opposition to the bill—an opposition that has been variously estimated to include up to 50 of the 65 Quebec members.

THINNING OUT PIGEONS

Peterborough's pigeon population, that was fast becoming a nuisance to property owners in the downtown area, has been considerably thinned out recently through the accurate shooting of Sergt. W. E. Wigg of the Peterborough police department, well known as a crack shot. His services as a marksman have been called on by a number of property owners to help rid them of the piogeon nuisance and the birds that used to frequent the market square and the neighborhood of St. Paul's Church have suffered heavy mortality in recent mornings.

That was fine, but to even the score, the Examiner had to run two of Muggs and Skeeter, Tuesday night with no Little Abner, and little Gail Coleman was not for having any. ROTARY PERMIT

The parks committee of the city council has made an exception of a policy of last fall, permitting Peterborough Rotary Club to hold its annual carnival in the 'bowl' area of Riverside Park, instead of within the fenced enclosure. The club had set up electric wiring connections for other years, and to make changes for electric service in the south section would entail extra work at a time when help is scarce.

ASK SUNDAY BALL.

Council of Niagara Falls (Can). deferred decision for a week on an application by the Rainbow Baseball Club for permission to use Oakes Park for Sunday gams. Purpose of delay was to obtain "public opinion in the matter."

HIS STORY IN SEP.

The Saturday Evening Post includes in its fiction this week a story by William A. Breyfogle of Peterborough.

Average Twelve Every Training Night

Recruiting of men for the 2nd Battalion Prince of Wales Rangers (Reserve) at the Peterborough Armouries is proceeding at a pace that taxes the orderly room facilities of the unit and since May 16, less than a month, 105 men have joined up for home defence.

Major Vincent Eastwood, Adjutant, expressed his satisfaction at the results so far, but pointed out that the number taken on strength to date represent only a small portion of those eligible. In other words there are a great many men in the city and suburbs who are standing back, watching the threat of actual invasion growing closer daily, and doing nothing about it.

It was reported to-day that upwards of 300 men from the Rangers plan to attend the summer camp at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa between July 19 and August 2. Non-commissioned ranks are being filled fast by smart young fellows who had no previous military training, but who are showing marked aptitude in their work. This is another of many advantages accruing from early enlistment as the Rangers' ranks have been thinned by active service enlistments, and the new recruits have every chance of advancement.

Following are the names of fifteen men who were accepted for reserve army service on Tuesday night of this week and other prospective recruits are reminded that the unit parades for drill on Thursday evening, and new recruits should apply at that time.

Twelve Nurses Are Graduated From St. Joseph's Hospital

Twelve new members of the nursing professional graduated from St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday afternoon when the graduation exercises were conducted in the Collegiate Auditorium. The nurses were seated on the platform and made a pretty picture in their white uniforms, each with a large bouquet of red roses. The stage was charmingly decorated with baskets of pink roses.

The Bishop spoke briefly to the graduates, congratulating them on their choice of a noble profession, and assuring them that all present shared with them the joy of their graduation. Mayor James Hamilton addressed the class and wished the nurses every success in their chosen work.

The valedictory address was delivered by Miss Eleanor Crowley, who spoke of the gratitude of the class to all those who had helped them in their course and expressed the hope that they would all find work to do in the world torn by war.

Young, as follows: Miss Anne Walsh, Miss Evelyn Barnett, Miss Mary Cain, Miss Kathleen O'Grady, Miss Teresa Scollard, Miss Agnes Crough, Miss Margaret McColl, Miss Thelma Hollingsworth, Miss Patricia Duffus, Miss Emma McLaughlin, Miss Eleanor Crowley, Miss Eileen Leahy.

Plumbing Case Is Dismissed

A charge against Gordon J. Bigelow, under the Plumbing Bylaw of failing to have a smoke test made of finished plumbing work in his apartment house on the old Lundy property on Burnham street was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today, on the ground that no evidence had been submitted to show that the plumbing had been completed.

Before giving judgment His Worship addressed counsel, City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., for the prosecution and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant, pointing out that since the case had been closed, he had realized that there had been no evidence to show the plumbing had been completed. There could not possibly be a conviction, therefore, and under the circumstances he wondered if counsel would agree to have the case re-opened to allow evidence being put in on that point.

"Otherwise if I dismiss the case because the completion of the work has not been proven, the prosecution could appeal and have the additional evidence admitted that way or lay another charge" Magistrate Langley said.

"A new feature has developed since the case was heard" commented Hon. Mr. Gordon. "The Fire Chief has gone over there after five years and informed Bigelow that a fire escape must be installed from the third storey to the ground. I don't know why the Chief waited five years before pressing the matter."

Mr. Gordon said that he must decline to consent to a re-opening of the case.

"In that event I will have to lay a new charge" said City Solicitor Huycke.

Magistrate Langley then delivered a brief judgment, dismissing the case without costs for the reason named.

He intimated that if the completion of the plumbing work had been proven there would have been a conviction as in his opinion there had been a continuing offence.

School Reunion Makes $20 For War Victims

School Section No. 10, Smith, sometimes called the Sixteenth Line School of Wesley Community recently held a re-union of teachers and ex-pupils, with the arrangements under the direction and supervision of the present teacher of the school, Miss Olga Wilson.

The whole evening, from the nature of the program was of considerable interest to the community and past teachers, since they, with the trustees, had a share in it, embracing as it did a historical research and story of the school, read by Miss Viva Harris. This school has quite a history, being built in 1884, and during that period has had 31 teachers, and of these three were in attendance for the occasion besides the present incumbent — Mrs. G. Breckenridge (nee Miss Howson), Mrs. H. Hunter (nee Miss Higgins), and Mrs. H. Pearson (nee Miss Junkin).

The school was decorated in the patriotic colors of red white and blue, and Evans Blewett, secretary-treasurer of the board, was chairman for the occasion, also taking part in the program with musical numbers in conjunction with Josiah Blewett.

An address was given by School Inspector R. F. Downey, who also officiated as auctioneer to dispose of a butterfly quilt yhich had been made by the pupils and produced $6.00 of the proceeds of the evening, being bought by Miss Irene Simpkins.

Musical numbers were rendered by the students, and Trustees H. Sage, E. Pearson and S. Pearson added their quota to the evening by a short talk, while Miss Olga Wilson read letters from ex-teachers who were unable to attend, besides the log of the school itself.

A bazaar or sale of articles which had been made by the teacher and pupils had its part in the evening's proceedings which also included the serving of refreshments, and a silver collection also helped to swell the amount raised which in all totalled some $31.00.

Of this, $20.00 is to-day listed for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, and the balance was given to the Red Cross, the whole making a worth-while effort on the part of teachers, pupils and all who assisted.

Four boys, Arthur Bromley, Don Anderson, Ron Killingbeck, and Stanley Reynolds, had a stand at 98 Gladstone Avenue selling lemonade and orangeade made by their mothers and this with dart games and a ring board made $1.53 for the fund, which appears in their names to-day. They had lots of fun but the biggest part of it was the good they set out to do for others, something which brings infinitely more to an individual than anything else can do.

Board of Works Needs 50 Men

"I wish I could get fifty men," City Engineer Parsons remarked this morning, looking over the relaying of the concrete walk on the Water street side of the Post Office.

'We are doing the best we can right now by shifting some of them from one job to another, taking some from the northwest end sewer to help out at the incinerator. And so on elsewhere."

The sidewalk on Water street will be reduced in width from Hunter street corner to the office of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, and the corner will be given a shorter radius.

"The original was laid forty or more years ago," Mr. Parsons said. "I would have to look up my records to make sure. Then when we were paving the streets nobody foresaw the need of space for automobile parking that has grown acute in the last few years. What we should have done then was to have widened the roadway and narrowed the sidewalks."

The present work will provide when complete an indication of what the width of walks should be, especially on secondary streets.

Three sections of the sidewalk on Water and Hunter streets have been rebuilt in the last week or two with all the improvement that is noticed when old and broken down parts and furniture are tossed out of the house.

Must Ask for Sugar

IF YOU are lunching in a restaurant, don't expect the waiter to lead with the sugar spoon,—not since W. Foley of the local Wartime Prices and Trade offices directed an enquiry into local practice. He found that waiters generally did not wait to be asked for sugar in the coffee and tea, as required by the easy rationing regulations. Some of the waiters would: "Do you take sugar," and hand out three lumps or a spoon and a half.

From now on, if you want sugar you have to ask for it, and it is the waiter who dispenses. And don't ask for a second cup fo coffee at a meal, because the rules say you can't have it.

U.S. Places Curb On Bus Services

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).— Sharp curbs on inter-city bus service throughout the United States were announced today as the Office of Defense Transportation moved to conserve travel facilities vital to the war program.

Taking command of all such bus lines, the O.D.T. directed that beginning July 1 present routes shall be frozen, competitive services pooled, all express runs abolished, and service to places of amusement drastically restricted.

Under the last-named clause, no inter-city buses may be operated for the "primary purpose" of serving places of amusement or entertainment. Under places of amusement are included such things as golf courses, athletic fields, race tracks, theatres, dance pavilions and beaches.

Inter-city buses will no longer be permitted to operate with only a small fraction of their seats occupied. With the exception of one daily round trip, each bus company must drop schedules which do not show an average load in both directions of more than 40 per cent of the buses' seating capacity.

Competitors must do their utmost to pool services, stagger schedules and swap operating rights. Special permission must be obtained from the Government in order to extend any service.

The order does not cover buses which operate within fifteen miles of city limits, or schedules on which the average fare is 35 cents or less. Such buses are not classed as inter-city.

The "express service" to be discontinued is the fast, generally through service system, it was said at the O.D.T., and not the carrying of merchandise for hire, which is not affected.

HAVELOCK, June 11. — (ENS)— The sewing quota for the next four months has been received and the local branch is asking for volunteer sewers as the appeal comes direct from England for the great need of clothing for young boys. Any one wishing any sewing material or wool, please get in touch with the secretary, Mrs. C. Couch, or Mrs. Cecil Anderson, or the wool convener Miss Chambers.

The Shipping Committee packed another box of knitted goods, containing Army and Air Force articles 18 pairs socks, 5 pairs mitts, 1 helmet, and 1 scarf; for Women's Auxiliary, 4 calots, 3 toques, and 2 pairs of gloves in khaki color, and three scarfs and 2 pairs mitts in navy.

Mrs. H. Roche presided for the business session. The treasurer reported a bank balance of $250.35. A generous donation of $8.75 was received and gratefully acknowledged from Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 326. An announcement from headquarters said that a new hospital quota would arrive shortly. The sewing quota asks for 20 pairs boys' shorts, 20 boys' caps, 20 boys' overcoats and 40 boys' shirts, and the material for these articles will arrive shortly.

Sixteen ladies were in attendance and one quilt was completed and a huge carton of furs was shipped, which is to be used for lining seamen's jackets. Final arrangements for a strawberry social will be made next Monday.

PARATROOPS GET EXTRA

LONDON—(CP)—Paratroop officers get about 90 cents a day more pay than officers of other army units, and other ranks receive an extra 45 cents, Sir James Grigg, War Minister, told Commons.

Premature Explosion During Manoeuvres

The war's most spectacular picture is this, made while an Australian infantry battalion was engaged in night manoeuvres in New South Wales, men were being landed from a boat at the edge of a dam when a charge of gelignite, used to give realism to the operation, exploded unexpectedly directly under the boat. The photographer, standing about 20 feet from the explosion, had presence of mine enough to snap this highly unusual picture, which shows the men falling back to earth from the centre of the water spout created by the explosion, and which rose to a height of 80 feet. The men suffered more from shock than injury, but the boat was destroyed.

Poland Not Dead But Waiting Day Nazis Slip

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF.

NEW YORK, June 11 — (AP).— "The Poland of old isn't dead. Poland is just waiting, and when the day comes she will strike."

This sentiment, in different phrases is expressed in all parts of Poland. Everywhere Poles are waiting for the day the Nazis start to slip, and then they may be counted on to take part in an internal European revolt against German domination.

This is an impression brought back after extensive travels in Poland since the German occupation.

German efforts to concentrate attention on some of their constructive works, and to make neutral correspondents see everything from the Wilhelmstrasse viewpoint, cannot conceal the fact that the Poles today are a sullen, unhappy people, full of conspiracies, eager for vengeance.

"Poles have learned patience, and a lot of them are dying, but when the world holds a post-mortem on Nazidom, a Pole will be on the coroner's jury," a patriot in Warsaw said.

Poland probably is the most thoroughly dominated of the occupied countries—has to be, from the German viewpoint, because Poland is on the road to the vital Russian front—the Germans would tolerate nothing which could even remotely menace a flow of materials and men to the eastern battle zones.

Conspiracies Underground.

So the Poles are, so far as appearances go, not as obstreperous as Czechs, Norwegians, or even French. A good many first-string German divisions are always in Poland, or moving through, and the country swarms with Gestapo. There is little patience with civilian rebels.

The conspiracies, consequently, are far underground, and so well concealed that the Germans themselves may be fooled into thinking that Poland is completely crushed.

But the visitor with the right introductions and able to win the confidence of the right people gets a different impression in Warsaw.

One hears stories of hidden arms, and of little groups which are ready for sabotage or assassination any time such forms of revolt promise to do the most good. Organization may be imperfect, and means lamentably small, but the spirit lives.

Warsaw is a city of smashed buildings in which a brave life of sorts go on. It is a life of tragedy, quiet courage, some hunger and even some smiles. Streets are crowded, the population is working, Polish policemen still patrol the town and Polish postmen deliver the mail. Administration remains in the hands of Poles, but is carried out under strict German regulation.

Most striking features of the city are the many ruined buildings, and the strange new city within a city—the walled ghetto into which more than 50,000 Jews are crowded in a congested central district.

Walled Prison City.

Within the Ghetto the Jews live precariously by themselves, able to leave their walled prison only if they have passes which are hard to get. A Jewish police force, responsible to the Germans, maintains order.

Life is actually less regimented than it is in Germany. Marketing and rationing restrictions are less rigid, but on the other hand distribution of necessities of life is less high, the poor have a difficult time and there is little social service organization to take care of them.

The Germans have shown little interest in reconstruction of Warsaw. Its industries and the labor of its population have been largely absorbed into the German war machine. But any favors being distributed by the Germans go to Krakow, which the Nazis say "looks like a German city" and where Dr. Hans Frank, with his seat in the Burg castle, governs the German-made Polish general Government.

Dr. Frank, through his administrative machine, holds the power of life or death over every Pole still in his native land. The Poles are unfortunate in many respects, but are lucky that Dr. Frank is no such executioner as was the late Reinhard Heydrich in Prague.

He is stern enough, and uncounted Poles have faced the firing squads. But Dr. Frank's outstanding talent is not ruthlessness. A clever lawyer and able administrator, he is playing the role of a "hard-handed ruler of an inferior people." Nowhere so frankly as in Poland do German occupation forces take the attitude they are members of a master race.

Coupon Rations To Start On Sugar Only

OTTAWKA, June 11 — (CP). — Coupon rationing plans of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at present are confined to sugar, which will be the first commodity to be placed under the new system.

Announcement of details for sugar is expected from Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman, within the next two weeks.

With information from other parts of the Empire before them, officials are organizing a system whereby rationing application cards will be distributed to all householders. After the cards are completed, a book of coupons good for purchase of sugar will be issued on the basis of the number of persons in the applicant's family.

The present sugar ration is one-half pound a person a week, and there is no indication that the new system would mean an alteration in this allowance.

If further rationing by coupon becomes necessary to cover commodities other than sugar, it is anticipated the extension could be made with comparatively little difficulty.

In addition to sugar, tea and coffee are already under the honor rationing system.

The coupon rationing system will enable the Prices Board to know the requirements of Canadian consumers more exactly than is possible at present.

Oddfellows Parade On Decoration Day

MILLBROOK, June 11—(ENS). — Headed by the Durham Regimental Band from Orono, a large turnout of the local Oddfellows Lodge, together with members of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176 paraded from the I.O.O.F. to the Cenotaph on Sunday for the annual Decoration Day service.

The band led in the singing of the hymns during the program and the Vice-Grand, Roy Greer, had charge of the service in the absence of the Noble Grand Harold Tate. Others assisting in the I.O.O.F. ritual were the chaplain, Rev. A. L. Sisco, and the D.D.G.M., Bro. Wilfrid Elson, who made a brief address, stressing the spirit of fraternity.

G. T. McPherson read the names of departed brethren buried in the local and outside cemeteries, and Zella Bentley, P.N.G., those of the Rebekah Order. selected members of both lodges placing wreaths on the Cenotaph in loving remembrance, as each list from the various cemeteries was completed. Fred Elliott, P.G. whose brother paid the supreme sacrifice in the last World War, placed the wreath for those who so died. Then Last Post was sounded and the two minutes of silent remembrance was honored.

The monument was massed with fragrant blossoms when the ceremony of placing wreaths was completed, and the guest speaker for the day, Rev. G. Mahoney of Peterborough, was heard for the first time locally, basing his remarks upon the words of Christ. "In My Father's house are many mansions." The joys of homecoming in any walk of life, and especially that of the Christian who passes into "the larger room of our Father's house," were pictured with impressive vividness, and stress was laid on preparation.

Following the National Anthem, the parade reformed and cars left the hall for the several cemeteries of the district, where flowers were placed on the graves.

Th decoration committee included: C. B. Sutton, P.G.; V. R. Hunter, P.G.; H. A. Fallis, P.G.; J. H. Isbister, W. E. Ball, P.G., and P. I. Bentley, P.G.

Yank Field Men Miss Watery Death by 15 Feet

A NORTH ATLANTIC PORT, June 11 — (AP). — Four American field service workers who missed death from a torpedo blast by a scant 15 feet, arrived safely at an Atlantic port in a damaged lifeboat after a medium-sized British freighter was torpedoed June 2.

The ship went down three minutes after a second torpedo crashed into the engine room.

Eight other passengers, all field service workers, and the British crew of 59 all reached port safely. Two lifeboats were picked up and the crews taken to an Eastern Canadian port, and the other reached another American Atlantic port unassisted.

The first four Americans told how they rushed on deck when the first torpedo hit, scrambled into a lifeboat on the starboard side, and then were held helpless against the side of the sinking ship by jammed lines, as another torpedo struck the ship 15 feet away.

"We didn't see the second baby coming," said Charles Fagan, 28, of Seattle, one of the field service men who was in the lifeboat. "If we had I guess we would have been plenty scared. First thing we knew we heard a dull bang. Then a sheet of flames spread out five feet below the surface of the water. It was the damndest thing I ever saw.

"After the torpedo exploded 15 feet aft of the lifeboat, a wall of water crashed down on the men, smashed the rudder and pulled the stern away from the larger vessel. The freighter started sinking like an elevator. One of the men cut the tangled lines and we got away."

Tea and Coffee Rationing Will Mean Better Health

By MARY MOORE

Rationing of tea and coffee has my 100% blessing because it means better health and more money for nutritional foods, for instance milk.

So, the Old Guinea Pig has been experimenting on herself and family this week on tea and coffee substitutes and extenders.

Our conclusions are very simple: You drink tea and coffee (1) because you are thirsty; (2) because the warmth of them is soothing; (3) because they give you an indefinable lift; (4) because it is an hospitable habit.

I think those four reasons cover the field thoroughly and I am going to attempt to give you substitutes or extenders for tea and coffee in that order.

No. 1: You Drink Tea and Coffee Because You Are Thirsty

Uncle John (that's my cooking uncle) said "What'll we drink if we don't have coffee for dinner?" I simply said "Did you ever try water?" Of course I received the answer I deserved, "I don't want to take a "bawth"—I want something to drink!"

This lecture could be scrapped if everyone would, after reading the announcement of tea and coffee rationing turn from the paper as the old sea captain did saying to his wife "I guess we'll have to start drinking water now Mother."

A pitcher of water, preferably iced, and glasses should be a must on every Canadian dinner table, and all dinners should be introduced with soup.

Various people will argue this point saying one should not drink liquids with meals because they dilute the digestive juices, or that liquids stretch the stomach and a large stomach means a large appetite and weight increase is inevitable. Tea and coffee do those things too so the water pitcher and soup stay.

No. 2: The Warmth of Tea and Coffee is Soothing

The little bit we are rationed on tea and coffee at present should hardly cause a ripple of complaint, but those who prefer to substitute rather than extend their ration may make skim milk cocoa, or drink warm milk or cambric tea or, what I think is most satisfactory, hot water with a little milk or cream. Some of the hot drinks made from prepared syrups in your own kitchen you will find detailed below, along with recipe for skim milk cocoa.

No. 3: Tea and Coffee Give You an Indefinable Lift

You can still obtain the precious "lift" from stimulants in tea and coffee by more careful buying and brewing of both.

Much of the flavor of coffee is thrown in the garbage pail in the coffee grounds, or unless coffee is ground so fine that is pulverized it's total flavor cannot be extracted. The finer your coffee is ground the more cups of coffee per pound it will make. Pulverized coffee is the most economical form in which coffee can be bought and used. However the large coffee packers do not sell it in this form so the best we can do is buy "drip" grind and to make our ¾ ration stretch over the full week we must make it weaker.

Or we can make it the usual strength but make it go further by making

Cafe au Lait

This is half and half hot rather strong coffee and hot whole milk. Have two pots, one for prepared hot coffee and one for the boiling hot milk—fill each cup half full with coffee and finish filling with hot milk. Good for breakfast and dinner.

Coffee au Lait is the way Frenchmen drink it (or used to when they were free); It is also a good plan for those who wish to cut down their consumption of coffee for health reasons or for reducers, for the whole milk or skim milk is not as fattening as cream in coffee.

Yesterday I visited 6 of my friends and asked them what they were doing about the tea and coffee rationing. The usual answer was "I'm more careful of the tea and use less and steep it the exact five minutes. As for coffee I don't throw out any that's left over—I reheat it by standing the pot in a larger pan containing boiling water."

One little lady said she could pretty nearly save the amount she was rationed in reheating leftover coffee alone.

One coffee lover said "If I can't have it strong I plan to make every fourth day coffeeless." There's a sure way of obeying rationing requirements. For the same reason every other day could be tealess.

On the off days she is going to drink hot skim milk or hot water with milk or skim-milk cocoa or coffee substitutes, hot chocolate or spice Punch Syrup or Hot Lemonade (see below).

No. 4: Service of Tea and Coffee Is an Hospitable Habit

One of my friends whose family consists of only herself and husband uses 2 lbs. of coffee per week. The reason for this huge consumption is because she always serves coffee to every drop-in guest, of which she has a-plenty. Her first reaction to the rationing was to order a cocoa service for she couldn't endure the thought of stinting her guests or losing some of them—for she is an invalid and visitors are her world.

The delightful habit of afternoon tea can be kept up if you extend the brewing time and use less tea. Orange and lemon make weak tea quite delicious.

Spice Punch Syrup

One cup sugar, 1 cup water, 6 cloves, 1 inch stick cinnamon, 2 tablespoons chopped ginger (optional), ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, 1 drop oil of peppermint, green coloring (optional), mint leaves. Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Add cloves, cinnamon and ginger; cover and let stand until cold. Add fruit juices, strain, color green (optional), and add peppermint. Let stand 1 hour and pour into jar to keep in refrigerator for whenever it is needed. Add one part of this syrup to 3 parts water and ice when serving. Or add 1 part of this syrup to 3 parts boiling water for a hot drink.

Skim Milk Cocoa

Heat to scalding point 1 quart skim milk in top of double boiler (10c or less per quart in most cities). Mix in small bowl 2½ tablespoons good quality cocoa and either 2½ tablespoons sugar or 6 tablespoons corn syrup and shake of salt with ½ cup boiling water. When milk is hot stir cocoa-mix into it and beat with rotary beater to make it foamy. Serve from your new cocoa pitcher.

Lemon Syrup

(This is scheduled to appear in 2 weeks' time in an article entitled "Frosty Drinks in Tall Glasses.")

One cup corn syrup, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, grated yellow rind from 6 lemons. Boil together 10 minutes and strain. When cool add the juice from 6 lemons and keep cool.

Pour about 3 oz. (1-3 glass) of this syrup into glass and fill with cold water and cubes of ice.

(One or two tablespoons of this syrup is good over hot Cottage Pudding.)

Lemon Mint Syrup

Very good when served with boiling hot water.

Make same as Lemon syrup adding 20 mint leaves to syrup while it is boiling.

We would be glad to hear what you are doing to meet the coffee and tea rationing problem.

WIFE ADMITS MISTAKE IN REMAINING CHILDLESS

Motherhood, Properly Taken, Is Sure Antidote for Boredom.

Dear Miss Dix: A young woman, the mother of three little children, works in the same office where I do. Her husband deserted her and the children and she is their sole support. It is a struggle for her to make both ends meet, but she is the happiest person I know. She gives her children every minute of her time at home. Never indulges in outside pleasures. Never wants any other interest. Thinks being a mother is the most wonderful thing in the world, and feels that she will be rewarded for all the sacrifices she makes when she gives three fine citizens to the world.

I belong to that group of women who refuse to have children because we don't want to be bothered with them. We want to go about and amuse ourselves all the time and children are in the way. Now I realize, when it is too late, the terrible mistake I made, for I could have been even happier with children than this woman is as I have a husband who is a good provider and a fine man. I am working now only because I got tired of running around and I was bored to extinction with nothing to do.

READER.

ANSWER: There is no denying that motherhood, properly taken, is the one sure antidote for boredom and that what-shall-I-do-to-kill-time feeling that afflicts so many women after they have gotten tired of running around to night-clubs and playing bridge and have come to perceive that men ask them to dance only as a means of doing their daily boy scout good deed. Mothers always have a pressing engagement for the next minute. They never have to go outside of the home to hunt for an occupation, and inasmuch as only the buys are contented they are in on the ground floor when it comes to happiness.

According to the old proverb, a baby in the house is a wellspring of joy. It is that, and it is something more. It is a source of never-ending interest and diversion. It is a one-man show that never palls on you, for it gives a new program every day. It begins in the hospital when it is a guessing contest as to what color its eyes are; whether it takes after your side of the family which is handsome, or, whether it is homely like its mother's. It picks up interest when it first starts to use its clumsy little hands, and you get the finest thrill you ever had when he makes a sound that might be translated into da-da and shows signs of human intelligence.

And it goes on through the schoolboy age and the adolescent period, and the time when you throw out your chest and brag about "my boy" who is graduating cum laude at college, and you get the love motif every time he falls in love with a new girl, and so on and on and on, for you never lose interest in your children and they are the most important thing in the world to you as long as you live.

Surely the people who cut themselves out of the finest of all human experiences by not having children miss the greatest happiness that life can offer them. For there comes a time when we grow weary of ourselves, when we realize that all of our cards have been played and no new deal is coming to us. It is then that we live again in our children and our grandchildren and believe that they will do all the things we failed to do.

Marry The Girl

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am 19 years old and have been going with a girl for some time with whom I think I am in love. In fact, I am pretty sure I am. I have always treated this girl with the greatest respect, but after hearing the boys I work with talk about the petting parties they have with their girls, I thought maybe I was a back number, so I pulled some fresh stuff with my girl.

Well, she was furious and told me that if it ever happened again everything was off between us, and was I sore! But when I discussed the incident with the fellows at the shop, they said that if I have a girl who is THAT decent I should appreciate her and marry her, for she is one in a thousand. Do you think I should appreciate her decency and stick to her, or quit her because she won't do what I want her to do?

LONELY WITHOUT HER.

ANSWER: I side with the boys in the shop and so do you, if you are honest with yourself. Girls with loose morals and low standards may be amusing playthings, but when a man marries he wants a wife in whose integrity he can believe as he does in God. He wants a wife he can trust, and he knows well enough that the girl who has not the backbone and the principle to stand up for what she knows to be right will yield to any tempter who comes along.

He's No Friend In Need

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a husband who has a terrible temper. Whenever anything goes wrong at the office he comes home and takes it out on me and the children. The other day when he came home he found me sick in bed, the baby with the measles, and the little boy threatened with croup. He was so mad he packed his bags and went to his mother's, where he has been ever since. That was three weeks ago and he has not even telephoned to find out how we were getting along. What should I do?

ALICE.

ANSWER: Let him stay with Mother. That kind of a husband isn't worth bothering about.

Married In George Street Church

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Gardner, whose marriage took place Wednesday at George Street United Church. Mrs. Gardner was formerly Miss Eleanor Delahaye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Delahaye, and Mr. Gardner is the son of Mrs. C. Hopcroft and the late Bruce Gardner, and is attached to the R.C.N.V.R. and stationed in Toronto.

Pupils of Miss M. McCabe Are Heard In Recital

A charming musical event took place in the Ashburham Hall on Wednesday evening, when pupils of Miss Margart McCabe gave a recital. Despite the heat, the program which included piano and vocal solos and duets, a recitation, and a violin obligatto, was admirably performed.

The program opened with a lively piano duet by Bernice Flynn and Jean McLeod. This was followed by a group of three piano solos by three of the younger pupils, "On the Train" by Geraldine Coughlin, "Summer" by Mary Garvey and "Tulip" By Maureen Kennedy.

Betty McLeod then sang two vocal solos, "A Brown Bird Singing," and "I Hear a Thrush at Eve." Miss McLeod's voice is sweet and clear, though somewhat lacking in volume. She sings very expressively.

A piano solo, "Arogonaise" was played with skill and liveliness by Douglas Butcher. Mr. Butcher is a pianist of promise. "By the Bend in the River," a chorus by the vocal class, was an attractive variation of the solo programme, as were their two final numbers, "The Broken Pitcher," and "A Perfect Day."

These selections were followed by two duets by Phyllis Cowie and Tony De Noble, "Evensong," and "Flow on Thou Shining River." These were followed by a recitation by Rosemary McConkey. Rosemary got off to a bad start but she made a gallant recovery and gave a very good performance. It isn't everyone who can recover as quickly and thoroughly from stage-fright as Rosemary. She must be an artistic little girl.

Kenneth Lamaire, who sang two solos, "God Bless This House," and "I Heard You Go By" has a voice that is warm and friendly in quality, and a most attractive manner of singing. Two piano numbers by Jean McLeod showed her to possess a delicate touch. The numbers were "Cotton-field Dance" and "Doll Dance." Tony DiNoble sang two operatic numbers in Italian and aria from the opera Martha, and "La Donna e'Mobile' 'from Rigoletto. Mr. DiNoble possesses an attractive tenor voice and sings well, but somewhat seemed to cause him great amusement during the socond number; possible the fact that he was singing of the unfaithfulness and lightness of the fair sex to an audience composed almost entirely of women.

Two charming and graceful vocal duets by Mona Gibson and Kenneth Lamaire were next on the program. "Flirtation," and "The Keys of Heaven," were both admirably suited to the singers' voices and personalities and the accompanying actions were very well done.

A vocal number with a violin obligatto by Caheraine Corkery was sung by Miss Phyllis Cowie. The number was "Sing, Smile and Slumber." All singers were accompained by Miss McCabe, Miss Bernice Flynn and Miss Jean McLeod.

The members of the chorus were as follows: Sopranos, Phyllis Cowie, Stella Campanaro, Peggy Mackey, Jean McLeod Norma Gibson and Mary McCabe; alto's Bernadette Flynn, Betty McLeod Audrey Britnell Barbara Cavalier and Zeta Kennedy. Mr. Leo Hatton was Master of ceremonies.

Baby Band Day Is Held By W.M.S.

"Baby Band Day" in St. James United W.M.S. had a record attendance at their June meeting with 100 persons present. The chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. Wesley Rose, who conducted the opening service of worship.

The president in gracious words, welcomed Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, presbyterial president, as the guest at this meeting, which was essentially a gathering of children.

The summer meeting, usually a picnic, was left to be held as a group leaders' plan.

Mrs. F. Craik, Christian Stewardship secretary, read a creed for Christian Stewardship and Mrs. E. Beavis presented Temperance in her usual interesting manner. An article from Grace Woodcock, who is doing bissionary work for the W.M.S. in South America, was read by Mrs. Rose and enjoyed.

The children's program was handed over to Mrs. G. Harris, group leader for the day. Tre program included the following: Recitation Mary Hunter, a poem of welcome to all present; group of choruses, led by Mrs. E. M. Davis; story of medical mission in the west, where a little boy gives thanks for being sent to our W.M.S. hospital, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris. In this delightful story Mrs. Harris held the interest of both child and adult hearers throughout; recitation, Kay Agnew; vocal solo, Florine Searles; recitation, 23rd Psalm, Ronnie Leggitt; piano duet, Earl and Joyce Agnew; vocal solo, Barbara Wallace; recitation, Bobbie Turner; piano solo, Ray Harris.

Mrs. A. Clarke extended the thanks of the June group, to the children for their attendance and for assisting in the fine program, to the guest speaker and all who helped in making the meeting a success.

Ice cream and cake was served to all by the committee in charge in the beautifully flower-decked hall.

Eleanor Delahaye Bride of Stewart Gardner

The marriage was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon of Eleanor Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Delahaye, to James Stewart Gardner, son of Mrs. C. Hopcroft and the late Mr. Bruce Gardner. The Rev. H. L. Roberts performed the ceremony and the church was decorated with peonies. Mrs. C. Renaud presided at the organ and Mrs. H. Goldie sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length frock of powder blue georgette, with a white picture hat and white accessories and wore a corsage of red roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Isabel Delahaye, who wore a pink silk jersey frock with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Ken Wyatt and the ushers were Mr. Ivan Clement and Mr. Stewart Joyes.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a frock of royal blue crepe with a matching hat and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a dress of pale blue georgette a blue hat and a corsage of red roses.

Later the bride and groom left for Toronto. For travelling the bride wore a pink two-piece dress and white turban. They will live in Toronto, where the groom is serving as stoker, 1st class, aboard H.M.C.S. "Venetia" training ship, R.C.N.V.R.

Sharpe-Rosborough Wedding

Mrs. Henry Sharpe and her bridal attendants. Mrs. Sharpe was formerly Miss Opal Lillian Rosborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert A. Rosborough. TIME TO SWITCH SIGNS

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 11 (AP)—The four Pryor children, Mary, Ellen, Eddie, Nancy Lee and Ernest, started a lemonade stand and offered free drinks to service men. SPORTING BLOOD . . . .

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

THE STORY: Strickland Ballard, pompous, paternal patent medicine king, has politely stolen a prize horse and a new strain of corn from young Hunter Dent, his farm manager. Hunter bets his next year's salary that before the year's end his wager-loving employer will restore his horse and corn, and apologize. He repeats the bet before Ballard's daughter, Bella. Late that night Hunter finds Ballard's dissipated son, Junior, lying on the floor of his room. Beside him is a satchel containing $17,000.

CHAPTER II.

Hunter Dent dazedly counted the sum of money again, and replaced the large denominations in the leather bag. A goldleaf monogram, almost obliterated by use, was of the First National Bank, Middleton. The Ballard Laboratories had their account in this bank. It was possible the money was Mr. Ballard's. Hunter went and looked down at the boy. He was breathing with a gargling noise and seemed dead drunk. Pain tugged at Hunter. It was no new thing. He had looked after Junior before when he was drunk; he had tided him through a couple of tight spots from gaming; he had tried to get the boy to behave. Hunter had an affection for Junior. They had been pretty close these years, that is until lately. Something seemed to be coming between them, and Hunter was saddened.

"Poor brat. Well, this is the fruits of too much paternal indulgence. I'd better get him to his room and to bed."

First, however, he must safeguard the money. He put it in the new steel safe, the combination to which only Hunter knew, as the safe was recently installed and Mr. Ballard had not got around to the checking on the installation. Hunter then hoisted the limp young man across his powerful shoulders and carried him into the night. The party seemed to have broken. Hunter knew his way about. He toted Junior to his room and without taking off his clothes put him on the bed and came away.

He made a round of the house. Odd about the party's breaking up. Usually these things lasted all night. The house was as deserted as a tomb. He searched for Junior's car, a powerful, costly roadster, but it was not in the garage nor parked under the trees in the drive.

"Funny," Hunter commented in his mind.

He ascended the outside stairs to the office, which was housed in the large upstairs over the modern garage. Before going in he took a look down toward the large barns. He could see the huge sign on the roof of the larger barn.

BALLARD BITTERS FOR EXCESS ACID STOMACH, OVER-INDULGENCE, LIQUID, POWDER, TABLET FORM.

The thought that struck Hunter made his pulse bound. Junior Ballard in all likelihood was so intoxicated that he would remember nothing of his coming to the office, of Hunter's carrying him to his bed perhaps not even how or where he had got the money.

"All I would need to do," Hunter thought, "would be to keep the money in the safe. Junior will almost certainly get into trouble over it. Just before he has to go to jail, or the hot seat, I can have my inning with his daddy. Ballard will do anything for the boy....I've got him with his tail in the fence-crack and all I need to do is let the fence drop smack-dab down on him."

Maybe it was a little shabby. But when you have just yielded up the fruits of some years of your own life because of an underhold and you manage in turn to grab yourself an underhold even stronger, is that a moment in which to weaken? Hunter stiffened his spine and went in, going to bed so as to catch some more sleep before he rose early in the morning.

He did not sleep very well. He waked before sunrise, according to his habit. He went down to the barns. There he set the colored boys to feeding the horses, and getting the milking done. Sunrise was gathering on the hills and valleys and river when he was through with the morning chores.

The colts were frolicking in the woods pasture. The cornlands were brown-green and the blobs of color were alfalfa. The long sweep of the river, buttressed by limestone cliffs, with the sunrise sparkling on the water, was like a sequence in a technicolor production. Strickland Ballard liked to spend his money for such effects.

"Top of the morning," called a cheerful contralto voice from the bottom step as Hunter came around the corner of the office.

"Hullo, Red," Hunter said eyeing her with disapproval. Bella Ballard wore a bright peasant dress—a milkmaid's dress. If she had ever milked a cow he had not seen her. But for her father's registered herds she might have supposed milk grew in bottles and was plucked from trees. Her gay parody on a working-girl's costume somehow outraged the young manager. She was just a little too lovely, her lips were just a bit too kissable. She hadn't any right to be so d——d attractive. It would have been different if she still followed him around as she did as a 'teen-kid. Now she was grown up. She would be married at Christmas to Oliver Tisdale.

The Tisdale half-millions came out of the Ballard interests. Josiah Tisdale had put his last hundred dollars in Strick Ballard's bitter business. Time passed. Bitters boomed. Tisdale was rich too. Now young Tisdale was marrying the Ballard girl. That tended to keep the big medicine business in the family. But it rejected the pale little dream Hunter might once have had of loving this red-head with any hope of getting return coin in kind.

True, all this was poor excuse for his contrary venom. "What are you doing here? Clear out," he told her. He supposed this was jealousy. But she got on his nerves.

"Early rising makes you so sweet-tempered, Hunter. I decided I'd take it up."

"Yeah What happened to the party last night?"

She shrugged. "Everybody seemed to go home before it broke up."

"What's that you've got?"

"The morning paper. It comes by the dawn cream truck. Since you seem to be illiterate Id better read you the news which has crowded the war news off the front page." She shook the paper out.

"That's interesting," Hunter grunted.

"Yes, it is. A bank messenger was shot last night and seventeen thousand—"

Hunter grabbed the paper, read furiously hitting the high spots. The slugged bank messenger was near death. Unconscious, and the police had been unable to question him. Identity of assailants unknown. The supposition was that a payroll, or secret movement of money in currency, had cleared through the First National on short notice, but bank authorities had not been contacted at the time of going to press. The job had all the earmarks of an inside stunt.

Hunter looked up. Red was watching him, and he was sorry he had betrayed his nervousness. He laughed, trying to be casual. "Those things happen. Breaks the monotony of war."

"Wouldn't you say it was rather mysterious, Hunter?"

"Why, yes, I suppose all such things are basically mysterious."

"You know, Hunter, mysteries always charm and challenge me."

"Really." He eyed her.

She clasped her knees with her clasped hands looked dreamy. "I'd like to lay you a wager, Hunter."

"No, no," he cried. "No more betting for Hunter Dent, no, sir. You are now gazing upon The Man Who Learned Life's Lessons the Hard Way."

"I'll wager you that if I had a clue I could solve this deep, dark mystery."

"That's all a sleuth needs."

"Let me ask you something."

"Go ahead."

"Did Junior come to your room last night at any time?"

"Good lands," Hunter said crossly. "Why should I always be keeping up with your brother? Your daddy had better be doing it—or you."

"I need a clue. You wagered. Lay your money on the barrel-head. Was Junior here?"

Hnuter grew bold. He was annoyed, guilty, and still vaguely angry at her for looking so much like a milkmaid in a peasant dress and so kissable. Well, what if she was going to be married? There was still something of the trusting little girl about her.

"This is your idea, remember, Red," he reminded her.

Her eyes were half closed and peculiar. "I remember."

"For a big kiss now, and a big hug and kiss later—I take mine on the installment plan—I'll give you the clue. I'll pose with you when your picture appears in the paper as the one who solved the crime. Take it or leave it."

"I'll take you." She held up her lips. Hunter kissed her.

Banada Cake.

One cup granulated sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup mashed bananas, 1¾ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream the butter and sugar well and add well beaten eggs. Mix and sift the soda, baking powder and flour. Add alternately with bananas and vanilla. Bake in moderate oven. If batter is a little thick, add 1 or 2 tablespoons sour milk. Sift flour two or three times.

Banada Filling.

This filling eliminates the necessity of frosting and is a "find." It has good rich flavor and can be used as date fillings for cakes or cookies.

One cup banana pulp, ½ cup sugar, juice of ½ a lemon, 1 tablespoon butter. Cook and stir thick. I use orange instead of lemon.

Icing for Cake:

Is not necessary but if you insist on it, this is a good one. Icing sugar, butter, little grated rind of orange and orange juice.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Cobbler's Meat Loaf (Contributed by Mrs. Amy Elms of Missouri).

Rich piecrust, 2 cups finely chopped cooked chicken, lamb, veal, ham, corned beef, roast beef or tongue, 1 cup finely chopped cooked potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup meat stock or gravy. First make piecrust. Place it in refrigerator to chill. Next combine remaining ingredients. Roll out piecrust to a scant fourth inch in thickness, making an oblong shape. Form meat mixture into a roll. Place on the pie crust. Fold over the dough, tucking in the ends to hold in the filling. Place in an oiled bread pan. Brush with butter and bake in hot oven, 375 deg. Fahr. about 35 minutes. Remove to a hot platter. Slice and serve with tomato or mushroom sauce. If desired a fourth cup of chopped green olives or green peppers may be added to the filling.

Thanks, Mrs. Elms; this is a new idea to me, and I think well worth a trial by all readers who are earnestly trying to budget.

A good Tomato Sauce to serve with it is:

Tomato Sauce.—One pint fresh or canned tomatoes, 1 slice onion, 8 cloves, 3 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Set tomatoes, onions and cloves on the fire and cook for 20 minutes. Brown the fat in the frying pan, add the flour, and cook until smooth and brown, stirring constantly. Add tomatoes, cook for three minutes, season with salt and pepper and pass through a strainer fine enough to hold back the seeds. This makes a very thin sauce. Use more flour if you prefer a thick sauce.

Readers.—We invite your contributions to keep this space filled for the use of readers who use it every week to help balance the budget.

Avoid Awkward Silences by Knowing Apt Phrases

Men Like Girls Who Talk Easily

Those dreadful moments when the conversation languishes! You fiddle nervously with matches while your date, alas, sneaks a glance at his watch.

Girls men enjoy being with know how to avoid such awkward silences. They lay in a store of apt, gracious phrases.

You can easily encourage a silent companion to talk by saying interestedly, "Tell me everything you've been doing lately." Keep up your end with an occasional "Do go on!" "Then what happened?"

Stuck with strangers at a party? A good conversation-starter is "Perhaps we should trade biographies! I'm Ellen Smith." When viewpoints clash, soothe with a tactful "Perhaps we aren't discussing the same thing."

Over the telephone, too, impress with your poise. Leaving a message, say, "Please have Miss Smith call me."

Then, to give spice to your talk, learn vivid figures of speech. "He makes us walk the chalk mark." "My goose is cooked!"

Be a good conversationalist. Our 32-page booklet gives useful phrases for many social and business occasions. Lists lively word combinations, descriptive phrases and figures of speech to help you talk charmingly.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE CORRECT ORDER

IF YOU and your partner are going to try to ruff a trick in order to try to defeat the declarer, you must usually gain that ruff at the earliest possible moment, so that the declarer cannot drop your trumps before you have a chance to use them as you wish. That doesn't apply, though, when your side has something else to do in order to build up a defensive trick of another kind on which early action is even more important.

North: ♠ A Q 4 3 ♥ 5 ♦ 9 6 5 ♣ K J 9 5 4

South: ♠ J 10 9 7 5 ♥ 7 3 ♦ A Q 2 ♣ Q 7 2

At most doubles of a duplicate game in which this deal was played, West led the heart 8 to the A and East immediately tackled the job of developing what he hoped would be two ruffs. He led back the club 6 to the A, trumped the return of the club 3 with his spade 2 and then led the diamond 4 to the Q. South, seeing his danger, led to the spade A, dropping the K, and then scored the club K and J, discarding his small diamond. He ruffed the club 4 with the J and then led to the spade Q, whereupon the club 9 was good for a discard of the heart 7, thus making his contract.

At another table, a very astute East, Mrs. Margaret Krick, of Easton, Pa., one of the stars of the recent tournament at the Skytop club in Pennsylvania, after winning the heart A, did not go after the ruff. Instead, she reasoned that a diamond trick would be necessary to beat the contract.

So she led her diamond 4 to the Q. Sensing his danger, the declarer led the spade 5 to the A in the hope of dropping a singleton K, but failed. Then came the club 4 to the Q and A and a return of the diamond J to the A. The club 2 to the K was ruffed then by the spade K, whereupon the diamond K was cashed, beating the contract.

How should East play at 3-No Trumps on this deal after South leads the diamond 7 to the Q and K?

NEW YORK, June 10 — (AP). — City detectives, augmented by New York Central Railroad police, patrolled the approaches to the Grand Central station to-day after police received a tip that saboteurs planned to blow up the station.

Acting Captain Cincent J. Kiernan said the tip came from a responsible woman resident of an East side hotel who said she overheard a conversation in a restaurant rest room through a thin panel separating her from two German-speaking men.

Midland Unit Gets High Tribute

NORWOOD, Ontario, June 11.—The entire personnel of "B" Company, 2nd Midland Regiment, Reserve Force, was called on parade on Sunday morning at 9 a.m. by C.S.M. Armstrong, P.P., for a full day's manoeuvres. The parade left Company Headquarters, Norwood Armouries, led by Major E. J. Johnston, O.C. "B" Company. The first half of the parade took the form of a route march northwest of Norwood. Meanwhile Sergeant Major Thomas, E. J., had left with a detail of six men, which he used in the second part of the parade when he commanded a drill on the recognition of targets. Owing to poor visibility and the dullness of the day, the judging of distances was somewhat annoying to the men as the targets seemed further away than what they really were.

Lunch for the men was conveyed by car to the parade field by Quarter-master Hecke, K., assisted by Cpl. Rothwell, G. This took the form of a haversack lunch and coffee.

Diversified Training

The second period, after dinner, began with hand grenade throwing under the leadership of Sergeant-Major Thomas. Later in the afternoon, Lieut.-Col. Grant, D.S.O., Lieut.-Col. A. H. Bounsall, O.C. 2nd Midland Regiment, and Captain-Adjutant Stinston watched the three platoons in attack. The platoons, No. 10, Campbellford, under command of Lieut. N. C. McColl, No. 11 Warkworth, under Lieut. E. Stephens and No. 12 under Lieut. W. R. Goheen made excellent showings when they made mock attacks on an imaginary enemy.

On the route march, Lieut.-Col. Grant took the salute from the Company. The Company then proceeded to the Armouries, where they were dismissed at 5 o'clock.

It was later reported that Lieut.-Col. Grant was well pleased with the day's proceedings. Among the officers attending from out of the district was Lieut. J. G. Walker, now stationed at Ottawa.

On Monday night the regular parade was held at Norwood Armouries, when the sports officer, Cadet Sutherland, C. R., had a try out for a ball team to be formed in each platoon. The first game is to be played on Monday, June 15th, in Warkworth when No. 12 Platoon, Norwood, will play No. 11 Platoon, Warkworth.

The second period included Platoon drill and lecture on the Lewis Machine Gun by Sergeant Major Thomas.

Drain Trouble

INGERSOLL, Ont., June 11.—(CP).—Residents along a street in this town kept complaining about drain trouble. When public works employees opened the catch basin, they removed the following items: Stove pipe and elbow, a three-foot steel bar two bricks, half a bottle of milk, a chunk of concrete, several dozen fist-sized rocks, a hammer, and 200 pounds of sand.

Tender, Aching, Burning Feet

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in a few minutes the ache and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the almost unbearable soreness is relieved.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics—so splendid that thousands of bottles are sold annually. Moone's Emerald Oil is sold by McDermid & Jury and all druggists. Satisfaction or money back.—(Advt.)

Downed U.S. Pilot Sees Sea Battle Watches Jap Carriers Burn, Sink

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, June 11—(AP).—Ensign George H. Gay, who floated for 24 hours amidst the savage Midway Island sea battle, returned with a stirring eye-witness account of Japanese naval destruction as viewed from the surface of the sea—where he hid under a seat cushion from his sunken torpedo-plane to escape detection.

Shot down in the morning of the first day of the battle and rescued the next, Gay's observations and descriptions of American successes were disclosed last night by Admiral Chester Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet.

The 25-year-old navy flier from Houston, Tex., is recovering from slight wounds at a hospital here. He was shot down—but not before he had his crack at the Japanese.

Flying with his squadron June 4, the first day of the battle, Gay and his two mates saw three Jap aircraft carriers below them. Two were big 26,900-tonners of the Kaga class.

In the face of terrific anti-aircraft fire and enemy fighter opposition, they levelled for the assault. Gay's machine-gunner was hit, but he nosed the plane down and launched a torpedo into one carrier, then swung sharply over the target and sped away.

But bullets from a Jap Zero fighter shot away the controls of the plane. Gay was hit in the left leg and lightly in the arm. He pancaked his craft into the sea several miles astern of the carrier.

Two Go Down.

His gunner was dead. His radioman, unable to free himself, went down with the plane.

A bag containing a deflated rubber life-raft, and a black cushion of the type bombardiers use to kneel while working floated from the wreckage of his plane. He used the life-raft bag to keep himself afloat, and hid under the cushion to avoid detection from enemy planes and ships all about him.

Gay felt his wounded arm. The bullet, apparently spent when it struck him, dropped out into his hand. He bandaged his injured leg under water.

Then from the surface of the sea he had a fish-eye view of the battle in its most violent stages.

Before his eyes, American torpedo-planes scored direct hits on the two other carriers. Internal explosions ripped their sides and belched great gushes of flame and smoke at intervals.

He saw United States aircraft blast other Jap naval units; he saw Jap planes, their mother ships aflame, listing or their decks battered into uselessness, circle helplessly for a landing place; he saw a line of burning Jap ships pass close by him, pouring black smoke.

Gay said that one carrier of the Kaga class could be listed as a certain loss, and the two other carriers were probably lost.

Surface craft gave Gay some close brushes with death. One enemy destroyer, speeding to aid a stricken carrier, appeared to be driving straight at him, but at the last instant it swerved a bit and missed him by a scant margin.

A heavy cruiser steamed past, her crew lining the rail grimly watching the destruction of their fleet units.

In the twilight, Gay inflated his rubber lifeboat after making emergency repairs and clambered in for a few winks of sleep. Several hours after sun-up a navy patrol plane spotted his life-raft and picked him up.

As they flew back to their base, the surface of the battle area was littered with black Japanese life-rafts, presumably used in abandoning ship. Great patches of oil were seen.

Women Urged To Continue Vital Work

CAMPBELLFORD, June 11.—(ENS)—An interesting report of the Sectional Meeting was given by W. M. S. President, Mrs. E. C. Roberts at the monthly gathering held in St. John's Sunday School Hall on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Roberts spoke of Dr. Mullatt whose wife was guest speaker at the Sectional. Mrs. Mullatt declared the message from her husband in Hong Kong to the W. M. S. was that they should sustain their interest in this important work and continue to lend assistance by money and prayers. Following the opening of the meeting for which the president presided, calls were reported and the group attendance wa staken. Mrs. H. T. Free extended an invitation to the ladies to hold their summer meeting at her home on June 25th, and have it take the form of a social gathering.

Mrs. A. G. Watson's group took charge then and Mrs. A. D. Bennett presided for the remainder of the meeting. The Devotional period was prepared by Mrs. G N. Maxwell and read by Mrs. Stillman and pertained to the 11th Commandment, "Love One Another." Mrs. A. Watson favored the gathering with a delightful solo and Rev. G. N. Maxwell gave a splendid paper on India which he characterized as one of the most important countries in the world today with its numerous racial division, natural defenses and the loyalty of the people to their native land. The reason they have not progressed as other nations have is due mainly to the caste system, poverty, unequal distributon of wealth and illiteracy. Though Ghandi has done much to develop the spiritual lives of the people the future of India depends on the Christian movement and "the teachings of our people."

Gas, Tire, Speed Curb Slashes Accident Toll

By the Canadian Press.

Enforcement of Canada's 40-mile-an-hour speed limit on highways—introduced as a means of gasoline and rubber conservation—had the gratifying effect in May, its first month of operation, of resulting in a further decrease in the Dominion's accident and accident fatality rate.

The decrease followed a similar drop noted the month before after the introduction of gasoline rationing and restrictions on tire sales. Taking all these factors into consideration—factors which also have resulted in a sharp decrease in the number of cars on the highways—Canadian motorists appeared to be heading for their lowest annual accident rate since the automobile got out of the luxury class.

Basis for comparisons are figures gathered through the Dominion by The Canadian Press—figures which, with one exception, showed a continuing decrease in mishaps which mar the nation's travel on highways.

Only upward trend in the nation-wide pictures was noted in British Columbia where an unexplained jump put last month's accidents unofficially at 600 compared with only 349 the previous month. The same proportions pertained in 1941 when May's total of 612 accidents compared unfavorably with 337 in April of that year.

Other provinces from which figures were available, however, showed a definite decrease in the highways' accident toll.

There were only 222 accidents in Ontario's heavily-travelled highways in May compared with 284 in April and 735 in May, 1941. Sixteen deaths last month compared with 45 in May, 1941, and 30 in April. Incomplete figures from Quebec for last month revealed only 466 accidents and nine deaths compared with 1,198 mishaps and 36 deaths in the same month of the previous year and 515 accidents last April and 13 deaths.

Official figures from Alberta showed a like decrease, 38 accidents and one death last month comparing with 99 accidents and 11 fatalities in May, 1941 and 94 mishaps and three deaths in April this year.

Unofficial Saskatchewan statistics told the same story and while last month's figures were unobtainable from Manitoba and Nova Scotia, officials in each province said the reduced speed limit would cause an accident decline.

M. A. Lyons, Manitoba Highway Commissioner, said he believes the 40-mile limit "definitely" will cut down traffic accidents.

E. S. Campbell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles for the Nova Scotia Department of Highways, expressed similar views. He added however, that "the cut in the value of the gasoline rationing coupon in the Maritimes from five to two gallons last month has reduced the number of vehicle miles travelled and this mileage is always a large factor in the number of accidents.

"From this it might be expected that May accident totals will show a further decline."

Presbyterians Membership Off 441 in '41

MONTREAL, June 11—(CP).—The communicant membership of the Presbyterian church in Canada stands at 174,491, a decrease of 441 since last year, Dr. J. W. MacNamara, clerk of the Assembly, told the 68th General Assembly of the church yesterday.

The report of the Statistical and Financial committee noted also that there were 755 ministers and 6,271 elders in the 57 presbyteries of the church.

The report said that nearly $223,000 in loans to congregations is outstanding and "in many cases no payment has been made either on account of principal or interest since the loan was made."

Rev. E. A. Thomson, secretary of the Board of Sabbath Schools and Young People's Societies, said that the decline in enrolment in Sunday schools was a major problem of the church to-day.

"There has been a decline of 225,000 in the four major Protestant denominations in the 10 years from 1931-41," he said. "Sunday school enrolment is declining three times as fast as the birth rate, so we can't blame the low birth rate for these statistics."

Rev. A. Neil Miller of Brampton, Ont., expressed doubt as to the value of the present Sunday school system, and Rev. J. A. MacInnis, of Orillia, Ont., criticized the International Sunday School Lessons as used at present. He suggested that the Presbyterian Board should work out its own lessons.

No Medicine Ever Helped Me Like Syntona Did, He Says

Was the Only Thing That Gave Relief From Itching, Burning Eczema On Hands and Face. Also Suffered With Stomach Gas, Acidity, Dizzy Spells and Headaches.

The great popularity of Syntona is not surprising, for this medicine actually does give wonderful results, as vouched for by the many local men and women who have used it. Compounded from no less than 12 of Nature's Finest Medicinal Herbs, Roots and Barks, Syntona is a safe tonic for the whole family at this season. It is pleasant to take and many say that even after the first few days, the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and vigor. To-day we quote the experience of Mr. John E. Nicholson, 312 Dundas St., London, as reported recently:

"For more than ten years I was troubled with acid indigestion, gastritis and biliousness. I was subject to throbbing, blinding headaches, and dizzy spells. Itching, burning eczema would break out on my hands and face and I tried all kinds of ointment and medicine, but couldn't get rid of it. My condition kept me awake nights, so I became very nervous and irritable.

"A friend advised me to try Syntona, but I had been disappointed in so many medicines that I didn't think it would help me. Finally, however, when I had a particularly bad spell, I made up my mind to take Syntona, and I am surely glad I did. It rid me of that indigestion, biliousness and headaches. Then, my nerves became relaxed and I began to get my proper sleep. Soon I found the eczema was subsiding and my complexion began to clear. Now I am feeling just fine once more. I think it is just wonderful the way Syntona has helped me, and I am only too glad to be able to recommend it to any one who is troubled similarly."

MR. JOHN NICHOLSON

Make up your mind to begin taking Syntona to-day. See how much better you, too, will be feeling in just a short time. Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliotts Drug Store. (Advt.)

Tanks Block Hun 30 Mi. Off Tobruk

CAIRO, Egypt, June 12 (AP).—British tanks locked in a bitter battle with German armored forces about 30 miles southeast of Tobruk today in an effort to block the drive of three strong columns which turned northeastward toward that objective after forcing the Free French out of Bir Hacheim, southern anchor of the British line.

Harmat, six miles south of the desert track crossing of Knightsbride is 25 miles south-centred much of the battlin- in this German offensive, was the general scene of the engagement.

Knightsbrdge is 25 miles southeast of Tobruk and about 15 miles west of El Adem.

Following withdrawal of the Free French from the d sert plateau of Bir Hacheim Wednesday night after a 16-day battle, front line dispatches said the Germans turned northeastward and struck toward Harmat.

Blocked there late yesterday, they sought to turn aside and last night were reported engaged in a struggle between Harmat and El Adem.

Harmat was seized by the British forces in a thrust from their coastal positions late last week.

In Rome the Italian High Command claimed today that Axis assault forces killed abupt 1,000 Free French and British troops and captured more than 2,000 in the drive upon Bir Hacheim which wound up by occupation of that Libyan oasis town yesterday.

It Had Rommel Worried

Since piercing the British Bir-Hacheim-Ain El Gazala line, one of the principal efforts of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had been directed to removing the embarrassment to his rear at Bir Hacheim.

Now that this had been accomplished, it was assumed he was able to throw his main effort into a resumption of the drive on Tobruk with his supply lines no longer menaced by artillery fire and raids from Bir Hacheim.

Most Free French defenders of that box were believed by observers to have made their way out of the area safely and to have joined the fight elsewhere.

The defences of the Tobruk perimeter, which the Axis found impenetrable last year, again are at full strength, it was reported, while the British armored forces opposing the German thrust are said to be strong.

The air force struck heavy bombing blows far to the west of this battlefield, hitting the mid-desert oasis of Jalo and the Antelat, near Agedabia.

U.S. Bombers Surprise Japs In Coral Sea Prelude—Sink Nine

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, June 12 (AP)—Nine and possibly 11 Japanese warships and transports were sunk by United States naval aircraft at Tulagi Harbor, Solomon Islands, May 4 as a prelude to the battle of the Coral Sea.

Participants in the battle said here today they are certain that two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports were sunk. A seaplane tender and a third transport also possibly were sunk as well as numerous small boats.

Aircraft carrier squadrons delivered the assault and all returned safely.

Lt.-Cmdrs. Joseph Taylor and William Burch described the attack on the enemy base 1,000 miles northeast of Australia on Little Florida Island in the centre of the Solomon group.

Burch said:—

"Aboard the carrier we had not heard anything about the little harbor of Tulagi until late one night when word was passed over the loudspeaker: 'Prepare all squadrons for attack on ships in the harbor of Tulagi at dawn.' It was a complete surprise. Our force had been hunting the enemy in the Coral Sea.

Find Harbor Packed

"We got over Tulagi in early morning.....we could see through rifts of clouds the harbor filled with troops and transports."

Taylor told of the launching of the actual attack.

"As soon as I saw what ships were in the harbor, I instructed the pilots

Coupon Rations To Take Army Of 20,000 Women

OTTAWA, June 12.—(CP)—An army of 20,000 volunteer women is being organized to assist in the clerical work of setting up a coupon rationing system in Canada, the wartime prices and trade board said in a statement to-day.

While no announcemnt has been made by the Board on the plan to be followed in making applications available it is understood from official sources that within a few days applications will go to every home in Canada by mail. These applications will provide information, when completed, of the requirements of every Canadian family.

In the period June 26-30 the women has been conducted by the Board's consumer branch through the chairman of the women's advisory committee in each of 13 regions in Canada. Local committees have been set up and today's statement by the Board said it was evident the required number of women will be available.

Canuck Patrol Gets 2 Hun Ships

LONDON, June 12.(CP).—The Air Ministry News Service reported today that two Hudsons of the Canadian coastal command squadron bombed and hit two Axis vessels off the Netherlands coast last night.

One Hudson scored at least three direct hits on the largest of four ships in the convoy. Another on its first operational sortie scored a direct hit on a small vessel

Informed quarters said continued bad weather prevented the bomber command for the third consecutive night from attacking Germany.

The 'demon, squadron' aircraft that scored the three hits made such a low attack that its trailing aerial was torn off by the masts of the attacked ship.

"There was a deep orange glow, followed by an explosion," said Sgt. J. D. Banting of Richlea, Sask., and Po. C. W. Taylor of Winnipeg.

On the way back to base the crew saw a brilliant flash on the horizon, leading to the belief that the ship blew up.

The crew on its first operational flight was made up of Po. G. C.

LONDON, June 12 — (CP Cable).—An agreement for the establishment of direct diplomatic relations and an exchange of Ministers between Canada and Russia was signed at the Soviet Embassy today.

High Commissioner Vincent Massey and Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky signed on b half of their respective governments at a brief, formal ceremony which followed by four months the signing of an agreement for an exchange of consular representatives between the two countries.

The text of the agreement:

"The Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the Government of Canada have reached an agreement as follows:

"1. The two government have agreed to establish direct diplomatic relations ano to exchange Ministers;

"2. The present agreement comes into force immediately after its signature and is not subject to ratification.

"3. The present agreement is made in two copies, each of them in the Russian and English languages. Both texts have equal force."

The ceremony was over less than five minutes after Mr. Massey and M. Maisky entered the richly furnished Embassy room in which they signed the documents at a gilt and marble-topped regency table."

In Ottawa officials said that so far as they knew no decision yet has been made on the man who will be sent to represent the Dominion at the Russian capital.

The agreement for exchange of consular representatives, now superseded by the new agreement for exchange of ministers, was signed last Feb. 5.

Answer to Coldwell.

Establishment of diplomatic relations between Canada and Russia has been advocated many times in the House of Commons by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House leader, and others.

De facto recognition of Soviet Russia was accorded by the United Kingdom government following signing of a trade agreement at London March 16, 1921. Canada adhered to this agreement a year later. Canadian de facto recognition of the U.S.S.R. extends from that date.

Then, on Feb. 1, 1924, the United

Hawaiian Air Chief Lost Off Midway

Big Carrier Lexington Destroyer Sims Coral Sea Victims

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—The United States War Department reported to-day that Maj.-Gen. Clarence L. Tinker, commander of the Hawaiian air force, is missing after the battle of Midway.

Tinker left Midway June 7 leading a flight of his army bombers to attack the Japanese fleet.

His plane when last seen, by men aboard other aircraft in the same formation, was descending rapidly towards the sea, the War Department said.

The area where his plane was last observed was thoroughly searched but no trace has been found of the missing bomber.

Tinker was the first American army air general officer to be reported missing in action in the war. Two other generals, Maj.-Gens. Herbert A. Bargue and Harold H. George, met death in accidents.

Carrier Lexington Gone.

The Navy Department announced today the loss of the United States Aircraft Carrier Lexington as a result of the battle of the Coral Sea early in May.

The loss was disclosed in connection with an official review of the navy's part in the entire Coral Sea campaign, starting March 10. At New Guinea and running through May 8 when enemy aircraft inflicted such damage on the Lexington that several hours later she exploded and sank, with a relatively light loss of life.

The Lexington's normal complement was 2,300 men. The navy said 92 per cent of the personnel on board was rescued. The navy communique did not say how many of the Lexington's fighting planes were lost, but officials commented that "obviously planes were lost."

The review showed that the Coral Sea campaign ending disastrously for the enemy, cost the Japanese more than 15 ships sunk, two probably sunk and 20 damaged while the only American losses were the 33,000-ton Lexington, the tanker Neosho and the destroyer Sims.

Most of Crew Saved

A large part of the personnel from the Neosho and Sims was rescued and has reached port.

As against these losses which the navy department said had been instrumental in disrupting Japan's strategy against Australia, the department announced the Japanese had suffered:—

Britain Shifts For New Blow On Madagascar

VICHY, June 12—(AP).—Vichy sources reported today that the British army in Madagascar has withdrawn all its forces from the "Dead End" Antalaha Road in an apparent move to mass them at Ambilobe for an expected southern push down the west coast of the huge French Island in the Western Indian Ocean.

Antalaha is about 200 miles down the east coast from the British-occupied Diego Suarez naval base. Ambilobe is 75 miles southwest of the base.

The withdrawals were reported completed by evacuations of Sahambava and Vohemar, occupied during clear-up operations by the motorized column that penetrated to Antalaha June 6.

The Vichy French said they believed the operations were undertaken to protect the British rear at Ambilobe when the British forces turn westward for a move against Majunga, on the west coast.

Prof. W. Findlay Hears Baptists

HAMILTON, Ont., June 12 (CP)—Professor William Findlay, Ph.D., of McMaster University, was unanimously chosen president of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec for 1942-1943, at sessions at the James Street Baptist Church this morning. He succeeds Rev. W. E. Hodgson, B.A., of Toronto.

Vice presidents elected, also unanimously, were, George Adam of Montreal and Rev. Walter Daniel, Claremont. Dr. H. H. Bingham was re-elected secretary-treasurer on a unanimous vote.

The new president in an interview said he advocates offer of wide opportunities for higher education both in liberal arts and in training for skilled trades and professions.

"Our universities should prepare to offer veterans of this war special courses," he said.

"These should begin, perhaps, with a self-discovery in which the soldier-student would devote equal time to trade training and the liberal arts."

Opener To Great Offensive Says Berlin Of Battle, Von Bock Gains at Kharkov

Moscow Cheered By News Of 2nd Front Crowds Pack Streets For News; Nazis Lose 15,000 In 3 Days At Sevastopol

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 12—(AP).—After beating off a week of virtually constant German onslaughts, defenders at the Crimean naval base of Sevastopol have counter-attacked and improved some of their positions, Russian army dispatches said today. Von Bock was said advancing east of Kharkov.

In Berlin the radio, broadcasting a report of DNB, Nazi news and propaganda agency, today said attacks at Sevastopol and southeast of Kharkov were necessary preliminaries to Hitler's "coming great offensive." Immediate objectives were described as the reduction of Sevastopol which which DNB termed "the strongest fortress in the world," and straightening of German lines below Kharkov.

Nearly 15,000 Germans have been killed and more than 50 tanks and ( ) planes destroyed by the defenders of Sevastopol in three days, the midnight communique declared.

Russian troops "repulsed enemy attacks and inflicted heavy losses" about the perimeter of the Crimean naval base's fortifications again yesterday, it was announced.

"During the day of June 11 in the Kharkov sector of the front," said the communique, "our troops waged fierce defensive engagements against advancing enemy tanks and infantry."

The reference to advancing German units was unmodified by any report of counter attacks. The single sentence covered all operations in a Donets basin area still scarred from the combat set off May 12 by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's drive against Kharkov.

Red Army mortar crews turned back a German infantry attack on a northwestern sector and 200 dead and wounded were left behind in the retreat, it was announced.

Russian Press Sees New Pact Doom for Nazis

MOSCOW, June 12—(AP)—The Anglo-Russian mutual assistance treaty is "bound to expedite" the defeat of Germany, the Communist party newspaper Pravda declared today, striking the keynote of Russian reaction to Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov's recent accomplishments at London and Washington.

"This is most vividly testified by the fact that the negotiations in London and Washington resulted in complete agreement as regards the urgent tasks of creation of a second front in Europe in 1942," the editorial said.

This was a reference to the military talks in the two capitals which, in Britain's case, supplemented formal, mutual pledges of a fight to the finish against an aggressor Germany and "any other state associated with her in acts of aggression in Europe" and friendly co-operation in the post-war reconstruction of Europe.

The Russian press generally found in Russia's treaty with Britain and the informal understanding with the United States on a second front in 1942 new hope of victory this year over Germany.

"This sharp arm will help accelerate victory and bring defeat of the German occupants in 1942 to accomplishment," said the leading editorial in Izvestia, the government newspaper.

Every Moscow newspaper devoted its entire front page to the communique on Molotov's visits to London and Washington and the text of the treaty, along with pertinent editorials. The radio broadcast the news over and over and its was avidly discussed by people on the streets and in offices, stores and factories.

"The treaty will.....ensure close collaboration among the U.S.S.R., Great Britain and the United States after a victorious termination of the war," Pravda said.

Pravda saw the treaty as a step toward effectuation "of the principles enuniciated in the declaration made by the United States president Roosevelt, and the prime minister of Great Britain, Churchill, on Aug. 14, 19441, known as the Atlantic charter, to which the government of the U.S.S.R. adhered."

Bishop Fleming Takes a Bride

PHILADELPHIA, June 12—(AP)—Right Rev. Archibald Lang Fleming, 55, Anglican Bishop of the Arctic, and Miss Elizabeth Nelson Lukens, assistant headmistress of the Agnes Irwin School, Wynnewood, Pa., were married today (10.30 a.m. E.D.T.), at St. Mary's Church in suburban Ardmore.

The ceremony was performed by Right Rev. Francis N. Taitt, 80-year-old Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania.

The couple will leave June 25 for Toronto, the Bishop's winter headquarters, and will sail for the Eastern Arctic early in July.

Bishop Fleming, known as the "Flying Bishop" because he covers most of his diocese by airplane, met his bride when he visited Philadelphia on a lecture tour last Fall. This is his second marriage. His first wife died several years ago.

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), June 13.—(AP). — Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner arrived at Paris yesterday, en route to Italy.

Big Three Upon Verge of Great Epoch

Allies See Dawn In Valley Of Tears Despite Blood Flow About To Redden Russia

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

So finally we have formation of the thought which long has been in the minds of observers—that Great Britain, the United States and Russia were bound to emerge from the war as the Big Three who would be guardians of the remodelled world until it reached its majority.

This trio of Giants represents the great bulk of the resources and strength of the Globe. They will form an all powerful, an invincible, but benevolent partnership. Perhaps instead of calling them the Big Three we might more appropriately designate them as the Big Brothers of the weak.

That to me is the significance of the Anglo-Russian treaty of mutual assistance and the subsequent agreements between Washington and Moscow. Since Britain and the United States already were in accord, the three nations now march as one towards fulfillment of the historic eight-point program for a better world laid down in the Atlantic conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

We undoubtedly stand on the threshold of one of the major epochs of history. The opportunity is about to be given us to do more than ever has been done before in implementing the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount, which marked another great epoch. We are reaching this opportunity through a valley of tears—but we are arriving.

Few developments could have given the Allied peoples greater courage to carry out the immediate task before us—the wiping out of Hitler and of Hitlerism. This momentous agreement comes as we finally have struggled to the crest of the hill and are at grips with Hitler in the decisive struggle.

Surely its more than coincidence that the agreements come as the sinister Nazi Over-lord is sparring for a weak spot in the Red ranks. It will sustain the Russians, and all the Allies, in this crucial moment upon which the course of the war depends.

Moscow tells us today that the Allied agreement on the urgent task of creating a second front in Europe in 1942 has cheered the capital. Vast street crowds listened in impressed silence last night as the radio told of the new developments, and Soviet officials expressed profound satisfaction.

That is well, for there's blood on the Russian moon. A host of men about to die in the sanguinary conflict which must be fought to satisfy the lust of Hitler. And Red troops must bear the greater part of this awful burden, so far as concerns the actual battlefield.

Britain May Seize All Tires

Rubber Real Problem—Testing Synthetics

By EDWARD ROBINSOS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 12.—(AP).—Britain, her long control over the world's rubber supplies ended at least temporarily by Japan, struggled to-day with all the problems that face North America and some added complications.

For Britain's synthetics industry is largely experimental, she lacks the huge quantities of petroleum and alcohol necessary for wholesale manufacture, and hasn't the steel that would be needed to construct the necessary facilities.

Reclaimed rubber offers only scant relief, for Britain has a bare 2,500,000 motor cars registered compared with the 1940 total of more than 30,000,000 in the United States. A recent survey showed about 6,000,000 old tires and inner tubes available for reclaim.

Manpower is another nearly insuperable difficulty; skilled personnel has been drafted already for more important war industry.

Officials now are considering requisitioning the tires of the 1,000,000-odd cars which will be forced into idleness by the new gasoline rationing, which sharply restricts supplies.

Torpedoed And Mined Craft Likely Destroyers

ROME (from Italian Broadcasts), June 12—(AP).—The Italians announced today the loss of two torpedo boats, one sunk by Allied torpedoes and another by a floating mine.

(Destroyer and torpedo boat classes are loosely distinguished in Italian naval circles and the British news agency Reuters interpreted the Rome broadcast as a reference to destroyers. Italian torpedo boats proper range from 182 tons to 966 tons, the latter well about the displacement of some destroyers. Motor torpedo boats are much smaller, from 12 to 80 tons).

BERLIN CLAIMS SUCCESS

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), June 12—(AP).—The German high command said today that German forces east of Kharkov have carried out successful attacks which are increasing in volume.

On the Sevastopol front, the high command communique said, attacks around numerous defence works of the Russians "gained ground in stubborn fighting. Repeated enemy counter-attacks collapsed with heavy losses."

2 GREAT ARMORED FORCES LOCKED IN BATTLE NORTH OF HACHEIM

CAIRO, Egypt, June 12—British and German armored forces were reported engaged in battle north of Bir Hacheim today, following the withdrawal of Free French troops from that bitterly defended stronghold.

A British communique declared that the tank battle, which began yesterday, was centred around Harmat, approximately midway between Bir Hacheim and Tobruk, and said "details of t'e fighting are not yet available."

No action was reported in other sectors of the Libyan front.

The announcement of the withdrawal came from the Middle East Command at Cairo as a sequel to the German High Command's statement that Bir Hachei.. fell yesterday to 'xis forces that stormed t..e fortified oasis from their encircling lines.

Held For 16 Days

"On the orders of General (Neil M.) Ritchie, the garrison of Bir Hacheim was withdrawn on the night of June 10-11," said the Cairo communique.

"The Free French troops of the garrison under General (Pierre) Koenig had for si..teen days fought off large-scale attacks by infantry, tanks and aircraft and inflicted heavy losses or the Axis forces.

"They played a vital part in upsetting the enemy's plans. Their magnificent fighting qualities have earned the admiration of the United Nations."

The fortified basis had been sold dearly to the Axis by the hardy fighters under the Alsatian General Koenig. Most of its defenders were Free Frenchmen. There were also leathery French Legionnaire from Syria and fighters of other nationalities, even Germans opposed to Hitlerism, and a contingent of Indians.

At the outset the direct assaults were entrusted almost exclusively to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Italian forces. Each wave was rolled back in turn and at one juncture the garrison signalled the taunt: "Send us more Italians."

Later the Germans and their tanks, artillery and Stukas joined in laying a fiery siege.

Municipalities Hold Dry Key Says Hepburn

TALBOTVILLE, Ont., June 12—(CP)—Ontario today had the word of Premier Hepburn that his government is not going to change its Liquor Control policy or bar women from beverage rooms, but if municipalities wish to dry themselves up they have the power to do so, by ballot.

"I've never been in one of those so-called, Hepburn hell-holes'," said the Premier referring to mixed beverage rooms as he addressed Elgin County Councillors in the new auditorium of Talbotville United church last night, "but I know that the women of Ontario never again will accept the old single standard of years ago."

As he gave this exposition of his liquor policy the Premier also touched briefly on Canada's war effort which, he said, was still not an all-out one. He declared that when Canada's representatives signed the United Nations total war pledge at Washington they did so "with their tongues in their cheek."

Mr. Hepburn said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement that there is no need at present for conscription for overseas service would be a comfort to the enemy and a disappointment to Canada's Allies south of the border, who had gone through with selective service regardless of class or position.

The Finger of Scorn?

"What I am afraid of is that an embittered posterity may point the finger of scorn at our generation for a job poorly done," Mr. Hepburn said.

in many parts of the ship.

"It was the first thought that the explosion was the result of a 'sleeper' bomb. Investigation revealed, however, that the probable cause was the ignition of gasoline vapors which resulted from leaks in ruptured gasoline lines in closed compartments below decks.

"The crew fought heroically for more than 15 hours to save the ship but were at great disadvantage because the explosion had damaged much of the fire-fighting equipment.

"Destroyers were sent alongside to assist with their pumps, fire hose and chemical fire fighting equipment. The wounded were transferred from the burning carrier to the destroyers alongside.

"Finally, with all machiney disabled, and flames enveloping nearly her entire length, it became apparent that any further attempt to save her was futile and the captain ordered the crew to 'abandon ship'."

Japs Lose 25 to 6 U.S. Planes

On May 7, the navy communique said, Fletcher's aircraft hit the main body of the Japanese force in the Louisiade Archipelago off Mesime. A new Japanese aircraft carrier, the Ryykaku, and a heavy cruiser were sunk, an enemy counter attack was fought off successfully. The enemy lost 25 aircraft compared to six for the U.S. forces, which consisted of both naval and army planes from Australia.

On May 7 Jap planes located and bombed the tanker Neosho and its escorting destroyer, the Sims.

The Lexington was started August 1, 1921, and completed in December, 1927, at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass.

Its displacement of 33,000 tons went up to 40,000 tons under full load, and Jane's Fighting Ships listed its complement ,including flying personnel, at 2,122, including 169 officers.

The Neosho, commission in 1937, was a 25,000-ton vessel. The Sims, 1,570-ton destroyer, was commissioned in August, 1939, and was the first new destroyer announced to have been lost in fighting in the southwestern Pacific.

The Final Action.

On May 8, the Lexington was made the main objective of Japanese aircraft which attacked while her own planes were absent.

"These attacks were the last action in the battle of the Coral sea,' the navy said, and gave this description of the fight which the officers and crew of the great carrier put up in their desperate attempts to prevent her destruction:

"The crew of the Lexington succeeded in putting out the fires and recovering her aircraft. Several hours after the battle, while steaming at 20 knots, a terrific internal explosion rocked the Lexington causing serious fires to break out

Jap-Run Korea Features Talk to W.M.S.

LAKEFIELD, June 12—(ENS).—Mrs. D. B. Avison of Peterborough whose father-in-law first introduced vaccination into Korea, was the guest speaker at the special W.M.S. meeting held at Regent Street United Church on Wednesday evening. Mrs. W. W. Yale, who incidentally is a niece of this Dr. Avison introduced Mrs. Avison.

The speaker held her audience enthralled with her talk on Korea, where she had spent some years with her husband, Dr. D. B. Avison and family. Mrs. Avison's husband went to Korea as a medical missionary where his father was already serving in the same capacity. They found the Koreans to be a very considerate race. New Year's Day is the big day of the year there. Kites are flown and the inhabitants really celebrate.

Korea has still many ancient customs. For instance, when a wedding is about to take place the bride's eyes are pasted shut so she will not see the groom before the ceremony. In the wedding procession the bridal attendants carry elaborate chests, the wealthier the bride, the more chests. Korea is under the domination of Japan and no child is allowed to attend school until he is registered under a Japanese name. It is a land of beauty with its picturesque rice fields, shores and mountains. The homemaker in this country works under great difficulties. The homes for the most part are crude mud huts with thatched roofs.

Washing machines are unknown and the family wash is taken to the banks of a stream or river, laid out on the rocks, and beaten with a stick, then spread out on the shore to dry. July and August are rainy months in Korea.

After her interesting address, Mrs. Avison displayed some very beautiful Korean costumes. One was a kimona for a year-old child, of quilted silk green with a rose lining. The man's coat was long and of very fine white linen. The lady's outfit shown consisted of a skirt very full, tying at the back. Over this is worn a blouse, more like our own bed jackets. The materials in all these garments were very fine.

Mrs. Mae Jory was in the chair for the meeting. Mrs. J. A. Porter read the Scripture and Mrs. Geoge Kelly led in prayer. Mrs. J. R. Hull sang a solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

Mrs. W. W. Leonard moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Avison, and gave a talk on behalf of the Salvage Committee, urging the ladies to save all available materials. Mrs. Grace Stuart gave the new Red Cross quota, which was just received. A social time was then enjoyed, tea and sandwiches being served.

Hitler's Hatred Marks Jew In Every Walk

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Because of Adolf Hitler's blind hatred, the Jew is a marked man wherever Nazism holds sway.

The yellow six-pointed star with the German word "Jude" or its Czech or Dutch or other foreign language equivialent points him out as a person who must be avoided.

Restaurants are closed to the Jew. If he is found in a movie performance or at a concert or in a theatre, the concentration camp is certain for him.

Until quite recently, he still had the comforting thought in some cases that the firm in whose services he had grown grey would continue to pay him the pension accorded all faithful workers on reaching the retirement age.

But last March 25, Hitler decreed that all firms must report what pensions they still pay Jews. Everyone acquainted with Nazi practices knew instinctively that this foreshadowed the cancellation of pensions for Jews. The extraordinary powers voted to Hitler by the Reichstag April 26, whereby he can do anything he pleases without even the semblance of due process of law, confirmed this fear.

So He Doesn't Travel

It now comes to this: Any Jew appearing on the streets is marked by a Jew-star band. If he waits for a street car, his Aryan fellow commuters have the right to climb into the vehicle first. Since all cars are crowded in wartime during rush hours because of the exceedingly limited service, the Jew might as well give up hope of obtaining transportation. He is not allowed to take a taxi; and he is not permitted to enter a railway train except with a special permit.

But suppose he had the rare good fortune of crowding on to an omnibus or street car: He may not take a seat unless Aryans have first been seated. On many an occasion we Americans have encountered angry glares by dyed-in-the-wool Nazis for offering our seats to some emaciated, bent old Jewish women.

On the other hand it must be said that we also at times witnessed scenes of real courage, especially on the part of German men in military uniforms, who likewise yielded their places when some particularly miserable-looking Jewish individual entered.

The history of the Jewish evacuations is one of the darkest blots on the Nazi escutcheon.

Families Parted

Children were separated from their parents; often married couples were torn asunder.

I know of cases where an unheated train in the dead of winter suddenly stopped on a bleak cold field in eastern Poland, with the sharp Russian wind blowing across the wild Steppes, and everybody was told to get out.

The Jews then had to begin a trek of four or five miles to some little ghetto village assigned to them. Their one larger suit case in the baggage car, they were told, would follow them. It never arrived.

What little they carried in their hands often had to be abandoned because their hands were freezing. Others who clung to their possessions until they reached their destination found they had meanwhile frozen a limb or two.

By strong-arm methods like these gradually almost 60 per cent of Germans professing the Jewish faith were ousted. There are only about 300,000 Orthodox Jews left in Germany.

Rutherford, of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, thanking the Chapter for the cigarettes which were received at a most opportune time. The sum of $40 has been voted to purchase additional cigarettes for the soldiers.

A steady supply of clothing is being sent to headquarters in Hamilton for distribution in England and another large bale has been sent for Polish relief. It was decided to send magazines to the women who live in the remote settlement of Rye, in Northern Ontario. Each member will make and fill an air-raid shelter bag during the summer, to be turned in in the fall. Mrs. Turner gave an excellent report of her recent attendance at the National convention. The annual picnic is to be held as usual at the summer home of Mrs. R. E. Clarke, Chemong Park, and the afternoon will be spent quilting and sewing. Two new members were enrolled, Mrs. E. C. Moore and Mrs. P. G. Latchford.

Crazy Hess' Plot Tipped Moscow in Time

By CLINTON B. CONGER

NEW YORK, June 12 (BUP) — Adolf Hitler plucked one of the sourest lemons of his career when he sent Rudolf Hess—if he did, as seems entirely plausible — winging away to Scotland bent on enlisting Great Britain in a joint "crusade against Bolshevism."

The version of the Hess story generally accepted by competent Berlin quarters is that he certainly went to Britain on such a mission. That he did so without Hitler's knowledge and at least tacit sanction is highly unlikely.

When he had laid part or all of his cards on the British table—still considering the responsible Berlin view of the affair—London tipped off Moscow to look out, and the German invasion was shorn of at least part of its surprise element.

Germans Bewildered

It was on May 10, 1941, that Hess plopped down by parachute on the Scottish moor. And it is certain that by then Hitler had set the day for the "Drang Nacht Osten." The next day, at a conference with his generals, he made it clear that June 22 was the day.

As the Berlin story ran, Hess hoped either directly or through intermediates to inform the British Government that Germany was all set, and to invite the British to patch up a peace of sorts and join the "crusade."

Hess seems to have been convinced that he had a chance to swing the deal. Such a bold gamble otherwise could hardly have been taken. And the deputy fuehrer no less plausibly could have set off unbeknownst to his boss, the fuehrer.

As the average German, his reaction was one of bewilderment, fostered to the hilt by the confusing stories given him — that Hess, Hitler's most trusted assistant and one of his closest intimates, was mentally unbalanced: First that he was "missing" with the intimation that he had crashed his plane; then the admission of the flight to Scotland.

Discussion Discouraged

The German papers, under the thumb of Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, refrained studiously from discussion of the Hess affair, going no further than the official account issued by the Nazi Party. Discussion by individuals also was strongly discouraged.

In those quarters where reaction could be sounded out, the average person, unless he were a good or fanatical party member, seemed to think Hess had run out, though no clearcut motive ever crystallized for that theory.

True enough, the theory of an attempt to line up Britain against Russia probably is not held generally in Germany, but it is among those high enough in the government or the press to get some of their tips directly, rather than through propaganda ministry underings and handouts.

Hess' personal effects were moved out of his various Berlin offices in mid-July, presumably to be trucked to Munich.

And for whatever part Hess' fight had in it, Moscow did not fall in the eight or ten weeks Hitler gave himself to do the job.

Cardin Charges King Broke Word to Quebec

By C. R. Blackburn,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 12. —(CP) —Keynote of oppostion in Quebec Province to the Government's conscription policy was sounded in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib. Richelieu-Vercheres) who declared national unity had been unnecessarily endangered by raising this issue.

He charged that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had failed to respect his word to the Quebec electors and his pledge to them never to bring in conscription for service overseas.

Mr. Cardin said that no evidence had been produced by the Government to indicate a necessity for raising the conscription issue at this time, and the Prime Minister had said conscription was not now necessary.

"If conscription is not necessary at the present time, why in the name of God apply it?" he asked.

"There is no necessity at the present time to enforce such a measure which is liable....to destroy the good understanding which has been established between the two races in Canada for the last 50 years."

It was the second day of debate on the Prime Minister's bill 80 — repealing section three of the National Resources Mobilization Act and opening the way to unlimited conscription by order-in-council without any further reference to parliament.

Mr. Cardin's speech was believed to be of a long series from Quebec Liberals in oppostion to the measure.

See C. C. F. Approved.

There were indications, too, that votes against the bill might come from other quarters, particularly the C. C. F. group, unless the Government accepts widening amendments.

Yesterday's debate brought full length speeches from M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. house leader, John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy, Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn), Arthur Roebuck (Lib. Toronto-Trinity, T. L. Church (Con Toronto-Broadview), and Capt. A. J. Lapoine (Lib. Metapedia- Matane).

Mr. Coldwell moved an amendment that the conscription bill be not read the second time but that

Pals Pump Air 5 Months To Save Teacher

JAY, Okla., June 12—(AP).—Artificial respiration applied by friends who have labored unceasingly for five months—night and day—has kept the spark of life bu.ning in Masion Williams, 49-year-old school teacher. To stop pumping breath into his waste: body would mean a strangling, suffocating death.

Dr. Frank Veroni, Jay physician, said Williams is suffering from amyothrophic lateral sclerosis, a disease causing degeneration of nerve tracts leading from the spinal cord to the muscles.

When Williams began to lose control of his respiratory system, artificial respi ation was applied. Some friends volunteered to help and for five month they have kept at it, working in relays.

Dr. Veroni said Williams' ability to breathe has been impaired about 75 per cent. Without artificial respirat.on he cannot speak or swallow.

His weight has dropped from 150 to 87 pounds and doctors hold out no hope for hi. recovery.

His friends say they'll keep on pumping until death ends their labors.

A dozen groups were represented at the meeting called by the Mayor last night and at the outset he outlined the entire week's program which has been designed in honour of the Army. To facilitate arrangements, which were only partly made at this preliminary meeting, the mayor was authorized to communicate with the Officer Commanding Military District No. 3 requesting that as many local boys as possible be given leave to attend the celebration here. Another suggestion was that arrangements be made to have several truck loads of troops or a mechanized unit here on July 1st as a part of that day's program. On behalf of the Committee the Mayor was asked to issue a request for citizens to decorate their homes and places of business appropriately during the week. The next meeting will be held on June 16th in the Council Chambers at 8 p.m.

Hanson Quotes Comic Opera Answering King

OTTAWA, June 12—(CP). — The Conservative House leader, Hon. R. B. Hanson, replying to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech on the National Resources Mobilization Act amendment, in the House of Commons Wednesday, quoted eight lines from Gilbert and Sullivan to "describe the Prime Minister's attitude and action more accurately and aptly than any words of mine could do"

These are the lines he read:

"A complicated gentleman allow me to present
O: all the arts and faculties the terse embodiment,
He's great arithmetician who can demonstrate with ease
That two and two are nree, or five, or anything you please;
An eminent logician who can make it clear to you
That black is white—whe looked at from the proper point of view;
A marvellous philologist who'll undertake to show
That 'Yes' is but nother and a neater form of 'No'."

The thirty members present had a jolly time playing games for some time then Ralph Beavis gave selections on his guitar and a sing song was held around the camp fire.

Lady Teachers Given Raise

HAVELOCK, June 12—(ENS)).— The High and Public School Boards held a special meeting on Monday evening, with Chairman Smith presiding and Trustees Matheson, Green, Sarginson, Young, Anderson, Roche and Miller present. In regard to a written request from the lady teachers of the Public School staff for an increase in salary, the sum of $50 was granted, to begin September 1, on motion of Trustees Anderson and Matheson. Owing to the smaller attendance of pupils in the public school, some discussion followed in regard to reducing the staff from the usual four teachers to three, but no definite action was taken.

A request from R. Buchanan, caretaker, for an increase in salary was discussed, but on motion of Green and Young, no action was taken.

WHY THE CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION WILL BE CLOSED FOR THE DURATION

An explanation from the Directors of the world's largest annual exhibition ... now "marking time" in its 64th year.

UP TO A FEW WEEKS AGO it was anticipated that the Canadian National Exhibition would open as usual this year. The Exhibition of 1941 proved to be such an inspiration to greater wartime effort, giving a vivid and comprehensive picture of Canada at war, it seemed the continuation of this great national educational activity was a necessity.

But this is an "all-out" war. 1942 is the critical year. All that counts is production this year, this week, today. So when the government requested the use of all the C.N.E. buildings and grounds to accommodate Canada's growing military forces, there was nothing else for it. The directors of this 63-year-old institution regretfully but cheerfully made their decision. And that is why, for the first time since "Opening Day" in 1879, the gates of the Canadian National Exhibition will remain closed to the public for the present.

There will be no break in the life of the Exhibition itself. True, armed sentries will guard its gates. Troops in training will occupy its spacious buildings, its 350 acres on the shore of Lake Ontario. But the spirit of the Canadian National Exhibition, built through 63 years of stirring events in Canadian history, will remain alive and strong.

Agriculturists from East and West will look forward to the day when they can again meet and exchange ideas at "the Ex." Manufacturers will await another "Opening Day" when they will present new ideas and products to the public. Thousands at home and abroad eagerly look ahead to the day when they can again profit from the educational, cultural, social and inspirational ideas which originate within the gates of this great Canadian institution.

With sincere thanks for the co-operation of exhibitors, voluntary workers and the public, the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition hope that soon—very soon—they will join with you in the unfolding of another important chapter in the life of your Exhibition—Canada's Exhibition.

Port Hope School Situation

Until now we have refrained from commenting on the situation which exists at the Port Hope High School because we hoped that more specific information about the discharge of the Principal, Mr. J. L. Brackenbury, might be forthcoming. But apparently the affair is to be left in the dark, and meanwhile the situation has been complicated by the resignation of eight of the nine teachers at the school.

The disturbance began two months ago when Mr. Brackenbury was asked for his resignation. The reason for this request was not made public. Apparently Mr. Brackenbury was extremely popular with his pupils, for they made a demonstration of loyalty which involved a parade through the streets of the town. But children are notoriously quixotic, and if Mr. Brackenbury was a hero to them they would do what they could for him, right or wrong. School teachers, however, are not quixotic; in the main they are level-headed and they would certainly not resign good jobs in protest if they did not think that a grave injustice had been done to their Principal.

There is only one thing for the Port Hope School Board to do, if it means to save its face: it must say why it asked Mr. Brackenbury to resign. If their reason is a good one the excitement will die down and possibly the teachers will withdraw their resignations. Of course, if their reason is not a good one—if it springs from some private quarrel, or from some bit of petty spite which has been allowed to grow to mighty stature—the citizens of Port Hope may feel that they want another School Board, and set about getting one.

We cannot believe that the Port Hope School Board has any valid reason for dismissing Mr. Brackenbury; if it has, why has it not spoken before this? If he is at fault in some way, what have they to fear? Their silence serves only to accuse themselves of having brought about a situation which they cannot handle. The School Board, rather than the school Principal, is on the spot.

The resignation of the eight teachers is a serious business. Where will Port Hope find a complete new staff before next autumn? If there is suspicion of injustice the Ontario Secondary Schools Federation will blacklist the Port Hope School and the better teachers will not go there. And what new Principal will put himself in danger of summary dismissal, without explanation, at the whim of a tyrannical School Board? We think that the suggestion of the Port Hope Ratepayers' Association is a good one, and that the obvious solution for the whole matter is the immediate resignation of the School Board before it can do any further damage.

The "Ex" Goes To War

There will be no Canadian National Exhibition this year. We have touched on this matter in these columns before, but we remind you once again that the "Ex" is in battle-dress at the moment and call your attention to the statement on the subject which the Directors of the Exhibition are publishing elsewhere in this paper. We think that the matter is an important one and we are anxious that the true facts of the situation be made clear.

Our National Exhibition is the oldest and the largest annual affair of its kind in the world, and although we are proud of it we have become somewhat used to it. We take it for granted. It has been the place where, for years, we have gone to see what was new in manufactures, what was new in agriculture and forestry, what was new in art and music. Not only did we derive tremendous benefit from the Exhibition; we had a lot of fun there as well. For the duration of the war we must forego the benefits and the fun.

The Exhibition grounds are being used now by troops in training, in order that they may prepare for the big job which lies before them. The "Ex" is not idle. It is not an amusement park which has gone out of business for the duration. It is, rather, a Canadian institution which has put itself unreservedly at the disposal of the country. When the war is over we shall see the "Ex" in its old gay colours again.

A Mirror Of Our Mind

Elsewhere on this page we publish a spirited letter from a Mr. William C. Grant, who takes exception to our comment on the suggestion of the Reverend A. M. Nicholson, C.C.F. member for Mackenzie, that the figures of individual incomes be published by the Income Tax branch of the Treasury. We admire the forensic eloquence of Mr. Grant's letter—indeed we feel that with this gift he might make his mark in politics—but we cannot follow the course of his argument. At a guess we should say that it was an example of what he himself deplores in his initial paragraph as "the all too common insult."

Our editorial, in which we took strong exception to Mr. Nicholson's suggestion, is described by Mr. Grant as being a mirror of our mind. Precisely so. It mirrors our opinion of Mr. Nicholson's suggestion exactly, and the reflection is in no wise disturbed by Mr. Grant's letter. We think that a man's income is a private matter which he may disclose to his friends if he wishes; certainly he will disclose it to the Income Tax authorities. The idea that it should be made public, in order that it may provide political ammunition, we consider as repugnant as the publication of the state of his relations with his wife, or the relation of his soul to God. There are still some things which are a man's own business.

In his third paragraph Mr. Grant bids us "off with the camouflage and have the decency to proclaim the cause we serve." Easily done; the camouflage we wear takes almost no time to "off." We are an independent newspaper, and it is our policy to support the Government in power so long as we can honestly do so. We have no quarrel with the C.C.F., but we reserve our right to criticize any of its suggestions with which we do not agree. We dealt with Mr. Nicholson's notion as we saw fit, and elsewhere on the same page we reprinted an editorial from the Toronto Globe and Mail concerning that party with which we thoroughly agreed. On this page today we publish an editorial from the Ottawa Journal which deals with Mr. Nicholson's suggestion; it is succinctly headed "Snooping."

We are as eager as anyone for "better social and economic relations for all men" and we think that many members of the C.C.F. are sincere in the belief that their party may bring these into being. But as well as making a study of political parties, their theories and their performances, we keep an eye on human nature, and we have grave doubts about the relation between the New Jerusalem and the C.C.F. And as for Mr. Grant, in parting we wish him great wealth; for we do not believe it a condition of dishonesty. Now we are going to take a peep into the mirror of our mind to see if we can detect a faint smile.

People's War And People's Peace

Doubtless when another three centuries have passed, historians will see our time as an era of class struggle. This will be no matter for surprise to them, and it should not be so to us, for almost every era in history has been marked by class struggle. But our struggles are all the more strenuous because our class demarcations are so nebulous and so confused. The minds of most of us are cluttered with a curious mixture of feudal and Marxian ideas on the subject of class, and it is no wonder that we exhibit strange vagaries when the subject is discussed.

For instance, it is a common failing of men and women of a particular class that they fail to recognize men and women of another class as people like themselves. But it is also observable that this is more often the case when "depressed" classes are thinking of "privileged" classes than vice versa. For instance, at the annual convention of the British Labor Party one of the most advanced political thinkers of our time, Professor Harold Laski, showed a strange disinclination to regard the Hon. Winston Churchill as a man; he wanted to stamp him as a Conservative and so dismiss him. We do not know anything about Prof. Laski's antecedents; we know him only as a brilliant man. He has allied himself closely with Labor and possibly he thinks of himself as a Worker of the World. Very well, but we submit that Winston Churchill is also a Worker of the World and that the fact that he is an aristocrat and a Conservative should not blind anyone to his great virtues.

"Mr. Churchill," said Prof. Laski, "has agreed that this is a people's war. We mean to win it but we want from him a pledge that the people's war will be followed by a people's peace. So far he has evaded that assurance. So far he has talked of victory in terms of the old world that is dying, not of the new world that is struggling to be born." Now that, Prof. Laski, is simply rhetoric, nothing more or less than rhetoric and very flimsy rhetoric too. What is all this talk of old worlds dying and new worlds struggling to be born? The Labor Convention should have booed you for insulting their collective intelligence with such rot. Worlds don't die and grow like cabbages; the world and the society which we have in it evolves, sometimes slowly and sometimes rather more quickly, but not by fits and starts. You are an educated man; why do you try to confuse your Labor associates, who probably look to you for guidance, with this sort of soap-box clap-trap.

Of course this is a "people's war." But aren't we all people? Is Mr. Churchill less of a person than Prof. Laski? If the word "people" is going to be confined to include only those who used to be called "the lower classes" we shall be in a pretty pickle. But fortunately the Labor Convention put Prof. Laski in his place by re-affirming its confidence in the Prime Minister.

Floors And Ceilings

By this time we are all familiar with the system of the Price Ceiling, which is designed to keep prices from soaring in wartime, thus preventing inflation of our currency. But Britain has invented something new in economic architecture; it is the Wage Floor. Sir Kingsley Wood, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, has announced in the Commons that, after the first of August, single workers may not have their weekly wage cut below two pounds ($8.90) weekly and that married workers are to be assured at least three pounds ($15.35) weekly. The wage cuts, it may be explained, come not from employers, but from the Government itself, which deducts taxes from wages at the source and also demands a generous slice in income tax.

Before the war the wages paid to labor in Britain were markedly lower than those paid in this country and the U.S. The standard of living was comfortable but not high, and the laborer made no attempt to "keep up with the Joneses." But since the enormous increase in taxation which has been brought about by wartime necessity has cut into the slim wages of the workers it has been necessary to establish the Wage Floor to contral the situation and to prevent actual want.

Our economy seems gradually to be approaching the socialist ideal. Having gained a ceiling and a floor, doubtless the next move will be to bring them nearer together.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The battle at Midway, of course, was only a sideshow.

When Hitler's generals visits him they are made to leave their arms in the ante-room. Then, if the argument becomes hot they haven't a leg to stand on.

Stalin's real name is Josef Vissarionovich Dzugashvili; Hitler's is Schicklgruber; Mussolini's is Mud. And if we may judge from his picture, the Emperor of Japan would't remember his.

A story is told about a Newfoundlander who missed last summer because he was sick in bed all week. Are we drifting toward the same sort of summer?

Large numbers of old coins have been discovered in the Brockville region of late months. Presumably the early settlers of that community must have had a good deal of money, since they were so careless with it.

The Vichy government, at the instigation of the Germans, has ordered every French Jew over six years of age to wear a Star of David as big as the palm of the hand as a distinguishing badge. There is one advantage in this: no one will suspect a wearer of the Star of being a collaborationist.

CORVETTE

Dully she shudders at the solid water,
A pause, and spray stings angrily over.
She plunges, and the noisy foam leaps widely,
Marbling the moon-grey sea. Loud in the shrouds
Untrammelled winds roar songs of liberty.
Free as the petrel hovering astern
Her long lithe body answers to the swell.

Pardon if all the cleanness and the beauty
Brave rhythm and the immemorial sea
Ensnare us sometimes with their siren song,
Forgetful of our murderous intentions.
Through our uneasy peacetime carnival
Cold sweat of death lay on us like a dew;
Even this grey machinery of murder
Holds beauty and the promise of a future.

Defining U.S. Peace Policy

(Winnipeg Free Press)

STATEMENTS by President Roosevelt and by other members of his administration on the establishment of a better world order, and the prospect of the U.S. playing a leading role in that great undertaking, have been most encouraging, even though the statements have usually been of a general nature. Mr. Roosevelt joined with Mr. Churchill in enunciating the principles of the Atlantic Charter. The President has also declared for the four freedoms to be established everywhere. The foundations of a lasting peace must go down to bedrock. Vice-President Wallace stated a month ago that the war must be followed by "a people's peace," and that the century to come "must be the century of the common man."

A MORE specific statement of U.S. policy has come from Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State. He defines more clearly how the great goal of human welfare is to be reached. This war, he says, must assure the equality of all nations and abolish discrimination between peoples because of their race, creed or color—"the age of imperialism is ended."

New means and mechanisms must be adopted, he further states, for facilitating the exchange of goods and services between nations. He assumed that there would be a general demand for immediate punishment for those held accountable for the catastrophe.

Mr. Welles believes that the U.S. will join the United Nations in disarming the aggressors during the armistice; in taking part in an international police force to maintain order until a permanent system of general security can be set up; in establishing the world organization which will determine final terms of peace "after the period of social and economic chaos which will come inevitably upon the termination of the present war and after the completion of the gigantic task of relief, of reconstruction and rehabilitation which will confront the United Nations at the time of the armistice.

THERE has been much favorable comment in the U.S. on this statement of the Under-Secretary, undoubtedly made with authority.

"Mr. Welles does not assume too much," says Anne O'Hare McCormick in the New York Times. "He did not speak too soon or go beyond the purpose rapidly shaping and hardening in the American mind. Americans are fighting only for freedom and lasting peace, and they want to know how both are to be secured. Nothing less than a clear aim, and big enough to fire the spirit of the people, will put the full moral force of this country into the war effort. They are ready for the program bravely and eloquently set forth by Mr. Welles. Unless all four energies are to be spent in vain, nothing is more vital at this moment than to prepare American opinion for the inevitable role we know at last that we must play in the post-war world."

BUT the question which must have occurred to many people, whether the Roosevelt peace policy will carry the support of the people of the U.S., is raised by Walter Lippmann in the New York Herald Tribune. The world will not have confidence in U.S. leadership, he fears, until it has assurance on this point. Everyone knows what happened after the last war when Woodrow Wilson's peace policy was rejected by the U.S. Senate.

The crucial question now, Mr. Lippmann remarks, is whether the people of that country are convinced that their part in maintaining the law and order of the world. He knows that there are many people in the U.S. likely to still cling to their old idols, to the policies of economic nationalism.

"What happens will depend," he says, "upon how the industrialists of America interpret the tremendous experience which they are now having. Will they think that they can return to normalcy in another Harding-Coolidge era? Will they think that our armies can be demobilized; and industry reconverted and trade restored by dissolving our alliances and dismantling the war controls? Will they believe they can have one more try at a policy of let-her-rip and the devil take the hindmost?

If they do think this, they will find politicians to do the demagoguery to carry out such ideas. But if the industrialists, or any considerable number of them, take this line, they will surely ruin themselves. They will cause a national disaster. They will wreck all prospect of peace in the world. Yet we must not fool ourselves. The temptation will be strong. The flesh is weak and will be yielding. The will to resist the temptation to sacrifice the long future to immediate profit requires self-restraint and character of a higher order than men usually exhibit in the aftermath of a war."

Mr. Lippmann gives the industrialists great credit for what they are now doing for war production and for the winning of the war. By this, he says, they are winning a place and a certainty of being able to play an important part in shaping the world of the future. But he hopes that they will abandon the old policies and stop the activities of the politicians who formerly professed to represent their interests.

Letter To The Editor

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—One would naturally conclude that, with the multiplicity of issues of public importance and the consequent possibilities of honest controversy, the meaner devices of the editor's trade, as exhibited in your editorial of yesterday entitled "Publishing Income Tax Figures" were unnecessary. I refer to the stratagems of molding facts to suit the argument, the pretence of independence and the resort to the all too common insult.

No doubt a fair report of Mr. Nicholson's speech would not have suited your purpose. Hence you must needs pluck that part that does to base your comment. Then the declared policies of the C.C.F. do not provide sufficient material for your critical faculties but you must substitute your opinion of the policy for the policy itself. Fabricate and then demolish the result of your own making,—nothing but the device of a lazy and dishonest advocate.

Another stunt,—you stand indifferent above the controversy. You hold not brief for rich men, capital or employer; and you're right for once for the brief you distain to handle is sewn securely inside your editorial short. Off with the camouflage and have the decency to proclaim the cause you serve or cease entirely to damn those who do.

And to end the matter you must insult those, who, in your opinion though they be mistaken, have given freely of their time and money to support the C.C.F. whose program, they believe sincerely, contains the core of better social and economic relations for all men. Many of whom, having had the opportunity to gain financial recognition of their abilities, have refused the meaner chance for the cause they thought more worthwhile.

Criticism is necessary but cheap, corrupt stratagems, used by an editor are not only unnecessary but an abuse of a great privilege and reflect, not on the intended victims, but on yourself. They are a mirror of your mind.

I do not wish you the misfortune of poverty for I do not hold it a condition of honesty. WM. C. GRANT.

Peterborough, June 11.

• Snooping Into Taxes

REV. A. M. NICHOLSON, C.C.F. member of the House of Commons, wants the Government to publish individual incomes as taxed for the Dominion Treasury. He mentioned the case of the John Inglis Company of Toronto which had received, he said, $35,000,000 from the Treasury, and he thought he should know how much of it went to Major Hahn as head of that corporation.

Mr. Nicholson suspects, or he would have ignorant people get the impression, that because the Inglis Company has been paid $35,000,000 for war orders—for making the very necessary Bren guns—that its head must be revelling in vast wealth. That does not follow. The gross amount paid must have gone mostly for materials and labor. Out of its profit the Inglis Company will have paid by far the greater part back to the Treasury in corporation war taxes. And out of his own salary Major Hahn will have made another substantial payment towards the costs of the war. Actually the share of these millions which Major Hahn is permitted to spend as he likes will be infinitesimal. Just how much is the business of nobody but the Income Tax Branch.

Mr. Gibson, as Revenue Minister, reiterated the opposition of all Canadian governments to making public such information, and properly so. No other stand would conform to private rights or public dignity. We have no right to snoop, to peer over our neighbor's shoulder to learn his income or how much he pays in taxes.

And it is no argument for making incomes public that it is done in the United States. We should take the best features, not the worst, from the government of other countries.

• 2nd Front Bogey to Adolf

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

FORMAL understandings between Russia, Britain and the United States bearing on creation of a second front in Europe this year now are revealed incident to disclosure of the secret visit of the Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Vyacheslav Molotoff to Washington and London.

The significant part of those official outgivings is neither the fact of Molotoff's visits, the post-war commitments contained in the new London-Moscow pact, nor even the military discussions which paralleled the political talks. What does stick up like a sore thumb is the phrase, "a second front in Europe in 1942."

The rest could have been taken for granted more or less. But the formal statements that second front measures for 1942, this year, not at some indefinite future time, formed the main theme of discussions with Molotoff have a meaning all their own.

EXPAND HITLER'S TECHNIQUE

The Anglo-British war planners have taken a leaf from Hitler's own war-of-nerves manual, and enlarged and expanded on it. They are deliberately telling any German radio listener who dares Hitler ire to pick it out of the ether what they propose to do and when they propose to do it. They conceal only the where and how of projected operations.

No German who has defied Hitler to harken to British or American radio news broadcasts can have much doubt about the situation. Such listeners have more than the wreckage of Cologne and Essen by which to judge second front possibilities of the near future.

They have been told, for instance, that those thousand-planes-a-night shots are but a starter to test out the technical arrangements for air warfare on that unprecedented scale. They have been informed by highest British and American authority that American air power will soon gang up with the British to double or treble the force of the air attack.

They know, also by Allied announcements, that a considerable American army is in the British Isles training in commando tactics, which means invasion tactics. They were promptly informed of the arrival in London of an American army-navy staff charged with the execution of second front plans. No secret was made, quite the contrary, of the arrival in British waters of a powerful American naval task force, including craft heavily enough gunned and armored to deal with Germany's powerful Von Tirpitz.

U.S. NOT DIVERTED

That disclosure was particularly disheartening for thoughtful Germans who heard it. It meant that Japanese intervention to involve this country in two-front war had not diverted American attention from the Atlantic to the Pacific exclusively.

And now comes official word of the Molotoff visits and their results, headlined by the formal declarations from London and Washington that the most urgent matter under consideration was the setting up of a second front against Germany now, this year. That gave an official time element to it all, a time element duly revealed instead of concealed.

Exactly what either Washington or London may know about the state of public morale in Germany at this moment is not revealed. There have been whispers from Scandinavia and Switzerland, particularly since the bombing of Cologne, of growing resentment that Hitler has depleted his western defenses to attempt renewal of his Russian offensive. They seem credible, nor can it be doubted that whatever else is to come in second-front operations in the months ahead, a formidable Allied attack on German nerves as well as German war industry and communications is already in full swing.

JUKE BOXES FIGHT

OBJECTIONS that have been taken by downtown restaurant proprietors to the order silencing all juke boxes at midnight deserve some consideration. If, as these merchants claim, their revenues will be seriously affected by the interdict, their cases should be sympathetically dealt with, and it is worth nothing that those objecting claim that the location of their premises makes it impossible for the music to disturb residential districts.

This, of course, is the crux of the situation, and there seems little reason to cut off the contraptions if they do not annoy sleepers, and if the patrons of the restaurants enjoy them. The Police Commission might well consider placing the order on a zone basis, which would cause hardship neither to the sleepers nor the jazz addicts.—Windsor Star.

WHY READ?

THE San Francisco Argonaut reports an announcement by the State Board of Education in California "that it means to change the requirements of teachers in English, so that the pupils will no longer be bothered with British authors, those being eliminated and their places taken by American literature and an appreciation of motion pictures and radio."

"Imagine," said a San Francisco newspaper commenting on this scholastic policy, "a high school senior permitted to graduate without knowledge of Shakespeare, Chaucer, Milton, Scott or Tennyson, but with a high rating in the screen art of Ginger Rogers and the radio appeal of Jack Benny!"

The Argonaut itself views the situation with deep concern. Most of what has been called progress in American life, it says, in the past 70 or 80 years, "has been nothing but an accelerating pace in vulgarization," and it finds this new order in perfect harmony with that trend. "Millions of young Americans," it adds, "have come to believe, with their elders, that business is an end, and even the only end, of life....The two chief ends of life should be creation and contemplation."

But perhaps the most appropriate comment comes from Elbert Hubbard, quoted by the Argonaut:

"It is better to keep your mouth shut, and be thought a fool, than to open it and remove all doubt."

We can let it go at that. — Ottawa Journal.

ROYALS ARE NOSED OUT 2 TO 1 IN TIGHT CITY LEAGUE CONTEST

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Ladies' Softball League will again hold the centre of the stage tonight when Porcelains and C.G.E., the two undefeated clubs in the loop will clash at the Bowl in a game in which the leadership of the league is at stake. The winner of tonight's battle which will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp will go into undisputed possession of first place so that both outfits will have their heaviest artillery out, gunning for a victory. Norma Strickland of last year's Westclox team will in all probability be Manager Mike O'Brien's twirling choice tonight while Manager Bob Batley of Porcelain will undoubtedly pin his faith on the left-handed pitching of M. Larmer who tossed nice ball against Brintons in Tuesday night's game. It should be a good ball game. The fans are anxious to see Porcelain, a new entry this season stack up against one of the old combinations and the Batley entry will have plenty of supporters in the stands tonight.

* * * * * *

The City Softball League and the softball fans owe a vote of thanks to Manager Fred Griffin's Luckies who in two successive nights have turned up to win one-run victories in the two best ball games of the season and put fresh life and interest in the City League campaign. Luckies knocked off the Soldiers 3 to 2 in Wednesday night's tussle and last night they polished off Manager Roy Parnell's Royals 2 to 1 in a game that was as close as the humid atmosphere in which it was played. It was the first loss of the season for the Royals and toppled them out of first place, Plaza with three wins in succession now occupying top slot while Luckies are tied with Royals, half a game behind the new leaders. The two wins scored by the newcomers to the loop were not flukes. They were the result of steady defensive work behind fine pitching exhibitions by Frank McCormick and Bill Lewis and they indicate that the City League should have a battle royal all the way to determine the playoff positions. There is not a pushover in the loop.

* * * * * *

In last night's game Lewis had the Royal power pretty well under control all the way. The wrecking crew of the losers were spiked, the first five batters being able to produce only two singles off the delivery of the Luckies' southpaw. Royals had nine men left on bases which tells its own story of the effectiveness of the pitching in the clutches. It was a good ball game all the way with each team rattling off a fast double-play, Earl McNabb coming through with a circus catch. George Hawks sparkling with a couple of bullet throws on slow rollers and both outfits refusing to crack under pressure. After a number of fixtures in which runs were as plentiful as customers at the in-and-out store on a Saturday afternoon these last two tightly-fought fixtures have been a treat for the fans.

Tough On The Brownies

Before the St. Louis Browns ran into the Boston Red Sox they were doing quite nicely and had visions of cinching a first division berth. However the Red Sox have knocked a lot of those visions for a loop by taking the Browns into camp three times in a row. They had a close fit yesterday when they just managed to eke out a win by 8 to 7, but it was a victory nevertheless. Boston were outhit 13 to 11 and the Brownies borrowed some of the Red Sox thunder by banging out three homers but in spite of all that power Boston was found to have a one-run lead when all the returns were in. Brown who went in as a relief pitcher after Yank Terry and Butland had wavered got credit for the win, while Stanley Ferens, last of three Brownie pitchers to see action received the loss. McQuinn, Hayes and Lucadello all hit homers for the losers while strangely enough the Red Sox failed to kick in with a single circuit clout in reply.

* * * * * *

Cleveland handed Washington Senators another beating yesterday but it was a close call. Lou Boudreau's team won the argument 8 to 6 by coming through with a four-run rally in the ninth when the Senators had the game apparently well in hand. Chubby Dean and Gromek did the pitching for the winners with the honors going to the latter while Washington used Wynn, Cathey, Trotter and Zuber and the loss was pinned on Trotter. New York Yanks and Detroit started a game yesterday but it was called in a couple of innings. However, it was too long for the Yanks inasmuch as Buddy Rosar pulled a muscle in his leg and had to retire. Bill Dickey was injured the day before and now the Yanks will be without the services of both crack catchers for a while.

Among the pitchers of the year who have been going along nicely without attracting a great deal of attention or getting much publicity is the smooth-working Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs who looks as if he would be the first twirler in either loop to reach double figures in wins this season. Yesterday Mister Passeau came through with a five-hitter against the Phils to win 7 to 1 and that neighbors, was his ninth victory of the season, which is fairly nice work when you are pitching for a fifth place club.

The week of June 15-20 has been set aside by the Ontario Amateur Softball Association as Military Bat and Ball Week and all softbal organizations in the province are being appealed to, to assist the association in its task of providing softballs and bats for military camps throughout the country. Peterborough softballers will do their part in this very fine effort and it is likely that one of the City League games scheduled will be made a benefit game in aid of the bat and ball fund. Softball is the most popular game among army, navy and air force men and large quantities of supplies are needed. In the past two years the O.A.S.A. has donated over $1,000 worth of bats and balls to the uniformed men and already this year a considerable quantity has been sent out and other orders are being filled now. However the association is handicapped financially since it has been operating on a very small margin and that is why the assistance of softball groups throughout the province is being sought. Peterborough is ready to do its part for a cause that deserves support.

Parents of young children are warned that there are safer places for their youngsters to play than at the Ashburnham Bowl when softball games are in progress. For some reason or other there have been more of these very young folks romping around the softball grounds and getting into dangerous spots this season than ever before and league officials are worried because of the very evident danger of accidents. The other night a boy was struck in the mouth when a bat slipped out of the hands of a player and there have been several other close calls because the kids persist in hovering in the vicinity of home plate and around the players' benches. It is suggested that parents who bring their children to the games should keep them under control and those who do not attend themselves but permit their youngsters to do so should warn them of the danger of accidents.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Yanks' lead has been cut to nine and a half games but there is probably not a great deal of nervousness in the New York camp over that development....The Catholic League will stage its first double-header of the season at Memorial Park tonight. Sacred Heart and St. Peter's are billed to play two games, the first scheduled to start at 6.30 o'clock, half an hour earlier than usual, President Ed Prete announces....Only three runs have been scored against the Luckies in their last two games. That is airtight defence....Alsab will be out of training for at least a month because of a leg injury....International League umpires are getting tough. Both Manager Jewel Ens of Syracuse and Al Vincent of Buffalo were chased out of the game last night at Syracuse....The Men's Softball League will transfer its games to the baseball diamond at Riverside Park next week....Incidentally the game betwen Soldiers and Juveniles originally scheduled for Thursday night will be moved up one night and will be played on Wednesday....Teams are asked to notice this change which is made necessary by a long leave for some of the Soldiers next week....The City League campaign looms up like one of the tightest races in its history, with any club in the loop likely to come through with an upset anytime.

League Leaders Pulled Out Of First Place

After tossing Soldiers for a loss the previous night, Luckies came right back in Thursday night's City League game at the Bowl to nose out the Royals 2 to 1 in one of the tightest battles of the young season. In defeating the league leaders Luckies handed Royals their first loss of the season and pulled them out of first place. Plazas going to the top of the heap, while Thursday night's winners and the Royals are now tied for second slot.

It was a pitchers' battle between Lefty Bill Lewis for Luckies and Ronnie Akers, Royals' right-handed gunner, and Lewis turned in one of the best pitching efforts of the season to take the verdict. He held the Royals to five hits, no two in an inning and would have had a shutout if he had not fired a home-run ball to his pitcher rival, a circuit clout by Akers being responsible for the losers' only counter. Lewis had plenty of stuff, and while he issued four bases on balls he tightened up with men on the bases and not once did Royals produce a hit with runners ready to score. Akers pitched nice ball, too, allowing only eight hits and not yielding a base on balls and only one of the two runs scored off his delivery was earned.

Both teams fielded smartly and each infield rattled off a fast double play. The Caccavella keystone combination and Jameson for the Luckies got together for one and McNabb, Maurice Giardino, and Smith combined for a lightning twin killing by the Royals. The feature fielding play was contributed by Earl McNabb, who jumped high to rob Watson of a hit by spearing his drive with his left hand, along the style of the circus grab made by Nick Sero the night before.

It was a light-hitting affair. Only two players got more than two hits, Tony Cacoavella having a double and two singles and Maurice Caccavella two singles for the Luckies.

Luckies flashed into the lead with a tainted run in the second frame. Maurice Cacoavella ran to second when Russ Scriver dropped his fly to short left field. Corrigan was safe on Giardino's fumble, Caccavella going to third. McCormick bounded to Akers, forcing Corrigan at second but Caccavella scored on the play. Patterson hit into a fast double killing, McNabb to Giardino to Smith.

Royals had a chance in the third when Parnell opened with a single to centre and went to second on a wild pitch, but Scriver struck out, Akers popped to A. Caccavella and after McNabb had walked Lewis struck out George Hawks to retire the side.

The losers threatened again in the fourth, but once more the necessary hit was lacking. Smith started with a single to left. Mowry and Pryde were easy on popups to M. Caccavella, but Giardino walked and Parnell got a life on A. Caccavella's fumble. With the bases loaded Lewis got out of the hole by striking out Scriver.

Akers decided it was time something should be done about it. He was first up for Royals in the fifth and teed off on the first ball for a line drive past Stewart in centre field for a clean homer to tie up the ball game.

After that wallop Lewis tightened up and had the Royals stopped for the balance of the game. Luckies threatened in the seventh when with one out M. Caccavella singled to centre and Corrigan hit to right for a base, but McCormick flied out to Pryde and Patterson whiffed.

Manager Griffin's team copped the decision in the eighth. Lewis, first up, was thrown out on a bunt and Watson was out on a close one on a tap to Parnell at short. However, Joe Stewart doubled to the cars in left field and ran home a moment later. Tony Caccavella got his third hit of the ball game, a clean double to right centre.

The teams:

Luckies — Watson, 3b; Stewart, cf; A. Caccavella, 2b; Jameson, 1b; M. Caccavella, ss; Corrigan, rf; Edgar, rf; McCormick, lf; Patterson, c; Lewis, p.

Royals — McNabb, ss; Hawks, 3b; Smith, 1b; Mowry, c; Pryde, cf; Giardino, 2b; Parnell, rf, ss; Holmes rf; Scriver, lf; Akers, p; Fraser batted for Scriver in the ninth.

By innings:

Luckies	010 000 010—2	8	2
Royals	000 010 000—1	5	2

Umpires—Batley and Dormer.

Earl McNabb Hurt In League Game

Earl McNabb, shortstop for the Royals in the City Softball League was the victim of a painful accident during last night's game with Luckies that will keep him out of action for some time.

It happened in the seventh inning when Maurice Caccavella lifted a high fly along the left field foul line. McNabb, Russ Scriver, left fielder and third baseman George Hawks all tried to make the catch. McNabb fell with his right arm under him.

It was thought at first that the arm was fractured but an X-ray examination failed to reveal a break. However the arm was painfully injured and the shortstop will be out of the game for some weeks.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

We believe that Ray Hutchinson's rink, last year a group winner, is the only undefeated one in Group 2, but he had a close one last night. M Levine forced him into overtime.

We notice that the president is hitting his stride. Another nice win last night.

And then the records show that Jack Sedgewick lost his first schedule game. Howard Clegg was responsible

Percy Moore and Percy McFadden were going along nicely until Percy McF. scored a three, a six and a five and then the other Percy faded to the tune of 21-16.

The other winners were T. Ryan, J. McDonald, C. Giroux and R. French, all by comfortable scores.

Sometime, and in the near future we hope we expect to be able to score a win for the rink skipped by your truly. That'll be the day.

This information was given to us last evening up at the greens: At Whitby, on Wednesday, playing in the open doubles tournament, Geo. Gimblett and Ross Hopkins came away with first place and the cup Harold Freeman and Sid Trowbridge won the prize for high single. Not a bad record two entries and both in the money.

The committee is asking of each skip to please post their score on the big blackboard at the conclusion of each schedule game. It will help, in no small way, the committee to keep the records complete and up to date.

Don't forget the men's rinks tournament to-night at 7.30 o'clock. The rules, regulations and fees are the same as any other weekly tournament.

In the ladies' section it's Mrs. J. Kingsbury's rink that is now leading the schedule. Her rink has four straight wins. There are many others who are a close second with only one loss but there's a long way to go yet.

Alsab Laid Up For Month By Blind Splint

NEW YORK, June 12. —(AP) — Those roses that Alsab missed at the Kentucky Derby would be highly appreciated to-day by Mrs. Albert Sabath's wonder colt, who will be confined to quarters for at least a month with the first serious ailment of his colorful and profitable career.

A blind splint, that bony growth on the side of the splint bone discernible only by x-ray, was discovered yesterday on one of Alsalb's forelegs, making Shut Out's principal rival strictly a shut in.

Trainer Sarge Swenke said Alsab carried the injury into the Belmont Stakes last Saturday when he wound up a well-beaten second to Shut Out, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Chocolate Charger who also topped him in the Derby.

After winning the Preakness and the Withers, Alsab was favored to show his heels to Shut Out at Belmont, but he never came through with his usual kick in the stretch and the Son of Equipoise triumphed by three lengths.

The rivals for the Three-year-old honors were to have continued their dueling in the $25,000 Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct a week from tomorrow, but Alsab will miss that one as well as the $25,000 Yankee Handicap on the Fourth of July at Suffolk Downs.

Swenke said he expected to have the colt ready for the $50,000 Arlington classic at ChicagoJuly 25, unless complications developed. He also is slated to run in the American Derby, another $50,000 stake at Chicago's Washington Park, Aug. 29.

Alsab has gone to the post 33 times and earned a total of $202,585, winning $91,975 this year.

Sun Chariot Wins the Oaks

NEWMARKET, England, June 12 —The King's filly Sun Chariot won the Oaks today.

It was the first victory in this classic for the Royal stables and the first time a Royal owner has won the Two Thousand Guineas, the One Thousand Guineas and the Oaks in the same year.

Sun Chariot 4 to 1 favorite, beat the Earl of Rosebery's Afterthought by one length.

Sun Chariot was leased for her racing career by the King from the National Stud of Ireland.

Tomorrow the wartime Derby will be run and another of the King's horses, the unbeaten Big Game, is favorite. Hyperides, winner of the Fakenham Stakes, is rated his most dangerous rival.

The temperamental Sun Chariot, who won the One Thousand Guineas earlier in the season, lost about six lengths at the start but overhauled and began to leave her rivals 2½ furlongs from the finish of the 1½ mile course.

The three-year-old filly's time was two minutes, 33 1-5 seconds and it was announced after the race she would not run in the Derby tomorrow.

Gordon Richards, the King's jockey, who will ride Big Game in the Derby, saaid "Sun Chariot lost ground through running wide but I never had anxieties and she went on to win in a canter."

Peberion, running under the colors of Lord Glanely, was third in the field of 10 as the crowd continued to roar its happiness over the royal victory.

Thousands crowded in the stands raised their hats as the gallant racer crossed the line and another burst of cheering broke out when the winner was led into the unsaddling enclosure.

T. Ohlson's East Glen was fourth, Pay Roll fifth and Perfect Peace a disappointing sixth. Other runners were Treasure From Heaven, Sonibai, Cheerful and Valiance.

St. Peter's Stage 10-Run Rally To Defeat Cubs

St. Peter's scoring ten runs in the last two innings, came from far behind to defeat the Cubs 18 to 14 in an exciting Catholic League game at Memorial Park, Thursday night.

When Cubs came through with eight runs in the fourth and followed in the next frame with two more, putting them in front by six runs, it looked like curtains for the Saints, until they broke lose in the final stanzas.

St. Peter's had taken the lead in second by chasing five counters over the plate, only to lose it temporarily and then roar back to win.

The Cubs are a team who will have to be watched from now on.

Hickey was on the mound for six innings and was nicked for nine runs and walked five. R. Garvey took over the seventh but failed to stop the victors. He allowed five hits and walked one.

Gordon went the route for the winners, allowing only one walk but yielding 20 hits. Cubs outhit the Saints but had more men left on bases.

F. Garvey for the Cubs was dynamite at the plate, getting a double and four singles in five trips to the plate. His brother came through with a double, triple and homer in five times at bat. Sullivan and Caccavella each har two singles and a double in the same number of plate appearances.

Honey Tompkins was the heavy hitter for St. Peter's with a homer, a tripjle and two singles in five times up. Perdue had two for four and Condon and Conroy two for five.

Heffernan for Cubs and Conroy for St. Peter's shone with outfield catches.

Ground Bombers In Final Frame

The Bombers and Flying Cats zoomed and flew at each other Thursday afternoon in a St. Peter's school game and when everything was all over the latter finished on top by a score of 8 to 7. This was the second of a two in three intermediate series The Bombers took the first one away.

The Flying Cats were at home to their opponents and going into the last half of the seventh the Bombers were leading 7 to 6. With one out the Cats screeched two over the plate to give them the game. Caccavella for the winners and Basciano for the losers did some fine hurling. Both had fine support, too.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP). — Ford Frick, the National League president, figures that take of almost $14,000 for the Cards' relief game was just as good a showing as Brooklyn's $60,000—considering the way the two clubs usually draw and that the Browns played one only nine days before the Cards.

The Practical Side

Reporting that other Pacific Coast League clubs are adopting the Seattle team's practice of raising the American flag before each game, a Seattle sports columnist commented: "It's patriotic, and the drift of the flag shows the outfielders how the wind is blowing."

Double X Marks the Spot.

It seems the Red Sox had a pretty good idea what was coming before Jimmy Foxx was sold to the Cubs....A couple of days before the deal was made, Manager Joe Cronin came into the dressing room and asked: "Has anyone got a first baseman's glove'....Who hasn't on this ball club?" retorted Tony Lupien, a first sacker himself.

Cleaning the Cuff.

Balky Tractor Upsets a Race

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., une 12 (AP) —There must be some horse laughs echoing today in the barns of the Fairmount Jockey Club over the iron horse which wouldn't run.

The iron horse—the tractor which pulls the starting gate from the field—balked, and only some efficient waving by attendants prevented a nasty pileup in the seventh race yesterday.

Chris J. Fitzgerald, Canadian-born Illinois Racing Commission steward, declared the race "no contest," a decision rare in racing

Thirteen flesh and blood horses thundered away in the seventh, a mile and one-sixteenth scamper, in good fashion.

Trainers, starters and attendants soon lost interest in the running horses when the tractor refused to run. They co-operated in flagging the horses down as they rounded into the home stretch.

Three horses—Dianapat, Lady Hav and Always Glad—swung wide around the bulky starting gate which almost blocked the track The others were pulled up. There were no casualties among horses or jockeys.

The tractor worked perfectly for the eighth and final race of the day.

Little Scores 62 By Shooting Seven Birdies

TOLEDO, O., June 12 — (AP). — Lawson Little's putter was the best club in the business yesterday as the "grand slam" amateur king of golf in 1934-35 scored seven birdies in the opening round of the eighth annual Inverness invitational best-ball matches.

The 1940 United States open champion, with the aid of two birdies by partner Lloyd Mangrum, came home with a best-ball count of 62, nine under par, to take a one-up victory over Byron Nelson, host pro, and long-hitting Jimmy Thomson.

The Nelson-Thomson 63 was the second best score of the day among the eight pairs of professionals.

Results of the day's opening round in the race for $7,650 in cash and war bonds with the best-ball scores:

Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret (65), four up on E. J. (Dutch) Harrison and Denny Shute (69).

Henry Picard and Sam Byrd (67), two up on Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper (69).

Little and Mangrum (62), one up on Nelson and Thomson (63)

Horton Smith and Chick Harbert (67), even with Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron (67).

Thus Hogan and Demaret, the transplanted Texans who won first prize a year ago, were off in front in the race for this season's top award of $2,160. However, in today's round the leaders faced the second-place Picard-Byrd duo, a match which is certain to scramble the standings.

Little who shot a 64 all his own, started the string with a thirty-foot birdie putt on the first hole. He chipped in from forty feet for his bird on the short third. On the seventh, eighth and ninth he scored birdies on putts of four, twenty-five and fifteen feet, hit a thirty-footer or another on eleven and finished by canning a five-footer for a birdie on the eighteenth.

Nelson meanwhile came through with five birdies.

The hot-shots have double rounds scheduled the next three days.

FOR SALE LAST WINTER CUBS' PASSEAU WINS 9th LACING PHILS

5-Hit Triumph 7th Straight Win for Veteran

By Judson Bailey,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Chicago Cubs had Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, their veteran pitchers, on the block last winter and it is scarcely more than luck that this pair still wears those odd suits the Bruins use for baseball uniforms.

Yet to-day Passeau and Lee between them have accounted for 17 of the Cubs' 25 victories in the National League and one wonders where the sixth-place Chicago Club would be if either or both of these big rightanders had been traded to rival aggregations.

Lee won his eighth game Wednesday and Passeau followed with his ninth yesterday in the shape of a five-hit 7-1 triumph over Philadelphia Phils.

The only tally the tailenders made resulted from a fumble by Bill Nicholson in the second inning after Nick Etten had singled.

It was Passeau's 11th straight complete game and his seventh straight victory, although the sequence was interrupted by a siege of appendicitis which kept him in hospital all last week.

The Cubs made 11 hits, three of them by Lou Novikoff.

The only other National League encounter scheduled was between Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals and for the third day in a row weather kept these fuedists idle.

Half the American League program also had to be postponed, although Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees made a start. The game lasted long enough for catcher Buddy Rosar of the Yankees to sprain a muscle in his left leg and have to be helped off the field. Bill Dickey had been hurt the day before and this left the Yanks with only one able-bodied catcher, Ed Kearse, a rookie from Kansas City, who never had caught an inning in the major leagues.

He went behind the bat for the Tigers' half of the third inning and then the game was halted with Detroit leading 2-1.

Boston Red Sox completed a sweep of their three-game series with St. Louis Browns by winning 8-7 on a ninth-inning run which Jim Tabor singled home. Each team used three pitchers and St. Louis made 13 hits two more than Boston and including homers by George McQuinn, Frank Hayes and Tony Criscola.

Cleveland also completed a sweep of this series Washington by rallying four runs in the ninth inning to beat the Senators 8-6.

The Ump Bites The Dirt

Jim Tadley (in white shirt and white trousers), the Philadelphia Athletics' trainer, works on Umpire Harry Geisel's knee during eighth inning of game with St. Louis at Philadelphia, after the umpire was hit on the leg by a foul tip. Earlier, a foul ball lodged between the metal guards of his mask. Oldtimer Mulls Over Days Of Jim Butwell

TORONTO, June 12.— "I hear," said the Oldtimer as he draped his arms over the railing at Dufferin yesterday, "that Jimmy Butwell ain't patrol judging down at them New England tracks this season."

"Who's Jimmy Butwell?" the Oldtimer's railing neighbor wanted to know.

"You ain't kiddin' me, mister, are ya?" Oldtimer quizzed.

"Not a bit of it, never heard of the fellow."

"Well, you ain't been around much, I can see that," the Oldtimer spatted in disgust, "but just so's you'll know, I'm a-telling you, Jimmy Butwell is just the bootin'est guy that ever crossed a leg on a hoss in Canada or anywhere else. And he's born right here in Toronto, see"

Illness forced Butwell to relinquish his job as patrol judge at New England racetracks, but latest reports from Boston indicate the veteran Toronto-born riding wizard is well on the way to recovery.

Oldtimer's Dufferin rail-leaning neighbor learned that Butwell was born at the corner of John and Front streets in Toronto, and attended John Street School until the urges to follow the ponies overpowered the lure of the classroom. He started galloping for the late John Nixon. One of Jimmy's first charges was War Whoop, the 1904 King's Plate favorite, which finished third to Sapper.

"Freichy Bastien," Oldtimer declared, "showed Jimmy how to hold a seat. Charley Bates helped the lad get his first mounts. Then he headed across the border, where Jimmy Keene gave him a job and started him on his way"

Even Rode for the Czar

Between 1904 and 1928 Toronto's Jimmy Butwell probably was astride more of North America's outstanding thoroughbreds than any jockey in history. He even took time out to spend a couple of years in Europe as contract rider for the Czar of Russia.

Jimmy's visits to Ontario were infrequent, because of his heavy program of stake engagements across the border, but he showed up in 1921 to win the King's Plate with Herendesy.

Back in 1912 when the Windsor Jockey Club was the mecca for many of America's greatest stables, Butwell won the Frontier Handicap with Star Charter.

Between Oldtimer's memory and the Racing Manual, you can find out about Jimmy Butwell for yourself. You'll spot his name listed as jockey of the winner in practically every major stake event ever run between 1909 and 1925. Only the Kentucky Derby escaped him.

Butwell had Derby mounts three times two of them history-making events. He was third with Sharpshooter when Regret, the only filly winner in Louisville records, triumphed in 1915.

He was in the 1919 Derby show when Sir Barton and Johnny Loftus surprised the turf world by beating Billy Kelly and Earl Sande by five lengths. Butwell was sixth with Be Frank. He was eleventh with Herron in 1920 when Paul Jones topped the parade. In 1926, when Hamilton-born Chick Lang triumphed with Reigh Count, Jimmy was way back in nineteenth place with Charmarten in a twenty-two-horse field, greatest ever to go in the Derby.

But only in the Derby was Butwell an also-ran. He swept through the racing calendar with victories in major stakes aboard such great performers as Roamer, Lucillite, Omar Khayyam Billy Kelly Boniface, Careful, Pebbles, Blazes, Buskin, The Masquerader, Ten Point, Sand Marsh, Hourless, Sweep, Joy Smoke, Ticket, Hilarious.

No wonder Oldtimer was disgusted at a neighbor who confessed he'd never heard about Jimmy Butwell.

Orioles Hammer Red Wings 6-3 Chiefs Scores 4-3

By The Canadian Press

The successful fight being waged by Montreal Royals and Jersey City Giants to overhaul the first-place Newark Bears, who assumed a commanding lead by winning 20 of their first 26 games, has received most of the attention of the International League fans.

The Giants have won 15 of their last 22 starts and now are serious pennant contenders. The Royals are only 2½ games away from the Bears.

There is only the difference of six games between the last-place Rochester Red Wings and the fourth-place Toronto Leafs.

Baltimore Orioles crept to within one percentage point of the Leafs, who remained idle yesterday, by hammering out a 6-3 victory over the Red Wings. Ray Roche held the Wings to three hits, one of which was a home run by Gene Lillard in the second inning.

The seventh-place Syracuse Chiefs defeated Buffalo Bisons, 4-3, in the only other game played to shorten to three games the distance that separates them from the sixth-place Bisons.

Mnagers Jewel Ens of Syracuse and Al Vincent of Buffalo were banished by the umpires during the sixth frame when the Chiefs scored all their runs to overcome a three-run Bison lead, enabling them to break a four-game losing streak.

Ens was chased for claiming that Dutch Mele's blooper along the left field foul line was fair while Vincent was given the thumb for arguing that Lindsay Deal was out sliding into third for a triple which drove in Syracuse's first two runs of the evening.

Some Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 12 —(CP)—When the Richards boys guide their mounts down the stretch, brotherly love disappears in the dust. Following the Round Tower Handicap at Windsor, Clifford lodged an objection against his brother Gordon, many-times Britain's champion jockey.

Gordon, on Lord Glanely's Crown Colony, had beaten Clifford on the heavily-backed Abbeville by little more than a length. It was a driving finish and the horses appeared to touch about a furlong from the winning post.

Following the race the brothers were said to have had a heated argument in the jockeys' room. The objection flag was hoisted but the protest was overruled.

The Barbarians, famed wandering rugby club nicknames the "Baa-Baas," are in again. They've played and won their first game of the season.

The club was founded by a select band of rugger enthusiasts at an oyster supper at Bradford in 1890. Since then it has been the ambition of every ruggerite to be invited to wear the Barbarians' famed black-and-white jerseys with monogram, and to have the privilege of wearing the "Baa-Baas'" tie of Oxford and Cambridge Blue with a white stripe between the blues.

The war has hit hard at the Barbarians' ranks. Since September, 1939, at least 10 "Baa-Baas" and International rugbyists have died or been killed on active service. Several others are prisoners of war.

It was mighty exciting when girl employees of two factories met in a football game—so exciting, in fact, that an appeal has gone out for sets of football boots and shin guards for the return match. It seems the gals played in gymnasium slippers and several were hurt. There was many a sort toe and one girl was carried off with a sprained ankle.

Three mobile kitchens containing everything from soup plates to floor mops, were presented by the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union to the Women's Volunter Service for Civil Defence.

Leary Nicholas Constantine, West Indies Negro who was the highest-paid professional cricket player in Britain before the war, is now welfare officer in the labor ministry. He looks after the comforts of 400 highly-skilled West Indian negro workers.

Former British lightweight champion, Cpl. Dave Crowley was kayoed by a fellow RAFer, AC. Jackie Rankin in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at London. The old "one-two" finished Crowley.

2 Royal Horses Favored To Set History

NEWMARKET, England, June 12—(CP Cable).—The King's horses and the King's men—his trainer and jockey—were one-sided betting choices to make racing history by winning both the Oaks to-day and the Derby Saturday.

No Royal 3-year-olds ever have hit this double in one year, but in the filly Sun Chariot, beaten only once in her career, and the colt Big Game, which never has been defeated, the King is favored to do it for the first time.

Already this pair has won two of the season's top classics for 3-year-olds. Big Game took the 2,000 Guineas and Sun Chariot the 1,000 Guineas, over the same Newmarket course a month ago.

Looks Like Sweep

And today, Britons were putting their shillings on His Majesty to sweep the big four for the first time in British racing. He not only has the horses, but also the trainer, for Fred Darling has won seven previous Derbies. What's more, Jockey Gordon Richards is the leading condidate for riding honors again.

The likelihood is for a field of a dozen in the Oaks and thirteen in the Derby, both over the mile-and-a-half route. The Oaks field was cut yesterday through withdrawal of Lady Derby's Light of Day. Chief threats for the Big Game in the Derby are the Earl of Derby's Watling Street, ridden by last year's jockey champion, Harry Wragg, and Lord Rosebery's Hyperides. Sun Chariot is eligible for both races and if she gallops to an easy victory in the Oaks, Trainer Darling may send her right back in the Derby.

Although war restrictions on transportation and lack of accommodations in this town will reduce the crowds from prewar levels, it is expected the stands will be jammed.

The King, through pressure of wartime work, has not seen his horses run this season, and it is considered unlikely that he will.

A double victory in the Guineas had never before been accomplished by a Sovereign, nor has the Royal stable ever won both the Derby and the Oaks—nor ever has it had such a good chance.

Odds-On Rating

The King's horses are expected to be odds-on favorites at post-time, not only because they are considered the most impressive thoroughbreds in many years, but also because they are trained by Darling and will be ridden by Richards, who rode them in their Guineas triumphs.

The Derby is the only major turf event that Richards, Britain's champion jockey in 13 seasons, has never won. A fractured leg kept him out of the saddle last season, but he has made a great comeback this year. Darling, who saddled Owen Tudor, last year's Derby winner, will be after his eighth Derby triumph, a mark which would break the record of seven held jointly by the late John Porter and Darling.

A temperamental lady, Sun Chariot remains a Derby entry, but turf circles hold the belief she will run only in the Oaks, an event restricted to fillies. In that race Lord Glenly's Perfect Peace is expected to furnish the stiffest opposition, as she did in the One Thousand Guineas.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

TORONTO, June 12 — (CP). — Retirement of Vancouver's Ken Black from all but charity golf competition recalls this story about the 1937 Canadian amateur tournament in Ottawa: One night Black was fooling around on a driving range, chipping to the green with an iron held backwards.....A gal watched him awhile, then walked over casually and remarked "I'm only starting this game myself, but I'm sure you'll do much better if you hold the club with the face pointing towards the green."

Black thanked her politely, and reversed the club.

Paddock patter:

Gayle Smith and Mel Peterson are juggling heatedly for top spot among Western jockeys....Each had won 20 races a couple of days ago.... Vancouver's 42 days of racing starts June 27 and the drums are beating ....Not many tracks on this continent can match Toronto Dufferin's betting systems.....The mutuels work on a $1 basis and among the bets is a $2 combination for place and show....That's the ladies' delight.

Incidentally:

Eddie Quinn, Montreal fight promoter, mused after Maurice (The Angel) Tillet drew only $1,800 in Chicoutimi: "They must be used to strange sights around there."....American airmen travelling north through Canada to Alaska make their own sport as they go along.. ..Last week Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell had a telephone call from one group asking him to arrange a softball game for them for the next day....Ken fixed it lining up some of Edmonton's best talent as opposition.

Joe Kennaway, former goal star with Glasgow Celtic, is the playing coach of Montreal Wings in the National Soccer League...Bill Durnan, Montreal Royals' goalie, won't be with Royals next year....A rink skipped by W. J. Arniel had an eight-end in lawn bowling at Kingston....That's as unusual as a no-hitter in baseball.....Army Week should turn up something special in athletics, but the details still are lacking.....Bill (Kingston Whig-Standard) Walshe reports a remark by Gnr. Ted Reeve topnotch Canuck sportswriter turned soldier.. ..Said Reeve, of his Army career: "If I ever get to England they'll take one look at me and say we've bled Canada to death."

GIRL GUNS GREASE!

MAKING automobiles last longer—run smoother—is Anne Snelling's contribution to the war effort. Another case of a girl doing a man's job—and doing it well. But it takes all the vim and energy she has. No wonder she's a booster for the "Self-Starter" Breakfast! Says a big bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes with milk and sugar helps her sail through her working day. Will help you, too. Red army fliers were credited with destroying or damaging 80 German tanks, more than 300 trucks and 12 munitions and fuel depots in widespread operations Wednesday.

Allied agreement on the urgent task of "creating a second front in Europe in 1942" cheered the capital.

Hugh street crowds listened in impressive silence last night to a broadcast announcing the Anglo-Russian Treaty and the Soviet union's understanding with the United States on war and post-war problems. Russian officials expressed profound satisfaction.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, who represented the Soviet Union in both London and Washington conferences, issued a 1,200-word diplomatic note charging deliberate atrocities to the German high command.

Molotov said the Nazi plans embraced "extermination of the Soviet population, prisoners of war and guerilla fighters by bloody violence, torture an dexecutions, and the massacre of Soviet citizens, irrespective of their nationalities, social standing, sex or age."

which ones to hit. In a melee there is no time for detailed assignments. We just went to work with torpedoes and bombs.

"The only thing I clearly remember as the dive bombers pushed over into screaming dives was that each pilot was yelling something into his radiophone, some cussing but most yelling 'Remember Pearl Harbor.'

"We did not catch the Japanese exactly flat-footed, but they got up no anti-aircraft fire until the attack had started. By that time it was too late."

"When we completed the attack," Burch said, "the harbor was filled with sunken and burning ships, a few of which managed to crawl to the beach to keep from sinking.

"Nine were definitely sunk, possibly 11. This included two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports. In addition we sank numerous small boats and lighters by strafing. We believe we also sank a seaplane tender and a third transport. The whole harbor was strewn with smoking wreckage...."

He declared also: "We have changed our official attitude from 'we can't' to 'we won't.' Is Canada's word to be broken? Shall a bitter posterity say of Canada, 'in the great struggle for human freedom Canada did not do her part so very well?'"

In his discusion of the liquor question, Mr. Hepburn disclosed he had given the matter of prohibition a lot of thought recently. As far as he was personally concerned, administering the Liquor Control Act was distasteful to him. It was a subject in which the human element entered to such a great extent. Real prohibition rested primarily on the individual.

"Prohibition in an area like Ontario, surrounded by the wet provinces of Canada and the United States would cause illicit liquor to flow in our direction like molasses in summertime," he said. "The supply would be augmented by bath-tub gin and squirrel whisky, causing, as it did before, blindness and insanity. Heaven knows our mental hospitals are overcrowded now. Do not add to our problem, for it is your problem inasmuch as I tax you for their maintenance."

Hit By Enemy Torpedo

The torpedoing of tankers and the speedy movement of the crew in its race for life, is not conducive to the careful taking of photographs. All the more reason that this remarkable picture making its appearance is so startling in its details. The ship, torpedoed and shelled, is half-submerged. Huge clouds of smoke from the blazing oil, still rise skyward. The sinking took place off South America. No other details are available.

the House resolve that such a measure, unaccompained by specific proposals for conscription wealth and industry, would be "contrary to the peace, order and good Government of Canada."

This amendment was ruled out of order by Speaker Glen. The speaker said it conflicted with House rules of procedure.

Mr. Coldwell, like Mr. Cardin, claimed that the country had been divided on conscription unnecessarily and said too much attention was being paid the military aspect and not enough to the material side of the war effort.

Mr. Blackmore dealt only briefly wtih conscription. He devoted his time largely to a demand for better distribution of resources ,better use of manpower, and assurance of an income of $50 a month for life to every serviceman and every serviceman's wife.

Want Bill Widened.

Mr. Douglas announced that he would not vote for the bill unless there was assurance that conscription of manpower would be accompanied by conscription of wealth, industry and material resources.

He said: "I'd vote against this amendment if only on the grounds that if men are to be conscripted they should be conescripted under a measure passed by this House with the machinery used subject to review by this parliament.

Mr. Roebuck said he interpreted the nine to one "Yes" vote given by his constituents in the plebiscite to be a vote for conscription and not a vote "only and exclusively to set a Government free from shackles of its own making."

His electors had placed a meaning on the "Yes" vote, "which was not the meaning given to it by the Prime Minister."

He was unable to complete development of this argument because of application of the 40-minute time limit rule.

Mr. Church expressed belief the Government's policy would prove a disappointment to those who had voted affirmatively in the plebiscite.

Capt. Lapointe, appearing in uniform, said he was opposed to conscription and would oppose the bill. He expressed confidence that more men would be obtained by volunteer methods than by coercion.

The Senate passed the $2,000,000,000 War Appropriation Bill and the Government's $750,000,00 Loan Bill. Two members of the Upper Chamber, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Conservative Leader, and Hon. C. E. Tanner (Con., Nova Scotia), criticized Canada's shipbuilding program .

Premier Applauds

In the House of Commons Prime Minister Mackenzie King sat listening and often applauding, while Mr. Cardin, his political and long-time cabinet colleague, assailed the government's handling of the conscription issue. Later Mr. King joined with many others in congratulating his former minister on the speech.

Mr. Cardin resigned his two portfolios of public works and transport in protest when Mr. King introduced his conscription measure last May 11, soon after the April 27 plebiscite in which the great majority of Canadian voters released the government from its pledges not to impose conscription for service overseas.

But Quebec electors had voted heavily against releasing the government from its pledge, Mr. Cardin said, and it was to them that the promise had been given.

He said: "We have been released by those who do not attach any importance to the pledges that were given because they were not interested at all."

Mr. Cardin said all government had promised Quebec continuously since Confederation that the people of French racial origin would never be forced to go abroad to fight.

Pledges to that effect had been given by Mr. King, the late Justice Minister Lapointe, and himself, and by the opposition leaders since the outbreak of war. The pledges had been given to get votes.

Now that pledged word was being ignored, said Mr. Cardin, and while he had always been willing to make concessions in the interests of harmony and unity, when a concession became a "betrayal" he refused to go to that limit.

He charged that the Government had followed a policy of "appeasement" in Quebec by telling the people through various means that there would be no conscription and that the measure was merely a "gesture" to satisfy other parts of Canada.

No Proof of Majority Vote

He would submit to the will of the majority, but there was no proof that the majority supported conscription since the plebiscite was according to the Prime Minister not on that issue.

He suggested that in moving toward conscription for service overseas, Mr. King was influenced by a minority less important than the minority in Quebec.

Mr. Coldwell opened the afternoon's debate. He said "in time of acute crisis the Prime Minister has been and still is pursuing his well-known technique of procrastination in the hope that time will solve the problems that cry for immediate solution."

The fact that passage of this amendment would empower the Government to enforce conscription at any time it desired without further reference to Parliament was "contrary to all the assurances of the Prime Minister that Parliament would decide that issue."

Mr. Coldwell said this policy brought confusion because those who want conscription "are incensed by it" and those against conscription "do not believe it."

"The result is further confusion, further argument and discussion, prolonged controversy and increasing bitterness.

"This lack of leadership, this policy of rift, cannot be tolerated any longer."

Too much stress was placed upon the military and not enough on the material aspect of Canada's war effort.

"I condemn as thoughtless and irresponsible demagogues those people who speak of this war only or mainly in terms of soldiers and more soldiers....

Need Better Plan.

"What we need, what we have lacked and still lack, is a comprehensive plan of selective service for our material resources as well as our manpower."

Mr. Blackmore declared the Prime Minister's claims of having mobilized Canada's resources appeared in the face of obvious facts, "mere gaudy and flamboyant twaddle, hollow, insubstantial and deceptive."

He listed a long series of social reforms which the Government should and could initiate, and claimed there was a great wastage of manpower owing to faulty planning by the Government.

Mr. Blackmore estimated that up to 150,000 persons in Canada now were out of work in spite of the great manpower need.

Spring Chickens Ease Slightly

TORONTO, June 12 — (CP). — The dressed poultry market is showing a little more activity, the Dominion Bureau of Agriculture reports, adding that evidently the meat situation is having some effect on the poultry market.

Receipts are more plentiful and are meeting with a fairly good demand. More fowl and broilers are arriving and there is a slight increase in arrivals of Spring chicken, 3½ to 4½ lbs, with quotations for these slightly lower. Some dealers are buying only enough light birds to meet current requirements. Frozen chicken are moving freely locally and out-of-town. The out-of-town shipments are composed of numerous small lots to eastern points and a fairly good movement to the north country. As is usual at this time of the year, the summer resort trade is beginning to open up. A few old turkeys continued to arrive, but are slow and storage stock of this kind of poultry is draggy.

One car of Grade B milk-fed chicken is due to arrive from the West this week costing 29c lb. with ½c spread on the ¼lb. average.

Quotations are practically the same as the previous week, with the exception of Spring chicken.

Dealers are quoting producers and country shippers, nominal:

Spring chickens—3½ lbs., 25c lb; 4½, 26c;.

Broilers—Grade A milk-fed, 27c lb; Grade B milk-fed, 26c; Grade A, 26c; grade B, 24c.

Fowl—Grade A, 5 lbs. and up, 233c; 4 to 5 lbs. 22c; 3 to 4 lbs, 20c. Grade B, 5 lbs, and up, 21c; 4 to 5 lbs. 20c; 3 to 4 lbs. 18c.

Old turkeyls.—Hens, 22 to 23c; toms, 18 to 20c.

Old roosters—16 to 17c.

2,599 Boxes of Cheese Are Sold Campbellford's Weekly Board

CAMPBELLFORD, June 12. — (ENS) — The Campbellford Cheese Board will not meet again until June 25 it was announced here last night. This decision came as the result of a motion passed on May 21st when members decided then to bring up the question of weekly meetings early in June. It was emphasised that the adjournment was only for one week since nearly all were opposed to any suggestion of suspending operations for a longer period. That this might help with the gas and tire situation in so far as both buyers and salesmen were concerned, was also taken into account in arriving at decision to adjourn. Cancellation of the June 18 meeting will not however hold up the delivery of cheese. By an arrangmement made last night buyers will have the same selections shipped to them automatically next week.

Thirty-two factories offered and sold a total of 2,599 cases of which 15 were colored and the balance white. Eight of them divided the white and J. MORE MEN.

Either the shortage of men is not so acute as has been indicated or there have been so many girls getting married that the shoe is now on the other foot. At any rate, instead of the usual two girls to every man, on Thursday night down town there were two soldiers to nearly every girl. Things must be looking up.

CADET DISCUSSION.

A request from the Navy League that the Board of Education endorse a plan to organize a sea scout corps in the city brought the whole questions of sea, air and land cadets in the open at the Board of Education Thursday evening. On motion of Messrs. Carley and Canning, the cadet committee of the Board was asked to bring in a report.

NEW MEMBER.

P. D. Scollard, local lawyer and former school teacher, was welcomed by members of the Board of Education on Thursday night. He replaces J. G. McCarney as separate school representative on the Board of Education. D. G. H. Melton voiced a formal welcome on behalf of the board.

WANT NAMES.

The R.C.A.F. Auxiliary of Peterborough would like to have the names of all the overseas boys from this county in the service. Send names to Mrs. R. Harle, 336 Rubidge street.

BRING ON THE RUBBER.

Art Metcalfe, who runs a service station out of Chemong, has a pile of tires stacked in front of his place of business to remind passersby that rubber is needed in this war effort. Farmers and others in the little community have been turning in the old tires at the garage, and the salvage is turned over to the Red Cross. Old tires should be dug out of drive sheds, tool sheds, garages and every other place, and turned over to the salvage. Canada needs that rubber now.

FIXING CONTROL ROOM.

An offer from the Civilian Defence Committee to decorate and wire a room in South Central School, 26 feet by 42 feet, for use as a report and control centre was received by the Board of Education on Thursday. The committee asked, however, that the Board supply and connect up radiators to heat the room. The Property Committee was asked to bring in a report, and in the meantime the room is available should the committee require it.

TEACHERS SEEK TRAINING.

Radical changes in the curriculum of school training to include the new course in defence training, has made it necessary for teachers to attend summer school to get training in the work. Dr. H. R. H. Kenner stated 13 teachers at the Collegiate were willing to attend the school. The Board of Education agreed to pay the $10 fee per person up to 13. The Government pays transportation and board.

BICYCLES STOLEN

Thefts of bicycles have not been so common here since the introduction of the license system, but two cases were reported to the police Thursday. A bicycle belonging to R. McQuaide, Mark street, was taken from the rear of the police station but was recovered last night on George street. A machine belonging to Reg. Green, George street, stolen from the Regent laneway, has not yet been recovered.

WRONG WAY

The top part of the back wall of the old Opera House fell with a roar and rumble across Water street, carrying scaffolding with it, and narrowly missing two cars. There was no person in the vicinity when the bricks flew.

IT CAN BE WORSE.

How would you like to have taken a hot water bottle to bed with you last night? An elderly citizen briefly reviewed the experience this morning, receiving due reportorial sympahty. His dentist wouldn't pull tormenting tooth, and just as he expected, night brought pain. So his wife filled the rubber bag, and the heat of it was just about the limit of endurance. But, of two evils or hurts! And with his face against the hot bag he finally fell asleep, unaware of the atmospheric warmth outside and in.

SUSPESDED SENTENCE.

At the suggestion of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., Magistrate R. B. Baxter in police court this morning suspended sentence in the case of a young man who pleaded guilty to stealing a sum of money. It was explained to the court that it was the first time the accused had ever been in trouble and that full restitution had been made.

JUVENILE DISCHARGED

A fifteen-year-old Otonabee boy, charged with failing to attend a drill of the 2nd Midland Battalion, appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter in juvenile court here this morning and the charge was withdrawn on condition that the boy return his uniform and equipment to the unit. He is below the legal age for enlistment in a reserve battalion.

Millbrook Man Breaks His Arm

MILLBROOK June 12.—(ENS).—Douglas Sheppard met with a painful accident on Tuesday, while unloading some heavy timber at the mill yard, when one piece, the end of which had dropped, came back with a rebound, striking his left arm, and breaking the bone between wrist and elbow As this is the busy season with Attwooll & Sheppard, the injured man is managing to go on with the business of the firm, despite a good deal of pain and inconvenience.

Whistle Announces Payments to Funds

About that off-the-beat blowing of a factory whistle at 11.15 and 11.30 a.m. today! It was down at Canada Packers, and there was nothing wrong. In fact you might say that things were emphatically right in that incident.

Of course it was unusual, an 11.15 blast. Some people down that way were curious about it, others were somewhat apprehensive. You know the proneness of folks to feel alarm about things that are strange and unexplained, especially in variations and divergencies from the established order.

Briefly those fifteen minutes meant time out for contributions to the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund. It sounded uptown when the fact arrived like a ceremonial flourish to an action which generally becomes mere routine. even removed from the contributors themselves, but in this method at C.P.C. an emphasis reflecting the importance of the fund and also its sustenance.

Some persons telephoned to the Examiner asking why the whistle was blowing before the work morning had ended.

Struck By Car Girl Suffers Bruises

When she was struck by an automobile while crossing Hunter street at Aylmer street, Thursday, Eleanor Sheehy, 18, of 366 Simcoe street, had her right elbow bruised but otherwise escaped unhurt.

The girl was crossing from the east side of the street to the west as J. W. Grandy, R. R. 1, Ida, drove his car south on Aylmer street.

Girls Complete Course As Inspectors

Lunch at the Alparka Bar to-day was the last for the group of girls completing the present month's inspection course in the big Genelco plant. The sentiment of farewell pervaded the corner spot where quite a number of the girls have been adding brightness and color to the daily lunch crowd.

They came from places near and remote in Canada, and now they are about to disperse to east and west with the likelihood that their Peterborough experience was merely a temporary acquaintance ,and that their paths will never cross again.

That was the spirit of this parting luncheon at Alparka. The regulars down there liked these girls. Nearly all of them are university graduates, espcialely from th west, where girls hope and striv for university degrees with which to approach life for its best offerings, but where local opporunity is far too meagre. From the middle west and the extreme west, from the educational areas surrounding the university centres, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and so on to Victoria, on the coast.

Enquiry down at the corner affords the information that this training in inspection was undertaken by the Federal Government, through one of its departments, in the need of obtaining a corps of smart girls qualified to do the work of inspection in various plants throughout the country where Government work was in progress. It transpired that intimations would be sent to the heads of universities, as one medium, seeking girls for this work, and in that way they came to Peterborough, the first of them about a year ago.

The classes averaged thirty to forty girls, and from all accounts the total number of Genelco graduates is between 300 and 400 when the present group leaves to-day. Incidentally it is understood that while the Government undertook this work providing training. Genelco put an adequate space at the disposal of those who were directing the classes of girls.

So far the demand from month to month has exceeded the supply. Industries all over the country send in requests for girls who have graduated from the inspection classes, and by the end of each month, a list of vacancies has been compiled.

The young "inspectresses" are allotted to those posts, and they are gone. Toronto, Regina, Ottawa Vancouver. And so one class concludes its work to-day and another begins next Tuesday. And from what the girls say this training course is "no cinch." It demands considerable study sometimes a great deal of it especially in mathematics with emphasis on trigonometry and some of the girls at lunch have admitted that it was a whole lot of headache for a while. But, all that was pleasantly behind them to-day as they arrived for their last lunch in the unconventional surrowdings of Alparka They will likely never forget Genelco and the corner spot.

Woman Has Knitted 184 Pair of Socks

Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholm, 535 Bolivar street is setting a fine record. She has begun her 185th pair of socks and expects to do as many more again. Not only does she knit socks, but she also does afghans and other knitted articles because she considers it her duty to help those boy who have given up good jobs and left their homes to defend Canada.

Although she has no one overseas herself, Mrs. Wolstenholm keeps a special lookout for mothers who have sons over there and tries to keep them supplied with socks and other comforts. This winter she gave up her meetings and parties and stayed home to knit because she felt it didn't hurt her to give up a little pleasure, when the men in the armed forces are making such a sacrifice.

"I think the women I know are doing a simply wonderful job, far more than I am contributing," Mrs. Wolstenholm said. "You have no idea how anxious those who cannot knit are to learn and they are so patient. I intend to keep on knitting just as much as I possibly can."

W. Lawrie Cameron Killed In Air Raid

Flt.-Lt. Wilfred Lawrie Cameron, nephew of Mrs. E. Ford, 583 Aylmer Street, and J. D. Cameron, 571 Gilmour Street, was killed in air operations over Germany, about two weeks ago, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cameron, Edmonton.

A commissioned officer in the R.C.A.F., he arrived overseas this year after serving nearly three years as instructor with the R.C.A.F. at Brandon, Camp Borden and Trenton. He was particularly well-suited to this work, for before the war he was a civilian pilot with the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company.

A younger brother, Sgt Pilot Gordon Cameron, is also stationed overseas with the R.C.A.F.

Trucks Moved 200 Loads Of Soil in Day

Two hundred truck loads of earth were shuttled across the south end of the city on Wednesday from the hillside site of the Wartime Housing Company's staff house on Monaghan Road to the municipally owned property between Rink and Townsend streets, west of George street.

And that was just one day's removal. This noisy and constant traffic has been going on for something like two weeks. W.H.C. is not likely to change the topography of that western slope of the city just across the boundary line from the Canadian General Electric Company, but apparently they are going to cut out a big hunk of the lower slope of the hill before they are finished with whatever landscaping is involved.

Each truck load is about four cubic feet, and the aggregate daily haul is 800 cubic feet. City Engineer Parsons estimated this morning, that to distribute a foot of earth over the Townsend street area, including the lacrosse box and adjoining land owned by the city, would require 6,000 cubic feet, a little more than seven days' trucking.

These Glenn trucks seem to be constantly on the road, going or coming, Wolfe, Albert, Rubidge, Townsend and Rink streets. Delivery of two hundred truck loads means 400 trips there and back, and the neighbors are willing to believe that this estimate is close to the actual performance.

Some of the earth has been top soil, and the rest is lower strata, even some quick sand. Meanwhile the upbuilding of the staff house is setting a rapid constructional pace.

Eight Men Join With Rangers

Eight more local men joined up with the Prince of Wales Rangers, Second Battalion, on Thursday evening, to swell the ranks of this reserve unit.

The men are all from the city of Peterborough, and enquiries received last night from other city chaps, indicates there will be quite a wave of recruits next week on Tuesday and Thursday. The ever-growing danger to the West Coast from the Japs is convincing many luke-warm prospects that they may be called on to defend their homes much sooner than they thought, and thus they can now see the value of having some training in the handling of weapons.

Cottage Rents Are Pegged At 1941 Level

Peterborough is a centre of a summer cottage district, hence the announcement by officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that the rental of summer cottages and other seasonal premises is just as much controlled by the regulations now in force as is the rental of accommodations available for occupancy the year round.

Unless specific authority has been received the rental ceiling affecting summer cottages and similar accommodations must not rise above that which prevailed during he season of 1941 and the owners of such premises must provide at the same rental, all services which were available to tenants during that season. If the premises were not rented last summer the rental applying to them during the most recent renting tenancy becomes the ceiling.

Individuals becoming tenants of summer cottages are also reminded that under the rentals regulations they are required to receive from their landlords at the time the oral or written lease is contacted a statement in a written form designated by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, setting forth the maximum rental applicable to the accommodation in question and the rental paid bp them and a second copy of this declaration must be made by the landlord within ten days.

Red Cross Praises Work of Students

The Red Cross is lavish in its praise for the work done by the high school students during the year. The last articles have been turned in and in this donation there were 457 garments. This included knitting for the soldiers, sailors anr airmen and for refugee children there were 30 complete units of seven articles each for girls size 4. These units consisted of nightgown, skirt, bloomers, cotton blouse, knitted pullover, socks and cap. There were dresses for which Richard Hall Company awarded a prize to the best sewer and which the ladies of the Red Cross said were beautifully done and artistic into the bargain. There were also afghans, knit by the grade niners who are all capable of knitting now, and next year the teachers in charge believe there will be a substantial increase because of this. This work is being shipped to Toronto, from where it will be forwarded to England.

Staff Changes Announced In City Schools

Changes in the staffs at various schools in the city were approved by the Board of Education in monthly session on Thursday evening when the changes were presented by Dr. C. M. Scott, chairman of the committee on appointments.

The first change called for the transfer of Arnold Noftall from the Prince of Wales School to the King Edward School as acting vice- principal with salary accordingly. Mr. McKee, is transferred from King Edward School to Prince of Wales School. Mrs. Payne is engaged as teacher at King George School for the term of one year at a salary of $950.00.

Considerable discussion centred around the resignation of Miss Anne Heideman as secretary of the Collegiate, and the resignation was accepted. However in the original report of the committee on appointments, Mrs. Minion who has been assistant secretary was named secretary, and Miss Margaret Westbye was appointed to the post of assistant secretary. J. E. Huggins, secretary advised teh members that Mrs. Minion did not care to accept the position of secretary, and therefore the entire question was referred back to the committee for further review.

Requests Assistant.

Following the regular board meeting, the committee on appointments went into session to dispose of the business which was piling up. A letter from Dr. H. R. H. Kenner advised the Board that he had joined the Collegiate staff as classical master in 1893, and in 1908 he was named principal, a postion he has held ever since. Dr. Kenner pointed out that it was customary in schools of that size to have a vice-principal, and he suggested the senior teacher L. J. Pettit for that position in order that the burden of work and responsibility might be lightened. This letter will be dealt with later by the committee.

Given Increase.

Miss Musa Cox, first full time music supervisor in the local schools, who has been on the staff for the past eight years asked for a salary increase. She stated her salary was now $1800 and she requested that a maximum of $2400 be set for the position. With an increase to $2,000 starting in September next. The maximum was set at $2,200 with $2000 salary starting September and $100 a year increase from then on.

Howard David, mathematics teacher at the Collegiate has been called up for compulsory military service, and the Board faced with one of the major problems of the year in trying to replace him. This man according to information tabled at the meeting is an outstanding teacher of mathematics, and is teaching pupils being trained for war industries under the War Emergency Training Plan. Mr. David explained to the Board at an earlier meeting that he had an opportunity to join the civilian branch of the R. C. A. F. as a teacher of metorology and mathematics and the Board granted him leave of absence under this arrangement. Now the Board feels that he is doing such valuable work on his job at the Collegiate that every effort should be made to secure an extension of time for him. T. J. Carley maved that the Board apply for special consideration in this case, in view of the fact that he is much more valuable to the war effort where he is than he would be a private soldier.

Seeks Increase.

Henry Toole, teacher in charge of long letter to the Board sought an increase in salary from $3300 to $3500. Such an increase would give him a salary the same as F. E. Johnston, who is in charge of the Vocational Department. The communication will be dealt with at a later date.

J. E. Huggins, secretary-treasurer of the Board was given an increase of $200.00 a year. Mrs. Harvey Webber, a supply teacher was taken on the public school staff for a year, and Mrs. Cargill, nee Miss Connie Legon will continue on the teaching staff for another year.

The final decision regarding a secretary to replace Miss Anne Heideman came with the appointing of Miss Margaret Westbye at a salary of $840.00. Mrs. Minion retains her postion as assistant secretary.

Await Decision On Housing Site

Wartime housing precincts still lacked information this morning about decision respecting the site of the next block of houses. Township ratepayers have heard nothing for some weeks since their protest to Housing officials, and in this instance the condition of "no news" is not exactly reassuring.

One report today intimated that the committee appointed by North Monaghan held a meeting last night for the purpose of considering other building sites to be recommended to the council in its intermediary service.

Even rumor has been dormant of late on the Monaghan front, but apprehension has been showing some life in anxious quarters.

St. Paul's Group Gives Aid To War Victims

All church people, no matter what creed or denomination, have been, and should always continue to be solidly behind every effort which has as its purpose the winning of the war, and the establishment of a just peace in which all may worship the Great Creator, and because the arch enemy arraigned against us has already destroyed this freedom of worship in the lands over which he now holds sway, this in itself is a solemn warning of what might happen to this land did he ever gain the upper hand. Then again, one of the virtue's of all church life, is to give succor to those in need, so that in helping the distress of those who have suffered through air raids over Britain, they re fulfilling the behest of the Master, when He said, "In as much as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto Me."

On a number of occasions, various groups of St. Paul's and other churches have contributed to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, and since of late, donations of this kind have not been so frequent as in the earlier days of the fund, it follows that a repeat donation from the Friendly Group of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, per Mrs. J. Smith, is most welcome with the inspiration it gives, that others who have also previously given may continue the good work of helping to restore the losses still being suffered by the people of Britain.

One donation in today's list given "In memory of June 12" speaks of a widow and family remembering the wedding anniversary of a husband and father who has passed on, by giving of their none too plentiful means to carry some good to others who through the ravages of war, have also suffered much.

Two box collections are listed, one at the United Cigar Store containing $1.05, and the other being the regular monthly collection from the box in the Bell Telephone Office which mounted to $1.60, bringing the total that has come from this one box up to $65.73.

With today's deposit, there is $1,575 in the Bank towards the 18th donation of £500, leaving a balance of $665 required to make up that amount.

Petain Now Sure Victory Not For the Axis

By Wade Werner,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, June 12—(AP).—Two years of war since Dunkirk have convinced Chief of State Marshal Petain that the Axis cannot win, authoritative reports from Vichy revealed to-day.

There was a time after the fall of France in 1940 when Petain regarded a German victory as inevitable; but now, these reports said, the old marshalis convinced Germany and her Allies will be defeated.

Vichy's collaborationist chief of Government Pierre Laval, however, still holds the contrary view. An American observer who recently talked with him quoted Laval as saying Germany could not be defeated and, moreover, it would be a disaster for Europe if Britain and Soviet Russia won.

Reliable informants in Vinchy report that Admiral Jean Darlan, Chief of the Vinchy Government's armed forces, holds a somewhat similar opinion.

Sources in close touch with developments around Petain pictured Petain as a patriot surrounded by intriguers and exposed to pressure from German authorities, yet laboring to protect the integrity of France.

Other Boche Methods.

German pressure is reported to involve other threats of dire consequences for the French if they fail to collaborate. These include even threats of reprisal against French prisoners of war in Germany. Some Frenchmen fear particularly the possibility these 1,500,000 prisoners in German hands might be maltreated or starved.

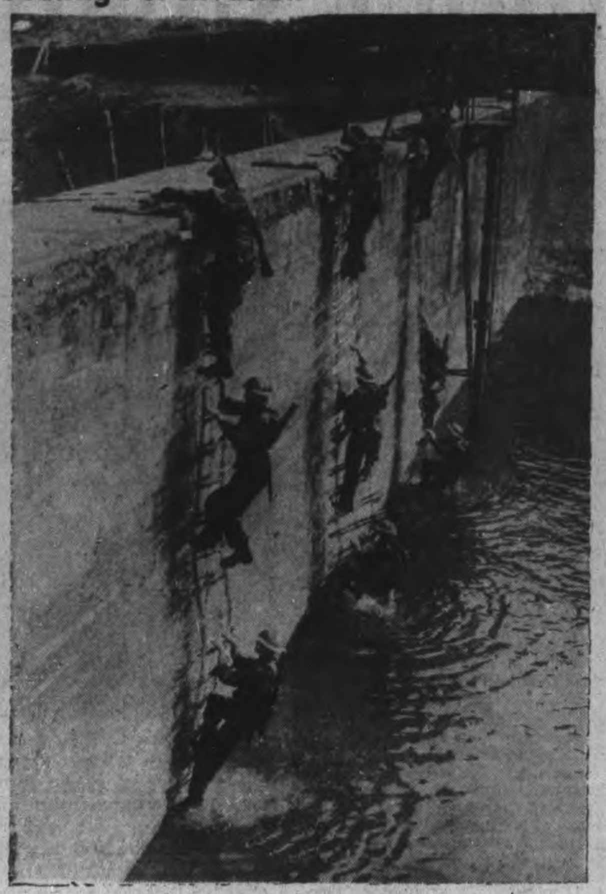
There are limits to what the Axis could accomplish by such pressure, however. As outlined in authoritative reports received here these limits are Hitler's reluctance to undertake a complete occupation of France, with the vast increase in troops of occupation such a move would make necessary; and, Hitler's equal reluctance to provoke revolution in France at the time he hopes to squeeze the utmost in war production out of French workers.

Thus, although it would be an easy matter for Laval to drive Petain into retirement with the help of German pressure, the Germans are not likely to do this if they think it would precipitate a revolution, with all a revolution would mean in terms of paralyzed production and economic disruption.

As for hopes of a general revolt against German forces in the occupied regions, reports received here indicate little chance of such a general uprising until Allied Forces not only have landed on the Continent but have demonstrated an abiltiy to maintain themselves there. In other words, Frenchmen want to be shown their revolt would be effective and would really help to end the war soon.

Attacks on German soldiers in occupied France and other distrubances embarrassing the forces of occupation still are unorganized and sporadic, according to these reports; but they might at any moment become widespread and overwhelming under the impetus of a really large-scale invasion by Allied troops.

Scaling For Invasion



One phase of the gruelling assault course now being undertaken by units of the British army is scaling a 10-foot wall with no assistance after swimming through water with full equipment.

Letter Received In City From Tanganyika

A letter from Tanganyika, Africa, literally worth its weight in gold, for it cost $2.02 to send, was received by Mrs. L. R. Groombridge, 263 Murray Street, from her brother there.

The letter was written April 18, but was not postmarked in the Belgian Congo until April 30, probably the delay being caused by the plane schedule. The letter was mailed from Ras-al-Tin, Tanganyika on the east coast of Africa, then crossed the Belgian Congo and the last postmark was Leopolduille in the west of the Congo bordering on French Equatorial Africa.

Her brother, Frank Hill, is in charge of the Imperial Airways at Lindi, where he has been for thirteen months and is expected to remain for the duration of the war. The place is so isolated that they are the only white people there, and their five-year-old daughter, Angela, who speaks Hindu and Arabic like a native, has had to go three hundred miles up the coast to St. Joseph's Convent, so that she may have the companionship of other children.

Clothing Situation Bad.

Mrs. Hill said the clothing situation there is desperate. There are no stores and because of the coupon system in England they can get nothing from home. Clothing is not being rationed in Tanganyika, but it is simply unobtainable. There are no theatres at Lindi or any other type of amusement and help is so scarce that Mr. Hill has to do all the office work besides his regular job.

The last time the Hills were home was in 1930, and his sister Mrs. Groombridge visited him in England. Since then he has served with the airways in Iraq, and Cairo Alexandria and Kenya. In all these places he has been presented to the highest dignitaries and has written some very interesting letters to his family.

"Being a girl has its disadvantages," Mrs. Groombridge said laughingly, "my brothers have all done a great deal of travelling and since I was the only girl I had to stay at home. The only travelling I have ever done was when I came to Canada."

She has two brothers serving with the Royal Air Force. Cyril Hill, who is on the medical staff and stationed in Scotland, was evacuated from Dunkirk. Albert Hill who is now stationed in Belfast, Ireland, walked 240 miles across France to Marseilles at the time of the capitulation, and was taken on board the Lancaster. On the way home the ship was stopped in the Bay of Biscay, and was bombed by German planes and hit, and the men were swimming around the water covered by two inches of oil which the Germans proceeded to set on fire.

There are a number of interesting stamps on the letter. A 50 cent one from Uganda, a 20 cent and a 5 shilling stamp from Tanganyika, and a Lindi stamp are among the more interesting. Upon inquiry, Mrs. Groombridge learned to send a parcel of clothes back by the same route would have charges amounting to $25.

Details of the new agreement were released in the House of Commons.

"V" Notation On White Pine Brings Reply From Britain

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 12.—Nothing much happens if you carve your initials on a tree, but put them on wood in a lumber yard and surprising things may come of it.

Jack Pousette Jr. was tallying at the McFadden Lumber yard, Blind River, last summer during the vacation, and wrote his address and a "V ...—" sign on some white pine lumber. A letter was received by his father recently from Coventry, England. The letter was as follows:

"Dear Jack Pousette: My husband S. E. Warner, had the luck to come across your address and 'V...—' sign on a piece of white pine. He works in a saw mill that turns out aircraft. He and his mates are all doing their bit and were glad to know you are doing yours. Yours truly, S. E. Warner (Mrs.)."

That little notation of Jack's may be invaluable to him when he goes overseas, which he hopes to do soon. The letter is being forwarded to Jack, who left Blind River High School after matriculation some months ago and is taking his military training at Peterborough.

Britain May Open India Dealings

LONDON, June 12—(CP).—L. S. Amery, Secretary for India, told the House of Commons to-day Britain is unlikely to take the initiative in reopening political negotiations with India, but would consider "any proposals submitted in agreement by leaders of British public opinion."

This reiteration of the Government's attitude followed publication in the Daily Mail of an interview with Mohandas Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, saying he was determined to press his demand that Britain quiet India with a new campaign of non-violent non-co-operation.

The Mail quoted Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the All-India Congress, as declaring he would back Gandhi.

2000 Men to Save Tons of Sugar

CHATHAM, Ont., June 11 (CP)—An effort will be made to place at least 2,000 men in the sugar beet fields of Kent County next Sunday in a determined effort to save the beet crop. These men will be sought in the city of Chatham and towns and villages of Kent. If two thousand men volunteer to assist in this unusual but necessary movement, it is estimated that at least 1,000,000 pounds of sugar can be saved for the Dominion of Canada this year. If the proposal fails, it is stated upon official expert authority, that this amount of sugar will be lost, through lack of labor in the fields.

It was announced this morning than an organization has been set up, headed by W. Davison, to rush through the arrangements to accommodate these 2,000 or more city, town and village workers.

It is suggested that volunteer organizations be set up in all other counties, where sugar beets are grown, and where difficulty is being experienced in getting labor to work them. If the idea is accepted generally it is believed that several millions of pounds of sugar may be saved for the Canadian war effort.

Only Single Peer In King's Birthday List

LONDON, June 12 (CP)—A number of baronets and knights, but only a single peer, were created in the King's 1942 birthday honors list, issued last night.

The new baron, Prof. John Maynard Keynes, was elevated for his services as an economist who helped evolve the financial system under which Britain maintains her gigantic war effort.

Prof. Keynes was the originator of the "forced savings" plan now under study here as a means of avoiding inflation. He is a director of the Bank of England and the author of numerous writings.

Best known among others named in the honors list is Lord Woolton, the food minister, who was named to the Order of Companions of Honor. This honor gives him no additional title, but adds to his designations the letters C.H.

Most of the list was made up of names of men and women who had helped prepare the defences of Britain and build and sharpen the weapons which some day — all Britons hope soon—will be turned against the Axis in a drive across the short seas that separate the United Kingdom from the continent.

Lord Riverdale, who headed the 1939 mission to Canada which paved the way for development of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, was made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire. Two air marshals, John T. Babington and John Bradley, were made Knight Commanders of the Bath.

Dr. Fyfe Honored

Among the Knights Bachelor was Dr. W. Hamilton Fyfe, principal of the University of Aberdeen and a former principal of Queen's University of Kingston, Ont. His namesake, comedian Will Fyffe, the Scottish actor, received a Companionate in the Order of the British Empire.

The only Knight of the Garter created was the Marquess of Zetland, one of Britain's foremost authorities on India and the Far East. The only Knight of the Thistle was the Earl of Airlie.

Among the new Baronets was Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, hero of the sea war in the Mediterranean. Acting Air Marshal Arthur Harris was made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

Other new Knights Bachelor were Alexander Korda, ace film producer, Charles Fairey, veteran aircraft manufacturer, Frederick Handley Page, who turned out the bombers that hit Germany in the last war, and Robert Watson Watt, pioneer in the development of radio location used in aircraft spotting.

Raised to Knights Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George were Sir Gerald Campbell, British Minister to the United States, and Sir Frederick Phillips, treasury representative in the United States.

Rationing Grows More Difficult

Rationing is becoming much stricter in England, according to a letter received by Mrs. McKenzie, R. R. No. 8, Peterborough from her cousin in London.

Nearly everything is rationed now. The people are allowed 2 ounces of butter, 4 oz. margarine, 3 ounces of cheese and 3 ounces of bacon a week per person. They are supposed to get a shillingworth of meat a week but it is now to be cut to eightpence. Meals have become a real problem. During the winter English people were lucky to get one egg a month, and the writer states that for the week of April 5 she was able to get one egg each for the members of her family.

"It is the dickens of a job to manage on such small amounts, she said. "Coal, gas, electricty, clothes and shoes are all rationed and prices are very high. In fact they have doubled and trebled in somethings and the income tax is 10 shillings on every pound. Our income is halfed and prices are soaring.

The letter mentions the fact that the winter has been very quiet and singularly free from bombs and gives as the reason for this period of calm, the magnificant struggle Russia has been making.

Allies Pick Off Grounded Jap Warplanes

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 12 (CP)—Allied airmen listed a Japanese submarine and a number of planes on the ground today as fresh victims of their southwest Pacific operations, but Australians were warned that another attack was probable.

Army Minister Francis Forde expressed belief in Melbourne that "we must be even stronger" defensively.

"No one knowing Japan's naval and miltary strength will be fooled into believing that she will accept the Coral Sea and Midway reverses, without hitting back," he said.

Mr. Forde conferred with Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, chief of the Allied ground forces, and Prime Minister John Curtin met with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific.

A communique announced that a reconnaissance unit "seriously damaged and probably sank an enemy submarine off the coast." Eight others are known to have been destroyed in Australian waters recently.

Allied bombs fell again yesterday on the airdrome of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, New Britain.

"A direct hit on a group of three bombers was observed," the communique said. "A string of bombs burst in the main building area among a large number of enemy planes. Eight (Japanese) fighters failed to intercept."

Sugar Rationing About June 22

OTTAWA, June 12—(CP).—Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said today that preparations for coupon-rationing of sugar were being made with all possible speed but it was not possible to say definitely when ration book application forms would be distributed.

(At Kenora, Ont., C. Earl Rice, regional operating officer for the board, said last night that ration book application forms will be distributed on June 22 and 23).

A board spokesman said it was possible that the distribution might be made about June 22 but no official statement as to the date was yet possible in view of the extensive preliminary work still to be completed.

A statement by Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, is expected within the next ten days, in which details of the coupon-rationing plan will be given.

Lads' Duel Fatal

PUTNAM, Conn., June 12—(AP) —A friendly, playful gun duel between two 16-year-old Woodstock schoolmates resulted yesterday in the death of one, Norman Clifford Basto, who suffered a .22 calibre bullet wound in the chest.

Coroner Louis Woisard of nearby Danielson said the duels between Basto and John Dodge reportedly were frequent occurrences and that "Wild West fashion" each would stalk the other firing their rifles as they went.

Guayule Planted On 50,000 Acres Of Nursery Beds

WASHINGON, June 12. — The total supply of guayule seed acquired from the Intercontinental Rubber Co. has been planted in 520 acres of nursery beds at Salinas, Cal., the Department of Agriculture has reported. The sowing of this total of 21,000 pounds of seed will provide enough plants for about 50,000 acres of field plantations next winter, the department said.

For this planting program, a preliminary survey of regions suitable for guayule cultivation is being made in California, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico The planting of seedlings on seventy-four test plots in those States was completed a month ago.

The amount of rubber produced by the cultivated guayule increases annually for a number of years, the department explained, and a yield of 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of rubber per acre in four years is predicted by rubber experts at the department. It is said that about 600,000 acres of guayule plantations would be required to provide 100,000 tons of rubber annually, if one-fourth of the plantations were harvested every year.

The department also is experimenting with 500 pounds of Russian dandelion seed from Russia, where two million acres annually are grown, yielding from 30 to 60 pounds of rubber per acre each year. Several northern States have been selected for trial plantings of this potential rubber source, the department said.

VON Hears Report On National Annual Meeting

The regular meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held on Wednesday evening with Mr. J. Dutton presiding. Miss Mary Ross reported that 456 visits had been made during the month and that admissions for the month totalled 57. Thirty-five visits were made to M.L.I. policy-holders, 14 for which the full cost of the visit was received. In regard to this, Miss Ross quoted from the report of the acting chief superintendent of the V.O.N. for Canada, in which it was stated that the services of the order could be more fully used by people in the middle income brackets, who neither need nor can afford full time nursing service, but who, when they are ill, frequently suffer neglect because they do not understand the services offered by the V.O.N.

Miss Bennett, Inspector of Traning School for Ontario, had a conference with the P.H.N. and the V.O.N., with regard to the possibility of giving the undergraduate students from the local hospitals some experience with the visiting nurse in the district, with a view to giving them a broader understanding of Public Health work. Co-operation with local hospitals in this respect was advised by the board.

Miss Winnifred Dawson, V.O.N. national supervisor, made her regular visit to the local branch. Mrs. J. F. Lynch gave a report on the annual meeting of the V.O.N. for Canada and Miss Ross gave a report on a refresher course in Child Hygiene which she attended in Toronto.

In her report on the annual meeting, Mrs. Lynch said that 96 branches of the Order were now established in Canada, and that after two and one half years of war, the Order is more vigorous than ever, with greater use being made of its service. In the report of the Education and Publicity Peterborough was commended for the admirable co-operation of the Staff and of the Board. Dr. Alan Brown was guest speaker at the luncheon and in his address he expressed the hope that the time was not too far distant when there would be a welfare worker in the Federal Cabinet for the purpose of looking after the needy children. The Order has made during the year, in Canada, 727,16[illegible] visits.

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

THE STORY: Hunter Dent, manager of Strickland Ballard's farm, has bet his wealthy employer his coming year's salary that Ballard will return the prize horse and new strain of corn which he has politely stolen, before the year's end. Hunter thinks he has a weapon to win his bet when Ballard's dissipated son, Junior, is found by Hunter lying unconscious beside a blood-stained satchel from the local bank containing $17,000. Hunter puts the money in a wall safe, carries Junior to his room. Ballard's daughter, Bella, shows Hunter a newspaper account of an attack on a bank messenger the night before. The messenger was wounded and robbed of $17,000. Bella wagers Hunter she can solve the mystery if he'll tell her whether Junior came to his room the night before.

JUNIOR—IN TROUBLE

CHAPTER III

SOMETHING happened to Hunter Dent in that kiss. He held the slim form of Red Ballard close to him. He put his mouth on hers, felt its softness, a tenderness, that had no place in a wager. For a moment he dared believe there was something more here than had appeared on the surface. He murmured, "You used to be such a charming brat, Red. So trusting, so—well, just everything."

"Ah, for the good old days!" She slipped a little way out of his arms. "You used to jounce me on your knees. You'd make my sorrel curls wiggle. Do you remember the time I dared you throw me into the river, bet you that you wouldn't do it, and you—"

"And I hurled you, curls, long legs, twisting body, and everything, right out in the middle of the great river! It should have been a lesson to you."

She sighed. "It was. But I never profited by it." For a dreamy moment she clung to him laughing, and drew entirely from his embrace.

Her voice was practical. "Now the clew. Come on, come on—the clew."

Hunter took on a vague air, for he was trying to think his way through a sudden problem. "Ah yes—the clew. H-mmmm. What was the question?"

"You know very well that I asked you if my brother Junior Ballard was here last night! Was he or wasn't he?"

Would Junior Ballard have wanted his sister to know. Would it not be wiser for the moment to protect Junior; for Hunter could not guess the possible complications the presence of $17,000 of funds from the First National Bank would bring about; he perhaps would be protecting the girl as much as young Ballard by not talking too much. There was a way out.

"Why, Junior this moment is in his room."

She seemed surprised. "His room; Wasn't he—"

"I suppose after the party and a big night he came home and crawled into bed. Fact is I saw him go to his room and go to bed."

Suddenly she started away. Hunter followed half across the rear lawn. He hardly knew why he felt this way—not wanting her to go to find Junior. Just then there was a blast of a motor horn out in front. Instead of entering the east wing of the big house, where young Ballard's room was located, Red, recognizing the horn, ran lightly by a footpath around. Hunter went to the corner of the house. The big blue roadster was familiar to him too.

THE young man at the wheel was Oliver Tisdale. He was bareheaded. He seemed disheveled. Something in his manner suggested great anxiety, and Hunter thought he detected a worried note in his voice when he called to Red. The girl ran up to him. She leaned on the rim of the car door. Hunter went quickly into the house.

He met Warwick, the butler, in the corridor. "The young master is in his room, isn't he, Warwick?"

"Why, yes, sir Mr. Dent I am quite sure of it. He would be still asleep sir."

"Do you know what time he got in last night—this morning?" He watched the man closely for if no one had seen Hunter carry Junior in, the situation would be simple.

"W-well, the young master usually is quite early in getting in. It must have been about 2.30 when I heard him enter. I didn't see him come in, but I was awake, sir, and noted the time."

"The party broke up a little earlier than usual didn't it, Warwick?"

"Yes, sir, Mr. Dent, it did."

"About what time—did you notice that?"

"Midnight, sir, perhaps a few minutes afterward."

"It was quite a party, wasn't it?"

"Yes sir, it was."

"Who were here — could you say?"

"Why, yes, sir, I think I could name most of the guests. There were the twins—"

"The Ghibartos?"

"Yes sir. And Mr. Tisdale, quite naturally."

"Naturally."

"And Mr. Hankins Temple, sir; and the Misses Etta and Jane McDougal; Bill McKeever, and Mrs. Ballard's brother Neal—just the usual crowd, sir. I'd say none of the familiar group were missing, and there were no new faces."

Hunter turned them over in his mind. The Ghibarto twins were sleek handsome fellows, with the mystery of strangers; they were the sons of one of the master contractors at what was known in Middleton as the "Shell Plant." This was a huge ordnance manufactory built by the government in its defense program about 40 miles south of Middleton. Hunter checked the rumor of scandal in the erection of the plant, and the gossip that the elder Ghibarto might be involved. He went no further than that in his thinking now. Hankins Temple was the son of Leland Temple, president of the First National Bank. He was a charming young fellow, whom Hunter really respected and liked. The McDougal girls were pretty young singers, who plugged the Ballard Bitters over the local radio station. Their father, "Bugs" McDougal, was a stockholder in the medicine company. Bill McKeever was a noted football star. Neal Frazier was the lazy, good-looking brother of Strickland Ballard's youthful second wife. A kind of hanger-on of a wealthy kinsman's house. All estates have them as ornaments.

A SPORTING collection, Hunter thought. All of them were unusual and individualistic. He could say this for all the Ballards: they were not snobs. There was still a democracy about their friendships not based on money values alone. To be sure almost all of the young friends of the house were from the holders in the Ballard company. But that was not the basis of the communion. Hunter, for instance, could have been a member of the group. He had neither money nor medicine stocks. But he was personable, well educated, an expert in his line, and an individual. These qualities would have given him entree on an equality with the rest. He had declined to use his advantage maybe out of jealousy. He didn't know. But it got back, always to Red. Maybe he loved her and because he could not have her now he was enjoying a contrary tantrum.

"I'd better go and see how Junior is," Hunter said.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Dent," Warwick said.

The butler followed Hunter into Junior's room. Junior was lying in just about the same position Hunter had left him. But there was some change Hunter did not immediately understand. He moved closer and suddenly drew back. He turned to look at Warwick. The butler's voice was hoarse with fear when he said, "What is it, sir? Is he—"

Hunter bent over Junior. He gently rolled the boy over. The face was as colorless as the bedsheet. The blood stains that Hunter had thought were from the scratch on Junior's arm seemed bigger. Hunter looked at a hole in the black coat. He unbuttoned Junior's shirt. Warwick hovered anxiously by.

"You'd better call a doctor quick. You'd better telephone Mr. Ballard too. He and Mrs. Ballard are in town at their home. Get in touch with them immediately. Junior has been shot, and I think he is dead."

As Warwick hurried out Hunter bent to listen to Junior's heart, to make sure if the boy were dead or alive.

AWARDING CHILDREN TO DAD MIGHT DECREASE DIVORCES

Two Women Explain How They Ended Middle-Aged Husbands' Romances

According to the old adage, the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof, and among the most interesting of the human documents that come to this column are letters from women who tell how they have solved certain vital problems in their lives. After all, our theories are merely fine-spun fancies, based on wishful thinking, that may, or may not, work out in actual practice, but the plan that has proved itself a success when put to the test comes with the authority of experience, so the words of these ladies who have found a remedy for one of the major headaches of their sex are worth listening to.

Of course, the great trouble with wives is what to do with, or to, husbands who get that tired feeling along about middle age and ask their Marias for divorces as casually as they would ask for another piece of pie. Naturally Maria doesn't want to hand out a decree absolute and see some other woman half her age and a third her weight splurging around on the fortune she has helped build up by pinching pennies and cooking and washing and scrubbing and pushing her own baby carriage.

She doesn't relish the thought of being thrown out on the scrap heap along with the other odds and ends of discarded furniture for which her husband has lost his taste. Nor does the life of the gay divorcee, as it is pictured in novels and plays, appeal to her. As she has seen it in real life it has more tears than champagne in it, and the ex-wife spends more time trying to collect her alimony than she does in dancing the rhumba.

Besides, for some unaccountable reason, she still loves the poor, unstable, befuddled creature to whom she is married. She knows him better than he knows himself and she is perfectly aware that he doesn't really want to divorce her. He just thinks he does. He has a passing fancy for some pretty little golddigger and he would be perfectly miserable when he waked up from his trance and found himself married to a strange woman who didn't know or care anything about his rheumatism, and who couldn't cook to suit him.

Tears Do Not Help

So, on all counts, the old wife wants to save her job, her husband, herself, her children and the home, but the question has been how to do it.

Most wives have tried the tear route, which got them nowhere. Others have sought to lambast their husbands back into the straight and narrow road with reproaches, which only drove them to the ladies with honey on their tongues instead of gall. But one wise dame—may her tribe increase—turned the trick by giving her husband a preview, so to speak, of what life with the Other Woman would be.

She says: "When I discovered that my husband was getting interested in another woman and he began telling me how brilliant and fascinating she was and how much they had in common, I invited her to our country place for a month's visit. For a couple of days everything was just lovely. He and the lady looked in each other's eyes and their souls communed together, while I helped the cook prepare feasts for them. Then, suddenly, the cook got word that her mother was very sick and I got a telegram calling me to my sister, and we left them flat.

Romance Starved to Death

"Well, it transpired that the charmer knew more about transcendental philosophy than she did about a cook stove, and after wrestling with a can-opener and eating warmed-up messes the affair just starved to death. And when I returned my husband welcomed me back with open arms."

"My husband fell in love with a girl of 18," wrote another woman, "and demanded that I give him a divorce so he could marry her. I said very well, provided you take all the six children and deed over your property to me. I married you because I loved you when you didn't have a cent. Surely SHE will be willing to do the same.

"Well, that ended that romance. The girl couldn't see herself marrying a poor man and struggling with a ready-made family that ran from adolescents to a teething baby. It is my opinion that there would be mighty few divorces if the courts awarded the children to the father instead of the mother, and I advise other women to run the bluff that I did. It will work."

What about trying these two recipes for preserving the home, ladies?

For Saturday, June 13

THE LUNAR TRANSITS having effect on the affairs of this day may be considered fairly fortunate and encouraging particularly as they bear influence on the personal life. There may be benefits or favors coming from relatives, superiors or elders although it would be well to exercise much vigilance against deception, misrepresentation, distortion or other treacheries in connection with business contracts, writings or legal documents. Shun legal entanglements and fraud.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly prosperous and pleasant year, with affairs of a social or domestic nature engaging the attention. There may be benefits or gifts from elders or relatives, but in all associations there is need for alertness against fraud, deception, trickery and dangers from theft or falsity in papers, contracts, correspondence and litigation.

A child born on this day may be gifted with fair social or artistic abilities with cleverness and versatility in business, although inclining to employ expediency rather than principle in its transactions.

(I was shocked!)

I thought my little girl's dress was white until...

I saw it side-by-side with Phil's Rinso-Washed blouse

You'll never be satisfied with anything else once you see RINSO WHITENESS

MOTHER: I do declare! Your little boy's blouse is so much whiter than Helen's. I'm jealous.

FRIEND: Goodness! There's no need to be jealous! Use Rinso, the way I do. Rinso gives the whitest wash; and besides, it keeps washable colors bright as new.

MOTHER: That sounds marvelous. I'm so glad to know Rinso is good for both colors and whites.

FRIEND: Yes, indeed! Rinso is best for all the wash. And you never have to rub or scrub with Rinso. My, how that helps make clothes last!

MOTHER: I'm certainly going to get Rinso and use it this coming washday.

FRIEND: That's smart. You'll never be satisfied with anything else once you've tried Rinso. And be sure to get the GIANT box for extra economy.

"Good Swing" Makes Good Golf Noted Teacher Says

Practise by Swinging a Weight

How you swing—that and that alone decides the class of your golf says Ernest Jones, famous golf instructor.

Really swing and you're right up with the good players; just think you swing and you stay a dub. But there's nothing hard about learning to swing properly.

The best way to get the feel of a real swing is to tie a penknife to a handkerchief and swing that. Then try swinging the club and the weight at the same time. If weight and club move back and forth together you've got it! If not, here are a few helpful pointers.

Don't steer the club with your wrists, but—with arms relaxed, with a rhythmic feeling—SWING the club, in wider and wider arcs. Think of the club head as a weight hanging from your hands, swinging like a pendulum.

And don't study the actions of other golfers piecemeal—the way they move their arms, shoulders, legs or hips—because swinging isn't any combination of separate motions. It's a single motion, as simple, relaxed as throwing a stone.

Our 32-page booklet by Ernest Jones, teacher of champions, thoroughly explains the right way to swing, correct stance, balance, how to hold the club. An aid to both beginners and more advanced golfers.

For your copy of "Swing's The Thing In Golf" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of Booklet.

MISPLACING THE LEAD

IT IS SOMETIMES well to violate the customary injunction to keep the lead, following a successful finesse, in the hand from which the finesse was originally led. Some other suit may require finessing in the opposite direction, in a situation which requires two leads of it. In that event you may wish to switch the lead to the opposite hand on an earlier trick by overtaking one of your otherwise good cards.

Did you ever break a kibitzer's heart? East practically did so with this deal. After the diamond 7 was led to the Q and K, East laid down the club A and then the club 9, letting it ride. The club K then dropped the Q and two more clubs were cashed. The heart 9 brought forth the J and K, marking the Q in the North hand. East's only chance to get his Q now was to drop the heart K if it was unguarded, but the laying down of the A failed to accomplish that. As a consequence, the opponents then scored tricks with the Spade K and A, and two diamonds, chastising the declarer.

East could have made the contract easily if, after winning tricks with the diamond K and club A, he had led the club 9 and overtaken it with the club 10. Then, after a heart lead bringing the J and K, he could have again gone back to the dummy with the club 8 to the K, finished up the club suit and then finessed hearts a second time. Thus, he would have taken one trick in diamonds, five in hearts and five in clubs, a total of 11, and would have lost tricks only to the spade A and diamond A.

So He Left Them

PORTLAND, Ore., June 11 (AP)—Fireman Ed. Lawrence rolled out with the alarm. In his haste he knicked his pants and shoes under the bed. Madly he groped for them, but the truck was roaring, ready to move. There was only one thing to do, and he did it. At the fire it wasn't the heat made his face red.

Dairy Farmers In Hastings Set New Record

Few Durham farmers have planted corn yet, according to the weekly report of the Department of Agriculture. Hastings dairy farmers set a new record last Thursday when they sent 5,150 cheese to the Belleville board. At the same time the Northumberland factories boarded 2,425 white cheese, an increase of 34 per cent over the output for the corresponding week last year.

Prince Edward says about 50% of the tomato crop has been planted, and from Victoria this mournful note "very little seeding has been done this last week."

Dozens of farmers in north York have not yet done any seeding. "These farmers are faced with a very serious situation as even the fall wheat and meadows are becoming very yellow from excessive rainfall."

Demand for dairy cows is keen in Dundas-Stormont. Frontenac pastures are excellent. Most of the cheese factories in Glengarry are making more cheese than last year, and that is saying a great deal. In fact every section of eastern Ontario turns in the same report of excellent pasturage, and that area extends from Toronto to Ottawa.

Acreage of Sudan grass in Lanark will be much in excess of the average. Lennox-Addington made last week twice as much cheese as a year ago. Here and there farmers are cutting the hay crop.

The agricultural representative in Huron waxes slightly poetic in his report "Cattle are knee-deep in good pasture."

Fall wheat is heading out in Perth county. "About fifty men from the Stratford industrial firms will be available for two weeks to help farmers." Something like that was suggested for this county but nothing ever came of it.

North Simcoe is "water-logged," and for most of the farmers this has proved to be the most hopeless spring in decades. South Simcoe observes serious losses of surface soil by erosion of recent rains. Wheat is four feet and more in Elgin.

Haldimand farmers are fearing that wheat will lodge, it has grown so rank and soft. Lincoln reports new cabbage on the market at 15 cents a head.

Presbyterians Ask Ministers Be Allowed Tires

MONTREAL, June 12 — (CP).— The Presbyterian church in Canada ended more than a week of business, when it brought its 68th General Assembly to a close at Knox Crescent Church here Thursday.

Discussion of several matters which will be referred to stated boards and committees for consideration, featured the day's sessions. Results of these matters by the committees are to be reported on at the 1943 Assembly in Hamilton, Ont.

Among items referred to the Board of Adminstration was a plea for tires for ministers' cars, appointment of a full time treasurer of church and a minimum stipend for ministers. An overture of the Stratford Presbytery asking that salaried officials of the Presbyterian church be retired at 70 years of age was also referred to the Board of Administration.

In commenting on this, Rev. S. J. Macarthur of Nova Scotia, said, "It does not matter how old a man is, or how young he is, it only matters what he is."

An advisory committee chosen to assist Rt. Rev. Norman A. McLeod, D.D., Moderator of the General Assembly, during the year, included Very Rev. Dr. M. A. Campbell, Dr. A. S. Reid, Dr. A. M. Hill, all of Montreal; Dr. J. B MacLean, Huntingdon, Que; Rev. Henry Cousens, Brockville, Ont.; Mr. J. Harkness K.C., Cornwall, Ont., and Mr. A. D. Kyle, Montreal.

A Rap at Policy.

Rev. J. L. W. McLean of Victoria B. C., criticized the policy and membership committee headed by Dr. S. C. Parker, Toronto. The assembly agreed to add Dr. A. M. Hill, convener of the Board of Missions, and Dr. J. M. MacGillivray, Sarnia, to the committee.

Mr. McLean said that he felt that the chaplaincy committee should pay more attention to the home front, and that the policy of the committee should be that when a man could not be replaced in the work he was doing in his own field he should not be attached to the armed forces.

Mr. McLean said he had tried without success through correspondence with the committee to have them adopt his view, and that when he broached the subject personally when the committee was meeting during the assembly sittings "I was dismissed by the convener as only the convener can dismiss a man."

Dr. J. W. MacNamara, clerk of the Assembly, appealed to delegates not to make any radical changes in the committee at the present time.

The report of the Pension Board urged that all congregations should accept responsibility for payment of their rates to the fund for retired minister, their widows and orphans.

Flower Memorial Held At Warsaw

WARSAW, June 12 — (ENS).— The flower memorial service in the United Church was held on Sunday evening before a large crowd.

The children's choir sang two anthems suitable for the occasion.

Flowers were placed on the altar in memory of many who brought beauty to the church and community life and their names were read in tribute during the service: Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miller, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Coleman, Rev. D. R. and Mrs. Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Somers, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Payne and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. William Dewart, Mr. and Mrs. William (Addie) Payne Mr. and Mrs. William Wasson, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kidd and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Payne, the 26th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Clysdale, Pte. Stanley Wade Payne, serving with the C.F.C. in Scotland, Albert McQuaig, Pte. Kenneth McQuaig, serving in Toronto, Mrs. Stewart Miller and Methune, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Weller Mr. and Mrs. Levi Taylor, the many brave boys who are now offering their all that Freedam and the Church may live, Mrs. Oliver McIlvena, Mrs. Allen Taylor, Thomas Elliott, Jack Gormley, Mr. and Mrs. I. Watts, parents and brother of Mrs. T. Clements, parents of Mrs. David Taylor.

Mr. Snelgrove spoke of the beauty of flowers whose beauty is the result of the touch of God and the touch of men. Children are the flowers of life. They get their root nourishment from the home, their strength from the sunshine of God, and their air from the environment around them. They will grow strong as they take that strength into every day life, avoiding the stings of the poisonous insects, growing slowly day by day for there is no quick way to grow strong. It is the task of the adults of the community to keep the freezing and the dwarfing factors of our community life from stunting the growth.

At the close of the service the flowers, which banked the altar, were sent to those people of the community who, by reason of health were prevented from attending the church, thus they brought beauty in a two-fold purpose.

TIPS on the new RAYONS

The new rayon stockings are lovely—every bit as glamorous as silk—BUT you must give them gentle care!

1. When you buy be sure of foot and length measurements.
2. Put them on carefully—just as you did your precious silk ones.
3. Don't use harsh soaps—don't rub or twist them. That weakens delicate threads and results in runs.
4. Do dip them in lukewarm Lux suds the minute you take them off. This saves elasticity—helps them to fit better.
5. When drying gently squeeze out moisture. Don't wring! Then roll them in a turkish towel.
6. Don't use clothespins! Hang over a smooth rod, away from heat and sun.
7. Dry thoroughly. Leave them a full day after you've dipped them before you put them on again. Rayons are strongest when perfectly dry.

For longer wear, dip your rayon or bemberg stockings in LUX after each wearing. Lux whisks away harmful perspiration which rots delicate threads. Lux cuts down embarrassing, costly runs.

New Convoy Of Yanks In Ireland

Troops In Thousands Include Armored Tank Destroyer Units

By RICE YARNER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

With The United States Army in Northern Ireland, June 13—(AP).—Thousands more United States soldiers, including tank destroyer forces as well as addition armored units, have arrived in Northern Ireland, it was announced today.

The transports crossed the Atlantic without incident, with U. S. warships participating in the escort.

Most of the troops were from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Georgia, Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, California and Indiana.

Twenty-eight ton tanks swung from the ships' holds to the docks, swelling the total brought over by earlier contingents.

The band accompanying the new arrivals gave a festive air to the Ulster port as it blared out "I Don't Want To Walk Without You," "The Jersey Bounce," "Elmer's Tune," and "Deep In The Heart of Texas," while the troops marched down the gangplanks.

Even while the men were waiting their turn to leave the ships, the usual scramble began among British soldiers and dockworkers for American cigarettes.

Troops Swap Coins

This time the soldiers also tossed nickels, dimes and quarters ashore in exchange for big British pennies.

Cheers from the transports drowned out the band music every time members of the WRENS, ATS, or WAAFS—Britain Women's Auxiliary Forces—sauntered past.

The fun ceased, however, when the men's turn came to go ashore.

Led by First Sergt. Wallace Jennings of St. Louis and Lieut. Robert Gibson of Charleston, W.Va., the steel helmeted troops, with full packs, barely had time to exchange words of greeting before they were whisked away in trucks to camp.

Negro soldiers among the contingent are the first to arrive in Europe since the First Great War.

The Greatest Convoy

London, June 13 (CP)

COMMENTING on the arrival of a new United States army contingent in Northern Ireland, the BBC today indicated the troops came with "the greatest American convoy which ever crossed the Atlantic."

The BBC also used the date-line phrase "western front" for the first time in commenting on the arrivals.

"This report about the landing of American armored units comes immediately after the report that the greatest American convoy which ever cross the Atlantic has safely arrived in Great Britain," the BBC said.

Intend to Stay

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 13—(AP). —Dispatches from Tokyo today quoted an Imperial headquarters announcement that operations are continuing in the Aleutians and said informed quarters generally interpreted this to mean it is intended to occupy the islands as a future base of operations against North America.

Port Hope War Reaches Stage Of Civilian Blitz

PORT HOPE, June 13.—(By Staff Reporter). — Secure in the knowledge that the man with the vote has the power to correct any injustices araising out of the democractic way of life, the citizens of Port Hope marshalled their forces for a fight to the finish against the High School Board, for dismissal of the High School principal G. L. Brackenbury.

Included in the broad sweep of an aroused public opinion is Mayor Sherman Gifford, and judging from the comments from the average citizen, His Worship the Mayor appears slated for the discard when the citizens rally to elect another Chief Magistrate for the town. The Mayor has riled the people on two counts, at least, he has riled that portion of the general public who are fighting to reinstate Mr. Brackenbury. The first count alleged is that the Mayor failed to regard as confidential a story told him by Mr. Brackenbury, relative to the workings of the school, and the second count is that Mayor Gifford did not give the deputation from the Citizen's committee a proper hearing at the last Council meeting. While both counts appear debatable, they are nevertheless allegations made by the forces supporting Mr. Brackenbury.

Rank Injustice Claimed.

The story of the dismissal of Mr. Brackenbury by the High School Board, now extends over a three month period, but it was not until six weeks ago, that the crusaders took up the cudgel to correct what they claim is a rank injustice. The tempo of their broadside will be fired when a committee from the Citizen's committee will await on the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, meeting in regular session at Cobourg. This council appoints one member of the Board, and it is claimed by spokesmen of the committe that if this member is elected by by-law, then the by-law can be rescinded. At any rate should this be impossible, they want the axe to fall, just whenever legal practice will permit it.

Highlight of the activities in the town to date is the fact that close to 1,000 townpeople have signed a petition addressed to the three bodies who appoint the members of the High School Board. The Board is an appointed rather than an elected body. Port Hope Town Council appoints three members, Public School Board appoints one, and the United Counties Council appoints another. It is admitted by the people heading the Citizen's committee, that all of these men are citizens of substance with long years of valuable service

Axis Driving To Split Libya Units

Rommel Flung Off El Adem 15 Mi. South Of Tobruk

CAIRO, Egypt, June 13.—(AP). — The Axis armored forces of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel were reported by British headquarters today to have thrust toward Acroma, about 10 miles west of Tobruk, in the Battle of Libya.

The communique said, however, that "all positions are intact."

An Axis attack on El Adem, about 15 miles due south of Tobruk, it said, has been repulsed.

"There was severe fighting all day yesterday in the area south of El Adem," the communique said.

Axis planes were said to have played a supporting role in the unsuccessful attack upon the British position at the desert town itself.

"Enemy armored troops," the communique said, 'then manoeuvred around El Adem and were directed on Acroma. They were heavily engaged by our armored forces and attacked throughout the day by the R.A.F. Considerable damage was inflicted on the enemy, but details are not yet available."

Losing No Time.

The push toward the Mediterranean coastal area came less than 48 hours after the Free French and British forces abandoned the heavily-battered oasis stronghold of Bir Hacheim, 50 miles inland.

By his thrust toward Acroma, authoritative commentors said, Rommel was putting his original plan for the campaign into effect, now that Bir Hacheim has been eliminated.

This plan, apparently, was to sever the coatal road west of Tobruk and east of Ain El Gazala, and then strike directly at Tobruk. But his forces were driven back from the coast and became tangled in the "cauldron" around Knightsbridge behind the British line.

It was believed he now intends to drive again toward the coast with the purpose of splitting the British forces at Ain El Gazala and Tobruk.

Lummis was awarded the decoration for saving 12 aircraft at Trenton, by extinguishing a fire in a hangar. He showed exceptional courage and presence of mind, in executing the task.

MOSCOW, June 13 — (AP). — Soviet troops counter attacked in the Kharkov sector of the Ukraine yesterday after 48 hours on the defensive, and levied a heavy toll on German manpower and material in the Battle of Sevastopol, the Russians said today.

Tremendous losses in the new Crimean campaign have led the Germans to make "increasing use of Rumanians as cannon fodder," and 200 of these Axis allies were killed in four futile "psychological" attacks by a Rumanian battalion yesterday, the Soviet information bureau said.

Fifty Nazi tanks were destroyed and 12 damaged before Sevastopol, besieged Crimean naval base now in the ninth day of a desperate stand against a German offensive.

"Ten artillery and morta batteries were put out of action," the Soviet information bureau said, "and three regiments of infantry and a squadron of cavalry (representing from 3,500 to 7,000 men) were annihilated."

Cautious Reports

However — although the army newspaper Red Star reported yesterday the Sevastopol defenders had even gained ground in some areas—the information bureau did not reiterate that the Germans were repulsed.

The theme of its reports through Thursday night had been set by the announcement last Sunday: "On the Sevastopol sector of the front stubborn fighting continued for the third day and enemy attacks have been repelled with heavy losses for him.

Nor was the upper hand claimed in Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's parrying of the tank-led thrust by Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock in the Kharkov sector, a potential springboard for another German drive toward the Caucasus.

The information bureau said simply the Russians battled intensely against advancing German troops and tanks "and delivered counter attacks."

Pilot Officer Dies

HAMILTON, Ont., June 13. — (CP)— Two days after being injured in a highway accident near Oshawa, Pilot Officer Ray Farnham, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Narnham of Hamilton, died early to-day, 12 hours before he was to have been married to Miss Edith Lee, Oshawa.

The accident occurred when a car in which Po. Farnham was driving with two companions crashed into a hydro pole on the Kingston Road at the brow of Rouge River hill. Also seriously injured in the mishap were Sgt. William J. Dawson, Leaside, and Warrant Officer (2nd class), K. G. Ruppell, Waterloo.

Urge German Villages Pay for Lidice

Return Slaughter Only Way To Waken Huns, Says Masaryk

WASHINGTON, June 13. —(AP) —Destruction of "several" German villages by air bombardment was urged upon the United Nations today by Jan Masaryk, Czecho-Slovakian vice-premier and foreign minister, as retaliation for the wiping out of the whole Czech town of Lidice by German vengeance squads.

Masaryk said he had received many messages of sympathy after the German announcement Wednesday that the Bohemian village of 1,200 had been destroyed and all its male inhabitants killed for allegedly harboring the two assassins of Reinhard Heydrich.

In a formal statement issued through the Czech-Slovak legation, Masaryk expressed gratitude for condemnation of the Lidice incident by American public opinion, but said "sympathy and condemnations are not enough."

"It seems to me that the time has come to pay the Germans in kind," he added. "To my mind it should be 10 teeth for one and 10 eyes for one. The bombing of Cologne gave the Germans a lesson, but they knew it was coming.

Must Use Eye for Eye System.

"If we ever want to awaken the German nation to what they are heading for, we must be as ruthless as they are. It is not easy for me to make the following suggestions:—

"I tihnk that the brave, wonderful pilots of the United Nations should destroy several German villages and for every defenceless man, woman and child in the occupied countries, at least the same number of deluded Germans should pay the supreme price until they are forced to rid themselves of the unsavory memory of that dreadful man Heydrich."

State Secretary Cordell Hull said of the incident in a statement from Washington last night:

"This latest example of mass terrorization through wanton butchery of hostages and brutal torture of innocent women and children has outraged and shocked humanity. Savage tribes at times followed such vile practices, but quickly turned away from them as being so utterly inhuman and beastly as to be unworthy even of savages. I am nto surprised that Hitler has devised this unspeakable relic of the darkest periods of history. His act is in thorough keeping with all that he represents."

Crimping Supplies

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 13—(AP). — The Italian High Command today reported great damage was caused in a British air raid on Piraeus, the Axis-occupied port of Athens. A communique asserted that "A large number of houses" were damaged. No further details of the damage were given.

(Piraeus is an Axis port of embarkation for North Africa and the Dodecanese Islands).

Twin Tornadoes Rake Oklahoma Kill 27, Hurt 100

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 13 — (AP). — Storm-swept Oklahoma City counted its known dead at 27 and injured at 100 after two tornadoes slashed a 12-block residential area of the city's south-west edge.

Scores were reported missing and approximately 60 buildings were demolished.

Many inhabitants of the devastated area entered storm cellars when the first tornado struck last night and escaped the force of the second which came 10 minutes later.

The area contained mostly frame houses, a few grocery stores and a filling station.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Nelson saw the tornado approaching and crawled into a culvert.

"Just as we crawled in the storm struck," Nelson said. "We were hit and battered by flying boards and debris. There was terrific suction.

"I grabbed my wife by the ankles and tried to hold her but the wind whipped through the culvert and tore her from my grasp. She was hurled outside and cut about the face."

Power and telephone lines broken by the storm hindered rescue efforts.

Of the dead, six were men, 11 women, and 10 children. Only four were identified.

More Canucks Over

London, June 13 (CP)

CANADIAN military headquarters announced last night that further reinforcements of troops including infantry, engineers, signallers, service corps men and anti-tank gunners "have arrived safely in Britain."

Authorities said the movement was not large, being mainly a shift of reinforcements and ancillary troops.

U.S. Forces Attack On Attu At Tip Of Archipelago, Engagements Continuing

Nipponese Ships Reported In Kiska Harbor As Japs Grab Foothold On U.S. Land 700 Miles East Of Nearest Japanese Territory

WASHINGTON, June 13—(AP).—Japanese forces have landed at the tip of Alaska's Aleutian Islands in their first Western Hemisphere invasion attempt but have been repelled from populated areas in a series of minor engagements reported today to be still going on.

The United States navy announcement of the landing, issued last night, said:

"Information just received by the Navy Department is to the effect that the Japanese have made landings on a small scale on Attu Island, at the extreme tip of the Aleutian Archipelago, and Japanese ships have been reported in the harbor of Kiska, in the Rat (Island) group.

"Attacks of the army and navy forces in the area against these operations are continuing. Weather conditions in these outlying islands precluded air search operations until well within the last 24 hours."

Naval authorities had expected a Japanese attempt to get a foothold on the stepping stones to the Alaskan mainland since the ineffectual Japanese air raids on the naval base at Dutch Harbor June 3. There was a tendency to regard the attacks as an enemy attempt to regain prestige lost in the failure of drives toward Hawaii and Australia.

Want Airdromes

However, it was accepted the Japanese might hope to set up aircraft reconnaissance bases in the Islands. Attu has a small radio station and a native village with a church and trading post, but is considered of little military value. It is some 700 miles east of the nearest Japanese land, the northern tip of the Kurile chain, and about 800 miles west of Dutch Harbor.

Authorities who regarded the Aleutian adventure as a face-saving attempt said Japanese Naval morale had had to meet severe shocks in the Midway and Coral Sea battles, the first serious setbacks in Japanese Naval history.

A Navy department spokesman suggested that Admiral Yamaoto might have to redeem his honor by hari-kiri since he had been praised by Imperial Rescript for a great Coral Sea victory which failed to materialize, and had thus brought into question the infallibility of the Emperor.

AttackHasBegun Says Nelles Of Aleutian Raid

OTTAWA, June 13 (CP)—Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, chief of naval staff, sad tersely "the attack has begun" when informed last night of the Japanese attack on Attu Island and the movement of Japanese ships among the Rat Islands of the Aleutian group.

Beyond that brief remark, Admiral Nelles declined to comment on the enemy activity in the remote Aleutian group, strung out like beads across the extreme northern part of the Pacific Ocean.

Word of the landing on Attu and the movement of enemy ships among the Rat islands came in an American Navy communique issued in Washington.

Defense Minister Ralston said he had no comment to make on the Washington announcement.

Other departmental heads were not available for comment on the new assault against United States territory, which followed closely on an air attack on Dutch Harbor, American Naval Base in the Aleutian group.

The army division of the National Defence department issued a brief statement, saying the department had no comment on the reported Aleutian Inlands landing "other than that they (the department) had been informed of this event earlier in the day."

A 2-Way Assault

Informed Naval quarters here said the Aleutian attack might mean Japan was attempting a two-pronged attack against United States Pacific possessions.

It was recalled that Japanese naval forces were crushingly defeated in a battle off Midway Island a week ago.

But, said one source, "Just because the attack on Midway didn't succeed, it doesn't mean that the attack on the Aleutians will not be strong and vigorous."

It was recalled here that plans have been worked out for close co-operation between the armed forces of the United States and Canada in the event of any attack on the Pacific seaboard area.

No authoritative estimate could be obtained here of the distance between Attu Island and the nearest point of Canadian territory.

But a rough estimate, based on maps, indicated the Queen Charlotte Islands, off the northern British Columbia coast, are approximately 1,200 nautical miles from Attu.

Distance between Esquimalt, B.C., on Vancouver Island, and Attu was calculated at 1,500 nautical miles.

Lone Bomber Kills 9 in Hotel

LONDON, June 13—(CP).—A solitary German raider unloaded a stick of high explosive on an east coast town last night, hitting a hotel and killing at least nine persons.

Rescuers still were searching in the ruins today for others feared to have been trapped.

German air activity last night was described in a communique, however as "slight."

For the fourth consecutive night bad weather apparently prevented any large-scale R.A.F. operations over Germany.

This afternoon a long enemy plane dropped bombs on a West Midlands town, the first time that part of England has been visited by raiders in many months.

Timoshenko, the 'Grit' in Adolf's Oil Push

Wily Russian By Refusing To Retreat May Wreck Whole Hun Grand Offensive

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Anolyst

The fierce Hitlerian offensives being waged in the Kharkov sector of the Ukraine and against the great Soviet naval base of Sevastopol in the Crimea are logical forerunners of another Nazi drive to force the stubborn gateway to the Caucasus, with its wealth of oil and other resources.

These two operations, while rather widely separated, are natural companion pieces in the German strategy of crashing into this land of plenty and are likely to develop into the decisive battle of the war if they go well for the invaders in this initial stage. Awaiting the outcome of these drives are great armies of fresh Nazi troops, backed by a formidable array of new equipment and a huge air fleet.

Herr Hitler's boasted intuition, upon which he depends for military inspiration (much to the disgust of his generals), must be making him uneasy, what with the official talk of a new Allied front against him in Western Europe and the unprecedented bombing raids. Old Man Time has the Fuehrer by the scruff of the neck.

The renewed onslaught against Kharkov by Field Marshal Fedor von Bock probably is calculated to eliminate two great salients which Marshal Semeon Timoshenko drove into the German line south of that city. With these dangerous bulges ironed out, the Hitlerites would be in a position to resume their push for Rostov on Don—the pivot on which the gateway to the Caucasus turns.

The fighting before Kharkov has been terrific, and the Germans have made some headway against fierce Bolshevist resistance which has cost the invaders dear. If the crafty Timoshenko can hold his lines, he may stymie Hitler's grand offensive as the Marshal did once before this spring.

Down on the Crimea the situation before long-besieged Sevastopol is reported from Moscow as "extremely tense." Here the Germans are attacking with some 150,000 troops and heavy air forces. This naval base is the last Red bastion in the Crimea, and Hitler needs it to enable him to pass troops through the Crimea and across the narrow Kerch strait to the Caucasus mainland.

Hitler is trying to co-ordinate the operation against Kharkov and the assault in the Crimea. Should he be successful in both places he might be able to develop a pincers movement on Rostov. With this pivot city in his hands he would try to drive straight eastward to Astrakhan and thence down the Caspian Sea to the oil city of Baku. At the same time he would send another column down the western Caucasus to the other oil port of Baum.

3 DAYS OF CONSCRIPTION DEBATE FAILED TO PRODUCE SURPRISES

No Upset Looms In Vote On Conscription

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 13 — (CP). — Three days of debate on Prime Minister Mackenzie King's conscription-enabling measure in the House of Commons have produced no surprises and have not indicated any changes in the expected lineup when the voting starts.

Even if opposition develops to the extent forecast by the most daring speculators, it appeared today that the measure would carry with a good majority, with the Conservative group supporting the Government.

So far there have been 13 speakers in the debate including Mr. King who on Wednesday moved second reading of Bill 80 which repeals Section 3 of the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Mr. King said this amendment would leave the Government free to impose conscription for service overseas if the circumstances warranted it, but added that such action was not now necessary and might never be. He indicated that if such became necessary the Government would act without any further reference to Parliament.

Three of Seven Liberals in Favor

Those who have spoken include seven Liberals of whom two in addition to the Prime Minister supported the bill and the other opposed; three Conservatives who criticized the government for its methods and its failure to act conclusively, but indicated they would support at least second reading; two C.C.F. members who said they would vote against the bill unless assured that conscription of men will be accompanied by conscription of wealth and industry, and J. H. Blackmore, New Democracy leader, who called for total conscription of all resources but did not take a definite stand toward the measure.

Royal assent was given to four bills in the Senate Friday.

Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, acting as deputy for the governor-general, gave assent to the government's $2,000,000,000 War Appropriation Bill, a bill providing $19,592,242 for supply, representing 1-12th of the main estimates for non-war expenditures, a $750,000,000 loan bill to meet maturing government obligations, and an amendment to the Canadian Evidence Act authorizing

J. E. Kelso Returns After 62 Years In U.S.

George street has as many aspects as the memories it holds. To James E. Kelso of Rochester, here on a visit, the present store fronts dissolve and flash back to the middle seventies when he was in business in the north store of the Bradburn Block.

It was in 1874 that Mr. Kelso entered the employ of James Shillington, then opening a dry goods business. He remained in that engagement until March 31, 1877, when Mr. Shillington moved to Brantford. Mr. Kelso was then employed by J. F. Austin in a Chinaware and fancy goods store where the Herb Routley business is located, and worked there until December 31, 1879.

Mr. Kelso then crossed the border on the third day of January, 1880, got a job with the F. K. Adams laundry and customs shirt enterprise in Rochester, a small outfit doing hand laundry work exclusively. The following year he was given a third interest, and from then on the business grew steadily. In 1902 the Kelso Laundry Company erected four buildings and equipped them with three 150 h.p. boilers, as the plant is today. On May 3, 1890 he severed connection with the company terminating exactly fifty years and four months with that company. Since then he has been busy building laundry machines of his own invention, many of them for Canadian laundries in Toronto, Kitchener, St. John, N.B., Halifax, Hamilton and so on.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelso are guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Middleton.

Rain During Night Almost One Inch

Rainfall this morning from daybreak until 6 o'clock was .76 of an inch. The first drops accompanied the opening notes of the robin s greeting to the day, and although for a time it seemed only a tentative performance, it gradually settled down and gave the land a further and redundant soaking.

Without questioning the designs of Providence, opinion was unanimous that the farmers of this county could have "done without" that dawn rain. Of course there were three or four hot and drying days this week, but there is a great deal of delayed work to be done in the country, and the weather keeps on holding up things, and here it is the middle of June.

Pasturage is excellent, but the providing of feed for livestock next winter is a highly important detail that still leaves 'a lot of room for improvement."

to the community to their credit, but the average citizen feels that deep down in the woodpile there is a nigger hiding and they are determined to ferret this nigger out.

Law On Side Of Board.

Legally speaking, the law is practically on the side of the High School Board, for while the High School Act, makes provision for the appointment of these trustees, and for their replacement should a vacancy occur, it makes no provision whatever for their removal until the term of office has expired. Moreover it goes a bit further and intimates that the trustees of the Board are scarcely answerable to their respective bodies for any action they may deem expedient. Therefore the only alternative left with people who pay the bills is to wait patiently until an election rolls around, and use their votes to oust the men they feel have contributed to the situation .

The people however have not been content to do just this, for they have approaced the Ontario Federation of Teachers, the Town Council, and plan to lay the case before the United Counties Council, and later before the Minister of Education. All in all it appears at this stage of lakeshore battle, that quite a number of heads may fall along the paths in the wake of John Public's attack, even beyond the limits of the Port Hope Town Council.

In brief the situation is this: On one side are the school teachers, 8 of whom have resigned in protest of the Board's action, the school pupils, the bulk of the parents, and the majority of the average citizens, while opposing this host of indigant taxpayers are the members of the High School Board, a few members of the Town Council, and other officials of the town who take a strict legal view of the whole affair, without any trend to sentiment.

Outsanding Teacher.

The whole trouble is claimed to have arise nout of the High School sending a letter to Mr. Brackenbury on March 26, requesting his resignation, which means that at the end of the school term, Mr. Bracenbury is out. He is by the way an outstanding science master, with 28 years teaching experience behind him, 21 of which has been as school principal. During the past eight years he has been principal of the Port Hope High School, and citizen spoint with pride and a little sarcasm to the fact, that at the last Commencement exercises, the chairman of the High School Board stated from the public platform, that the school was in the best condition of the last quarter century.

On May 19, almost two months after the dismissal, friends of the principal invited parents of the pupils to a meeting to review the situation. It was an enthusiastic meeting and since that time, the cry for the heads of the High School, has gained momentum. The next step was the holding of a citizen's meeting and this jammed the Port Hope Hall. The members of the Board had been asked to attend, but refused and when a member of the committee went in search of the Board, he found them in private session, and they refused another invitation to come to the meeting.

Interviewd Board.

Five men were then named to interview the Board and attempt to ascertain the reasons for the dismissal of the principal. At the meeting a member of the Board read a long treatise which purported to set forth why Mr. Brackenbury was dismissed, but the committee members complain the report was read so fast they could not take notes and no copy was available. This apparently was a mistake on the part of the School Board for they do not have to tell anyone why they take action they consider in the best interests of the School.

Another citizens' meeting was called at which the committee reported back, and the upshot of this meeting was that a petition was sent to the Board requesting their resignation and the reinstatement of Mr. Brackenbury. At this time, too, another public petition addressed to the Town Council, Publice School Board and Counties Council was prepared and signatures to this document are being obtained. The petition will be presented shortly and it is confidently expected that there will 100 names on it.

Met Town Council

Since that meeting, a committee of five attended a meeting of the Town Councl lto lay their complaint before this body. What happened exactly is not known ,and it may have been perfectly regular, but the statement of the committee members is that they were highly dissatisfied with the reception given them by Mayor Gifford.

One unusual angle to this whole picture is that, according to F. L. Johnston, one of the committee fighting the battle for Mr. Brackenbury, the High School Board admits they never had any occasion to reprimand the principal prior to his dismissal.

Board of Reference

In 1938 there was an act passed called the School Referendum Act, which permitted a teacher to apply for a Board of Reference, which would consist of a County Judge and two appointed arbiters to review such evidence as existed. Mr. Brackenbury applied for such a Board, but when he realized the Board had no teeth in it, he withdrew his application rather than have his name bandied across the Province. Now, however, this very thing has happened, but Mr. Brackenbury takes a philosophic view of the situation and continues teaching. "I have nothing to hide, nothing to be ashamed of," he told a reporter.

The most spectacular event in the chain of activities since the battle started was a mammoth parade of the school pupils through the main street of Port Hope. The children carried banners, many of which read, "Brack or strike," and it is reliably reported that the principal has pointed out to the children that they must not under any condition go on strike, and thus interfere with their year's work. Another rather refreshing incident was the fact that the Student's Council sent a deputation to interview the High School Board in behalf of the principal, but even the pupils failed to make any change in the situation.

Thus the situation stands at present, with the Board sitting tight, and the citizens' committee in the midst of a modern day civilian blitz that threatens to jar quite a number of dignified public servants.

Board Members Sole Judges Port Hope Case

PORT HOPE, June 13.— (By Staff Reporter). —D. H. Chisholm, solicitor for the Town of Port Hope explained the attitude of the High School Board with regards the dismissal of G. L. Brackenbury, school principal, whose dismissal has started a public furore unprecedented in the history of the beautiful lakeshore community.

"If I were to ask the chairman of the Board why Brackenbury was dismissed, would he be justified in telling me," asked a reporter.

"No, he would not, in fact he would be acting contrary to his duty should he disclose the reason," replied Mr. Chisholm.

Seeking definite legal ruling on this whole situation, the reporter asked Mr. Chisholm if he would explain his attitude on the whole case and the genial barrister agreed at once,.

Mr. Chisholm referred to a case of March 1904 in the Supreme Court of Ontario, Dunn versus the Board of Education of the City of Toronto, and a history of which is contained in Volume 7, Ontario Law Reports Page 451. The decision was handed down by the late Chancellor Boyd," one of the most revered judges of his time, both by members of the Bench and Bar."

A summary of the judgment is as follows: Under statute which enables the Board of Education of a municipality to appoint and remove such teachers, officers and servants as they may deem expedient, members of such a Board are the sole judges of what they may deem expedient in each particular case, in the matter of the removal or dismissal of a teacher, on the grounds of unsuitability for the position. CwithoutsapHall ,

They may institute a private enquiry into such a matter without allowing the usual safeguards of representation by counsel to the person affected or they may dispense with such investigation and proceed on their own conviction of what is right from a general knowledge of the situation: they may also act on report of an inspector although irregularly obtained or may remit the matter to a committee and act on its report and they should not be interfered with by injunction in any action they may be advised to take."

Whether or not this case parallels the one now in existence at Port Hope is something perhaps only lawyers can figure out, but apparently in the mind of Mr. Chisholm the decison is applicable to the situation.

Failure of Cripps in India Due Greater Trust in British Leaders

The failure of the Cripps' negotiations in India was due to the fact that the Indians trusted British rulers rather than the different divisions among themselves, Dr. Charles Scott told Kiwanians in an interesting address, Friday.

With a few statistics, the speaker brought home to Kiwanians the immensity of that great eastern land. He said there were 390,000,000 people in India, which means that one out of five in the world's population lives there. It is three quarters of the population of the British Empire and is as large as Europe. India, contrary to popular belief, is divided into various sectors such as British India, Central India, and there are 562 native states, and it was in one of these that Dr. Scott was stationed.,

Two Thirds Hindus

In regard to the peoples in that country, two-thirds of the population are Hindus and one-fifth Moslems. With that, there are 2,400 castes and tribes, and there are two most important customs connected with them. There must be no intermarriage between different castes and the Hindus cannot eat food cooked by a member of a lower caste, he said. The country is composed of 45 different races whose customs, dress and language make them complete foreigners to one another. Along with that there are nine major religions, 225 languages and dialects and 50,000,000 outcasts. Dr. Scott said that the outcasts were much better received in the northern parts than in the southern.

No Oppression

"You hear of the oppression of the British in India, but there are only 591 British in the whole Civil Service to keep 390,000,000 in order and they certainly cannot use force. The men appointed to these jobs are men of the highest character and education. In the last few years there have been more and more Indians educated in English Universities taking over responsible positions in the Indian Civil Service."

He then compared India's two great leaders Mahatma Gandhi and Jawharlal Nehru. Gandhi, he said, was leader of the Nationalist Congress Party for over twenty years and the people practically worshipped him. This gave him a great influence in the country and Viceroys used to discuss political situations freely with him. He is a well-educated man, having graduated from an English University and was a barrister-at-law. His slogan has always been "Non violence and non co-operation." Last December he withdrew from the leadership of the party.

Nehru, a born leader, who was educated at Harrow and Cambridge, became a barrister and finally returned to his native land after a seven-year absence, after which he proceeded to spend most of his time in jail. He is wealthy and an idealist, who was appalled at the poverty and illiteracy that abounded among the masses of his country. His two passionate desires are to raise the standard of living of his countrymen and to get rid of Fascism, Naziism and Imperialism. Not until those three have been destroyed throughout the world can real freedom be established, he believes.

"He is too idealistic for the frailties of human nature," Dr. Scott said.

Believes in Socialism

"For years he served as virtual Foreign Secretary of the Party, and is an avowed socialist. Since 1930, Nehru has been in jail nine times with only short intervals of liberty. There is one wide divergence of views between these two men. Gandhi believes in the peaceful process of change through evolution. Nehru believes in a social revolution, not only to free the peoples in India, but those of all Europe, and he has received the support of both Russia and China."

Sir Stafford Cripps was a great personal friend of Nehru's and Dr. Scott dealt at length with the attempts and failure to reach an agreement on home rule. He said that in his opinion the British are the best rulers in the world when it comes to colonizing.

The vote of thanks on behalf of the Club was moved by Tom Rodger, who amplified the speaker's remarks with one of his own experiences in India.

Because Of War China Is Now United

COBOURG, June 13 — (ENS) — China was the paradox of a country which hated war yet now was united more than ever before, because of the war it was waging, declared Kwong Bow Lee, Chinese student at Queen's University, in an address to Cobourg Rotary Club yesterday. He was born in Canada and went to China as a boy, returning as a student in medicine, sponsored by the Chinese government.

The Chinese people would always remember with gratitude, Canada, America and England, who have contributed generously to their support, thus lending encouragement and inspiration to the Chinese declared Mr. Lee.

"We are engaged in a conflict of good versus evil—equity and justice versus brute force. We hope and believe that there will be more effective collaboration between China and her allied friends. To dream is doom for all of us. My country is traditionally known for its pacific precepts and practice," Mr. Lee said.

"China," he continued, "was first among the nations to take up arms in resistance to aggression. I know the same paradox exists today in this country, of a country hating war yet where the people are more united than ever before in support of the war now being waged. I think that the Canadian and British concept of realistic liberalism will be more needed than any other attribute when the conditions of peace have to be settled in Europe. I know also that Chinese national character and Chinese tolerance will serve as the only conceivable base for durable and civilized peace in Asia."

The speaker cited the ability of the Chinese to hold out for five years against tremendous odds as one of the greatest miracles of modern history. When the war broke out five years ago he had described it as a contest between long-range artillery and long-range philosophy. The war had given the Chinese few surprises and it now appeared as if philosophy is going to win against artillery. He pointed out that although the Chinese might not be regarded as tough always, it must be granted that they are tough against Japan.

"Today Chinese victory is assured," declared the speaker. "The proof of this is that, from the Chinese side, we claim that for three and a half years, since the fall of Hankow in 1938, Japan has not been able to make any headway and we see, therefore, no reason why she will hereafter. I consider the greatest miracle of this war is the fact that China is going forward in national reconstruction while the war against aggression is going on. If China had not gone forward in openng up the interior as a material basis for long resistance, she would not be able to fight the enemy at all. National reconstruction is part and parcel of the war of resistance," he said.

He declared further that China had been able to hold out because of complete unity among army leaders, complete support of the people, a plan of strategy completely carried out, bravery of Chinese troops and the cruelty and stupidity of the Japanese conqueror which has led to active guerrilla warfare against them.

"The confidence of our people in the eventual defeat of Japan has been rendered only the more secure. The Japanese adventure in the Pacific may be likened to a draft of poison taken to quench thirst. Their thirst for conquest was so acute that they drank what they knew was poison which will ultimately kill them," he said in conclusion.

Gunning Dromes

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius, June 13 (AP)—The Vichy French radio at Tananarive, capital of Madagascar, asserted today that British planes had machine-gunned airdromes at Majunga, on the west coast of Madagascar about 350 miles southwest of British-occupied Diego Suarez naval base.

The radio also said British planes made reconnaissance flights over the islands of Nosy-Be, off the northwest coast, and Saint Merie.

Sunday The Risen Lord Meets His Disciples

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 14 is Luke 24:1-48, the Golden Text being Luke 24:48, "Ye are witnesses of these things.").

The Resurrection of Jesus took place on Sunday, April 9, A.D. 30. Three women, Mary Magdalene, Joanna and Mary, mother of James, according to St. Luke, had prepared various spices and ointments on Friday, after the crucifixion, with which to anoint the body as soon as the Sabbath was over.

These three went to the tomb very early Sunday morning. To their surprise the heavy stone which closed it was gone. Looking in they realized it was empty, the body vanished. Much perplexed, they turned away to see two men in shining garments standing near them. As the women bowed down in fear before the holy visitors, the men asked, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen: remember how He spake unto you when He was yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again."

And the women remembered Jesus' words, and left the sepulchre and told it to the disciples and all the rest. But their story seemed to Christ's followers "as idle tales, and they believed them not."

Peter Goes to Tomb

Peter, however, must have believed them, or been made curious by their story, for he ran to the tomb, and looking in, saw the linen clothes which Jesus had worn laid by themselves. Going his way Peter wondered to himself at that which was come to pass."

The disciples, one Cleopas, the name of the other unknown, were walking from Jerusalem after the Passover, to the village of Emmanus, whose location is now not unknown. As they walked they talked sadly of their leader and teacher, Jesus, who had been so cruelly put to death. A man joined them, but they did not recognize their Lord, as "their eyes were holden." He asked them why they were talking so sadly. They told Him, asking if He was a stranger that He did not know of the event.

"O fools, and slow of heart," Jesus answered, "to believe all that the prophets have spoken:

"Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into His glory?" And beginning at Moses and the prophets, He expounded the scriptures to them. Drawing near the village, He was about to leave them, but they would not let Him, saying, "Abide with us." He went with them, and as they ate, He took bread, blessed it and brake it, and gave to them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew Him; and He vanished out of their sight."

How excited these faithful followers of the Lord were! They said to each other, "Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us by the way, and while He opened to us the scriptures?" And they went back to Jerusalem and found the 11 (Thomas was not with the others), and said: "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon." Then they told about their walk and talk and how the Lord was revealed to them when He brake and blessed the bread.

As they spoke, Jesus Himself stood in their midst, and said, "Peace be unto you." Strange to say, however. His disciples were terrified, thinking they were seeing a ghost. "Why are you troubled?" Jesus asked them. "Behold My hands and My feet, that it is Myself; handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have."

To further reassure them, He asked them to give Him something to eat, and when they gave Him some broiled fish and honeycomb, He ate it to prove that it was indeed their dear Lord arisen from the dead.

"Then opened He their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures. And said unto them. Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among the nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

"And ye are witnesses of these things."

John The Baptist Caused Great Sensation In Israel

REV. E. R. JAMES.

WHAT SAYEST THOU OF THYSELF? St. John 1: 22.

It is important to realize that the preaching of John the Baptist caused a great sensation in Israel. More than four hundred years had passed since the voice of a prophet had been heard in the land. Multitudes flocked to hear him. How natural that this popular movement forced the ecclesiastic authorities to take notice. A Church Council is called and a few important members are sent to interview John the Baptist and report. "This is the record of John when the Jews sent Priests and Levites to ask him:—Who art thou? "The Jews" in this Gospel always implies the official leaders of the nation.

This representative committee, clothed in formal ecclesiastic raiment appeared on the scene. Can you not see some self appointed herald crying:—"Make way for the Reverend Gentlemen from Jerusalem." The multitudes respectfully open. In a pompous voice the leader askes:— "What sayest thous of thyself?" They represent the Church. John answers that he is not the Christ, The Annointed of God, but "the voice of one crying in the wilderness:— Make straight the way of the Lord."

Mark the striking contrast between the Fore-runner and the Christ. The Fore-runner does not point to himself but to Another. The Christ points to Himself and says:—"I am the way, the truth and the life." It is your privilege whenever necessary to bear witness to the Christ and not to yourself. When you only point to yourself there is something radically wrong in your spiritual experience.

What an important question: —"What sayest thou of thyself?" It is the first question you have to answer when you apply for work of any description. Upon your own testimony you are judged.

The question was asked of a prophet. In the New Testament dispensation every member of the Church is a prophet; he is a man who knows something of the mind of God. In the Primitive Church the answer to this question was: —"I am a Christian." This statement generally meant crucifixion or becoming a fiery torch to light the Emporor Nero on his drive through his palace gardens. In parts of Europe to-day such a clear answer brings persecution and the concentration camp with its attendant horrors.

We are fighting evil established in high places. Their leaders plainly teach that good is evil and evil good. This is the sin against the Holy Ghost. It means that men deliberately shut their eyes to the good—refuse to see it— and gladly follow the evil and all its abominations of outrage and murder. They must be truly the Children of God and rightly answer the question: —"What sayest thou of thyself?"

Is your belief in the Christian religion simply an acceptance of words. If so, you will not be of much help to your generation. Much more is needed.

To really believe in God the Father, Son and Holy Ghost means that you trust and depend upon God in all His mysterious revelation of the Triune God no matter how dark the day and fearful the disaster. It means above all fellowship with the Lord Christ—our Elder Brother. He will walk with you through the fire. By faith you will put your hand in His hand and you will not fear though the sun be darkened. "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee" is the pledge of a Gentleman, who never broke His Word. "In quietness and confidence" you will be courageous with His courage. Your friends and neighbours will see it and confess you have the spiritual power they have not. This is the Master's ideal for you.

THEY WERE ALL AMAZED AT THE MIGHTY POWER OF GOD.

Race Barrier

The war keeps on raising some fundimental christian questions. Pearl Buck's article in The New York Times magazine raises the old-time question of race barriers. Her main contention is that race barriers must be destroyed. Take one sentence at the end of her article, "If race could be put aside and if people could consider people on the basis of simple humanity, there would be no barrier." There is much to be said for this argument, but we think that it asks us to ignore something which God has made, and which will last as long as the world lasts. Our reaction to her considered opinions is that there is a certain air of unreality about them. Race clevages are part of God's dispensation, and we simply can not put them aside, much as we would like to do so. We have great sympathy with her idas, but wehn she orders the British to clear out of India we cannot agree with her.

The phamphlet, Race in Europe, by Julian Huxley issued in the series of Oxford pamphlets on World Affairs (though written from the purely scientific standpoint) has far more sense in it than Pearl Bucks article. One is realistic, the other idealistic. It is a pity that idealists have not more realism, and realists more idealism. We confess that the whole question is bristling with difficulties and requires clear thinking. Clear thinking is very scarce commodity at a time of war. Emotional prejudices and attitudes rule most of our minds in these days.

Racial Barriers will be the subject of the address in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

Thought for the week—Every duty which we omit obscures some truth which we should have known.

The Risen Christ and His Disciples — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 24:1-48.

On the first day of the week, very early in the morning, three women came to Jesus' tomb to anoint His body with prepared spices and ointments.

The three women looked in the tomb but it was empty, and two men appeared, asking, "Why seek ye the living midst the dead? He is risen."

The women told the disciples, but they refused to believe. Later two of them walked to a village and Jesus joined them, but they knew Him not.

That night as the two ate supper with Jesus, He took bread and brake it and gave it to them, and they knew Him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 24:48)

No Prospect For Prohibition

For some time past the metropolitan and provincial press of Ontario have given considerable editorial space to discussions of the problem of liquor, the beverage rooms, and prohibition. As always in wartime, the reformers are busily at work and do not hesitate to lay all sorts of misfortunes, from the loss of Singapore to the misconduct of soldiers on payday, to the taste which many human beings harbor for intoxicating liquors. In their eyes poverty, neglect of the young, juvenile delinquency and traffic accidents stem principally from this source. They complain that tea and coffee are rationed when liquor is not; they complain that ships carry Canadian beer to Libya when they might carry ballast instead; they complain that the liquor traffic takes money from the war effort, even though 40 cents of every dollar spent on liquor in this country goes directly to the Treasury. They want all sorts of reforms, ranging from closer supervision of the beverage rooms to complete prohibition.

The only paper which has firmly stated the case against prohibition is the Toronto Globe and Mail. In two moderate and carefully reasoned editorials it has argued in favor of temperance, but has set its face against total abstinence. What has been its reward? It has been accused of being in the pay of the liquor interests! Absurdity and bigotry can hardly go farther. It may be that the accusers of the Toronto paper hoped thereby to dissuade other papers from writing on behalf of temperance, as distinguished from total abstinence. In our case they certainly have not succeeded.

Let us begin by declaring that we hate drunkenness and the abuse of liquor. We are as well aware as the prohibitionists that drunkenness can cause great misery, poverty and ugliness. But we are not, for this reason, going to support any movement which has total abstinence as its aim. Any man may be a teetotaller if he pleases, but we deny his right to force teetotalism upon his fellows. We feel that teetotalism has been well summed up in the parable written by Lewis Carroll, who was, as you will remember, both a clergyman and a professional logician. It runs thus: "I was once a moderate sleeper and met a man who slept to excess. 'Give up this lying in bed,' I said, 'it will ruin your health.' 'You go to bed; why shouldn't I?' he said. 'Yes,' I said, 'but I know when to get up in the morning.' He turned away from me. 'You sleep in your way and I'll sleep in mine,' he said; 'be off!' I saw that to do any good with him I must forswear sleep; from that hour I have never been to bed!"

It appears to be the opinion of the total abstinence organizations (for we flatly refuse to call them temperance organizations) that the drinking of liquor puts a man or a woman in imminent danger of disease, insanity, death, domestic misery, pauperism, quarrels, oaths, blasphemies, obscenities, assaults, sin and crime in every shape, not excluding suicide and murder itself. Their least claim is that it is injurious to health. Nevertheless, it has been a part of the wisdom of man for some thousands of years that alcohol, rightly used, was good for his body and his soul, and the total abstainers have not been very successful in persuading physicians to support their view. Anything in excess, including exercise, is injurious to health, and upon the moral issue we are equally unconvinced. That many men and women become foolish and offensive when they drink to excess we know, but in this matter we quote a wise saying from the Maxims of that great Irish gentleman, Sir Morgan O'Doherty, Bart.: "Never boozify a second time with the man whom you have seen misbehave himself in his cups. I have seen a great deal of life, and I stake myself upon the assertion, that no man ever says or does that brutal thing when drunk, which he would not also say or do when sober, if he durst." Again we appeal to the classics: In vino veritas, says Pliny—in wine there is truth. A man shows his true nature when he has been drinking, and if this nature is degraded, or foolish, is it fair to pretend that these failings come from the cup?

We favor a closer supervision of the beverage rooms. For some reason these institutions have never been a success in Canada. The English public house is a sort of club, a meeting-place where games are played; much talk is talked; songs are sung and a good time is had by all. But our beverage rooms seem to be little more than gloomy drinking-halls; in most cases their atmosphere is anything but lively or elevating. Drunkenness is all too common, and this means that some beverage rooms must serve patrons whom they know have had enough already. It is also charged that minors are served in some beverage rooms, and this we strongly condemn. But the fault, we fear, lies not in the beer, but in our Canadian character, which seems ill-adapted to this method of serving liquor. It is very noticeable that in England everybody goes to the pub as a matter of course, knowing that he will be able to enjoy himself there; in Canada nobody goes to the beverage room who can possibly get a drink in any other way. No wonder they are so depressing.

The prohibitionists, in their letters to the press, have fallen into their old error of making their crusade a religious one, and have invoked the aid of Scripture to strengthen their case. This is unwise of them. There is only one instance in the Bible of a man calling for water, and there are many calls for wine and many commendations of it. And was not our Lord's first miracle (John ii.) at a marriage feast where "The conscious water saw its God, and blushed?" We think that the prohibitionists would be wise to leave the Bible out of the argument.

But many good men besides ourself and the Globe and Mail have spoken in defence of the moderate, or truly temperate, use of liquor. Some of them have been clergymen. We are thinking, at the moment, of the great Bishop Heber, who gave his life to missionary work in India, and who, in addition to such well known hymns as From Greenland's Icy Mountains, Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning, and The Son of God Goes Forth To War, thought it no derogation to his piety and dignity to write these charming verses:

When Bacchus through the Indian land
Pursued his conquering way,
He held a hop-pole in his hand,
And rode upon a dray.

Lord! how the negroes stared to see,
And wondered much to hear,
His smockless nymphs with tuneful glee
Proclaim the praise of beer.

And here we must stop, having made it clear, we hope that we are vigorous in our advocacy of temperance, but equally vigorous in our denial of the teetotaller's right to force his habit upon any man.

The C.B.C. Under Fire

At present the C.B.C. is the subject of a good deal of criticism, some of which we think is justified, and some of which we think unfair. The curious position which the C.B.C. occupies—that of a government-controlled broadcasting system which nevertheless sells some of its time on the air, and which operates under partial supervision of two Government ministries and a confused and subdivided management — makes criticism of it particularly easy; criticizing the C.B.C. is shooting at a sitting bird. Until it is set firmly on its feet and given a coherent supervision it cannot be expected to function with maximum efficiency. At present we get the impression that it is devilled by too many masters, none of whom have any real power to remedy its situation.

But whatever the cause, we feel that the criticism which has been expressed concerning the C.B.C. broadcasts is at least partially justified. Partially, but not wholly. We listen to the radio a good deal ourself, and usually to C.B.C. stations, and we think that the greater part of what is broadcast during the evenings is of a reasonable standard. We do complain, however, that the fare provided is desperately unimaginative; we produce nothing in Canada which equals the best in American broadcasting, and it is obvious to the listener that what we lack is imagination and originality, rather than money. The best American programs are by no means the most expensive.

The C.B.C. has treated us well during the past season. After a disastrous start with a series of Gilbert and Sullivan broadcasts which petered out in the middle, they gave us an excellent series of ballad operas, appreciations of which appeared regularly in this paper. They gave us a very good series of broadcasts telling the story of Mazo de la Roche's Jalna books. They gave us a splendid series of chamber concerts which were arranged by Arnold Walter and Ettore Mazzoleni. They gave us broadcasts of the Toronto Symphony and the Concerts Symphoniques in Montreal. And at Christmas they gave us a broadcast of a Nativity Play from the Western Region which was the best radio drama we have ever heard, not excluding the Columbia workshop and the best work of the B.B.C. When the C.B.C. pulls up its socks it can do fine things, but its socks are generally flopping about its ankles. If it were given some ginger and imagination it could do things which would make our American neighbors sit up and take notice. Its talks department is dull, and its drama department is hopelessly out of date most of the time, but it does fine things in music, and its public service in carrying important speeches is first-rate.

Let us not throw rocks at the C.B.C. It is our broadcasting corporation and if there is something wrong with it, it is, at least in part, our own fault. If we do not like the soap operas and the programs which M. Rene Morin, a C.B.C. official, has called "common and vulgar," we should write to the C.B.C. and say so. If we like the good programs, such as the series of sonata recitals which were heard last spring, we should write and praise them, and ask for more. The C.B.C. is far from perfect, but we feel that a little public appreciation and a few thousand constructive letters in its mailbag would work wonders.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If the sheets get up when you do, it's hot.

If you can't do anything else in the fight against inflation, at least you can keep your tires at thirty pounds.

We read recently of a cannibal who had eaten his wife's mother and his two brothers-in-law; a new way of living on his wife's relations.

A man in Texas claims to have delivered the same speech 550 times. We have heard successful competitors several times.

Friends of Queen's University will be glad to hear of the knighthood which has been conferred upon William Hamilton Fyfe, formerly Principal of that institution, in the King's recent Birthday Honors.

Marshal Petain, we hear, is convinced that the Axis cannot win. It would have spared us some bitter days if the Marshal had got that idea in the Spring of 1940.

The old paraphrase which began, "That stone shall be chief corner-stone, Which builders did despise," somehow reminds us of all the discarded tires which are now being taken off the garage wall for a few hundred miles more service.

Don't forget the salvage campaign. Your worn-out stove will still make it hot for the enemy.

Do you remember the time when we dreaded the week-end moves of the Axis? Now the boot is on the other leg, as the last few week-ends have shown.

Two Nazi generals are reported to be among the latest Axis prisoners to reach this country. Now may we make a very earnest plea that these men be not sent to Bowmanville? We are sick of having escaped Nazis running through our gardens, tramping down the flowers, and we could never bring ourselves to throw a rock at a general, even a Nazi one.

NATURAL HISTORY NOTE

I met a goose, a pensive thing,
And moodily it strode,
Alone and palely loitering
Along a country road.
Its funny feet went flip, went flop,
It put them down with care;
It ambled on per-lop,
With a most disgruntled air.

Also it muttered as it went,
It muttered long and low,
As one whose deepest soul was rent
By an old and endless woe.
And well it might! What folly tied
To this poor creature's gait
The pompous and perverted stride
Of Nazi-Prooshian hate?

Goosestep, indeed! From what mad yolk
Emerged a bird so odd
That it would bruise, like Herrenvolk,
The uncomplaining sod?
Nature has never yet divulged
A freak so lost to grace
As goose or gander which indulged
In that demented pace.

"Go, goose!" I cried. "Pursue thy course;
Acquaint thy consort gander
That I at least will not endorse
That old, unthinking slander.
No, no, I say, a thousand noes—
Not for this child such floaters!
Go thy lone way on crinkle . toes—
And please look out for motors!"

American Looks At Life Today

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

MANY writers suffer from an innocent passion for deception; 'suffer' because it causes them far more anxiety than it does anyone else, and 'innocent' because it involves no attempt to defraud. It seems merely that there are some things which they cannot bring themselves to say on their own authority; they must make someone else responsible for it. It seems that this peculiarity is responsible for Van Wyck Brooks latest book, "The Opinions of Oliver Allston"; the author pretends that he is publishing the posthumous papers of a dead friend called Allston, but it is obvious from the beginning that this is really "The Opinions of Van Wyck Brooks." Fortunately, however, the opinions gain rather than lose by the subterfuge.

It is impossible to guess why Van Wyck Brooks should suddenly become shy about expressing his opinions, since he has earned his living and his very considerable reputation by doing just that. Since before the last war he has been a leading figure in American criticism, and his development has been of great interest to readers both on this continent and in England. At the outset of his career Brooks held the opinion that the damning influence of the Puritan tradition had blasted American life, laying undue stress on material things at the expense of the things of the spirit. This view he developed in a number of books, of which "The Ordeal of Mark Twain" was perhaps the most widely read. It was Brooks' belief that Mark Twain's genius was stultified by the atmosphere of money-worship and moral cowardice which was characteristic of his time, and that Mark Twain would have been an infinitely greater writer if he had all his life enjoyed the atmosphere which he found in Europe when he had already reached maturity. The idea was an interesting one, brilliantly developed, and it contains, no doubt, a half-truth.

BUT of late years Van Wyck Brooks has made an alteration in his point of view. Having seen the evil of the Puritan tradition he has now seen the good which is in it, and his later books have reflected this new opinion. The best known of these are "The Flowering of New England," published in 1936, and "New England: Indian Summer," published in 1940. These two literary histories are written with a charm, a breadth of knowledge and an insight which makes them good reading even for those who have no specialist's interest in American letters. They are ideal books for the browser.

It is impossible for a man to follow a career of literary criticism for thirty years and more without forming a wide variety of opinions which find but partial expression in his writings. Your true writer wants to say his say about everything, and whenever he completes a book he is oppressed by the consciousness of the many things which he has left unsaid. And so Brooks, it appears, has hit upon the plan of publishing a group of random opinions which he has saddled upon the imaginary Allston. It is surprising how well the device has succeeded; as the reader works through the book he becomes increasingly conscious of Allston's character, which is deeply interesting if somewhat unsympathetic. Allston is the Cultivated American, regarding with amaze and mild disapproval the vagaries of his countrymen. He is a New Englander, and feels himself the spiritual heir of Emerson and Thoreau. He lives a retired life, saying "Every day I grow more and more to think of city-people as cheese-mites, as mere infusoria." In creating Allston Brooks may have been looking for a mask for himself, but he has also succeeded in creating a better character than many novelists.

THE "Opinions" touch upon almost everything. They are not exclusively literary. Consider what he says of his own people: "Besides the Chinese, we Americans are like spoiled children. Every now and then, for a bath of ethics and good manners, I visit the Chinese missionaries; for so I call the laundrymen who abound in our villages and towns." And he often rakes up a stimulating quotation, like this from Thoreau: "To have done anything by which you earned money merely is to have been truly idle."

There is wisdom in the book in copious measure. "Nine-tenths of the things that are most important to us, in our own personal lives, the things that absorb our energy and give our life meaning, not only have no interest for other people but have no traceable connection with those elements of our life that concern the world. Yet these things form the invisible soil from which our achievements grow," says Allston. And of Communism he makes this pregnant judgment: "The mass-mind in high places, that is the thing to attack and the point at which to attack it." And so the "Opinions" continues; some are mere snippets and wise-cracks, and others provide meat for some days of reflection. If you like to think, and if you like to provide your mind with some tough chewing, this is a book for you; if you like to maintain an agreeable torpor, leave it alone.

• Libya, Sevastopol Critical

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

HITLER'S flair for showmanship seems interwoven with events in Libya and Southern Russia, where crucial new battles are developing simultaneously.

On both fronts German or Axis armies seem to be under orders from Hitler to get rolling at any cost. In Libya they have battered the Free French garrison out of Bir Hacheim, anchor of the British defense line, and massed a ponderous thrust to Harmat, only thirty miles from Tobruk. In Russia they are surging against Marshal Timoshenko's hard-won advance positions in the Kharkov region and also pressing furiously the effort to storm the Sevastopol fortress in the Crimea.

That still does not furnish a definite pattern for the "summer" offensive to crush Russia, which Hitler has promised his people. Summer does not come, in a technical sense, however, until June 21, the first anniversary of the Nazi attack on Russia.

SIGNIFICANT DATE

Wholly aside from tactical or strategic considerations conditioning Axis operations, the close approach of that anniversary of blood memory might have special signifiance for Hitler. It is at least possible that he has demanded that his generals produce results which would permit him to proclaim that he had kept his word and that the great summer offensive he promised was in motion and making progress.

Whether for that reason or merely as a coincidence, there is little doubt that a double crisis is developing in the two-pronged German effort to regain the offensive in the East. Nor can it be greatly doubted that the timing of the Molotoff visits to London, Washington and Canada to fashion new United Nation commitments for peace and war in Europe and second-front undertakings also reflects the June 21 milestone.

If the broadside of Russian-British-American announcements had no other effect, they would certainly tend to stiffen Russian morale for a new ordeal with the promise of two-front help . Extreme pains were taken both in London and Washington, however, to implement those verbal exchanges with action that not only assures Russians but warns Germans that more than a matter of words was involved.

VICTORY OR DEFEAT

Reports of the Nazi attack in the Kharkov area are not clear enough yet to warrant an attempt to gauge its direction or force. Nevertheless, Moscow admits "defensive" fighting there, while Berlin claims progress "east of Kharkov."

In Libya the situation is more clearly defined even if the trends of a vast new tank struggle almost on the outer perimeter of Tobruk's well-proven defenses were still not indicated as this was written. Loss of the Bir Hacheim anchor was a serious matter obviously for the Allies, but not necessarily critical.

The Free French garrison, with the help of roving British mobile forces, held out more than two weeks at Bir Hacheim. It goes without saying that there was a heavy toll of Axis tanks and motorized equipment, to say nothing of troop casualties. It remains to be seen whether the time and material lost in forcing the French evacuation of the outpost has not so eaten into Axis reserves of supplies and equipment as to weaken Rommel's striking power and actually warrant the classing of Bir Hacheim as an Allied victory rather than a defeat.

OTTAWA, June 13 (CP)—Odds and ends from Parliament Hill:

Sometimes debate in the House wanders more than a trifle....Karl Homouth (Con. Waterloo South) commented the other night that "the peculiar thing about this debate is that we go from alcoholic beverages to Japanese and then to roads".... and that's just what happened.

More than once newspapers have called Jean-Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) "irrepressible" and Prime Minister Mackenzie King seems to have that idea....Mr. King suggested the House ought to organize its debates a bit more and Rev. T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn) interjected: "We could organize our members but could the government organize the honorable member for Temiscouata"...."I do not think," said the P.M., "that my honorable friend ought to lay that task upon the government; it will have to be taken in hand by the entire House."

Donald McNiven (Lib. Regina City) drew attention to one of the peculiarities of House procedure: "Custom, usage and tradition over a matter of 75 years have established the practice that there shall be no vote (in the chamber) on Mondays or Fridays, and that committees, with the odd exception, shall not meet on either Mondays or Friday."

More of the Same:

When Conservative House Leader Hanson, in this week's conscription debate, quoted from Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera "Utopia Limited" in a reference to Prime Minister Mackenzie King he was following the lead of another Conservative in the conscription debate of 25 years ago.... In 1917 the member for Digby, Clarence Jameson, quoted the same lines about

"A marvellous philologist who'll undertake to show
"That 'yes' is but another and a neater form of 'no'."

To give his impression of Edward Mortimer Macdonald, then Liberal member for Pictou.

Mrs. Cora Casselman (Lib. Edmonton East) and Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity North Battleford) came in for a bit of nicely-turned praise from Rev. Dan McIvor (Lib. Fort William) ....Mr. McIvor was suggesting man should recognize the ability of woman to work as well as he can.... "That," said he, "is seen in this House of Commons where the lady members rival the best of men."

When Olof Hanson (Lib. Skeena) celebrated his 60th birthday a while back he got a bouquet of flowers from the Swedish consul-general, a token of appreciation from Swedish friends all over Canada....Mr. Hanson was born at Tannas, Sweden, and came to the Dominion in 1907.

Gordon K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West) has been doing his annual advertising of his constituency's holiday attractions....He sent members of the press gallery the annual vacation edition of the Peterborough (Ont.) Examiner, a 76-page issue chock-full of holiday information.

The "don't talk" posters in the parliamentary cafeteria have been replaced by new ones isued by Ralph Bell, director-general of aircraft production....They're part of the morale-building campaign for plane factories....One shows an airman looking up to the sky and says: "He's doing his part; are YOU doing yours?" ....And one shows a bloody, befuddled Hitler under a cloud of planes with the words: "When? It's up to you!"

Parliament Hill is attracting scores of Ottawans these warm evenings.... Benches in front of the Centre Block are crowded, especially nights when the carillon is played....It's a favorite spot for lads in uniform and their lasses....A pretty spot, too, now that the A.R.P. regulations are relaxed and the floodlights shine again on the Peace Tower.

BEER IN DESERT

CRUEL HEAT, a blistering sun, sand that penetrates clothing and tents, roaring battles in tanks too hot to touch, shelling and bombing by a determined enemy—that is the Libya war front. And if Canadian beer is sent these indomitable British and Allied warriors in Libya who on earth would have the heart to object?

But some people do, it seems, and even quiet, mild-mannered Mr. Ilsley has been moved to indignation over the "wholly reprehensible attitude" of people who complain about beer being sent to soldiers on the Libyan desert, to note that such persons "should be better employed."

Most people will agree heartily with Mr. Ilsley, as they did in the last war with The Journal and other papers that squelched an ill-advised campaign conducted by a certain women's organization to deny cigarettes to Canadian soldiers in the stinking trenches of France and Belgium.—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked: the same heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed, said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked.

And when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia. The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men. And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done sacrifice with the people, which when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, and saying, Sirs, why do these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven that are therein: who in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways.

Nevertheless, he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.—Acts xiv, 8-17.

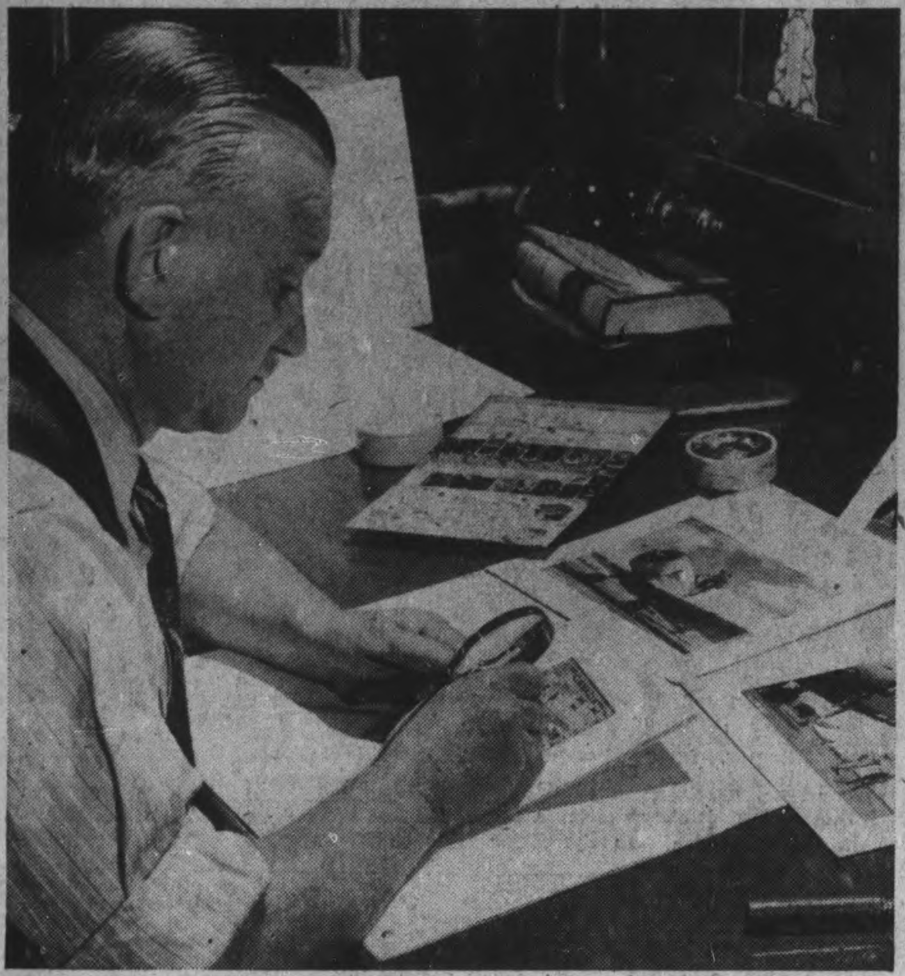
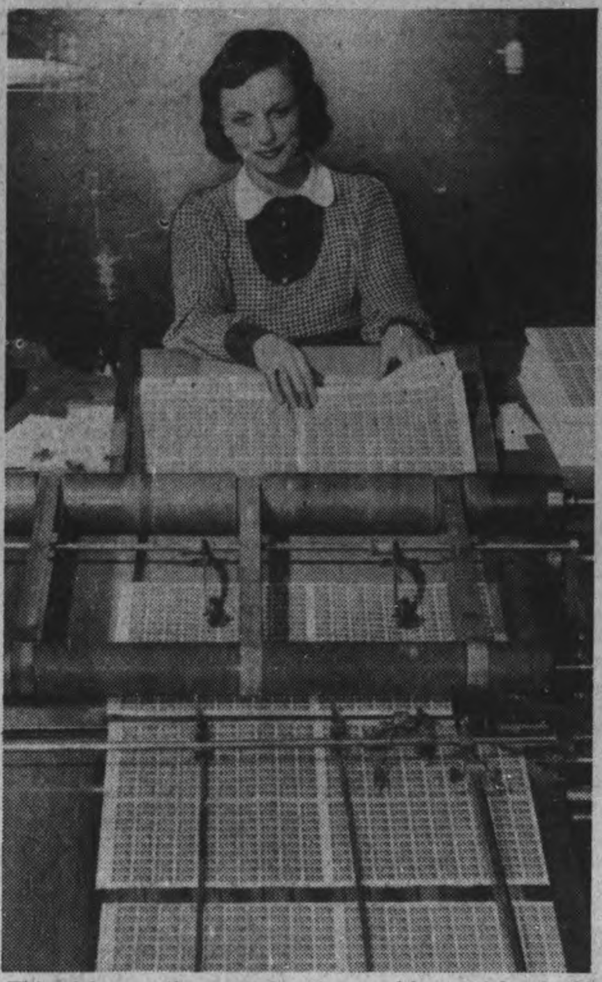
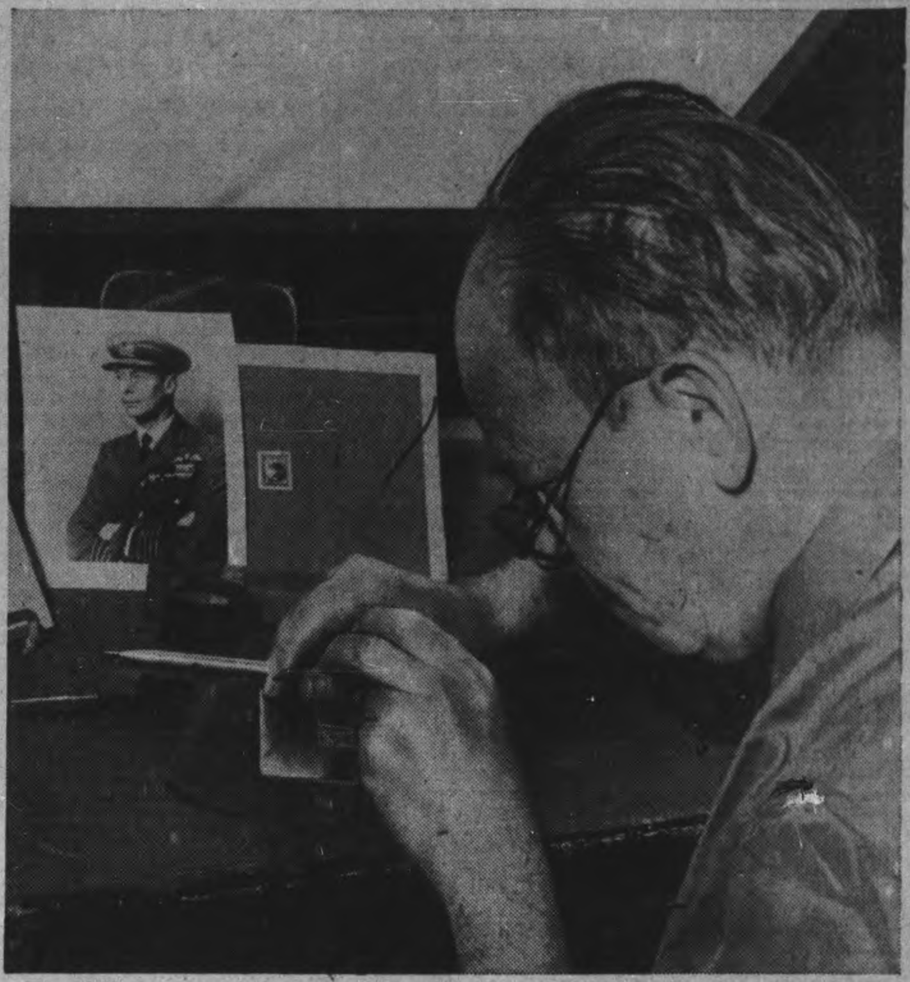
New Issue of Canadian Stamps Dramatizes War Effort on Every Front



First step in producing a new stamp is modelling. The artist is preparing design for the 6-cent airmail stamp for which he used four photos made at an R.C.A.F. station for Department of Public Information. Border and lettering are hand done.



This girl, operating a perforating machine, watches both sides of operation by using a mirror, guarding against a pile-up as sheets round corner for horizontal perforation.



The skilled engraver is cutting the original postage stamp die on soft steel. It is then approved by Hon. W. P. Mulock, Postmaster General, before being hardened. The impression is transferred to a soft steel cylinder, then to printing plate.

Intaglio printing on this rotary press produces about 1,000 sheets an hour. Printer is checking distribution of ink. "Electric eye" on top counts number of sheets.

Combining four photographs, this 6-cent airmail stamp records work of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada. Scene is typical of R.C.A.F. stations.

The dark green, 13-cent denomination is a composite, based on photos, showing the Ram tank used by Canada's Army. Tank was named after the Rocky Mountain ram.

The farm scene in the sepia 8-cent stamp (left) is a tribute to the war effort of the farmer who operates on a small scale. Portraits of the King in uniforms of the three services appear on the one-cent (centre) two, three and five-cent stamps. Canada's war contribution in shipping is pictured in the 4-cent stamp (right).

An examiner is inspecting a sheet of stamps to insure against flaws caused by plates damaged on press. Work is checked before and after every operation in process.

The new airmail special delivery stamp dramatizes the speeding up of wartime production by swift transfer of documents, plans, orders. Airmail is up 50 per cent.

Emphasizing the contribution of smaller shipyards in building Royal Canadian Navy and merchant vessels, the 20-cent stamp shows a corvette ready to be launched.

The woman is checking proof sheet for flaws while the man marks the soft steel plate for corrections. After each impression has been approved the plate is case-hardened and bent for rotary press. They work under a strong fluorescent light, with magnifying glass. Each plate has from 200 to 400 impressions of stamp on it.

An excellent example of fine detail in stamp-making, the 50-cent denomination shows a 25-pounder field gun against the background of a Canadian munitions plant.

Destroyers of the Tribal Class, as portrayed on the $1 blue stamp, are being built in Canada and Britain for Canada's Navy. They will be named after Indian tribes.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR ARMY?

(6) FIFTEEN CWT. WIRELESS TRUCK

Intercommunication between headquarters of units in the forward line of battle is provided by these 15 cwt., house-type wireless trucks. They are used by the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. The grill at the rear of the truck's right panel is the ventilator of the power generating equipment. Also visible are aerials attached to the roof. Other types of wireless are used, both larger and smaller, by the army. Larger sets are employed by signals detachments attached to headquarters of large formations and operate over extremely large radii. Smaller pieces are found in tank units and provide communication within the area limits of unit operations.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was only a fair crowd of men who turned out for the week-end tournament. Maybe one full week of bowling was too much for them. However the boys put into the game all they had, and some of the finest bowling to be seen on our greens this season was displayed last night. The idea of playing two ten ends instead of three sevens seems to have made a decided hit. The winning skips were B. Chesler, R. Burns and G. Coleman, Jr. Their reward was war saving stamps

We are appealing to our bowlers, on behalf of the ladies games committee to keep next Wednesday evening open. It's the big tournament in aid of the Milk For Britain Fund.

How about getting your singles off, men. The draw is posted up inside the club rooms.

If the weather stays fine the usual Saturday night mixed will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

Number one group of the men's schedule will continue their games on Monday evening.

This time last season our notice board was pretty well covered with advance notices for open tournaments, but all we could see last evening was one or two. It looks as if the attendance to open tournaments is falling off. No doubt due to traffic conditions

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

One bad innings spoiled last night's game between C.G.E. and Porcelain in the Girls' Softball League at the Bowl last night. Mike O'Brien's C.G.E. girls scored ten runs in the fourth and most of the interest in the affair vanished as a result. Outside of that one disastrous stanza the Porcelain girls tried hard all the way and made things fairly close. The 18-6 win puts the C.G.E. in undisputed possession of first place. Incidentally it is announced from league headquarters that the Colonial Weaving Company is expected to enter the loop, making five clubs in all. The playoff setup has been decided upon. It calls for the teams finishing first and second to play off for the Taylor Cup and the league championship while the other three clubs will meet in a series for the Knox trophy. There will be a league game Monday night when Westclox and Brintons will clash at the Bowl at 7 o'clock.

* * * * * *

The Men's Softball League will move into Riverside Park next week, the first game on the new grounds being scheduled for Monday night when Luckies and the Juveniles will clash. There will be league games at Riverside on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights of next week and the league officials are satisfied that the fans will see better ball and snappier fielding in the ball park than at the Bowl where outfield conditions are far from perfect. There will of course be no admission charge to the grounds and the teams will depend as always upon the voluntary donations of the patrons. However, it has been decided to have the collection box at the entrance, so that the fans will be able to drop in their donations on the way in, thus avoiding the "passing of the hat" during the game. The diamond at Riverside Park is in goodshape and with the outfield free of wires, cars and posts, the ball hawks on the various clubs will have a real chance to show their stuff.

* * * * * *

Incidentally the amazing Luckies, hottest club in the loop right now, have a chance to climb up into a tie for first place Monday night when they clash with Juveniles. A win for Manager Griffin's outfit would leave them on even terms with Plazas with three wins and a loss, and they will undoubtedly be out there battling to do that very thing. However, the Juveniles, who have been making it close are dead anxious to climb into the win column and they figure that Monday night would be an ideal opportunity for pulling off that feat. With Bob Crowe, their ace of last season back on the rubber for them the Juveniles will be full of fight and the Luckies had better not make the mistake of under-estimating the kids. They are due for a win and Monday night might be the night. At all events it should produce a most interesting argument for the first game of the season on the new battle ground inside the park.

Boxing Show Announced

Peterborough is to have an outdoor boxing show next Friday night under the auspices of the Peterborough Athletic Association and it will be staged at the lacrosse bowl where ample seating accommodation is available. Matchmaker Harry Low announces that one of the aces to be seen in action that night is Joe Bagnato, Toronto bantam, who will be matched against Red O'Rielly, a boxer at present in the local Military Training Centre. Two Buffalo boys are being brought over for the occasion and Cecil Guyette, hard-hitting Apsley lad will take on one of the fighters from across the line and Harry Low will be stacked against the other. Still another good bout will be one between lightweights Doug Masters of Peterborough and Bill Hayes of Toronto. There will be a number of other fights on the card and it looms up like a lively evening's entertainment.

Nobody seems to know just what threw the monkey wrench into the Boston Braves but however it got there the machinery that rolled the Boston club up into second place in the National loop has surely broken down. The Braves absorbed their tenth loss in a row yesterday when they were beaten 3 to 2 by Chicago Cubs. And to rub it in the winning pitcher was Olsen who had not been able to beat anybody all season, until he knocked off the staggering Braves yesterday, holding them to six hits and going the route to cop the nod. The losing pitcher was Javery and yesterday's loss was his sixth of the season. For a long time the Braves were playing fine ball, getting nice pitching and making things hot for all and sundry but they have surely shot their bolt and right now seem to be powerless to stop the rout. They can make it close but in their last ten games they haven't been able to boot home one winner, a dismal showing in view of their early record this season.

The 1942 Sensation

The following New York story on how Joe Gordon is stealing the Joe DiMaggio thunder should be interesting: "One year ago today a lanky, black-eyed Italian boy was approaching the half-way mark in his race towards an all-time baseball record. Jolting Joe DiMaggio had stretched his hitting streak through 24 consecutive games, fattening his average to a compulent .328. He was hotter than a Fourth of July. Today, the same DiMaggio is batting .263. One year ago today another member of the New York Yankees was establishing himself as one of the great fielding second basemen of the modern generation. His name was Joe Gordon. He was a triple-distilled sensation. His batting average was .243. Today, the same Gordon is hitting .387. This newest of the Yankees' jolting Joes is far above and beyond the DiMaggio of 1941. For he has a consecutive hitting streak of 27 games and is 58 points higher in the average than DiMaggio was on the same date. Thus he sets the pace in both leagues. As well, he is probably one of the most mystified gentlemen at the ball parks. He doesn't know how he is doing it. "Just call it luck and just hope it holds up. I haven't the faintest idea of what is changed about me, except that the pitchers are throwing the ball where I'm swinging, and I'm hitting where there are no fielders."

Game Is Broken Wide Open In 4th Inning

Mike O'Brien's C. G. E. went out into first place in the Girls' Softball League Friday night by defeating the Porcelain team 18 to 6.

The Electricians broke the game wide open by scoring ten runs in the fourth frame on a combination of hits, errors and bases on balls and that one big inning turned what started out as a fairly even battle into more or less of a rout. From then on it was just a case of playing out the string and although Porcelain tried hard they hadn't the punch to do much about overcoming that big margin.

Manager O'Brien surprised the fans by planting his two regular pitchers, Marilyn McCarthy and Norma Strickland in infield posts and sending May Wade, the former Vancouver girl, in to pitch.

The new twirler got by nicely, showing good control and keeping Porcelain's nine hits well scattered.

Mary Latimer, left handed Porcelain pitcher, was not hit hard enough to be beaten by such a score but her support failed her at critical moments and in addition she was very wild, issuing no fewer than 13 bases on balls.

The fielding feature of the game was a very unusual play. Marilyn McCarthy drove a hard fly to deep left field. M. Barnes tried to make the catch but the ball bounded off her hands and Grace Barnes, centre fielder for Porcelain, dashing over to back up the play grabbed the spheroid on the run before it hit the ground. Thus there was an assist and a putout on a fly to the out field, one for the book. Ruth Hewitt, rightfielder for C. G. E. had a double play unassisted when she ran in to catch a fly to short right field and then tagged Mary Larmer who had run from first when the ball was hit.

C. G. E. started the scoring in the first inning when A. DeCarlo singled to start with, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on an infield out.

Porcelain evened it up in the second when after E. MacKenzie had singled with one out and had been forced at second by G. Barnes, the latter scored on errors by May Wade and Mildred Snowden.

The Electricains went ahead again in the third inning when A. Adamson was safe on an error and scored on M. Snowden's double.

Then came the terrible fourth when fifteen C. G. E. players batted and ten of them crossed the home plate before the side finally retired. There were three hits, four errors and a couple of basses on balls, as well as several errors of omission in that disastrous frame.

Both outfits scored four in the fifth and after that the game settled down into a low-scoring finale during the last few frames.

Watling Street Captures English Derby

NEWMARKET, England, June 13 —(CP).—Lord Derby's Watling Street won the 162nd Derby today.

Watling Street dashed home ahead of Hyperides, owned by the Earl of Rosebery. Ujiji was third.

Watling Street paid 6 to 1.

The King and Queen saw their entry badly beaten after watching the King's filly Sun Chariot take the Oaks yesterday.

It was the first time their majesties had seen the King's horses run this season and they followed both race through glasses after driving on the course to the accompaniment of tremendous cheers.

Before the Derby the King, wearing a Field Marshal's uniform, went into the paddock with the Queen, the Princess Royal and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, and saw the horses paraded. The King appeared to have a special eye for Watling Street.

A large and colorful crowd watched the third wartime running of the historic race, transferred here from its traditional home on Epsom Downs for war reasons.

The King's unbeaten Big Game, the 4 to 6 odds-on-favorite, finished sixth in the field of 13.

Harry Wragg, Britain's champion jockey in 1941, booted Watling Street in a neck ahead of Hyperides after a duel on the straightaway.

Both horses burst to the fore 300 yards from the finish and battled all the way to the post.

Ujiji was two lengths behind Hyperides.

The crowd was stunned by the failure of the King's colt and there was little cheering at the end of the race.

Watling Street broke the course record for the 1½-mile course at Newmarket, running the distance in two minutes 29 3-5 seconds, 4-5ths of a second better than the old record.

Despite fuel rationing and a limitation of railroad trains, a large crowd saw Lord Derby win his third Derby.

Several hours before the race hundreds walked the four miles from Newmarket town to the course, while ponies and traps brought others. A large number of service men and women were in the crowd, including many Canadian airmen and soldiers.

The previously-unbeaten Big Game took the lead after three furlongs but was unable to hold it because the stamina was just not there. Gordon Richards could not use his whip since jockeys are under instructions not to whip the King's mounts.

Watling Street ran second to Big Game in the two thousand guineas last month. For Lord Rosebery it was his second place finish in two days. His Afterthough finished second in the Oaks.

Mata Hari Horvath Liked For Mile Sprint

By VERN DeGEER

TORONTO, June 13.—The little man was mopping his brow with a large towel as he stepped out of the cramped interior of the jockeys' room at Dufferin yesterday afternoon.

"Don't tell us the merry-go-round is getting you, Karl," somebody shouted from the paddock.

"Not me," answered the little man. "I'm eighteen years in this business and just beginning to have fun. Haven't turned so many corners in years."

"The little man" is Karl Horvath, a Philadelphia product who has been answering the "Boots and Saddle" call on the race tracks of United States, Canada and Cuba since 1924.

"Tell him about Jimmy Butwell," suggested Tony Simms, clerk of the scales, who can give you a quick run-down himself on most of the riders that have appeared in Canada in the last two decades.

"Say, Tony," answered the Little Man, "that Butwell was some hoss rider, although he was reaching the end of the trail when I came along. I remember Jimmy and I rode an entry in the Washington Handicap at Laurel in 1925. I finished up the track, but Jimmy was home free with Joy Smoke."

Horvath recalled that he had ridden twice in the Kentucky Derby, 1928 and 1929.

"That 1928 race brought out the biggest field ever," Horvath said. "Twenty-two of us went to the post. It was everybody for himself when the starter gave the signal. Misstep cut out all the early pace, but Chick Lang shook up Reigh Count after going a mile and was a shoo-in. I was way back with the rear-guard after going three-quarters with Cartago. Butwell was between me with Charmarten."

"I'm right back in the heavy traffic at Louisville in 1929," Horbath continued. "There's 21 of us in the parade, and that's a lot of jocks."

"Pony McAtee takes Clyde Van Dusen out in front at the break and all that's the last I see of them. It's muddy going and I'm carrying half the track by the time I go a mile with Colonel Bradley's Bay Beauty. I finish 13th, but there's plenty behind to take some of my mud in this derby with my stablemate, Blue Larkspur.

"You know," Hovath went out, "when folks ask me if the traffic jams and the sharp corners at Dufferin bother me, I tell 'em nothing beats the stampeding like I went through in those derbies."

Over a period of 18 years, Horvath has given the road maps a heavy play while plying his trade as a jockey. "Never around Toronto much before this year," he said, "but I did a lot of riding in Windsor. Also had my share in Detroit. Once worked for the Dixiana Stables and Trainer Clyde Van Dusen."

Best horse he ever rode?

"That's always a tough one to answer," said Horvath. "I've been up on a few good ones. For real lick, I don't remember any that could hike any faster up to a mile that Mata Hari of the Dixiana Stables."

Royals Lead 10-3 But Giants Win On Stall

There's an old axiom that reads "There's nothing new under the sun." But here is what happened at dusk yesterday just before the lights went out in the Jersey City—Montreal introduction of twilight-night baseball to the International League.

1. Hugh East, pitching for the Giants, walked four straight batters with some pitches looking as though he was throwing them deliberately wide.

2. Montreal batters struck at ball that cut corner of first base.

It all came about when the Royals wiped out Jersey City's one-run lead in the first half of the ninth, scored eight times and brought the count to 10-3 before the players changed sides.

There were only a few minutes of playing time left when the Giants came to bat and they managed to put one on with one out before the lights were extinguished. Dim out regulations forced the Giants to suspend their night schedule but they had permission to use the lights until 9:24 p.m.

As the inning was not completed the score reverted to the eighth wtih the Giants the victors, 3-2.

Newark Bears further strengthed their first-place lead by defeating Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-2. All the scoring took place in the first frame, with the Bears' winning margin riding home on Gene Corbett's home run with two on. George Washburn, who relieved Milo Candini for Newark in the first inning, received credit for the triumph.

Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs split a twinball in the only other games played. The Chiefs took the first behind the six-hit hurling of young Ewell Blackwell, 3-2, while the Bisons came back to take the night cap, 3-1.

Rochester's appearance at Baltimore was postponed.

Charities Split Army-Giants Game Proceeds

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP) — Two charities—the Army Emergency Relief and the Herald-Tribune Fresh Air Fund—will share proceeds of the Sept. 12 football game in which New York Giants of the National Pro League will oppose the best the United States Army has to offer.

Final arrangements were completed today, with the New York Baseball Giants and Chicago Cubs agreeing to shift their National League game from the Polo grounds on that date to give the gridiron boys a clear field.

At the same time the army agreed to the dvision of profits, the only contest for a soldier team in which the profits do not go entirely to army relief.

In the six previous Fresh Air Fund games, the Giants have tangled with a squad of Eastern College All-Stars.

Army officials in Washington this week announced plans for two All-Star football teams and six-week schedules for each. Approximately 1,500 outstanding football players, both pro and amateur, now are in the service as a reservoir of talent.

St. Peter's Hold League Lead

St Peter's hold first place in the Catholic Softball League, defeating Sacred Heart in a well-played game at Memorial Park Friday night by 8 runs to 5.

Cavanagh pitched steady ball for St. Peter's holding the south-enders to nine scattered hits, walking three and striking out four.

Reynolds on the mound for Sacred Heart was nicked for 12 hits, issued two passes and retired one by the strike out route.

Honey Tompkins again led the Saints at bat, coming through with a homer and two singles and Rev. Father Wolfe helped himself to a triple and single.

Reynold's with two singles was the only Sacred Heart player to get more than one hit.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP)—The United States Army has just put out an order that soldiers on furlough no longer can accept money for athletic performances . . . aimed at keeping army ball players out of benefit games where the promoters benefitted the most, the rule also ruins any chance Cpl. Joe Louis might have had of defending his heavyweight title for dough this summer . . . A good many other soldier fighters, such as Tommy Gomez, Young Kid McCoy, Mike Raffa and Joe Muscato will feel the pinch . . . Washington has averaged 9,000 attendance for six night ball games that would have done about 2,500 by daylight . . . and Griff probably is wondering why he was again' it for so long . . . Los Angeles sports arbiters will portray themselves in sports scribbling roles in the Gentleman Jim Corbett picture soon to be filmed.

Wounded in action

In his first game with the Fulton (Ky.) club of the Kitty League (where everything happens), Rookie Kenny (Screw) Ball singled, then called for time out when he reached first. "Here, keep this for me," he said, handing Coach Tommy Thomasson a big, black comb, "I'm afraid I'll slide into second and hurt myself." . . . Before the game ended, Ball made a slide to third and spiked himself on both ankles.

Detroit Racing Stewards chased an owner of a one-horse stable clear off the grounds when he admitted he and his nag entered merely as a "policeman" so he could put in a few claims during the meeting.

Cardinals Nose Phils by 2-1 CubsTakeBraves

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Call it a military secret if you like, but that stuff causing all the grief for the major leagues in general and the Brooklyn Dodgers in particular isn't ginger ale.

The Dodgers have been idle so long they may adopt hip-boots and umbrellas as standard equipment. Seven games were scheduled in the majors yesterday: but only five of them were started and two of these never got far enough to get into the records.

The Dodgers, who haven't played a league foe since last Sunday, bumped into their fourth straight postponement at Cincinnati. If they haven't forgotten what to do with the ball, they will take another whirl at a lighted tilt with the Reds tonight.

he second-place Cardinals, who also suffered when three games with the Dodgers went in the postponed list, returned to action last night and nosed out the Philadelphia Phils, 2-1. That chopped the distance between them and the league-leading Dodgers to six and a half games.

Mort Cooper held the Phils to five hits, shading Tommy Hughes in a hurling duel. Both St. Louis runs came in the first inning when Enos Slaughter tripled behind Terry Moore's pass and later scored on an infield out. An infield single by Danny Litwhiler and a double by Nick Etten produced the Phils' lone score in the fourth.

The Chicago Cubs protected their sixth place berth from Boston, handing the Braves their tenth straight setback, 3-2, in the only afternoon contest.

Only Six Hits

Lefty Vern Olsen, beaten in four previous outings, limited the Braves to six hits in his first victory of the year. The Cubs pasted Al Javery for nine blows, three of them by Bill Nicholson, who doubled home two runs and scored the winning tally by hitting another two-bagger ahead of Lou Novikoff's single.

A night game at Pittsburgh between the Pirates and New York Giants was halted after three and a half innings with the Giants leading, 7-4.

In the only American League game played— a night affair at Philadelphia the Athletics tripped the Cleveland Indians, 5-4, on the five-hit pitching on Dick Fowler and Russ Christopher.

Fowler, who went 16 innings on his last appearance and lost a tough one to the St. Louis Browns, retired in the sixth inning after being nicked on the arm by Vern Kennedy, third Cleveland pitcher. The victory was Fowler's, although Christopher handcuffed the tribe on one hit rest of the way.

The New-York Yankees'-series-opener with the St. Louis Browns was postponed and the Washington game between the Senators and the Chicago White Sox was called off last night after one inning with no score.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By Scott Young,

TORONTO, June 13. —(CP) — The waiting world may get an insight into the quantity and quality of football proposed for Eastern Canada this year when the haze clears away from the semi-annual meetings of the Eastern Rugby Football Union and the Interprovincial Union in Toronto to-day....But more likely the world will still be waiting, long after....Football men in these parts are clamlike ....Even those officials who have said they would carry on are regarded with intense suspicion....Such a simple answer seems incredible in comparison with tangled football affairs in the past.

Bert Warwick, assistant coach of the Winnepg Blue Bombers last year, is in Ottawa on business.... Passing through Toronto a couple of days ago he said he and Reg Threlfall wil lact as advisory coaches to the four-team senior football league in Winnipeg this year....Playing systems will be standarized to make it easy for Threlfall and Warwick to pick a nall-star team from the leauge to defend the Canadian title Bombers won last year....Bomber veterans will be distributed evenly through the four teams....There will be no age limit.

Paddock patter.

Jimmy Darou, former jockey whose legs were paralyzed in a spill at Connaught Park in 1933, will operate a two-horse stable on Quebec tracks this year..as owher of course ..St. Lochiel is his new buy....His other horse is Cuvanna, which campaigned with fair success in the same area in previous years.

Incidentally.

One of the best summer sports layouts in the country is the McIntyre community building at Schumacher, Ont....Summer skating, yet, with professional instructors.... nearby are tennis courts, golf course (15 minutes walk from ice), swimming pool and the works....Archery is booming in North Bay, Archery golf (much easier, because arrows are a cinch to find) gettting a fair play....Fred Metcalfe, former Regina hockey coach, is with the United States army in the deep south..

Hun Out to Whip Russia Before 2nd Front Opens

LONDON, June 13—(AP)—With Britain, Russia and the United States united as never before, Allied hopes of striking a decisive blow in the war this year appeared today to be predicated on a bold invasion of Western Europe.

That Allied strategy calls for such a move was clearly indicated by the announcement yesterday that Washington, London and Moscow are agreed on the urgency of opening a second front to crush Hitler's armies between two forces.

The announcement came amid [illegible]ations that Hitler was amass[illegible]is legions for an all-out effort [illegible]mash Russia with all possible [illegible].

[illegible]bservers believed, however, that [illegible]sia's ability to withstand the [illegible]ck would be strengthened by sure [illegible]ledge that powerful help was [illegible]way and that Hitler's opera[illegible]uld be impeded by the ne[illegible]f meeting the looming threat [illegible]west.

[illegible]dy three military factors were [illegible]d to have forced the Ger[illegible]o frenzied efforts to secure [illegible] Europe against invasion:

[illegible]e growing efficiency of the [illegible] army, plus steady reinforce[illegible] of American forces in North[illegible]eland.

2. Arrival of a powerful American battle squadron in British waters to bolster the Royal Navy's home fleet.

3. The imminent addition of American bomber squadrons to the R.A.F., which already is master of the skies over the channel and which has demonstrated its ability to hurl more than 1,000 planes in one raid against German Industrial centres.

Raids Show Up Defences

The German's worries have been augmented further by British Commando raids which have shown their coastal defences along the English channel far from invulnerable.

Consequently they have been hastening construction of new defences along the shores of the low countries and northern France under the direction of Albert Speer, Nazi minister for economic armaments and munitions.

A network of new railroads is being built in supporting areas, and farmhouses are being transformed into pillboxes as units in a defence system apparently depending more on heavily fortified static positions than on mobile tank columns, most of which have been withdrawn to the Russian front.

British military experts, however, say that such a defence system never could stand up under the concentrated pounding from the air to which it would be subjected prior to any landing attempt.

Official references in London and Washington to the understanding on the opening of a second front were warmly acclaimed by the British press, sections of which long have been clamoring for action.

Typical was the comment of the Daily Express, which said that at last Britain was going to play her part in the destruction of Germany's military might, and added: "This is Hitler's worst day."

Admit Ukraine No Land Of Milk, Honey

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

NEW YORK, une 13 (AP)—The Ukraine is not the rich prize many Germans expected it to be.

Years of propagandistic agitation, much of it by Hitler himself, nad pictured Russia's Black Sea Empire as a bottomless bread basket which Germany's tight economy urgently needed.

The Ukraine was to provide a limitless food supply and was to neutralize the effect of the British blockade. In fact, many Germans suspected Hitler's decision to attack Russia was as much a foraging expedition a it was a blow against "world bolshevism."

Then came a blitz campaign, culminating in the fall of Kiev. But more slowly came the realization that, whereas the Ukraine was a land rich in resources, Germany could not exploit them easily or immediately.

"Expect nothing from the Ukraine in 1942," is the advice now being dished out to hungry Germans by Goebbels' radio and press. Organizational and administrative difficulties of unforseen magnitude are slowing up exploitation of the region, and Germans have been told not to hope for an early increase of the bread ration.

Major Difficulties.

The major difficulties shape up as follows:

Stalin's "scorched earth" policy was effective in the Ukraine. Retreating Russians carried off or destroyed agricultural machinery, cattle and horses.

Rumanian troops, eager for booty, grabbed all the horses they could get away with.

Tens of thousands of farmers were in the Russian Army, and such as remained were largely indisposed to work efficiently for German masters.

In more than two decades of Communistic administration the Ukraine had been divided into collective farms. Ukrainian peasants had forgotten how to till fields on the small farm scale familiar to Germans. The new Ukrainian was a specialist who might know how to run a tractor, but couldn't manage all the details of a whole farm by himself. This situation required the services of thousands of German agricultural experts, and Germany has not so many experts to spare.

The transportation problem is a lasting headache. It's one thing to drive an armored division deep into the Ukraine, quite another to change thousands of miles of wide guage railway to standard guage, and to find the rolling stock in impoverished Europe to haul agricultural products to the hungry cities of Germany.

Won't Take Marks.

The Ukrainian mentality simply doesn't articulate with the German. The Ukrainian couldn't be percuaded to accept German marks or the doubtful currencies Germany invents for its occupied regions on the mere promise that Hitler's grand new era ultimately would make every one prosperous. The Ukrainian wanted to barter, a sack of potatoes for a pair of pants. And Germany lacks that many pants.

Finally, the Germans found, to the amazement of some of her editors and glib economic experts, that Ukraine is a densely populated land. The needs of its own population are great. And it is a land of alternating plenty and famine. An unpredictable element, weather, might make the Ukraine a liability rather than an asset to be exploited immediately.

All these considerations caused Frankfurter Zeitung to say: "The Ukraine is not a land of milk and honey." Coming from a quarter so authoritative, the whole tone of German propaganda respecting the Ukraine changed.

An observer could not doubt that given time, the German talent for organization could cash in on its conquest. But the job was simply too big to be accomplished in one year, and particularly in a year in which German resources are strained to the utmost by its military effort.

Chinese Press Russians To Hit Japs Now

CHUNGKING, June 13—(AP).—The Chinese press called bluntly on Soviet Russia today to strike at Japan in the wake of the Japanese attacks on Midway and the Aleutians, the Russian-American-British u derstanding on the creation of a secord front in Europe in 1942.

The newspaper Ta [illegible]ung Pao asserted:

"America has done her part in helping Russia. Now that American outposts have been subjected to Japanese attacks, isn't it time for Russia to help America in the Pacific? Russia should also realize that the Japanese attack on the Aleutians was a direct threat to Kamchatna and Siberia....

"Can Russia stand aside and watch the wildfire spread to her very gates? She must do something and do it quickly, even if only for her own safety."

The China Times said it hoped "Russia would make the timely decision to help the Allies in the Pacific by going to war against Japan."

"Soviet participation in the Pacific war not only will hasten the common Allied victory but will give her greater security in the East as she is fighting Germany in the West," it said.

"It is time for a change in the Soviet-Japanese relations."

The China Times expressed "concern" over news that American warships were operating with the British home fleet.

"This divided strength of the United States fleet," it said, prompted the Japanese attack on Midway and the Aleutians.

"Japan surely is using her main fleet for operation in the Northern Pacific. It is indeed time to face this fact and take countermeasures against Japanese attack."

Reserves Press White Collar Men to Enlist

By Frank Flaherty,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 13—(CP). — The Reserve Army wants the banker, the broker, the clerk in uniform as well as the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, Maj.-Gen. B. W. Browne, Director-General of the Reserve, made clear to-day.

Last week, the General said every eligible citizen should be in either the active or the reserve forces. That means, he said, that men of the so-called "white collar class," who are moderately or well educated are needed as buck privates as well as men who work with their hands.

The reason is that the Reserve Army must do its training in the spare time enjoyed by its members from their civilian occupations. The more education a man has the quicker he can absorb instruction. Thus it is possible to make a reasonably efficient soldier out of a man who has a fair education and is accustomed to using his mind in his work in less time than required to bring a man with little education and whose mind is not accustomed to absorbing information up to the same standard.

"After all the Reserve Army may have to do some fighting with very little training," said Gen. Browne. "The greater results we can show for the leats training," the better.

Classes Split Up

In some reserve army units men are being divided into classes for training so that the slower members of the unit will not hold the others back. Thus the man who responds quickly to training will not become bored by having to repeat the same processes over and over again until the slowest men in the unit learn their lessons.

The reserve army recruiting program is rolling along well. Its object is to bring all reserve army units up to full strength, a total of more than 150,000 men.

With reports from military districts still incomplete and the campaign at varying stages in different districts it is not known how close the campaign is to its objective. In Military District No. 2 (Toronto) the units have reached almost full strength.

District No. 4 (Montreal) now i[illegible] in the midst of a drive for the number of recruits necessary to pu[illegible] its units over the top. District No 10 (Winnipeg) has completed [illegible] campaign, the results of which ar[illegible] still coming in.

Institute Visits Mt. Pleasant School

MOUNT PLEASANT, June 13. — (ENS)—The members of the Mount Pleasant Women's Institute met with the pupils and teacher Miss Fairburn of S.S. No. 2, Cavan, in the school for the June meeting held on Wednesday afternoon.

The pupils entertained the W.I. with a splendid patriotic program, with their teacher as chairman, including the following numbers: A pageant entitled "The Empire at War"; piano solo, Russell Gardiner; recitation, Arnold Fee; concluding with a short play "Blue Boots."

Mrs. I. Lowe presided for the W.I. conducting a "Farm Quiz" in which the children took part, Mrs. N. Fee, a former teacher gave a talk to the children with pleasant memories of the days when she taught, picturing several of the pupils' parents, telling where they sat in school.

Mrs. T. C. Morden, president, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the teacher and pupils after which the ladies served sandwiches and oranges to the children after which school was dismissed and the regular W.I. meting proceeded with.

The roll call was answered with the members responding with "When I first went to school and my first teacher."

A letter was read from Miss Clarke thanking the Women's Institute for donation of $5 for sugar for the jam making.

Plans were made for the July meeting "Grandmother's Picnic Day" to be held at the home of Mrs. Ira Lowe. The president and secretary, Mrs. Morden and Mrs. Lawson were appointed as a committee to invite the grandmothers.

Former Teacher At St. Peter's Dies This Week

Having finished a school year to within three weeks of its closing, the Rev. Sister Mary Paula, devoted Sister-Principal of St. Dominic's Boys' School, Lindsay, left to her successor the completing of school records, and the final topping off of the scholastic year, to answer the summons of her Creator, through His messenger, Death, on June 9.

Sister Mary Paula, though not experiencing perfect health during the entire school-year, taught until the last week of May, when she was advised by those who knew her condition, and who feared that delay would mean disaster, to submit to an operation, which she did on June 2, in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. For some days great hopes were sustained, but on the evening of June 9th, while her Sisters surrounded her beside, and the last absolution was being given by attending clergy, she died a peaceful, happy death.

The late Sister Paula, who was formerly Miss Elizabeth Holland, was a daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. G. K. Holland of Dublin, Ontario. On December 25th, 1915, she entered the Community of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Peterborough, and has, since that time, been an active member of that congregation. She taught in North Bay, Almonte, St. Peter's High School, Peterborough, and in St. Dominic's Boys School, Lindsay. It needs but the testimony of her former pupils, to estimate her worth as a director of youth. She was young with the young, entering whole-heartedly into their sports and recreations. In this, she saw a field for character-building, and seemed to learn the traits of the individual child more during play than during work. Her method succeeded for she had wonderful influence, particularly in the training of boys. By the death of Sister Paula, the teaching profession has lost an efficient member the Sisters of St. Joseph, a cheerful, kind, generous companion, and her sorrowing family a loving daughter and sister.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. G. K. Holland of Dublin, Ontario; three sisters, Sister Stephanie of the Ursuline Community, Chatham; Mrs. Carlin of Beechwood; and Mrs. Flynn of Dublin; five brothers, Leo and Thomas of Windsor; Jack and George of Dublin; and Gerald who resides with his mother in Dublin. The late Reverend J. Eckert, O. P., and the late Reverend Stephen Eckert, Franciscan, were uncles.

The fuenral was held in the Chapel of Mount St. Joseph, Peterboro, on Thursday, June 11 at 9.30 a.m. A solemn Requiem High Mass was sung by Reverend J. T. Finn, rector assisted by Reverend G. Wolff and Reverend J. P. Lynch of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough. His Excellency the Most Reverend Denis O'Connor, D. D., LL.D., Bishop of Peterborough, was present in the sanctuary assisted by Reverend V. J. Corkery, Chancellor, and Reverend J. J. Garvey, P. P., Hastings. Revered J. Greenan was master of ceremonies. Others present in the sanctuary were the Right Reverend F. O'Sullivan, P. P., Reverend J. Walsh, Reverend C. Begley of Immaculate Conception Parish, Peterborough; Reverend F. Grant, D.C.L., and Reverend J. Houlihan of Sacred Heart Parish; and Mr. Callahan of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. The pall-bearers were her four brothers, Jack, George, Thomas and Gerald, and also Mr. F. Hickey, and Mr. A. C. Kay. The body was interred in the Sisters' Plot of St. Peter's Cemetery, where Reverend G. Wolff and Reverend J. Greenan officiated at the grave. May her soul rest in peace.

Closing Exercises For Grove School

Dr. Ramsay Armitage, principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, will officiate at the Divine Service, which is part of the closing program at Grove School, Lakefield.

It will be the last march off the parade grounds for fifteen of these naval cadets, most of whom are too young to step up into the active service with the Canadian navy. Prize-giving will follow the march-off, and after addresses by G. W. Smith, headmaster and Mr. Frank Pullen, of Oakville, president of the Grove School Board, the cadets will enter the chapel for the final portion of the exercises.

Peonies Bring Beauty To City Boulevard

Dr. J. A. Baker, retired physician of 74 Hunter Street East, is proud of his bed of peonies which add a bright spot of beauty and color to the curb in Ashburnham. He is one of the first in the city to attempt boulevard beautification with the use of flowers instead of flowering shrubs.
(McGillen—Staff Photo.)

Veteran Doctor Has 1,000 Blooms Of Peonies Out in Front of Home

An abiding faith in the belief that people love beauty and will not mar nor disturb it, has been justified by the success of Dr. J. A. Baker, retired physician of Hunter Street East, who has successfully grown a hedge of peonies on the boulevard in front of his home. The spot has been converted from the ordinary green of a city curb line into a blaze of flowering loveliness that entices motorists to stop at the curb and admire this stretch of floral grandeur.

An Examiner reporter who chose to go into consultation with this kindly, popular resident of Ashburnham who has served the community for almost half a century, learned many things during the little talk.

People are altogether too prone to accept a bed of mixed peonies as something that just happened, and they fail to realize the amount of work, and attention, that is required to bring such a project to the point of perfection. Dr. Baker looks on this bed of flowers as an achievement, not only in the realm of flower culture, but justification of his belief that people will not destroy beautiful things. There is an interesting story back of the project in that Dr. Baker was discouraged by a former alderman of the City Conucil who dubbed the beautification effort as fantastic and likely to failure because of the human propensity to theft, and vandalism. The view was definitely not shared by the physician, who asked that the city provide some leaf mould for the bed.

The alderman supplied the leaf mould and this was placed in the bottom of the excavation that was the start of the flower bed. This year there are more than 1,000 blooms in the row of peonies, and less than two dozen of the buds were nipped off by venturesome youngsters or careless adults.

Dr. Baker is nearing his 79th birthday and as he is not doing actual practise, he has turned to flower growing as a hobby, and takes keen pride in the appearance of his flower beds and lawn. Part of the pleasure which Dr. Baker and Mrs. Baker enjoyed from the cultivation of the flowers has been lost this year, because mosquitoes were so numerous, they drove the gardeners out of the flower plots in the evening.

The main point, however, of this story is that Dr. Baker has done what a great many other citizens perhaps wished to do, but hesitated to undertake becauhe they feared passers-by would steal the flowers.

The row of peonies is just at the peak now, and unless the heavy rain of Friday night scattered the petals, the spot should be worth a trip to see this week-end.

Summer Hotels Rentals Changed

A copy of an extra edition of the Canada Gazette forwarded by Gordon K. Fraser, M.P. contains a new order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in regard to rentals for seasonal hotel accommodation.

Under this order "seasonal hotel accommodation" means any room or rooms in an inn or standard hotel in which sleeping or living accommodation is furnished to the travelling public with or without meals and which operates for a season or seasons or for part of a season only in any year.

The order provides that a landlord of any seasonal hotel accommodation may increase the maximum rental therefor in effect for any particular season by an amount not exceeding 10 per cent of the rental therefor as established by the rate-schedule in effect for the corresponding season of 1940.

Before doing so, however, he must forward to the Rentals Administration, Ottawa, verified by statutory declaration, a copy of the 1940 rate-schedule as well as a copy of the increased rate schedule for the same accommodation this season.

Draw On Quilt Makes $28 For War Victims

On a number of occasions the Lily Lake Women's Association has contributed to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, and when it is recalled that on one of these occasions the amount was well in excess of $300, some idea of the magnitude of their work can be gained and just how energetic they have proved to be in helping along the war effort, for the help that they have given to this fund, is by no means the only assist that they have given in helping along the war effort.

Their efforts on behalf of the victims of air raids over Britain have netted in the vicinity of $500 alone, something that must give all the members considerable satisfaction and redounds very much to their credit indeed.

Recently this group held a community auction sale on the farm of W. D. Wilson, which proved a most successful event, and the part that this fund had in the proceedings was the draw for a quilt, for which they had been selling tickets for some time previous to that.

The draw was made by Allan B. Mann, who drew Mrs. Mann's ticket, who then very graciously handed it over to the auctioneers, W. J. and Gordon Hancock to auction off in order to further swell the proceeds, which added a further $5 to the amount raised when bought by Miss L. Wilson at that figure, making in all a total et proceeds of $28.05 which is credited in their name in to-day's list for the fund per Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus, the treasurer of this group.

The Group of Four, who have been making a regular monthly donation to the fund by holding a small weekly euchre and charging themselves a regular fee for the pleasure thus gained, and who for the past few months have been joined by a lady who sits in with them, are once again heard from with a donation of $5, this being the amount that has appeared in their name for the past few months; their continued help being a source of gratification to the fund management as it must be one of satisfaction to themselves.

The very first penny box collection to come to the fund came from Bert McLeod's Drug Store, and since then a continual flow of help has come to the fund from this source as evidenced by the many times it has appeared in the lists for the fund, the latest being today's contribution of $2.25.

Lions' Club Officers Report Year of Great Activity

Climaxing one of the most successful years in the history of the Peterborough Lions' Club, J. E. Girven relinquished the gavel of authority this week to Stanley A. Darling, well-known insurance man of this city, who was elected president without opposition to head the Lions during 1942-43.

The Club has not only shown a substantial gain in membership under the direction of J. E. Girven, the retiring president, but has sent more than $1,000 to the general fund of Lions' Clubs in Canada to bring aid to British Child War Victims, a war charity that has the approval of Her Majesty the Queen. The Club has also financed forty operations for the removal of tonsils from children in homes where financial assistance was required. They have also contributed to all the major community charities, and send a quarter of a ton of magazines monthly to the men of the Merchant Marine.

Fred Cripps, one of the charter members of the Club, in a brief, well worded speech expressed the thanks of the Club to the retiring president, J. E. Girven, who in spite of these demands of his job, in one of Canada's larger war industries, had found time to give plenty of time and energy to the work of the Club. This is Everybody's War

The Hospitality Club was entertaining airmen of the R.A.F. stationed somewhere in Ontario for training, and the sweet young thing was dancing with an LAC. As they danced they discussed the matter of women going into the services, and the lady said that she wouldn't join up till she had to. "Of course," she said, "it would be different if my country were at war." The airman's reply, if any, is not recorded.

This is a true story, and it happened, not in Peterborough, but not very far away, in a town overflowing with men in uniform. No doubt the young lady knew that Canada had declared war on the Axis. Wasn't she dancing with a man who was in Canada for the sole purpose of learning how to fight the Axis? But that, to her, did not apparently constitute being at war. You needn't laugh at her. She's not so uncommon.

Few of us would have been so unfortunate as to say what she did, but many of us suffer from her state of mind. We do not believe anything that has not happened to us personally. We have no sufficient imagination to realize that what is happening elsewhere in the world can happen here, too. Our land is so steeped in peace, so free from bitter revileries and racial feuds, that we do not believe the horror, the tragedy of war, can ever reach us. It is a dangerous state of mind. It makes us blind and deaf to every sign of danger. It makes us regard winning the war as one of those inevitable things about which no-one need waste much thought or worry.

Most of us enjoy the war work we do, which would not be the case if we realized fully the depths of honor and insanity that make the work necessary. Until we wake up to the fact that Canada is at war; that Canadians, probably those near and dear to us, can be killed in this war; that Canadian cities can know, as did Warsaw and Poland, the deadly hail of Axis bombs, we shall not put forth our strongest efforts towards the winning of the war. Perhaps it will take a bomb or two to wake us up.

Agnes Logan Green's Pupils Give Fine Recital

June is no month for recitals, but it so befalls that the young music student is prepared at that time to showed his talents to an admiring world, and so recitals take place in June. The pupils of Agnes Logan Green, despite the sultry heat, gave a fine recital on Friday evening which commanded the attention and appreciation of the audience from start to finish.

Mrs. Green's pupils play with confidence and assurance and as a group show unusual appreciation of the music, and careful craftsmanship. The average of the performance in this particular recital was exceptionally high. Mrs. Green expressed regret at the illness of Clifford Roydhouse, which prevented him playing. Cliff has done very well during the year and was anxious to play in the recital.

The program was opened by David French, who played very nicely three short pieces. Next Stanley Feneron played four pieces. Stanley seemed somewhat unduly nervous, but his playing was careful and conscientious.

Next on the program was Barbara Craig, who gave one of the exceptionally good performances of the evening. Barbara plays easily, with deft delicacy of touch and sure confidence. She shows great promise.

Agnes Howson, who played the next number showed herself good in the swifter, lighter parts of her pieces. She has a light, sure touch. Allan Lee played expressively, with good touch.

Joyce Dewart seemed a little uncertain of her pieces, but had a firm touch. Elizabeth Ketchum was nervous, but her playing was firm and sure.

Dick Crowe has a fine rhythmic sense a sure confidence born of conscientious practice and considerable talent.

Marjo Spicer first performer of the older pupils played well, showing appreciation of her pieces and having a firm, confident style of playing.

Bill Crowe's performance was perhaps the most outstanding on the program. He has a strong yet delicate touch and a gently expressive style of playing.

Alicia Langley adds to her already known talents as a singer, considerable talent as a pianist. Her playing is marked by the same delicacy of expression which makes her singing so pleasant to hear, as well as considerable technical skill.

Evelyne Martin played well, with technical skill and confidence. Eleanor Taylor shows a strong sense of rhythm and competent skill.

Mildred McIntyre plays expressively, with conscientious skill and a light, firm touch.

All the students played their pieces from memory and there was surprisingly little stumbling among the younger pupils and almost none among the older ones. Mrs. Green is to be congratulated on having her recital start on time, and it is to be hoped that she will set a precedent in this respect.

Perdue-Morrissey Wedding At St. Luke's, Downeyville

St. Luke's Church, Downeyville was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday morning, at nine o'clock when Cecelia Morrissey and late John Morrissey was united in marriage to Alvin Perdue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue, both of Downeyville.

The altar was beautifully decorated with pink iris, peonies and spirea.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Frank, who gave her away to the strains of the wedding march played by the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Herlihey. Solos were sung by Mr. Orville Perdue, brother of the groom, Mr. Ray Morrissey, brother of the bride, Mrs. Joseph Morrissey, sister-in-law of the bride and Mr. Martin Herlihey, uncle of the groom. At the offetory the groom's mother, Mrs. Patrick Perdue sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria." Rev. Father McFadden performed the ceremony assisted by Rev. Father S. A. Perdue, of Holy Rosary Church, Toronto, uncle of the groom. Mass was served by the bride's nephews, Frank Herlihey and Jack Morrissey.

The bride looked charming in a gown of pink mousseline de soie and chantilly lace with white accessories with a corsage of white roses and fern and carrying a white prayer book the gift of her aunt, Sister Carmelita of St. Joseph's, Toronto.

The bridesmaid, Miss Emmerine Carrol looked charming in a frock of blue with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Ray, of Toronto.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of the brides mother where dinner was served to some 35 guests. The brides mother received in a blue sheer gown with blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The grooms mother also received wearing a blue crepe frock, white hat and accessorics and a corsage of white carnations and bouvardia.

After the reception, Mr. Perdue and his bride left on a trip to St. Catharines and Niagara Falls and on their return will reside in Emily.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question—When you have space in your column, would you please answer the following [illegible] 1.—How do you make [illegible] good coffee in a percolator? 2.—What [illegible] of cookies would you suggest [illegible] sending overseas, and how should they be packed? 3.—Could you give me a recipe for Swiss Steak and Peanut Butter Oatmeal Cookies? Thank you.

Sincerely, A Reader.

Answer—To make percolator coffee, you require 3 tablespoons of medium grind coffee to each cup of freshly boiling water. Put the coffee in the strainer, the water in the bottom of the pot. Set strainer in place and cover and put on slow fire. Protect the handle against heat. After the water begins to bubble up through the central tube over the coffee, let the cooking continue 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Remove strainer containing coffee. Cover and serve. This coffee is clear The flavour of filtered coffee is better than percolator coffee. If you would like the method of making filtered coffee, I shall be glad to supply it.

Honey Cookies—One-quarter cup water, 2 cups brown sugar, packed, ½ cup lard, 1 cup honey, 1-3 cup egg yolks. 1 teaspoon soda, 3 cups flour and 3 cups white wheat flour 1 teaspoon powdered cardamon seed, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt. Heat the water, sugar, lard and honey until the lard is melted. When cool add the yolks of the eggs and the flour, sifted with the soda, and spices.

To pack these for overseas, they should be cut out the same size as the container in which you are going to ship them and a sheet of waxed paper should be placed between each cookie. They may be formed into an oblong and chilled overnight in ice-box. Then slice (do not slice these cookies too thin) and bake in the morning.

Peanut Butter oatmeal cookies are also good for overseas parcels. Any cookies must be packed carefully with a sheet of waxed paper between them. Ginger Snaps make good overseas packages because they are hard.

Peanut Butter Oatmeal Cookies.

One cup peanut butter (or ½ cup peanut butter mixed with ½ cup peanut butter crush) ½ cup butter, 1 cup golden corn syrup, ½ cup sugar 2 eggs 1½ cups rolled oats or oatmeal, 2 cups unsifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda 1 teaspoon baking powder. Into mixing bowl put peanut butter, butter, corn syrup sugar and eggs. Beat well. Sift in the flour, salt, soda and baking powder. Mix well and drop by teaspoonfuls on cookie sheet (which has been oiled). Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. (moderately hot) until golden. These Peanut Butter Oatmeal Cookies spread very little—but should be dropped about 2 inches apart.

Swiss Steak:

Round steak from ¾ to 2½ inches thick. After rubbing in salt and pepper, cover steak with flour and pound getting as much flavor as possible into the steak. The edge of a thick plate is good to use for this if you do not have a regular steak pounder. Treat both sides the same way. Then saute in hot fat, searing both sides until light brown. Then cover with boiling water. Reduce heat a slow as possible and cook for around 2½ or 3 hours in oven or on top of stove.

Note: Canned tomatoes can be used in place of some of the water and small onions and small carrots are commonly added to the liquid on Swiss Steak one hour before serving.

Question: Would you please print in your column or send me a recipe and directions for strudel? I have obtained much help from your column in the past. I sincerely hope it will be a permanent feature of the EXAMINER. Thanking you.

Yours sincerely, Mrs. J. Jenich.

Answer: I hope so too.

Apfel Strudel.

(Slightly sweetened ice box dough forms the base).

Mix 2 cups boiling water, ¾ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening and cool to lukewarm. Soften 2 cakes of compressed yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water, add 1 teaspoon sugar and stir into the first mixture. Add 2 beaten eggs and stir in 4 cups flour and beat well, then stir in 3 or 4 more cups flour, but do not knead. Cover and put in the ice box to have on hand. This may be made into rolls or part used as the base of Apfel Strudel.

For Apfel Strudel roll dough to ½-inch thickness and place it in buttered dish (shallow preferred) to handle bulk. Just before putting into a hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr. cover with 8ths of apples slightly overlapping, and cover with a paste of ½ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon (some folks like more cinnamon and just enough cream to moisten to a thick paste—about 2 tablespoons.

Instead of apples you may use peaches pears, or pineapples with white sugar. Dried fruits of any kind may be soaked and used.

Write again whenever we can be of help.

INTERNATIONAL MARRIAGES SELDOM INSURE HAPPINESS

Young People Usually Believe Nothing Matters Except Love.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a man 20 years of age. Fine family with high ideals. Have a college degree and good business opportunity awaiting me after the war. I am in love with a nice girl. Intelligent. Good character. Divorced parents. We are of different nationalities and religions. Her mother, however does not have our code of ethics.

If we should marry, what would be our chances of our marriage turning out happily? JACQUES.

ANSWER: Practically nil. Too many difficulties in the way. Of course, matrimonial miracles do happen occasionally and now and then a marriage that seemed foreordained for failure is successful. But, as I need not warn you, miracles are as rare as hen's teeth. A man's Guardian Angel seldom intervenes to save him from the consequences of making an unsuitable marriage. It leaves him to reap the results of his folly.

When a boy and girl are in love they think that nothing matters in marriage except love, but that is not true. There are a thousand things besides a husband's and wife's affection for each other that make or mar their mariage, and that in actuality determine whether their love will last or not. And you and your girl differ on so many points that it would seem to be almost an impossibility for you ever to live together in peace and harmony.

There is nationality, to begin with, inbred characteristics, different habits and customs and points of view that are just as much a part of you as the color of your eyes and your complexion. Very few international marriages are happy because it is hard for two people who have been used to different ways of thinking and cooking and eating and doing things to adjust themselves to each other. Little as you think it now, even so small a thing as whether one likes onions and garlic in the salad or not can be provocative of a daily spat.

Then, in your case, there is religion which is good for a war in any family in which the husband holds to one creed and the wife to another. Finally, again in your case, there is the barrier of social caste between you and the girl. You belong to a good family, proud of its standing in its community. Her mother is not law-abiding. It is no use in your saying that you are marrying the girl, not her family. No man does that. When a man marries a girl he becomes one of her family. You can't separate the girl from her mother. Her mother's blood will run in your children's veins. Her mother's reputation and occupation will be a shadow on them. You can no more blot out the girl's family than she can yours.

So, taking it all in all, there is not much chance of such an unequal marriage being a happy one.

Money More Fleeting Than Love

Dear Miss Dix: At one time my family was very wealthy, but we lost our fortune and now barely make a living. Since I was a child my mother has done nothing but talk to me about marrying a rich man who can help the family. She has made me feel that it was my duty to do so, and she is very much incensed with me because I have fallen in love with a poor man and want to marry him.

This constant nagging about getting a rich husband is getting on my nerves and makes me very depressed. Should I break my engagement to the fine, poor boy I love and wait until some rich man comes along who wants to marry me? MARY.

ANSWER: Don't think of such a foolish thing. In the first place, millionaires who want to marry poor girls and support their families are few and far between, and your chance of getting one is about ekual to your chance of drawing a prize in the sweepstakes. And, anyway, the girl who sells herself in marriage makes a poor bargain. No matter what she fetches, she is never happy because she lacks the one thing that makes marriage worthwhile, and that is love.

It is easy to see why mothers, who have known the hardships of poverty, should urge their daughters to marry for money and tell them that love doesn't last, but a bank account does. But this is not true. Money is even more fleeting than love, and many a girl who has let Mother's preaching overrule her heart and has married the rich old widower Mother picked out for her, instead of the poor boy she loved, has seen the rich old husband lose his fortune and has been left bankrupt in both money and love.

SPORTING BLOOD

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

THE STORY: When Hunter Dent, Strickland Ballard's farm manager, finds Ballard's dissipated son, Junior, lying unconscious beside a satchel of money, he thinks he has a weapon against his rich but unscrupulous employer. Hunter has bet the elder Ballard that the latter will return the prize horse and new strain of corn which Ballard has stolen from him.

Shortly before Hunter finds Junior a bank messenger has been shot and robbed of $17,000, the amount in the satchel. Hunter puts the money in a safe, carries Junior, whom he thinks is drunk, to his own room. Next day he discovers that Junior has been wounded and is near death.

FATE OF THE MESSENGER

CHAPTER IV

HUNTER DENT could hear the butler telephoning in an agitated voice. Hunter listened again to Junior Ballard's heart. There was just a faint throb of life there yet. A great remorse came upon Hunter. When he brought the boy here last night, thinking he was only drunk, he should have made sure. Everything now was complicated. The bank messenger near death; this young dissipated boy dying; Hunter had the missing $17,000 in his safe. His mind was addled. He could hear Warwick's voce.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Ballard come immediately. Mr. Dent is here, sir. Miss Bella is out front speaking now with Mr. Tisdale, I believe. Yes, sir, I have already called Dr. Ferguson. He should be on his way out. He said he would not stop to have breakfast. Yes, sir, there was a party here last night but it broke up early. Very well, sir."

Warwick came in. "Mr. Ballard is starting immediately."

"We'd better leave him just as he is. I wonder if we should call the police—but that would never do. We'll have to wait for his father and the doctor."

The car out front went away up the winding pretty road. Hunter caught the glint and color of it.

Red entered breathlessly. She stopped, met Hunter's eyes straight and hard. "Hunter! Is Junior in there?"

"Yes, but you'd better not—"

There was a long moment between them. "Is—is something wrong?"

"Not serious, I hope. Warwick has called Dr. Ferguson and your dad—"

"Look here, Hunter Dent. Tell me the truth. I can take it. What has happened to my brother?" She started past Hunter. He stopped her. She looked into his face. "Will you let me go ahead, Hunter "

"All right," he said, dropping his hand from her arm. "But pull yourself together. He's bad hurt. I guess he's finished. He's lost his last bet, I have a hunch."

HUNTER opened the door. Red went quickly in. Hunter watched her closely. She stepped across the room, stopped with a small gasp. If he expected her to throw herself across the body of her brother and become melodramatic he was slated for disappointment. She stood there breathing fast and looking upon the motionless youth. Hunter moved up to Red's side, a half-pace behind, just in case she could not take it. Then she turned. Her brown eyes were swimming. She went into his arms and put her face against him.

It seemed hardly more than a few moments before Strickland Ballard appeared. It was so early in the morning yet that the man had not had time to shave. Dr. Ferguson was but a moment behind. Hunter remained by the bed while the doctor made his examination. Ballard's face was a study in worry, fear, and anger.

"How is he, Doctor?"

Dr. Ferguson put his instruments in his bag. "He's not gone yet. I can't say how it will turn out. We've got to get him to the hospital for X-rays and then maybe we will know." He glanced at Warwick. "Did you call the ambulance?"

Hunter said, "We could use the big new farm truck. It is as comfortable as the ambulance and we'd save time."

"A good idea. Let's do that."

As Hunter went out to get the truck Strickland Ballard followed him into the yard. He took his baffled wrath out on Hunter. "What's been going on around here? How did this happen? I thought I left things here in your charge, sir."

Hunter was in a mood to hit Ballard where he lived — in his ego. "I am in charge of the animals, sir—and the crops. Including the famous Ballard Prolific strain. There was nothing said when I was employed here about being father to your children. I supposed you assumed that responsibility yourself." He strode off. In no time at all he came back in the powerful new truck.

They gently carried the unconscious boy out and bedded him in the truck. Hunter drove. Until he was almost in town he did not remember he had not had breakfast, not even a cup of coffee. Being an out-doors man he required food. He came to the hospital. There the attendants took Junior Ballard in. Hunter sighed. He hardly knew why. He felt sorry for the family; maybe he should have waited with them for some final news. He asked at the information desk as he started out, "This young fellow from the First National Bank, who was attacked last night and robbed—how is he?"

"Who is asking, please?" the nurse who had just come on duty asked.

"I am Hunter Dent, of the Ballard Farms."

"Are you a relative of the young man?"

"N-no. Just a casual interest."

"He is dead."

Hunter was dazed. "Dead!" he repeated dully. "Did—was he unconscious—"

"He died without making any statement."

"I—I see." He went out, got into the truck, and drove away."

AS he passed through Middleton, he seemed to see the sleepy southern town through fresh eyes. There was the big Ballard Laboratories. They dominated the business section. There were neon and gold-leaf signs. "Southern Roses Cosmetics." "Tennessee Belle Products." "Quick Shot Tonic for chills and fever." Perhaps there were a half dozen smaller concerns following in the footsteps of the great Ballard. It was known in business circles as the "Medicine Town." Ballard had done that. They said he could not do it. They bet he could not. He bet he could. Now it was, local lore would have you believe, the wealthiest small city per capita in the South, perhaps a close rival to the oil fortunes in Texas. All this was a compliment to Strickland Ballard. In his way he was a man of vision. He saw something in some tree barks and field herbs. Middleton today was toy sky-scraper city, with fine churches, beautiful homes, wealth—and the inevitable minor league evils that follow upon sudden fortunes.

"Sporting blood," Hunter said, half bitterly, and drove from town, taking the old river road which would let him into the big estate from the rear.

To his amazement he found Junior's big car just within the stone-and-iron gate which guarded the back boundary. The big motor was jammed against a tree. One casing had blown out. The door was open. Hunter made an examination of the spot looked and found bloodstains in the wrecked car. His discovery did not simplify the general mystery. All Hunter could deduce was that Junior had come home by the back way, had been either so intoxicated or nearly dead he had had a wreck, by sheer strength he had got to the office, no doubt looking for Hunter; and then he had passed out.

"What a bunch of fools these Ballards are!" Hunter thought. He drove on to the house. In the kitchen he got breakfast.

Afterward he went to the office. He sat down and tried to think. The messenger was dead. No tales there. Junior Ballard probably would die. Hardly any tales there. Hunter Dent had the $17,000 in the safe, and the combination safely in his skull. He seemed to have, he supposed, all he needed to make old Strickland Ballard come to him on his knees and say his amens. After that—what? "I wonder," he muttered. He went over to the safe, knelt, twirled the dial, opened the ponderous door.

The leather bag containing $17,000 was gone!

"Red Troops Entered Yuknov"

The combat cameraman attached to a Red army unit, shows what may be behind a simply worded communique. On March 5 Red army troops occupied the town of Yukhnov. This scouts company was the first to enter the town in pursuit of the fleeing Hitlerites. The men at the LEFT to the rear are kneeling and taking cover as they cover the advance of the little spearhead. Some of the men carry automatis rifles. Others do not. White camouflage suits are worn. The ground over which they are advancing is a mass of rubble, the ruins of some of the buildings still smoking.

P.C.V.S. Presents - - -

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

Augmented by this week's high War Sale total of $719—$260 in War Savings Stamps and $459 in Certificates — the all-time total shot over the $40,000 mark. There's a record worth crowing about. Here goes for a final round up of facts and figures:

During the last 10 months $12,395 in Stamps and $4,951 in Certificates have been sold by students and teachers of the Collegiate. In the 1940-41 term the totals were $17,790 in Stamps and $4,916 in Certificates. Grand total is $40,052 at present but this will be increased by $100 or so when final returns are made. Stamp sales alone fell over $5,000 this school year but the effort is still highly creditable. In order that the fall term may be started off in the right foot students are asked to keep track of their present customers throughout the summer if possible.

Until fall then—remember to "keep 'em selling!"

Girls' War Work

The mobile kitchen fund was the main war effort at the Collegiate this year and received the most publicity but we fear that the girls who spent night after night, month after month, knitting and sewing were sadly neglected. On Wednesday afternoon, however, their work jumped into the limelight when the results of the year's work were sent over to the Red Cross rooms in the Library. From socks to quilts—457 articles in all—the girls' magnificent work was laid out before the startled gaze of Red Cross workers.

Thirty outfits consisting of seven articles of wearing apparel each — night gown, shirt, blouse, bloomers, cap, sweater, and socks—ten outfits each containing shirt, bloomers, cap, sweater, and socks, three outfits with six articles in each, three outfits with four articles in each, 43 dresses with bloomers, 48 nightgowns, 6 dresses, one skirt and sweater, 3 blouses, 3 bonnets, one pair mitts, 14 pair of socks, 3 quilts, and one nightgown. If you are still with us you may have some conception of the effort put forward by the girls and their very efficient supervisors this year. In addition to all this nine quilts were previously given and five skirts and three aprons were sent direct to England. Nearly 50 pairs of service socks for the overseas Christmas boxes have been turned in and still more work will be sent to the Red Cross next week. If this makes you dizzy don't blame us! All the garments are marked with Red Cross labels and garnet and grey school labels which were kindly donated by Colonial Weavers Ltd. A conservative estimate placed the value of the completed work at over $300. Mrs. Reg. Turner and Mrs. Kenner expressed their sincere appreciation for the submitted work and we know that everyone will agree with them.

Sixteen dresses were made for Hall's prize and the winners were Elaine Davigne, and Doris Finnie.

Responsible for the expert supervision of the work were the following teachers:

Sewing—Miss Gerrard and Miss Brown.

Knitting — Miss McIntosh and Miss Lees.

Quilting—Miss Moore and Miss Park.

Afghans—Misses Kirkwood (?), Bailey, and Weddell.

From the petite Grade Niners to senior students the congratulations and thanks must be evenly distributed. You did your work perfectly and are more than amply repaid when you think of the reception the clothing will receive among the children of Britain.

Blood Donors

The Overseas Blood Donor Clinic is nearly completed on Brock Street and now the need for more Blood Donors is pressing. Last year Dr. Chenoweth appealed for students and teachers between the ages of 18 and 55 to offer their services in this regard. A few were accepted from the Collegiate but more are needed from the city at large. Men only can be used for the Overseas Service and it is hoped that more male students over 18 will enroll from P.C.V.S. Two thousand more men are needed in Peterborough — can YOU help to decrease this number? Volunteer application cards may be obtained from any previously enrolled donor or from the Red Cross rooms at the Library, Neill's Shoe Store, Chas. Ray Insurance Office on Water Street, and from the Blood Donor Clinic itself after it opens. This is your way of saving a life so enroll now! Thanks!

Teasettes

The Dramatic Club made the last War Work presentation of the year when $100 was presented to the reserve fund in trust of the Students' Council. This fund is already quite large and will give an excellent start to whatever effort may be undertaken next year. Congrate!

No news, no column, so we're signing off for this term. With departmental exams so near we hope you will pardon us if we close with a quotation from Kipling's "For All We Have And Are"—

"No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal,
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will, and soul"

Thanks a lot and so-long for now.

HEALTH CHATS

By DR. D. B. AVISON, D.P.H., Acting Medical Officer of Health.

The Interest of the Public in Health.

For three days, June 1, 2 and 3, the Canadian and Ontario Public Health Associations met in Toronto, and health officers from all over Canada met to exchange ideas on how to promote better health all over the country. It seemed to be agreed that while war conditions increased the hazards to health because of over-crowding and shifting of populations, they did not materially alter methods necessary for the maintenance of good health.

Public Not Interested in Health

Among many papers read there was one that struck me forcibly which was titled, "The Interest of the Public in Health," which made the seemingly startling statement that, with minor exceptions the public is not interested in health at all. I say "seemingly startling," for the apathy of the public, including city officials, to Health, is the common experience of every health officer. I think I can hear a violent reaction among my fellow citizens here in Peterborough to this statement, but I ask that they give it deep thought. How much of the good health enjoyed here is due to a beneficient Providence, and how much to the active enthusiasm of its citizens determined to spend whatever is necessary to maintain and promote the health of the citizen body?

What Is Public Health?

Public Health has to do with everything that relates to the preservation of health. That means that your Health Department is responsible to see that you are supplied with pure water, food and milk and that, as far as is humanly possible, no one be allowed to live or work in surroundings that are likely to impair health. It means, of course, that everything possible is done to prevent the developing of communicable diseases by the use of such immunization measures as we have at hand, and that where they have developed we limit their spread by such isolation and quarantine measures as may be helpful in this purpose. It means that in our schools we attempt to prevent the development of physical defects by ensuring good light, pure air, proper temperture, etc., and that defects, when they occur, be found early and corrected before they become serious.

So far we have spoken of work which seems to cover our adult population and school and pre-school children. A potent factor in developing a healthy adult population is to ensure healthy babies and healthy mothers to rear them. This means that every expectant mother should be under medical and social supervision throughout her pregnacy to ensure that she has adequate attention both to her medical and her physical needs including proper and sufficient food and adequate rest, that her time of confinement be under expert care and that supervision continue thereafter to ensure the continued well-being of both mother and child.

Finally, while in theory Public Health does not concern itself primarily with treatment, you will see that effective and prompt treatment of certain diseases is an effective way of removing a source of danger to others—that is, if every case of Venereal disease, for example, were out of circulation till cured they would be no Venereal disease, and if every case of Tuberculosis were out of circulation till cured, we would similarly be free of this disease. Thus treatment IS of concern to public health workers.

The Relation of Workers to The Work

Careful consideration of the above program must convince anyone that if it is to be adequately carried out we must have a sufficient number of trained workers located where they can do team work under a director who can handle it as a whole with sufficient funds at his command to do effective work. That it would amply pay for itself should be evident from the tremendous amount of money now spent in medical bills trying to correct conditions that need never have arisen and in the loss of taxes to the community from people unable to earn enough on which to pay taxes by reason of conditions that need never have existed. The monetary value of the comfort of good health can never be computed.

How Have We Approached This Problem?

Here in Peterborough, as in every other community, we have never approached this problem as a whole but have gone at it piecemeal, partly as a civic responsibility and partly as the hearts of various private organizations dictated. There is no reason or plan to accomplish the whole job. We have the Department of Health which in theory, is responsible but which in a city of approximately 28,000 people supplies one doctor, one and a half nurses, and on sanitary officers. Then we have two school boards of health with a part-time doctor, and two and a half nurses. There is the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Children's Aid Society, the Welfare Department, the Salvation Army and various other social agencies and committees connected with the churches, etc. All of them are working independently in separate headquarters or with no headquarters at all. There is also talk of bringing two other type of workers into the Peterborough field—Social Service and Baby Creche.

While all the types of service listed are important, it should be evident that far more effective work could be done if they were housed in one building as a Health and Social Service unit where, even if organic union did not take place, conferences and policies could be developed that would promote better health in Peterborough. In this building the Provincial Branch Laboratories should also be housed.

Are we sufficiently health conscious to catch such a vision or are we so concerned with immediate costs that we can't see future dividends? Someone has said that "we must have a health conscience before we can be health conscious."

8 Drown In Crash

SARASTOA, Fla., June 13— (AP) —Eight United States army fliers were killed and 2 injured early on Friday when a four-engined bomber crashed into Sarasota Bay.

Maj. Gardiner Fiske, Saraatoa air base intelligence officer said the heavy ship had cleared the runway on a pre-dawn training flight and gone about a mile when it went out of control. It landed on its back in a foot and a half of water about 200 feet from shore. Two of the crew were pulled from the wreckage with only minor injuries.

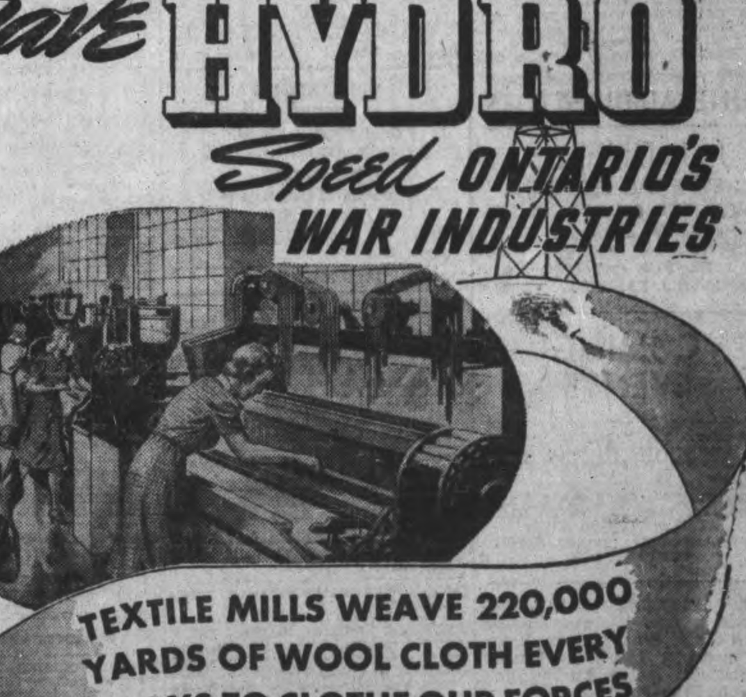
Save HYDRO Speed ONTARIO'S WAR INDUSTRIES



TEXTILE MILLS WEAVE 220,000 YARDS OF WOOL CLOTH EVERY 6 DAYS TO CLOTHE OUR FORCES

● This is a big war. Every industry has to do big things.

In the hundreds of textile plants in this Province, over 50,000 workers are adhering to day and night schedules once undreamed of. Every month nearly a million yards of wool cloth is rushed to clothing makers.

Thousands in the armed services, the Reserve Army and Women's Auxiliary units must be outfitted.

"Speed up—increase your production—enlarge your capacity"—is the order of the day.

Hydro's large pool of over 2,000,000 electrical horsepower is being strained. Yet every war demand must be met!

As fall approaches—as hours of daylight shorten—power demands will increase substantially. The need may be greater than capacity production. It may be necessary to curtail extension for civilian use. Save power—help your Hydro to meet this mounting war-time demand!

This Week In Radio

In spite of constantly increasing demands of the war on radio, the service to fine music and its many devotees has not been neglected. It is rightly said that music is radio's foremost means of entertaining the listener. Fortunately, this means that music to suit a wide variety of tastes is planned for each program.—This week we find the C.B.S. changing its schedule to lighter symphony and light opera, in keeping with the season.—On Tuesday at 10.15 the C.B.C. summer strings may be heard —Thursdays, promenade concerts at 10.15 and the N.B.C. summer symphony on Saturdays at 9.00. For those with a yearning for the hits of not so long ago, Curtain Memories on Thursdays at 9.30, or the new Variety Hour on Sundays at 10.15. All these programs may be heard today and morrow, there are some of the over CBL. Finally for the hit tunes of world's best known dance orchestras. You will find them all in the chart.

President Roosevelt will make a radio broadcast to the world, and receive representatives of all the United Nations at the White House on Sunday, in observance of "United Nations Day." The 10-minute address will be carried over WJZ at 5.50.

Having listened in on the program entitled "We Believe" which had its premiere last Sunday over WEAF, we can recommend this program as exceptionally good listening. It is dedicated to all listeners, whatever their creed, who turn to God for comfort and guidance in times of great trial and tribulation. Embracing all faiths, "We Believe" will be heard weekly over WEAF at 4.30 Sundays.

Radio's top-ranking stars are to be presented in "Victory Parade," summer replacement for the Jack Benny show on Sundays at 7.00. CBL carried the Jack Benny program but as yet has made no announcement about the next program. However, WEAF will air "Victory Parade" which will continue until further notice.

Donald Gordon will be heard in a special broadcast of interest to Canadian farmers and others when he speaks from Ottawa on Monday night at 8.30, CBL.

"The Nature of the Enemy," stirring new series which lays bare the cruelties and treacheries of Axis leaders, will be heard Tuesday night over WABC at 8.30 with a rebroadcast over CFRB at 10.30. Franz von Papen, Nazi Ambassador to Turkey, will be the first subject. The series is presented to reveal the kinds of men Canadian soldiers are fighting.

The best works of distinguished detective novelists will be dramatized on WABC, with the opening of the new series entitled "Suspense." Some of the thrillers announced to be heard include "Suspicion," by Dorothy Sayers; "The Burning Court," by John Carr; "The Lodger," by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes; and "Night Must Fall," by Emlyn Williams, WABC, Wednesday, 10.30 p.m.

The Jim Backus show, new comedy series, has its debut on Thursday, June 18, at 8.30, over CFRB.

King George II. of Greece is a network guest, as Columbia Workshop produces the dramatic offering, "Scene at Mount Olympus," a play written especially for this program, CFRB, at 10.30, Friday.

Thrill Bride-To-Be With Clever Shower—It's Simple

"Beauty-Glamour Shower a Hit

Any bride-to-be would be delighted with this clever "Beauty-Glamour" shower giving her cosmetics, pretties! And for you, the hostess, it's simple.

You plan a luncheon with your centrepiece a be-ribboned cellophane parasol, half open and half hiding the gifts. Its topknot is of pink carnations which you attach with Scotch tape.

First thrill is the powder-puff "corsage" the bride finds at her place. You make this easily, as our diagram shows. Cut a triangle from a lace-paper doily and overlap and paste the cut edges. Wires through the puffs act as "stems" and bows at the wire tips give "flower" centres. Trailing satin ribbons at wire ends hold perfume nips.

Next the guest of honor discovers her surprises under the parasol, all wrapped in pink, tied with white ribbons and sprigs of lilies of the valley! The gifts may be powder, perfume, a lace nightgown—all for glamour!

You'll find complete plans for this and other novel bridal showers in our new 32-page booklet. Also has clever ideas for engagement announcements, stork showers, birthday parties. Suggests invitations, menus, games.

For your copy of "Announcements, Showers and Birthday Parties," send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOBODY IS INFALLIBLE

EVEN THE greatest players make terrifically illogical mistakes. National championships are decided sometimes by errors which are so childish that they would be a discredit to players of below average grade, in both the bidding and the playing. When a Bridge addict gets so that he can keep his slips at a minimum, then he is in the advanced class, even though he still makes them once in a while.

When North failed to double that 2-Heart bid, the Vanderbilt Cup went out the window as far as his side was concerned. The contract was set four tricks, not doubled, for a score of 400 points, exactly the same number as got scored at the other table, where North played it at 3-No Trumps, and took exactly nine tricks.

If North had doubled that, the score would have been 1,100 points instead of 400, a gain of 700 caused by the double. Since the match was lost by a smaller margin than that, it settled the issue.

Don't make the mistake of looking up the facts from the record to see what were the two teams playing in the Vanderbilt Cup final this season. The hand did not occur this season, but was several seasons ago. Each team was made up entirely of players ranking among the world's greatest, and this deal has been kept secret by all concerned until now to protect the reputation of the fine fellow who went wrong. It is pretty sure that nobody can trace who it was, so it is released.

Hun-Born Soldier Imprisoned As Dangerous

BARRIE, June 13—Described by the Crown as a "potential danger," Eric Horace Brandt, a German-born soldier in the Canadian Active Army, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on a charge of being in possession of a registration card not his own. He was sentenced to a concurrent term of twelve months for failing to register as an alien.

When arrested Brandt was serving with the A-9 Canadian Armored Corps (Advanced) at Camp Borden. He was enlisted under the alias of Reuben Schilski, a friend from North Battleford, Sask., whose registration card was found in his possession.

Constable James N. Clish, R.C.M.P, Toronto, told the court that Brandt was born in Germany and came with his parents to Canada in 1929 After war broke out he enlisted in the Canadian Army while living with his family at Lashtown, Sask., in February 1940, but was discharged in June, 1940, on a nominal excuse of being under age. At that time he was suspected of being pro-Nazi.

Witness stated that in November, 1941, he received permission to move to Vancouver, but turned up later at North Battleford, Sask., stayed overnight with a friend, Reuben Schilski, took the friend's registration certificate and enlisted at Lloydminster under that name. His father is believed to be in the German Army.

The accused, of slight build and normal appearance, told of his actions since 1927, when he claimed his family came to Canada.

He said he had been notified to return to Germany before war broke out with the assurance that after six months in labor camps and two years in an army camp, he would be allowed to return to Canada, but he had decided to stay here. He had written asking for a guarantee of return but had received no reply.

To a question of Crown Attorney Frank Hammond he stated that he had not taken the matter seriously, but could easily have gone back to the German Army if he had wished.

Joy in Sing Sing Three Stars All Come Back

By JAMES T. CARTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

OSSINING, N.Y., June 13 (AP)—Within the dismal gray walls of Sing Sing prison there was rejoicing today because . . . Jerome Milner is back, Patrick Dealey is back, Charles Markham is back.

Everyone is happy, for isn't Milner one of Sing Sing's all-time baseball stars? In fact, doesn't he possess a prison life-time batting average of .450. Isn't he back under a 15-30 years' contract, and for nothing.

And Dealey—there's a popular fellow if ever there was one. Patrick, beloved in years past as an entertainer de luxe, drew the choicest notices of all performers with his appearance 20 years ago in the Sing Sing musical comedy "Honey Girl."

The notices cited Patrick's disappearance as well as his appearance, for Dealey, costumed as a woman for the play, mingled with visitors afterward and simply walked out. He was caught two years later.

Markham, third member of the well-known Sing Sing trio, would be hailed in any jail, his ready wit and all-round good-fellowship helping alleviate the dull routine of prison life.

All three are "home" again and expect to spend quite some time around the old hangout.

The three pals got a little homesick a couple of months ago and stuck up a Greenwich Village bar.

A remote-control Juke-box telephone operator received the alarm from a bar patron and flashed it to police, who found the trio sauntering along a few blocks from the tavern.

Yesterday Judge Owen Bowen passed out these sentences:—

Milner—15 to 30 years for his third felony offence.

Dealey—15 years to life as a fourth offender.

Markham—Same as Dealey.

Senator Urges Eye for Eye System on Nazis

OTTAWA, June 13—(CP).—The Senate Friday heard a proposal that Allied air superiority be used to demolish a German village for each village in Occupied Europe demolished by Nazi forces.

Senator A. K. Hugesson (Lib., Quebec) called the Senate's attention to newspaper reports of the total destruction of a Czech village. The action was an "obscene crime," Senator Hugesson said

He suggested that a proposal made by a newspaper columnist (Dorothy Thompson) should be followed and widespread warning given by radio that a German village in an area to be named was to be destroyed.

This village should then be wiped out by air action, and the fact again given wide radio publicity, with the warning it would be repeated if similar action were again taken by Nazi authorities.

"These people are our allies," Senator Hugesson said of the Czechs. "We count on them now and we will count on them more when we invade Europe. They have a right to count on us."

Senator J. A. Calder (Con., Saskatchewan) expressed thorough sympathy" with the proposal.

"This horror that is taking place is worse than gas," he said. "We don't like the idea of revenge, but how is it going to be stopped unless these people are taught a lesson?

"It will go from bad to worse; it has already."

MacArthur Day

WASHINGTON, June 12. —(AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference on Friday he had signed legislation making Saturday MacArthur day in honor of the United Nations Commander in the southwestern Pacific theatre of war.

He said the measure met with his full approval.

Superannuation Of $17,040 Paid Baptists

HAMILTON, Ont., June 13 (CP)—The superannuation board distributed $17,040 last year, it was reported at the Ontario-Quebec Baptist Convention this morning in James Street Baptist Church.

The Board's report said this was the largest amount expended in any year since the superannuation fund was set up. Gifts from the church amounting to $4,268.76 and income from investments totalling $14,417.00 were reported.

The report of a commission on superannuation was considered by the convention this morning. The commission was created by the executive committee to survey the whole field of superannuation and to draft plans for more adequate provision for retired ministers, missionaries and employees.

The commission recommended placing all retiring payments under the superannuation board.

It was pointed out that in the past each board handled its own retirement program and that uniformity was lacking.

The Senate then adjourned until July 14, although adjournment is subject to a previous provision under which the Upper House may be summoned at the call of the Speaker.

Pass Supply Bill.

Durin gthe abberviated House of Commons sitting, the House also voted Finance Minister Ilsley the supply bill for $19,952,242.

Four speakers participated in the conscription debate, three Liberals and one Conservative Brooke Claxton (Lib. Montreal-St Lawrence-St. George), supported the bill and made a plea for better understanding of the French-Canadian state of mind.

E E. Perley, (Con, Qu-Appelle) said he would follow the lead of Conservative House Leader Hanson and vote for second reading of the gill but would seek to have it altered in committee so that mandatory provisions calling for immediate conscription of manpower and wealth might be inserted

J. A. Crete (Lib. St. Maurice-Lafleche) and L. Dubois (Lib. Nicolette-Yamaska) who both spoke in French, opposed the bill and promised to vote against it because they said they did not believe conscription would ad the war effort but would disturb national unity

Few Members Attend

In contrast to the well-filled galleries and full attendance of members which marked the first two days of debate, the House yesterday often had less than 50 members in their seats and the galleries were sparsely populated.

Mr. Crete contended that conscription would destroy national unity and weaken enthusiasm of the Canadian people for the war effort.

He said the youth still remaining in Canada had been mobilized for the duration and questioned the advisability of considering conscription for overseas service at a time when "we are menaced by the enemy."

Mr. Claxton, representing a constituency which gave an affirmative vote on the plebiscite which released the government from its no-conscription promises, urged French Canadians to seek with the English speaking people of the Dominion a real understanding.

Mr. Claxton said the speech Thursday of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib. Richelieu-Vercheres), who resigned his portfolios in the government as protest against the consciption enabling measure, has stressed the fact that there would be no reference to parliament when conscription is imposed, if ever, and that the people had been misled in that respect.

Hot Air, Naval Scrap Off Sardinia Said Still Raging

ROME (From Italian Broadcacts), June 15 (AP) — A battle between Italian Italian warplanes and one of two strongly protected eastbound British convoys negotating the perilous passage between Africa and Sardinia was reported by the Italian high command today. The Italians claimed the sinking of two cruisers and a destroyer and damage to five other warships, including an aircraft carrier and a battleship.

(In London British authorities declined to comment on the Italian accounts.)

The Italians asserted these blows were struck yesterday when Italian torpedo planes, bombers and fighters swarmed upon one convoy protected by two aircraft carriers and other warships, and the action was resumed early today. The special communique identified the warships only as "enemy" vessels. However, a little earlier the regular high command communique had told of "violent air and naval action with two large, strongly-escorted British convoys."

Sunk: two cruisers, one destroyer, four steamships.

Heavily damaged by repeated torpedoes and bombs: an aircraft carrier, a battleship, two cruisers, a destroyer, four steamships.

Four US Bombers Down In Turkey

LONDON, June 15—(CP)).—Official silence which cloaked the mission of four United States bombers reported forced down last Friday in Turkey tended to confirm the belief expressed in many quarters here today that the United States has opened a new air front in the eastern Mediterranean to blast the Axis from the rear.

Observers said if the bombers had been on a routine ferry flight to Russia, India or China a quick announcement of their purpose probably would have been forthcoming.

Three sources said the reports that each of the big bombers had a full crew also seemed to preclude the ferry theory and supported speculation that the planes were operating from a United Nations air base for attacks against Germany in the Balkans and perhaps on the southwestern Russian front.

No U.S. Action.

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP).—State Secretary Cordell Hull said today that no representation would be made to Turkey concerning the internment of 21 United States fliers who were forced to land in the neutral country last week. The international law of internment applies, he said.

U.S. Navy Obliges 2 Seamen, Returns Medals With 500-pound Bomb To Hirohito In Tokyo

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The chronology of two medals:—

Oct. 9, 1908—The Emperor of Japan presented them to Master Rigger Henry Vormstein of Lakeview, N.Y., and Shipwright John Laurey of Brooklyn, seamen on the U.S.S. Connecticut when the United States battlefleet visited Japan.

Jan. 26, 1942 — Vormstein and Laurey sent them to Navy Secretary Frank Knox and asked that they be returned, attached to a bomb.

A letter from the Navy Secretary to the Chief of Bureau of Ordnance:

"Reference: (a) Your letter of Jan. 26, 1942.

"1. Through the courtesy of the war department your Japanese medal and a similar medal turned in for shipment by Shipwright John Laurey were returned to the Emperor of Japan on 18 April 1942.

"2. I am informed by the Secretary of War that the medals, attached to a 500-pound bomb, were delivered at Tokyo on 18 April 1942 by Lieut. Ted Lawson, U.S. Army, with appropriate ceremony.

"(Signed) Frank Knox."

Laurey now is at Pearl Harbor. He volunteered on the first call for civilian workers to repair damage done by the Japanese.

Bomb In Cellar Of Paris City Hall Fails To Get Nazi-Named Governor

VICHY, France, June 15—(AP).—The Paris City Hall was shaken by explosion of a small bomb in an underground passage yesterday in the latest violence aimed at occupying Germans and their French collaborators.

The explosion smashed through the floor of offices above, doing some damage, but no injuries were reported here.

Charles Magny, who was appointed Governor of Paris and Prefect of the Seine department in October, 1940, has his offices in the building. He is a former director of the Surete National, the French Secret Police.

The Paris explosion was one of a series of incidents reported during the week-end from a restless Europe.

A Stockholm dispatch said 258 Jews were shot at Gross Lichterfelde in Berlin, where execution squads worked in Hitler's blood purge of 1934. These shootings took place May 28, the day after the assassination of Rinhard (Hangman) Heydrich "Protector" of Bohemia-Moravia.

The Stockholm dispatch said execution of 15,000 Jews in Berlin, Prague and Vienna had been threatened in the event of "any plot against a single German."

A dispatch of Taas, Soviet news agency, from Geneva said there were reports Hitler in contemplating a drastic purge of his officer corps which is at odds with the Gestapo.

Main Nazi Push Not Yet Started

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)— The main German attack in Russia has not yet been started despite the ferocity of the action around Kharkov and Sevastopol, informed military quarters said today after scanning battle reports from Moscow, Berlin and Stockholm.

A general German offensive is believed impending, however, and soon Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock is expected to smash at the Russians on a 220-mile front from Kharkov to the Black Sea.

The Germans are attempting to clear their rear in the Crimea by attacking Sebastopol, but informed quarters said they might not wait for fall of that naval fortress before beginning their grand attack.

The heavy thrusts are expected to be from Kharkov and Taganrog on the Black sea and military quartes believe Von Bock's fondest dream is to smash Kharkov to Stalingrad on the Volga. He thus would cut off all the Russian armies south of Kharkov and in the Don and Donets regions, and sever Russia from her main oil supply in the Caucasus.

The vital area now is a 50-mile front near Kharkov where massed artillery appeared to be playing a larger role than heretofore. Military quarters saaid the Germans apparently were holding their main strength in reserve for a more open type of warfare.

EXTRA!

Washington (AP)—An effort by the Japanese to expand their landings in the Aleutian Islands was expected by military authorities today but whether they will try for knockout blows against important United States bases was considered debatable. Any large-scale operations well over into the waters of the western hemisphere, it was said, would certainly bring a swarm of United States army and navy bombers down upon invading ships.

British Pound Axis Rear In Libya Mix

El Adem Is Relieved; Enemy Reports Claim Acroma Cut Off

By Frank Martin,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

CAIRO, June 15. —(AP) — A fluid battle raged on the desert approaches to Tobruk to-day as the British forces sought to adjust their positions while from the rear they attacked the Axis columns of Field Marshal Edwin Rommel which were nudging a wedge toward the coast.

British headquarters said the Germans were attacking near Acroma in the Ain El Gazala salient," the coastal anchor of the former line of minefields 40 miles west of Tobruk.

Already the southern anchor at Bir Hacheim has been wiped out.

The British communique indicated a threat to another of the British fortified boxes at El Adem, south of Tobruk, had been eased by clearing the enemy out of the area to the east of that point.

"Heavy fighting continues," the communique said, indicating that despite the counter thrusts of Lt. Gen. Neil Ritchie's forces, the Germans still are pressing strongly.

Claim British Ringed.

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 15—(AP).—The Italian High Command claimed today that Axis forces in the Libyan desert had bypassed British units near Acroma and had driven to the Mediterranean coast west of Tobruk.

The Italians claimed that British forces remaining to the west of the new Axis gap were encircled. This would mean the forces defending An el Gazala, northern extremity of the original line which the Axis has outflanked and pierced.

The number of prisoners and captured war material "cannot be estimated for the moment," the High Command said in its special communique.

The claimed break-through, after fierce armored combat south of Acroma which subsided in a dust-storm Sunday, was said to have been made across the Via Balbo, old Italian coast road.

The Italians said the British defending forces had been split in heavy fighting.

In the regular communique the Italians had claimed capture of 69 tanks, 13 guns and 700 men in two days' fighting.

The Norse Fight

London, Jun 15 (CP)

A REUTERS dispatch from Stockholm reported today that many persons were wounded in Norway in a battle between followers of Vidkun Quisling, pro-Nazi premier, and other Norwegians in the towns of Rissa and Selbu, near Trondheim.

Armed Quislingites were said to have entered the towns to "take reprisals" against the population but to have encountered fierce resistance.

Lofty Axis Ideal Is To See India Get Freedom Crafty Trio Tell Session Of Exiles In Bangkok

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 15--(AP).—Diplomatic representatives of Germany, Italy and Japan told a meeting of Indians at Bangkok today that the Axis was prompted by "lofty purposes" in wishing to see India attain independence, and had no territorial interests there.

(The so-called Indian independence conference called by Japan at the Thai capital is being attended by Indian Nationalist elements for the most part excluded from India or rounded up from the Indian colonies in Japanese conquered Burma, Thailand and Malaya).

Dispatches from Bangkok reported Teiji Tsubokami, the Japanese Ambassador, said that Germany, Italy and Japan had been in complete agreement on the Indian question since the beginning of their alliance. He declared that the time had come for action if India ever was to be free.

The Italian Ambassador, Guido Crolla, said Italy had been interested in India's culture and independence since the days of Marco Polo. Dr. Ernst Wendler, the German Ambassador, said that in contrast to Britons and Americans, the Axis is striving for a new order under which India could control her own destiny.

150,000 Canadian Cars Jacked Up By June '43, In Rubber, Oil Crisis

TORONTO, June 15 — (CP). — Supplies Controller Alan H. Williamson told the Canadian Transit Association to-day that at least 150,000 Canadian passenger automobiles will be off the road by June, 1943.

In a blunt, forthright speech Mr. Williamson also predicted that a year from now:

1. The oil shortage may be so serious pleasure travel will be "a thing of the past" and "all our ideas of essential transit may be outmoded."

2. Some rolling stock, at least, will no longer be serviceable.

3. The rubber shortage will be so acute tire repairs may be placed on a priority basis.

Comparing the transportation problem to a "long-legged collie pup, all ears, all legs," Mr. Williamson said next year it would have to be likened to a baby elephant "getting bigger and hungrier as he grows."

"....One year from now," he warned the association, "you will be up against one of the most serious problems any group of men in this country ever faced.'

Rubber alone constituted "one of the gravest, most ominous problems in our history" because the shortage was so acute "our whole war program is in jeopardy." Production from sources outside Asia — the Amazon Valley Africa and Mexico had never totalled more than 75,000 tons a year.

Million Tons Short.

'Place that theoretical 75,000 tons on one side of the scale," he said. "On the other place the deicit of nearly 1,000,000 tons which the United Nations must make up, and I think you will agree that, on the basis of past performance, there is little to be gained by looking to Brazil, Africa and Mexico for the rubber we so desperately need."

The answer lay in synthetic production. But there, too, there was a question mark.

"Frankly," he said, "I believe it will require almost a miracle to provide the plants to produce synthetic rubber on schedule in Canada and the United States.

"If the miracle does not happen —if 300,000 tons do not roll out of

Canada's Output Tops U.K. Hopes

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—British expectations for war munitions from Canada have been vastly exceeded by deliveries Rt. Hon. Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of Supply, said to-day in an address to a joint Canadian Club and Rotary Club luncheon.

In terms of money Canada's munitions production in 1942 would be twice that of 1941

Canada was producing large guns and small arms. Many plants operated at twice their rated capacity. Canadian aircraft production was now 147 per cent of what it was at the end of 1941 and the planes were of the very highest quality.

Mr Lyttelton said he had seen the Canadian army in England. Canadians had reason to be proud of its morale and efficiency and of the ingenuity and resourre of the commander (Lt.-Col. A. G. McNaugton).

An Ultimatum

London, Jun 15 (CP)

A REUTERS dispatch from Stockholm today said it was reported there that the Germans had given Czechs in Bohemia and Moravia an ultimatum expiring Thursday to deliver up the slayers of Reinhard Heydrich, the Gestapo official, or take the consequences.

The reports received in Stockholm from Berlin did not specify what measures were threatened.

Great Guns Assist Barrage Of Hard-Put Garrison As Huns Attack Day, Night

Long Russian Front Shakes Off Winter Action Springs Up At Score of Points, Germans Lose 2,850 At Kharkov In 2 Days

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 15—(AP).—Steaming into the fight for Sevastopol with its guns thundering, the Soviet Black Sea fleet was reported today to have brought aid to the hard-pressed land garrison by laying down a deadly barrage which took a heavy toll of the Axis assault forces.

The battles in the tight-drawn siege lines around the Crimean port and on the shell-pocked front east of Kharkov in the Ukraine continued with undiminished fury.

However, there were no further reports of German gains on either front since dispatches of yesterday which said the Germans had pushed froward in some sectors at Kharkov and turned loose a full-scale onslaught against Sevastopol in an attempt to smash the Russian defences by sheer weight of men and armor.

Dispatches from the Crimean flank of the battlefront did not identify the warships whose guns were reported in action for the first time since June 5 when the new battle for Sevastopol began.

2 Cruisers in Key Role.

The principal units of the Black Sea Fleet are the cruisers Red Crimea and Red Caucasus which played an important part earlier in the Russian recapture of Kerch and Feodosiya.

The warships previously had been engaged in maintaining a line of supply and communications for the port and naval base which has been cut off by land since last fall.

Naval infantry has been in action ashore for some time.

The Germans were reported to have bolstered their assault forces with strong reserve strength including units shifted fom other fronts.

Their former time table of attack —from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m.—was said to have given way to 24-hour-a-day assault.

In the last two days, the Soviet information bureau said, the Germans have lost 2,850 men and much material in the Kharkov front alone.

Both the thrust against Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies on the Ukraine and the onslaught to batter down the defences of besieged Sevastopol, Russia's great Black Sea naval base and last Crimean foothold, had failed to develop the crushing momentum of Hitler's big 1941 offer ives.

The rest of the long Russian front meanwhile, showed signs of shaking off the winter stalemate and bitter fighting at many scattered points suggested that the whole battle line may be springing into new action.

The 15-mile deep defences of Sevastopol were said to be exacting a frightful toll of the attackers as the Germans made assault after assault with manpower at some points five and six to one against the defenders.

In scorching heat, the enemy charged from all sides and were said to have reached the crest of one bombed and shelled hill before a quick Red army counter attack backed them down. The hill was said to have changed hands four times.

Wait Parachutists

Within Sevastopol, all civilians armed with rifles and hand grenades, waited coolly for any Nazi

Lease-Lend Flow Of War Goods At Flood Stage

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP). — President Roosevelt informed Congress to-day that lend-lease aid to the end of May totalled $4,497,000,000 and that while the battle of production is on the way to being won, the battle of distribution is "in its critical phase."

"Our reservoir of resources is now aproaching flood stage," he said in a letter accompanying the report. "The next step is for our military, industrial, and shipping experts to direct its full force against the centres of enemy power.

"Great Britain and the United States....are taking combined action to carry our men and weapons —on anything that will float or fly— to the places from which we can launch our offensives."

Results of 15 months of lend-lease operations, with the emphasis finally shifted from foodstuffs and industrial materials to a preponderance of fighting weapons and military items, were summed up.

The lend-lease program was instituted on March 11, 1941, and the aid extended since that time to the British Commonwealth of Nations and 35 other countries has mounted to $3,673,000,000 in goods and $824,000,000 in such services as repairing ships, ferrying aircraft, and providing production facilities in the United States.

The goods included $2,601,000,000

Darwin Raided 3rd Time, 3 Days

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 15 (CP)—Darwin, Australia's north coast base, was raided by Japanese aircraft today for the third successive day and a few casualties resulted, allied headquarters announced.

Twenty-seven Japanese bombers escorted by fighters, the largest force yet to reach Darwin in the series of week-end assaults, came over this afternoon. The headquarters announcement, which was not a formal communique, said damage was slight.

The Japanese attacked Darwin also on Saturday and Sunday.

In Sunday's attack allied fliers tore into a formation of 18 to 25 Japanese fighters, shot down four in a furious fight, and saved the city from an effective raid.

'That Red Line'—No Blitz While it Holds

Nazis Pounding For Funnel To Pour Legions Through—Raking Murmansk Feeder

By De Witt MacKenzie,
Associated Press War Analyst.

The Russian lines held staunchly through a bloody week-end — and that's the vital news of the hour.

There can be no doubt that Hitler is straining every nerve to get his heavily-delayed offensive under way. But it won't roll until he can rip loose a portion of that magnificent red line somewhere.

Particularly violent fighting continued in the two greatest battles —one on the Kharkov front in the Ukraine and the other before the long-beseiged Soviet naval base of Sevastopol on the Crimea in the Black Sea. These closely-related operations represent a Nazi effort to crack the gateway into the Caucasus, thereby creating a funnel through which the Nazi chief could pour his waiting legions.

Here the Germans employing the tactics which they made so well known in the first Great War, have been trying to breach the Red defences by weight of numbers. It's a method of attack which frequently succeeds—if you don't care how many lives you sacrifice. However, Marshall Timishenko's forces at latest reports were standing off these terrific massed attacks and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. That the defenders also were suffering many casualties seemed a foregone conclusion.

Further evidence that the Fuehrer is trying to get his "spring" offensive going is seen in the boiling up of fierce local attacks throughout the length of the [illegible] Russo-German line. One of the most important of these assaults continues against the Arctic port of Murmansk, the railhead through which vital military supplies are being poured into Russia. The Nazi object, of course, is to cut this lifeline

Watch Murmansk, if you would keep well informed on the progress of the war, since preservation of this route is essential, and its loss would be a real catastrophe. Don't forget that this is a war of resources, in which production and transportation must be maintained at top pitch.

Production won't win the war unless transportation gets the material to the soldiers on the front. So Murmansk, in some degree like the Burma Road, is one of the Allied key positions right now.

The importance of transportation is clearly seen in the nature of the belligerent activities. Hitler is combing Atlantic and Arctic waters with his submarines and raiders. The Japs waged a major campaign to sever China's Burma Road life-line. And now the Nipponese are making violent efforts to conquer southeastern China, and

Woman Scalped By Own Dog

Terribly Bitten As She Falls, Startling Sleeping Pet

STRATHROY, Ont., June 15 — (CP). — Mrs. Henry Thompson, wife of the Metcalfe Township clerk, is in Strathroy General Hospital, suffering from severe injuries to her face and scalp caused by a vicious assault from her dog.

The accident occurred late on Saturday night in the kitchen of the Thompson home, near Kerrwood, when Mrs. Thompson accidentally slipped and fell.

The dog which was sleeping in the kitchen woke up and attacked the woman, almost tearing off her scalp and biting deep gashes in her face, before Mr. Thompson who was in bed at the time and badly crippled through a recent hip fracture, could get to his wife's assistance.

Mr. Thompson had considerable difficulty in making the dog give up its victim and it was only after he had finally choked the dog, he was able to tear it away from his wife.

Mrs. Thompson was immediately taken to the hospital where she was attended by Dr. Sawyer of Watford and Dr. G. D. Vine of Strathroy. Mrs. Thompson's condition is considered critical.

Chinese Threaten Nanchang

Gain Ground In Series Of Fierce Kiangsi Battles

CHUNGKING, June 15—(AP). — Striking at the western base of Japan's Kiangis-Chekiang Province offensive, Chinese troops have captured positions just across the Kan River from Nanchang, invader-held capital of Kiangsi, the Central Daily News reported today.

It said the gains were made yesterday in a "series of fierce battles."

Nanchang is the western terminus of the rail line from Hangchow which the Japanese have been pinching off section by section in assaults from both ends.

(The Japanese said today they had occupied Shangjao (Kwangsin) 50 miles by railway into Kiangsi from the Chekiang border, cutting the Chinese-held central section of the rail line to less than 75 miles).

Nanchang, in Japanese hands since 1938, has been attacked several times by the Chinese. Twice they succeeded in penetrating the outer defences of the heavily guarded city, but never were they able to dislodge its defenders.

R.A.F. BOMBER GETS TWO OF THREE SHIPS IN GERMAN CONVOY

LONDON, June 15.—(CP) — Hudson bombers attacked a three-ship Axis convoy off the coast of Holland last night and 1 plane sank two of the vessels, the Air Ministry announced today.

At the same time fighter planes attacked enemy airdromes and other targets in Holland and Northern France in a series of cross-Channel sweeps from which all the raiders returned safely.

Both sinkings off the Netherlands coast were credited to Sqdr. Ldr. W. B. Cooper of St. Petersburg, Fla., who is known to his Canadian colleagues as "Lucky Cooper."

Cooper sighted the convoy of three German ships, dropped part of his bomb load from a low level on the sma''est ship, then "without waiting to see the result, he attacked the second ship, then the third and largest, for which he kept the biggest bombs."

"There were violent flashes," the Air Ministry news ser ice said, "and when these died down only one ship was seen to be still floating."

In the fighter sweep over Holland during the night high explosives and incendiaries were dropped in the centre of a lighted airdrome used by the Germans to launch attacks on Britain. Railway yards at Abbeville in Northern France and truck convoys also werr attacked.

Allied Fighters Break Up Darwin Raid

Allied Headquarters Australia, June 15 —(CP)—Allied fliers, who tore into a formation of 18 to 25 Japanese fighters over Darwin yesterday, shooting down four in a furious dogfight, were credited officially today with saving that North Australian city from another air raid.

The Japanese fighter squadron, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said, apparently was covering a formation of bombers lurking off the coast to repeat Saturday's assault on Darwin.

The swift action of the Allied fliers in intercepting them caused the bombers to veer off without reaching their target. One Allied plane was lost in the melee, and the pilot of that craft was reported saved.

Twenty-seven bombers, escorted by 12 to 15 fighters, participated in Saturday's raid—the first aimed at Darwin in seven weeks. One Japanese plane and one Allied plane were shot down during the assault, which was said to have caused little damage and no casualties.

Allied headquarters also announced that coastal defences at Newcastle, on the southeast Australian coast north of Syndey, had fired yesterday on a vessel suspected of being a Japanese submarine.

Enemy submarines have been active off eastern Australia recently, and only two weeks ago four Japanese pygmy submarines were sunk in an unsuccessful raid on shipping in Sydney harbor.

On the offensive side of the picture the Allies reported their planes made a night attack on a Japanese base at Sohana small island in the Solomon group about 800 miles northeast of the Australian mainland.

Sohana is situated in Buka passage, which separates Bougainville, the largest of the Solomon group, from Buka, the most northerly island of the chain.

the immediately purpose of this drive is to secure the railways which will permit Japan to send supplies overland much of the way to French Indo-China.

The point is that at present the Japs are dependent on their long sea-lanes to reach their new conquests, and their loss of shipping and protective naval vessels daily makes their supply problem more serious.

the American factories in 1942, if 600,000 tons are not produced in the United States and 34,000 tons in Canada the yea rafter next—if this miracle does not happen, the situation for the United Nations will be immeasurably worse."

Planned production of synthetic rubber, even if the miracle occurred, was barely enough for war needs. "Not one single pound, not one ounce," would be available for civilians.

No Crude Rubber.

The "stark truth" was that there was no crude rubber except reserves stored up before Pearl Harbor, the "thin trickle" which eluded the Japanese navy in first few weeks of the Pacific War and the "still thinner trickle" of wild rubber from Brazil and Mexico. Even if synthetic rubber production began tomorrow on a full scale, there would not be enough rubber because crude rubber would still be needed.

"From the tire factories of Toronto to the docks of Singnapore it is about 11,300 miles—2,700 miles of land, 8,600 miles of submarine-infested water," Mr. Williamson said. "You may still take a trip to the Pacific, but that's as far as you can go.

"The ships aren't running any more.

"And before they do start running again, before we can get rubber from Eastern Asia, we must send across those 8,600 miles of ocean scores of warships and hundreds of transports— transports loaded to the gunwales with tanks and planes and cannon, transports crowded with men.

"Yes, before we can win back our rubber we must send 1,000,000 or more men way around world. We must send them to Java, Borneo, Cebu and Formosa. To Palambang and Mandalay. To Panay and Tokyo.

"And the irony of it all is this: not one of these ships ,not one tank, not one plane, not one armored vehicle, not one man, can be sent on the hazardous journey unless we have rubber."

As the troops battled under orders that there be "not a step back," the civilians were said also to be resolute and calm despite a rain of iron bars, rails, tractor wheels and plows dropped from German planes along with bombs in an effort to snap their nerves.

Five times Sunday, German planes struck at Murmansk, the Arctic gateway for British and United States aid, but were said to have scored no military damage.

This is the psychological week for Hitler to show his people, if he can, that the winter disaster on the Russian steppes has not drained the German army of its lightning power or articles transferred, that is, delivered to lend-lease nations at production or export points in this country. Of this amount $2,138,000,000 has been exported.

Spring was the season heralded by the Germans for new progress deep into Russia. In another week it will have faded into Summer with Germany's 1942 offensive a dud so far except for the re-conquest of the Kerch Peninsula.

The balance of the $3,673,000,000 is accounted for by articles awaiting transfer or use and those in process of manufacture.

Not All One-Sided

The lend-lease assistance is not moving entirely in one direction, the report showed. To the full extent of their ability, the President said, the Allies are supplying the United States with the things it needs.

He mentioned food and housing and equipment for American troops in Britain and Australia, special machine tools and equipment for munitions plants, British anti-aircraft guns at vital bases, and British-developed plane detection devices.

When it comes to finally settling accounts at the end of the war, the report indicated the United States did not intend to demand repayment dollar for dollar, tank for tank, and plane for plane.

"The real costs of the war," it said, "cannot be measured, nor compared, nor paid for in money. They must be and are being met in blood and toil. But the financial costs of the war can and should be met in a way which will serve the needs of lasting peace and mutual economic well-being.

"And although the nations richest in resources are able to make larger contributions, the claim of war against each is relatively the same. Such a distribution of the financial costs of war means that no nation will grow rich from the war effort of its allies. The money costs of the war will fall according to the rule of equality in sacrifice, as in effort."

In many spheres where action is needed the report said, co-operative action among the United Nations is contemplated to fulfil a program of economic progress. Then the report added:—

"It is hoped that plans will soon develop for a series of agreement and recommendations for legislation in the fields of commercial policy, of money and finance, international investment and reconstruction."

The supplies distributed at Hong Kong, where survivors of the Canadian contingent which fought there are believed to be interned, included about 2,000 tons of cracked wheat of other cereal and some medical supplies.

Poison Ivy Revenge

GALT, Ont., June 15—(CP). — Carrying the fable of the boy who cried "Wolf!" just a bit too far, a cadet from the local aircraft school tried to fake a drowning, and succeeded in interrupting physician's dinner. When the docto arrived to apply respiration to the pseudo-drowning, he was in no mood to spare the actor when he discovered the prank. He gave the boy a good tongue-lashing, but harder retribution came the next day when the boy found he had a bad case of poison ivy.

Torpedoed Crew Wave Off Rescue To Save 2 Ships

AN EAST COAST UNITED STATES PORT June 15 — —(AP). —Survivors of a torpedoetd United States merchantman, adrift in the Caribbean Sea, hatve twice out-argued persistent would-be rescuers and waved them out of an area where a submarine was known to be lurking.

Two men died in the sinking of the vessel south of Cuba on June 1. Fifty-three others—including four passengers, 14 members of a gun crew and 35 regular crewmen— escaped in two lifeboats. The Navy announced the sinking to-day.

Two torpedoes, fired an hour apart, finished the ship.

Second Mate William J. McCarthy of New York said that about the time the second torpedo struck a Brazilian ship hove into view and steamed directly to the lifeboats.

"Go away," the Americans shouted. "There's a submarine here. Get away as fast as you can."

"We will pick you up," the unfrightened South Americans replied.

"No no," McCarthy said the survivors replied. "You'll be sunk."

But it required half an hour of argument before the courageous Brazilians gave up the rescue effort.

Next morning an airplane dropped a message to the boats. A few hours later another Brazilian ship sailed up, manoeuvred alongside a lifeboat. It too, was a Brazilian.

Nearly half an hour of argument was required to discourage this Brazilian crew.

"It would have taken some time to take all the men off both boats," said McCarthy. "We knew the danger and didn't want to feel responsible for the sinking of another vessel."

They sailed their own boats into port in 45 hours.

The colors of the United Nations were broken out on every continent of the globe yesterday in a martial demonstration of unity in the common fight against tyranny and oppression.

In both hemispheres, north and south of the Equator, millions of freedom-loving people took America's Flag Day for their own in rededicating themselves to the task of smashing the Axis.

In Washington, President Roosevelt, welcoming Mexico and the Philippines to the Family of Nations, which now number 28 declared the United Nations are taking the sword from the oppressors' hands and with it "they will destroy those tyrants."

The President, whose words were recorded and broadcast throughout the world, spoke to a V-shaped gathering of representatives of the 27 other nations in the White House at Washington. In a prayer to God he said:

"We pledge our hearts and lives to-day to the cause of all free mankind. Grant us victory....'

Young men like "20-pay-life" assurance because it provides adequate protection both before and after marriage and limits the savings required under the plan to the best earning period of life. They like the flexibility of the plan, too, for it can be made to mature as an endowment by continuing the same savings for an additional period.

Seven Oshawa Boys Are Held In Cobourg

COBOURG, June 16.—(ENS)—Seven Oshawa youths were picked up on Saturday by Chief W. J. Carey and Provincial Constable David Adair on charges of of trespassing on C.N.R. property. They were fined $5 and costs each or seven days. Pending raising the money, they went to jail. Their names were Charles Frayne, Steve Eveden, Fred Bessie, Lorne Frayne, George Mitchell, Cyril Eveden and Harold Kinghorn.

Woman Is Given Seven Days

COBOURG, June 16.—(ENS)—Mrs. Lena Ambrose of 394 Riverdale avenue, Ottawa, was found guilty of drunk driving on Saturday and was sentenced to seven days by Magistrate R. B. Baxter. Her car was ordered impounded for three months. As her driver's licence was taken out in Nova Scotia, the magistrate was unable to cancel it. Pte. O. E. Beatty, Veterans' Guard, Toronto, who was with Mrs. Ambrose, was fined $25 and costs for having liquor in an illegal place. They were picked up a few miles west of Port Hope by Constable M. Rafter of Port Hope after a complaint made to him in Port Hope.

Constable Rafter testified that when he spotted the car it was pursuing an erratic course along the highway. When he stopped the car, he found that the driver was Mrs. Ambrose. She was apparently under the influence of liquor, the constable testified. There was half a bottle of gin and a half bottle of orange pop in the car, the officer said. Beatty was in the car with her.

Provincial Constable G. Broughton testified that when he saw Mrs. Ambrose about an hour and one-half later she was still under the influence of liquor.

Beatty told the magistrate that Mrs. Ambrose picked him up at Brockville. He was on his way to Toronto to celebrate his 23rd anniversary.

"You started your celebrating too early," commented the magistrate.

Beatty told the court that when he poured out Mrs. Ambrose's orange drink in the car, he "spiked" it with gin, and that she drank it in the knowledge it was just orange. At Kingston when they stopped for dinner, Mrs. Ambrose had a drink of liquor, he related, but as far as drinking in the car, she imbibed the gin without knowing it.

Mr. McRae also told of the situation in West China into which has been driven thirty million refugees from the Province of Honan, the Japanese army.

Forty-four Airmen Entertained Sunday

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15 — (ENS)—The fifth and largest group of airmen yet entertained by the Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E. during a week-end left this town on Sunday to return to Trenton, and each of the 44, who came principally from New Zealand and the British Isles, was wholehearted in his expression of appreciation to members of the chapter. Most of them arrived here on Saturday afternoon and following dinner with a hostess arranged for by the I.O.D.E. they went to the Villa Trent hotel for a dance in the evening. This was the highlight of the entertainment program and was made possible by the generosity of its Manager A. Rappaport who donated the building to the I.O.D.E. for the evening and brought forth a warm expression of thanks from the regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside who welcomed the airmen officially on behalf of the chapter. Others who assisted the Hospitality convener with the entertainment during the evening were pianists, Mrs. J. O. Benor, Miss Dorothy Henson, Miss Gertrude Maynard and song-leader-pianist, Arnold Bates. James O. Benor was floor manager of the dance, a post

C.C.F. Members Are Impatient At Slowness Of Old Parties J. W. Noseworthy, M.P., Declares

"It is not for me to say that the objectives of the two old parties on the one hand and the C.C.F. on the other are so radically different, theoretically any way. It is not my place to say that the Liberal and Conservative parties have not had as their objectives the services of the masses of the Canadian people."

Such was the moderately pitched tone of the address here Saturday night by Joseph W. Noseworthy, M.P. the school teacher who carried South York into the Federal fold of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. The word "reasonable" noticeably recurred in his exposition of C.C.F. purposes and ends, leaving an impression that it suggested a dominant personal characteristic. It harmonized, too, with his manner of address, calm and dignified. Some of the audience might have preferred it "eight to the bar."

"We have had some in both the old established parties who were great men," Mr. Noseworthy continued. "They were men, I believe, who placed the interests of their fellow citizens and of their country above personal and party interests. Many of them tried to give the people of Canada good government, and to improve the economic conditions of the country."

So, the C.C.F. claims no originality in its corresponding objective, Mr. Noseworthy said, but its members in all its branches across Canada have become impatient of the slowness in which the old parties move toward goals of opportunity and security which the C.C.F. believed could be attained more speedily and in larger measure by their plans.

"It took us many years to get workmen's compensation, and it was inadequate when we got it. It has taken many years to get unemploymetn insurance, and it turns out to be only a half measure when we got it. The Canadian workers are not asking for anything unreasonable. They are asking for the opportunity of working as long as they are able, and according to reasonably decent standards of living, with some assurance that after they have become unable to work or too old they shall have a form of security for the rest of their days.

Spectre of Unemployment

There has never been a period in my memory when I have not known a great many men and women who were eager and anxious to work, but unable to find it; people haunted by the terror of unemployment. It haunted my father all the years I knew him, and I don't think there was a week of his life he was unemployed. But, he never knew from one day to the next how secure his job was, and whether he would have earned enough to keep him when he was too old to work any longer. That condition can be multiplied by the tens of thousands.

By a decent standard of living I mean something more than just enough to get by, more than the bare essentials of food, shelter and clothing. We are entitled to a margin over and above the bare necessities, so that as intelligent human beings we shall be afforded the opportunity to develop spiritually, intellectually and artistically, too, if we have an artistic side. With the developments of science and education today we should be able to devise a set-up of society that would give to every man and woman the opportunity to work at a wage that would give him a margain over the bare necessities of life. We are a long way from achieving that—freedom from want and from the fear of want.

We have pretty nearly achieved it now, while we are in a state of war. Most people who are left at home are probably better off than they have ever been. Our national income is just about at an all time peak. But, that is not the answer. We want to achieve it in a state of peace.

The Profit Motive

Frankly, the C.C.F. may not have the answer; but we are willing to try. The first step is to substitute the motive of public interest for the motive of individual profit. Our economic system has been built on individual or corporative profit. You open a business, or a group opens a factory, and employs men so long as the products can be sold at a profit. And that profit is set by the owner or the owners themselves.

The basic motive should be the needs of the people; production for needs—not for profits. Of course, if you can supply all the needs of the people and still show a profit, I see no objection to that."

Mr. Noseworthy recalled the experiences of the depression, abundance of materials, clothing, food, houses; people anxious for work, but unable to get it because our economic system operates on a basis of profit. And profit was actually placed first, given priority over employees. The first concern of business was to see that it showed a profit.

Planned National Economy

"In war we can put all our people to work producing weapons of destruction, and keep every factory working, but we can't do it for the production of things we humanly need. If we were intelligent we should be able to find a way to keep people employed, earning a decent wage. I know that is not the entire solution; but it would go a long way. The C.C.F. has advocated a planned economy from its inception."

"The whole country has now discovered that this idea of planning is necessary for war. If we are to produce a required number of tanks we have got to plan for the production of that number; a required number of airplanes and ships we have got to plan for the production of those numbers. Some one may say it is easier to plan for war needs. Well, I'm not sure about that, but as I learn from day to day of the immense number of things needed in war, I think we should be able to plan for peace.

To achieve that planning of production we feel it would be necessary for the government to take over certain industries. The C.C.F. has not visualized a complete socialized state. We have socialists in the C.C.F. membership who believe that the solution is the socialist state.

Control of Finance

I think that our financial institution should be the first to be acquired by the government. They should be controlled by the people through their government, because they pretty nearly determine our entire economic set-up. If we could keep people producing the things we need we would have a reasonably happy state of society."

Introduced by W. C. Grant, with William S. Johnson presiding, Mr. Noseworthy explained that he had come to Peterborough on a June Saturday night because it was the only weekend available until August.

At the close of his address he answered a number of questions. One that was pertinent to temporary affairs was a query about the right of a government to defer by-elections. Mr. Noseworthy said that this provincial matter had been taken before a court, but a final decision had not yet been given. However, he pointed out that hardly a week goes by in the Old Country without a by-election, almost within the reach of bombs, actually so in some instances, and the reason was that the people wanted them. An acclamation had been proposed for the Hon. Mr. Meighen in South York, but there, too, the electorate manifested that they wanted an election.

Ship Knitted Goods

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15 (ENS)—On Friday evening members of the Junior I.O.D.E. Trent Valley Chapter met in their rooms for their regular meeting and to hear a report on the items contained in the most recent shipment made to Toronto headquarters. The war convener, Miss Leitha Davidson, gave the report disclosing the bale was made up principally of knitted goods such as sweaters and sox. The regent, Miss Clara Lucy, presided for the meeting and other routine business included reports from the secretary and treasurer. Their next meeting will be on June 25th.

Mexican Peso Note Found In Cobourg

COBOURG, June 15 - (ENS).—A Mexican five peso note made an appearance in Cobourg on Saturday and was taken in error for a five dollar bill by a local grocery store. It is thought possible that the person who turned it in also mistook it for a five dollar bill. The Mexican bill was taken to Chief W. J. Carey, who visited the stores with it to give the merchants the opportunity of inspecting it lest they also take it in for the genuine. In one store when the Chief dropped the five peso note on the counter, the proprietor asked him if he wanted it changed into bills, without noticing the nature of the bill.

Radio Discussed To Service Club

Radio systems in Canada and the United States have some similarities but both differ widely from that operating in Great Britain, Jack Davidson, manager of CHEX, told Kinsmen last week, in an address on "Radio."

He explained that radio had not been widely used until 1919 and 1920 and that only then did engineers begin to see its possibilities. The first broadcasting of much note was conducted in Chelmsford, England and Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Continuing with a comparison of the three English-speaking countries, the speaker said that the British radio had always been and still is under government ownership and there is no advertising on the BBC network. But until the fall of France, there was considerable commercial advertising flooding the country from powerful transmitters on the French coast who advertised in English and many British manufacturers used this method of putting their advertising across.

'The United States radio is paid for by advertisers, but is under the jurisdiction of the Federal Communications Commission. This Commission grants licenses when it is considered necessary. There are four major networks, the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System, the Mutual Broadcasting System and the Blue Network. Aside from these there are regional networks and private stations."

Mr. Davidson said that Canada's radio is under one governing body, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. But the licenses are issued by the Department of Transport, though the operation of stations is governed by the CBC. The Board of Governors pass on applications for radio stations and lay down the rules and regulations.

"The breakdown of the average day's program is as follows: Music, 47 per cent., news 18 per cent., talks 12 per cent., variety 10 per cent., drama 10 per cent and the balance is special events."

The speaker concluded with a brief history of some of the better known radio personalities such as Jack Benny Easy Aces, Rudy Valee and Kate Smith.

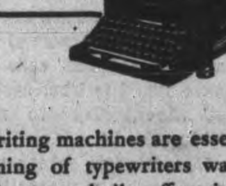
Farmer Fined $50 'Plus' For Cruelty

CAMPBELLFORD, June 15 (ENS)—John Beamish, Percy township farmer was found guilty on a cruelty to animals charge and assessed $50 and $25.05 costs when he appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter here on Friday afternoon. The accused, who entered a plea of "not guilty" was charged for the second time within a year under the same section of the Act and he countered evidence as to the poor condition of his cattle with the statement that their condition was "fairish."

Dr. Stuart West, D.V.S., was the principal witness for the Crown and he testified that although there was plenty of feed in the barn, though of poor quality, all cows showed signs of general debility; horses were in very poor condition, one was blind and in others the condition of teeth and feet was bad thus causing the animals to suffer. Dr. West estimated the weight of a 7-month-old brood sow at 100-125 pounds and should have weighed from 175-200. The accused's own evidence to the effect that he was working a horse with a bad shoulder sore all winter, weighed heavily against him in the eyes of the Magistrate who on passing sentence observed the animals were not properly fed or treated.

Nicholas Parcels, laborer, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and paid $10 and $2.50 costs.

NEW GOVERNMENT
TYPEWRITER REGULATIONS
—and what they mean to Underwood users!



BECAUSE writing machines are essential to industrialized total war, rationing of typewriters was inevitable. All new and recent model, factory rebuilt, office-size machines had to be conserved for the vital needs of the United Nations' war production.

Underwood Elliott Fisher accordingly applauds the new regulations which went into effect June 1st. It pledges the sincerity and vigilance of its Dominion-wide sales, service and supply organization to the regulations' whole-hearted observance and rigid enforcement.

What the regulations mean:

1 Only governmental and military establishments, essential or semi-essential industries, may buy new Underwoods or recent model, factory rebuilt Underwoods;

2 Anyone may rent new office-size Underwoods or recent model, factory rebuilt Underwoods, subject to repossession should they be required for Government use;

3 Anyone may buy older model, factory rebuilt Underwoods;

4 Anyone may buy new Portable Underwoods within the limit of production restrictions;

5 And of course no limitations whatsoever have been imposed upon Underwood Elliott Fisher's coast-to-coast maintenance service which, in fact, now becomes all the more important to the preservation of your present Underwoods.

Whatever your typewriter requirements, Underwood Elliott Fisher is confident it can fill them satisfactorily within the strictest observance of both the letter and the spirit of the new regulations.

It will welcome your inquiry as to how that may best be done.

The Ashes Of Lidice

The Nazis, in their spite and fear, have razed the Czech town of Lidice to the ground, because they suspected its inhabitants of having harbored the men who shot Reinhard Heidrich, the protector of Bohemia and Moravia. In this town of 1,200 every grown man was shot, the women have been interned, the children put in institutions, and the town utterly destroyed.

It has been suggested that we should destroy a town in Germany for every one which the Germans destroyed in the occupied countries. But we have no time and little inclination for this sort of wanton destruction. The failure of such outrages as the rape of Lidice are apparent; why should we copy them? This vicious act springs from nothing but fear, and we are not afraid.

The late Dr. Freud, in his brilliant discussion of the nature of civilization, insisted that nations which imposed most restrictions upon themselves in time of peace were likely to react most strongly toward brutality and crime in time of war. Germany has, for a century and more, tried to make its people civilized by means of repressive laws, instead of attacking the forces of destruction which resided in the national character. The result is that Germany is more frightful in war than any other nation which calls itself civilized, and the rule of National Socialism, with its underground appeal to every vicious instinct, has made them worse than ever. Only a country with a sick soul could behave as Germany has behaved in Czechoslovakia.

Lidice is no more. But this town will rise again, for we shall make it our particular charge to see that this is so. And the name, Lidice, will always stand as a symbol of German brutality and Czech suffering.

Parliamentary Shirt Sleeves

Mr. Coldwell, the C.C.F. House Leader, suggested on Friday that members of the House be permitted to remove their coats while the House was sitting. We see his point. Friday was a scorcher, and from what we see in Hansard, it does not appear that things were any cooler in Parliament than they were in the rest of the Dominion. Once again our surprising Canadian climate has forced a decision between decorum and comfort.

We are strongly in favor of comfort, but we wonder if an air-cooling system in the House would not be a better solution? A Parliament is a dignified place, and shirt-sleeves are not dignified. And although a legislator may be just as competent without his coat as with it, he does not look competent to judge of weighty matters, and looks count for a great deal. Recently Mr. Hanson scored an oratorical success by quoting Sir William S. Gilbert in the House, and we recommend a second quotation, this time from Iolanthe:

"... the prospect of a lot
Of dull M.P.'s in close proximity,
All thinking for themselves, is wot
No man can face with equanimity."

And when, in addition, the M.P.'s are revealed in the full glory of mauve sleeve-garters and possibly even dickies, the prospect becomes even more unsavory.

Newfoundland Says No

Recenty the Financial Post sent a letter to a number of prominent citizens of Newfoundland, asking them if they thought that the old colony should join the Dominion of Canada as a tenth province? The answers, which are predominantly negative, are illuminating. Newfoundland does not want to join us and she is not backward about saying why.

In the first place, Newfoundlanders like being Newfoundlanders, and would only consent to become Canadians if the change were markedly to their advantage. They are overwhelmingly of British descent, they think of Britain as home, and they imply that we in Canada are not British enough for them. If they were to give up their independence for material gain they would offer themselves to the U.S., which is rich enough to look after them properly. They point to the Maritime Provinces as an example of what happens to those members of the Canadian confederation which are too far away from its heart; they do not want to be like the Maritimes, or in a worse case. Most of us in Ontario live in blissful unconsciousness of the fact that the Maritimes suffer from a lively sense of injustice, and that their affection for Canada as a whole is sometimes sorely tried. When we think of national disunity we are apt to think only of Quebec, but the Maritimes have been profoundly disaffected more than once.

Newfoundland has not forgotten that when she was in financial difficulties in 1933 it was Britain, and not Canada, which came to her assistance. Suggestions that the colony join us have been made before, but never on sufficiently generous terms to be worth serious consideration; there was talk of confederation as early as 1864, but Newfoundland was not eager to play Cinderella in the Canadian household. Nor has the island forgotten that when an advantageous trade agreement was reached with the U.S. it was Canada which interfered and persuaded the British government not to ratify it. And in 1924 Canada tried to get almost all of Newfoundland Labrador. We have forgotten these things, but Newfoundland has not.

Peterborough people will be particularly interested in the answer given to this question by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, who is now minister of Knox Presbyterian Church in St. John's, and who was for ten years minister of St. Paul's in this city. He said: "An invitation to Newfoundland to enter Confederation would be quite acceptable if guarantees were offered that the conditions which existed in the Maritimes during the depression years would not be duplicated in Newfoundland, and that revenues from the ancient colony would not tend toward the building up of a greater Canada at the expense of the one-time sister Dominion. In the inevitable regrouping after the war, Newfoundland must reconsider her position. At present your question is a live one, but cannot be answered yet without qualification."

Of course the Financial Post's survey has no official character, and was undertaken merely in a spirit of curiosity. Newfoundland has left us in no doubt of its opinion.

Great Lawyer Passes

The death of W. Norman Tilley robs the Ontario Bar of one who was long regarded as its most brilliant member. He was for many years associated with the Canadian Pacific Railway as a legal advisor, and in 1924 he became a member of the executive committee of its Board of Directors. It was as a constitutional lawyer that Mr. Tilley earned his greatest reputation; in 1918 he represented Canadian publishers in hearings on the price of newsprint before the Canadian Paper Control tribunal; he was counsel for the Province of Ontario before the Supreme Court of Canada in the question of power rights on the St. Lawrence and it was his opinion that the Dominion Parliament possessed no authority to ratify the treaty with the U.S. which would bring about the deepening of that river, such power residing in the Parliament of Great Britain. He was counsel in the rum-running "I'm Alone" case in 1929. His last case was the libel action between two prominent Toronto newspapers. Mr. Tilley was 74.

Mr. Tilley's career was entirely the result of his own exertions. He was born in humble circumstances, but he possessed a superior intelligence, and by dint of his own struggles he was able to procure the benefits of education. Great ability always gains friends but it makes enemies too, and his early career in law was not easy. His especial gift lay in his power to organize and clarify a case. He was not eloquent and he was not witty, but his argument was always crystal clear, and he had the ability, rare in lawyers, to pierce through the tangle of legal technicality to the true core of justice.

When the late Eugene Lafleur died Canada lost her acknowledged legal genius. The position which he occupied in the public esteem was shared among Aime Geoffrion, W. N. Tilley and the present Minister of Justice, M. St. Laurent. The death of one of this brilliant trio is a loss to the Bar and a loss to Canada.

Lion And Bear In Amity

The announcement of the conclusion of a long-term pact between Russia and Britain is great and welcome news, though many when they heard it must have echoed the thought of the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George: "Had it been a fact some years ago, many grave blunders would have been avoided and not only that, but this war would never have occurred." Lloyd George was among the first to recognize the folly of Britain's attitude toward the Soviet Union. The British Empire as a whole has treated Russia shamefully during the past twenty years, and under the pact we shall have an opportunity to make amends.

Undoubtedly there will be those who will see the death of capitalism and the destruction of all that was British in such a pact. They need not worry. The bloody days of Red Revolution are over, and it looks very much as though the days of capitalism as it once existed are over too. It is far better that the two most powerful nations in Europe should work in amity than at cross-purposes and we see no reason to suppose that Britain will not influence Russia quite as much as Russia influences Britain. The only people whom we see losing by the agreement are the Communists in such British countries as Canada, whose job of making trouble and trying to upset the government is now at an end. When Comrade Churchill and the Rt. Hon. Joe Stalin link arms there is really very little left for the professional agitators to do.

Canada will undoubtedly have a chance to enter into this treaty if she wishes to do so, and we sincerely hope that the Government will lose no time in the matter. The British-Russian pact of friendship is of an importance which cannot even be guessed at now, and we must not allow ourselves to be left out of it. Although the U.S. is not a party to the pact there is no saying that it may not become one, and the prospect of an Anglo-American-Russian agreement is glorious indeed. Canada has now opened direct diplomatic relations with Russia, and we should lose no time in establishing the closest possible friendship with her.

The Anglo-Russian pact will give no cheer to the German people. For them it can mean only one thing: that their defeat is assured and their punishment inescapable. And the clearly expressed intention of opening another front in Europe this year will bring the prospect of defeat unpleasantly near.

Three fishermen stranded off Florida signalled to a passing ship with their shirts; that was one time when it would have been silly to keep their shirts on.

The Hon. Humphrey Mitchell is of the opinion that the war will last for ten years, but says that he hopes he may be wrong. His hopes are as nothing compared with ours.

When Molotov was in Britain he was referred to as "Mr. Smith" by government officials; when he was in Washington he was "Mr. Brown." Which means that, if he should ever pay an extended visit to Canada we should have nothing left to call him but Mr. Jones.

Germany complained that Nature treated her very badly in Russia. Now Nature is making it up to the offended Reich by sending bad weather to keep the R.A.F. away. But we notice that Nature insists on giving the Reich storms in either case.

Are you too—
you wherever you are tonight, high in whatever scarred and violent sky—
thinking how little we understood, how much we have yet to verify?
Are you too—
far off, alone: in tragic flight where no birds fly—hearing the words go round and round your set head, hearing is said:

Nowhere on earth entrust a tryst to stone and iron, to glass and lead, for lead and glass are iron and stone
are mist—are mist;
nowhere on earth expect to see,
defined for touch, finality;
nowhere on earth declare the bright

Are you too
finding this night that though heart mind may receive first stupendous impact of light?

Good Year to Use Tripods Farmers Advised

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE rapid growth of grass and clover caused by the heavy rains will bring haying on early and the crop is going to be heavy and full of water. The farmer who has silo accommodation for a good deal of his alfalfa will be in luck. The crop this year is going to take a good deal of curing. Heavy green hay must not get too much sun but it must be dried out enough to go safely into the barn. Good hay weather will help but it cannot be long enough in the swath for the moisture to evaporate, or transpire through its leaves without suffering from the sunshine.

This looks like a good year to use tripods. A number of Ontario farmers have been using them, and there will be no better place for very green heavy hay to "make" than built up on tripods. A week or so can make a great difference in the condition of hay if we get a dry spell, and we can do without rain for a little time. An empty silo would likely be quite useful during haying this year, particularly to the farmer with good crops of alfalfa.

Spring grain came on so rapidly that the chances for harrowing it when up a few inches were pretty slim. With the heat in April and the rains in May the crops should be well ahead of the weeds. Pastures have grown rapidly and have too much top on them these days for any renovating. If pastures can be eaten off bare, given a dressing of fertilizer and a thorough harrowing they will give better autumn grass, but the abundance of moisture will have to do the job of producing grass in the meantime.

A close examination of alfalfa and clover fields should be made where it is the intention to cut for seed, and every pound of seed should be secured this year. It will be worth securing and besides the country needs clover and grass seeds to keep our land in good condition until the end of the war.

AT the time of writing it is impossible to get on a good deal of the land, and where the clay is heavy it is an excellent plan to keep off it for a while. Heavy land puddled up with horses or machines will be in a bad way. One hears stories of tractors mired in the low corner of fields which were only able to get to firm ground with considerable trouble. Fields intended for roots and corn will have to wait a while and some of them may need some cultivation to fit them for seeding.

All turnip and mangel seed should be treated with ceresan before planting. Sugar beets and corn might also be profitably treated in the same way. There is no doubt that treating grain with this preparation promotes early sprouting and rapid growth. I noticed recently where several English farmers were treating all the seeds they planted with ceresan, or a similar product, and claimed that it paid well to do so. The experience of Ontario farmers with ceresan would indicate that its use on all seeds would be an excellent plan. Two years ago I treated peas in this way on about ten acres and I am sure the plants came through the ground earlier than if the seed had not been so treated.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer has substantially increased the income tax on British farmers. He estimates that the increase will produce about seven million pounds in revenue or better than thirty million dollars. Farmers up to now had very substantial exemptions. No farmer paid income tax if his rent was under £300. Now this has been reduced to £100, and if the tax is based on rental value the tenant who pays £100 shall be classed as paying £300 and it will then be up to him to prove from his account books that his profits are not sufficient to make him liable for that tax. Canadians are not familiar with this plan of taxing on the rent paid but it was established in Britain that the smaller farmers might escape too much bookkeeping, but the change now, it is said, will bring 80 to 90 per cent of the farmers, who produce for the wholesale market, definitely into the business of keeping accounts. One commentator says "This new job of bookkeeping will be thoroughly distasteful in many farm households, but it must nevertheless be faced."

Large farmers have for some time been paying excess profits tax, now familiarly known as E.P.T., and in some cases where farmers have taken on more land to increase their production the E.P.T. has eaten up the additional profits so that such men have no compensation for the use of the extra capital required for the operation of the additional land. Located as Britain is in the very centre of the war's activity, and taxed as she must be to bear her share of the burden, the problems that have to be faced by every one in that country are very compelling.

There is one thing that stands out, however, in every communication one receives from that country. I received two letters from Scotland this week, and like many others I have received, they never fail to express gratitude for their good fortune in comparison with the unfortunate people on the continent who are really under the dominance of Nazi rule and have become hewers of wood and drawers of water for the German Overlords and whose lives are continually under the threat of the mad whims of Hitler.

Dried sliced potatoes, prepared in a beet factory have been fed to a small herd of cows in England. At the end of six months when these cows were fed no cereal products at all, the potatoes displacing the latter, the cows were in good health and their milk yield was equal to that of a control group receiving ordinary rations but no potatoes. These experiments with potatoes are important in Britain because more food in the form of potatoes can be produced on an acre of land than with any other crop.

If the damage to spring crops caused by the rain storms is as great as is reported from some districts, it may be important to have increased acreage of oats and barley in the Prairie Provinces. The first story is often the worst, however, and let us hope that spring crops may revive from the soaking rains which turned some of them a very sickly color.

Double Front Faces Hitler

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WHATEVER he may say, it is a reasonable guess that Hitler is far from the jubilant mood in which he trumpeted the opening of his great "crusade" in Russia just short of a year ago.

Twelve months later the self-appointed savior of mankind is fully aware that he has caught a Tartar in his march with "no precedent" eastward against Russia "to safeguard Europe and thus save all."

There was a precedent after all, a Napoleonic precedent. The second "Little Corporal" has been perilously close, by his own admission, within the last twelve months to the fate that befell Napoleon.

He is not yet out of the woods. He still has the Russian bear by the tail in a dance of death that involves millions of men. He can neither let go nor go forward notably with his "crusade." The other end of the Russian bear, the business end, is snapping savagely at his heels.

That is the situation on Germany's Eastern Front a week from the anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia. And to match it a storm of British-American making is brewing in the west of which German victims at home have heard the first ominous rumblings in thousand-plane British bombings of such cities as Cologne and Essen. For the six months that followed the night of June 21-22 this year, every night must be one of increased danger and terror for Germans as the hours of darkness lengthen.

Britons have known that grim waiting night by night, but never as Germans must now endure it. No German can doubt that the Cologne and Essen raids were but tokens of horror to come. What the upshot of that winter turns the longest night corner in December none can say with certainty.

Nor can any say when Allied guns as well as bombs may again be joining in the dreadful chorus on the Continent in the West. The ships, the planes, the men are gathering within the fortress that is Britain. The Nazi warmaker can have no doubt about that, nor can he turn from his Russian front to meet that growing threat.

TWO-FRONT WAR A REALITY

Two-front war even now is a terrible reality for Hitler. For the weeks since he turned his Eastern army against Kerch Isthmus in an effort to regain the initiative in Russia, his troops have been floundering in blood, still chained to a fundamentally defensive role.

The intensified siege of Sevastopol in the Crimea is primarily a defensive operation. That long Russian-held Black Sea base is far behind Nazi front lines. It is a galling thorn in the south flank of a broad-based Nazi attempt to roll down the Rostov corner into the Caucasus. The Russian bulge drive into the German front south of Kharkov is an even more menacing threat to the north flank.

German failure to remove both threats within a reasonable time would make a general Nazi advance all but impossible. New German attacks below Kharkov and the tremendous and sustained Nazi attack on Sevastopol imply desperate efforts to clear both flanks.

Prime Minister Churchill warned Hitler sarcastically weeks ago, before the Kerch operations reopened the campaign in Russia, that time was passing there, time Hitler could even less afford to lose now with the West girding for offensive action, than he could last year when a few lost weeks in the Balkans stood between him and a possible decisive victory in Russia.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, and his Maker, Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me. I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded.—Isa. xlv, 11, 12.

A PARENTAL PROBLEM

The school teacher told William Norman Tilley that he should stick to the farm, that he had no aptitude for law. And yet he rose to great heights, outstandingly so by common consent. It just shows how difficult it is to chart the course for any young lad, a parental problem the country over.—St. Catharines Standard.

KNOW WAR HORRORS

Civilian casualties in the British Empire for the first two years of war were 43,675 killed, 50,246 injured and sent to hospital. Women and children, male non-combatants, in Britain have little to learn about the horrors of modern war. — Ottawa Journal.

REASON WHY

Frederick C. Oeschener, trained U.P. correspondent just out of Germany, says the war can be ended this year by the new phase of war just opened by Britain in the air. In brief, he says the Germans cannot take it. The Britons did, but they were British.—St. Catharines Standard.

PARENTS' OPPOSITION RUSHES YOUTH INTO FOOL MARRIAGES

Propinquity Is Very Effective As a Match-Breaker.

I get many letters from parents asking how they can break off the unsuitable marriages that their children are bent on making and that will inevitably ruin their lives. Well, making a lovesick boy realize that because Sally has golden curls on the outside of her head does not compensate for her not having a single idea inside of it and causing an enamoured girl to perceive that John is a lazy loafer instead of a Fairy Prince, is a feat that deserves to be classed among the minor miracles. Still it can be done. Only fathers and mothers can't do it the way they try to do it.

The time-honored technique in such cases is for Father and Mother to get rough and to assert their authority. They forbid John to date the Smith girl again and shut their door in the Jones boys' face. They go over the family history of the lad and lassie who have dared to cast amorous eyes on their own darlings, and dig up the fact that their grandparents lived on the wrong side of the tracks, or that their Uncle Abner was a bootlegger, or that their Cousin Susie was gossiped about when she was a girl. They play upon the shortcomings and the personal idiosyncrasies of the boy and girl friend as upon a harp with a thousand strings.

All of which simply precipitates the catastrophe they dread. Parental opposition has rushed more boys and girls into fool marriages than anything else in the world. It rouses all of the combativeness of high-strung youngsters and makes them determined that they will show Mother and Father that they won't be dictated to, or let anybody else pick out their husbands and wives for them.

Worse still, it makes them the champions of the boy and girl to whom their parents object, and causes them deliberately to shut their eyes to defects that they otherwise would perceive in those with whom they contemplated spending the balance of their lives.

What then, is the best procedure for parents to take in trying to save their children from making the fatal mistake of marrying the wrong ones? An old method of dissipating love's young dream that is almost as infallible as Grandma's recipe for sponge cake is to give them an overdose of the society of the party of the other part, for propinquity is just as effective as a match-breaker as it is in match-making.

So instead of trying to separate John and Sally from the objects of their ill-advised affections, the wise parents have them always under foot where John and Sally get a close-up view of their little "ways" and an earful of their conversation. Any romance that can survive spending a week in the country, with nobody to see or talk to but their sweeties and nothing to do but to bill and coo, is a deathless passion with which no one has a right to interfere. Otherwise they will be so fed up with each other that they will never want to meet again. This remedy is particularly recommended for hot summer weather.

Another true and tried way of making a love-blinded youth or maiden see how unsuitable a mate not in his or her class would be, is the one that Thackeray recommends in one of his stories where the old Major, after vainly trying to induce his ward to give up an illiterate girl with whom he thinks himself in love, says: "Ah, I see in her letters she spells affection with one 'f.'" That turned the trick, for love can stand abuse and contumely, but not ridicule.

Amother I knew used to scare off the undesirable suitors who hung around her pretty daughter by being as sweet as honey to them, and in a burst of confidence telling them what a darling Maud was and how she would hate to give her up, but that she feared that she had spoiled her because she didn't know the first thing about anything domestic, or how to take care of money. And what it cost to dress her they simply wouldn't believe if she should tell them. That made the prudent move on.

These are mere suggestions for

The church was decorated with red and white peonies and Mr. Cecil Lapp played the wedding music. During the signing of the register Mrs. Leslie McLaren sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride was charming in a gown of white silk net over taffeta with lace inserts and a sweetheart neckline. Her halo veil of embroidered net was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. Mrs. Albert Evans of Toronto, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Moreen Evans, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mrs. Evans wore a gown of rose-blush sheer with an embroidered bodice and matching headdress and carried a bouquet of briarcliffe roses. Miss Evan wore a gown of blue figured organza with matching headdress and nosegay of roses.

Mr. Lawrence Latchford was best man and the ushers were Mr. Ernest Rutherford and John Latchford.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received wearing turquoise blue crepe with a white straw hat and a corsage of American Beauty roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of navy blue crepe with a figured bodice and a hat of white straw. She wore a corsage of white roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Toronto. For travelling the bride wore a turquoise dress and hat and brown accessories. They will live in Peterborough.

Women's Institute Holds June Meeting

BUCKHORN, June 15.—Mr. Everett Graham was hostess for the June meeting of the Buckhorn Women's Institute, held at her home in North Smith, on Tuesday evening.

There was a good attendance. The president, Mrs. T. S. Wood, took charge of the meeting, which opened with the Institute Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The roll call was answered by suggestions for roll calls to be used in the future.

Programs for each month of the coming year were planned and each member is making a special effort to secure one new Institute member to join at the next monthly meeting.

It was decided to ask each Institute in the district for a small donation of money, which would be sent to the Warsaw Institute ladies, to show our appreciation for the very kindly way in which they treated us, at the annual convention. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which a lunch was served by the hostess and her helpers.

Donations Made At June Meeting Of Lily Lake W. A.

The June meeting of the Lily Lake Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Ireland, with an attendance of 22.

The devotional period was opened by Mrs. Ireland. Mrs. Norman Buckley of the Salvation Army led in prayer.

Reports of the auction sale were given and the appreciation of the members was expressed for the assistance rendered b the ladies of Gilmour group who assisted so ably in gathering donations and helped on the day of the sale.

Mrs. Buckley, the guest speaker, took as her theme, "We are laborers together with God." She said that we must please God in the work that we do. "Little is much if God is in it." Miss Robson expressed the thanks of the association to Mrs. Buckley for her spiritual and inspiring message.

The roll-call for the July meeting is to be answered with a get-well card, to be sent later to shut-ins.

During the business session it was decided to give $85 to the Kinsmen for the Milk for Britain Fund, and $25 to the Red Shield for wool to knit and sent overseas through the Salvation Army. Five quilts were to be sent to Kinmount for the fire sufferers, the details to be completed later by Mrs. Ireland. The sum of $28.05 was realized through the raffle of a quilt, for the British War Victims' Fund, and will be handed over to Mr. F. Mann. Plans were made to complet another four layettes for the overseas need. Two are to be sent through the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., and two through the 57th Chapter

Tickets were sold on Eaton's casserole, and little Dianne Rowland drew the winning ticket, which bore the name of Mrs. Rowland Scott. Plans were made to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Orville Young, near Centreville. Transportation will be looked after by Mrs. Clarence Hancock.

Miss Rogers, the teacher at the Lily Lake School, gave a talk on "Father in the home." She said that fathers must be worthy examples for their children. If their homes are to be happy their lives must be patterned after the Heavenly Father's love for us. In turn, children must have respect for their fathers.

The meeting closed with the benediction and a hymn, after which lunch was served on the lawn and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, June 16

• A productive and prosperous day is forecast according to the predominant astral influences. While the progress may not be to any spectacular degree, yet an encouraging measure of support and approbation may be expected from large corporations, political or diplomatic bodies as well as from friends, superiors or officials whose cooperation is essential.

Those whose birthday it is may count upon a progressive and satisfactory year, with new and important projects having the hearty support of those in power as well as financial standing, although it would be advisable not to attempt to overtax the generosity of such well disposed cooperators. Tendencies to overdo or splurge should be regulated.

E.R.F.U. Decides To Carry On With 4 Teams

TORONTO, June 15—The Eastern Rugby Football Union at its semi-annual meeting here Saturday decided to continue operations this fall with the same four teams, Argonauts, Balmy Beach, Ottawa and Montreal.

At an uneventful meeting the delegates speeded through routine business, made only one change in regulations. It was to allow only 20 players to be used in one game, whereas last year 24 men were eligible to take part.

Schedule Opens Sept. 26

Immediately following the enthusiastic decision of the delegates to carry on, a schedule was drafted, calling for the league to get underway, Sept. 26 in Toronto and in Montreal. Locally, Argos will hook up with Balmy Beach, while Ottawa will travel to Montreal. It is the same set of games which opened the league's first season last fall.

While rumor had it that a service team would likely make application for a berth in the E.R.F.U. no official application has been made to the league yet.

The Interprovincal Union, which also held its deliberations Saturday, voted to carry on with junior teams in Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa. It intends to try and maintain interscholastic football, too.

A letter of sympathy was drawn up and will be sent to the family of the late Tommy Burns, well-known Montreal footballer who was suddenly killed in a marine accident near Halifax some months ago.

The motion which decided another season of football in Eastern Canada was moved by John Nelson of Balmy Beach and seconded by Gus Ogilvie of Montreal, and was passed after very little discussion. The motion reads:

"In view of the recent statement from the Department of National Health that sports should be encouraged, the Eastern Rugby Football Union will continue to operate."

Members of the Board of Governors and delegates in attendance were: Gus Ogilvie, Montreal; John Nelson, Balmy Beach; Joe Wright, Jr., Argonauts; James P. McCaffrey, Ottawa; Eddie Emerson, Ottawa; Dr. M. D. Kinsella, Argonauts; W. C. Foulds, chairman of board of officials, Toronto; A. H. Burridge, McMaster University, Hamilton; Robt. C. Gamble, president, E.R.F.U., and James J. Dolan, secretary Interprovincial; Fred Hatch and Doug. Chilman of Hamilton.

Oct. 3—Argos at Ottawa; Montreal at Balmy Beach.

Little Looks Good To Take Hale Title

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Lawson Little, who a week ago "found his game" on the Ridgemoor course, returned today on the crest of a hot streak which many observers believe will last until he walks off with the Hale America Golf championship. Medal play in the Hale America tournament starts Thursday.

After fashioning a 33-33-66 from the back tees, six under par and just one stroke off Ridgemoor's course record, Little said "My game feels great; hope I can keep it up."

He proved he was really in the groove by teaming with Lloyd Mangrum in Toledo to win the $7,650 Inverness four-ball matches with a record plus 14 count. Followers of the game say Lawson is shooting some of his best golf since winning the United States Open in 1940 and capturing the United States and British Amateurs twice in successive years, 1934 and 1935.

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, defending champions, finished in a fourth place tie with Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson and won $700.

Hogan kept the lead among the year's money winners with $10,298.

On the night Hunter finds Junior, lying apparently drunk beside a satchel containing $17,000, a bank messenger was wounded and robbed of a satchel containing that amount. Hunter puts Junior to bed and hides the money in a wall safe. Next morning he finds that Junior was not drunk but shot, and is near death. And he finds the money gone from the safe to which only he knew the combination.

Hunter is fond of Junior, and half in love with Ballard's daughter, Bella. But he dislikes his employer, who has "appropriated" a prize horse and a new strain of corn, both developed by Hunter. Hunter has vowed that both will be returned to him.

SHERIFF STEPS IN CHAPTER V

UTTERLY stunned at the disappearance of the money from the safe, Hunter Dent dropped on the day bed and raked his fingers through his hair. If many more inexplicable things happened around here there would be nothing left for him to do but count his fingers and talk to himself. He rose and went unsteadily back to the open safe door. He could have spared himself the movement. The bag and money were gone.

"Let me see," he muttered, reviewing events. He had gone out at dawn and looked after the colored boys at their feeding and milking. The safe, he would have sworn, was locked; but he remembered not looking the office door. When he came back at sunrise Red was waiting below at the foot of the outside stairway. There he had kissed her. The office was still unlocked while the doctor examined Junior Ballard. But Hunter had locked the door just before taking the boy to the hospital at Middleton. "That would mean," he concluded, "that the one who entered here did it probably just before dawn perhaps within five minutes after I went to the barns."

He took out his wallet, drew forth a small card. The card contained in code the combination to the safe. There was but this one card. No one except the dealer, and Hunter, and the manufacturer of the safe naturally knew of the card, knew in fact how to decipher the code so as to read the combination.

Angrily Hunter began to swear, "It doesn't make sense, that's all!"

AT NOON when he came in for dinner a radio was going somewhere. Perhaps it was in the Butler's private domain. Hunter listened, his attention caught by the theme song of the Ballard Remedies. The McDougal twins were singing their cowboy and hillbilly numbers. They had beautiful if unimportant voices—just right for plugging medicines to rural audiences.

"And now, friends," the announcer said, a voice that was bubbling over with neighborliness and good health "we of the Ballard Ballads have a most unusual offer to make you folks out there. While we are waiting for the charming twins to select their next song for you allow me to tell you what a wonderful opportunity our sponsor, Strickland Ballard, is making available to you. As you know, Mr. Ballard is a country-raised boy himself. He will tell you he has never taken his feet off the land. He maintains a practical farm some miles from Middleton. There he farms day by day just as you people work your land and crops and listen to the hens cackle, and milk the cows in the dawn, and all. Well, Mr. Ballard has been working many years on a strain of prolific corn which will make a high yield on high land and low land alike. At last, after painstaking research, seed selection, and strain fixing, he has the Ballard Prolific Corn ready for you. But he will not sell you one grain of this corn which makes an average of five ears to the stalk, no sir. You could not buy seed at any price. But Mr. Ballard is going to give you a generous bag for planting for yourself, with full directions.

'Simply go to your drug store tomorrow and say, 'Give me a 60-cent bottle or box of tablets, of Ballard's Bitters, for your sour stomach.' Send us the top of carton, and within a short time you will receive your generous sample of Ballard's Prolific Corn. Could anything be more generous than that?"

Hunter Dent swore. Already Strick Ballard was cashing in on Hunter's life work.

IN the early afternoon Hunter telephoned the hospital to find out how Junior Ballard was. The voice reported there was no news yet. He went about his duties but his mind was not on his work. It was toward the middle of the afternoon when he had a glimpse of a car down in the big wood next to the river. His impression was the car was inside the stone gate there. His first thought was, naturally, about Junior's wrecked car. His next was an instinct to keep out intruders, for Strickland Ballard was death on trespassers. He dipped down, so as not easily to be seen, and crept along until he could get inside the cover of the woods. By a path not much used he was able to steal right up to where three people were standing.

The most notable of the trio was Red Ballard. She was in Khaki pants with puttees, tweed jacket. Outdoors girl. Her red hair made a bright blob of color in the autumn sunlight. The smallish fat man garbed pretty much like a farmer in the locality was the constable, Major Doolittle.

The other man, barrel-bodied, six-foot-four, red-faced rough, was Sheriff Anderson of Midland county. The three were examining the tread of a car tire in the soft, moist earth just within the iron gate. They had not managed to trace the tread to where Junior had wrecked his car the past night.

Doolittle's voice was cracked with excitement. "That's the tread of the death car, beyond any shadow of doubt!"

The sheriff spoke with dry voice, disillusioning the J. P. "It wasn't the 'death car,' Major. We believe it was the car in which the killer escaped. From what I can gather,

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The first game of the City Softball League to be staged inside of Riverside Park will be played there tonight when the Juveniles and Luckies will clash on the baseball diamond in a game that will have a lot to say about the league leadership. Manager Fred Griffin's squad who surprised the fans by taking the Soldiers and Royals in two successive nights last week will be out gunning for their third win in a row at the expense of the Juveniles, with a tie with Plazas for first place, the award for a victory. On the other hand the youngsters are keen to break into the win column and have a hunch that this may be the night to do it. At least if they fail the kids say that it will not be for want of trying. Both clubs will have their strongest lineups in action. It is likely that Manager Griffin will throw Frank McCormick in at the youngsters while the Juveniles will have the services for first time this season of their former ace hurler, Bob Crowe, who has been turned over to the kids by the Plazas. The game will start at 7 o'clock sharp.

* * * * * *

The attraction at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight will be a Girls' League game between the two losing clubs of last week, Brintons and the Westclox. Both teams have strengthened up for this important battle and both are anxious to break into the win column so that it should be an argument all the way. Marg Watson is expected to be on the firing line for last year's champs while Brintons will likely send Leila Hughes back to the mound. She had a lot of stuff in her first appearance and with a little help might have reversed hte decision. The teams have been getting in some practice since the advent of better weather and their playing tonight should show the results. Both need a win and they will go all out to grab off the decision and get out of the cellar spot. The game will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp.

Decision of the Eastern Ontario Rugby Union to carry on next fall will be appreciated by all those who realize that there is a place even in a country at war for sport, so long as it does not interfere with the war effort. There is no better antidote for war nerves than a healthy interest in sport and senior football, filling in the gap between summer sports and hockey, has become a major activity that would leave a decided hole if it were to fold up. Football clubs, fortunately, are not dependent upon motor vehicles to get around so the problem of transportation is not a factor in the rugby setup where the teams do their jumping by train and are not affected by the gasoline or tire situation. With Argos, Balmy Beach, Ottawa Senators and Montreal in line the league should have a good season. There will be gaps in the playing ranks of course with many stars enlisted since last campaign and more likely to go before the campaign opens but the teams should be evenly matched and put on a colorful show.

Can't Gain On Yanks

New York Yanks and Boston Red Sox kept pace with each other over the week-end by winning three games each which doesn't help the Red Sox much in view of the fact that the New York lead can stand a lot of whittling. The Yanks won their three games over St. Louis Browns, winning Saturday 4 to 3 in 10 innings wtih Chandler the winning pitcher and Elden Auker the loser and then coming back Sunday to toss the Brownies for two losses in light-hitting affairs. The Yanks only got seven hits in each of the engagements but won the first 6 to 1 with a homer by Judnich the only run off Red Ruffing and Ernie Bonham took the second, his ninth win of the year by 5 to 4. The Brownies outhit the winners 10 to 7 but it didn't do them any good. Niggeling was the St. Louis pitcher in the second game and he was out in front until the Yanks put together three runs in the eighth inning to take the decision. The New Yorkers are not scoring as many runs as other great Yank teams but apparently their defence is so strong they don't need to score so often.

* * * * * *

Boston took all three games from Detroit by the margin of one run in each case. In Saturday's game they won the argument 6 to 5 with Shortstop Peskey coming through with five hits in five trips to the plate to lead a 15-hit attack. The Sunday games were close affairs. The Red Sox took the first 3 to 2 with Heber Newsome outpitching the veteran Tommy Bridges and the second went eleven innings before the Boston club finally pushed over the winning run to cop the nod 2 to 1. Hughson was the winning pitcher and Hal White the loser. A feature of the American League games yesterday was the fact that the prize hard luck artist of the season Edgar Smith, Chicago White Sox southpaw finally won a ball game after losing 10 in a row. This time the White Sox, who usually curl up and make no runs when he is pitching, actually piled up 11 counters and Smith coasted to his first victory. Cleveland had a tough week-end, dropping two out of three to the Philadelphia A's.

The End Of The Trail

The end of the trail in the Church Softball League is in sight. League headquarters announce that the regular schedule of the bantam division has been completed, the final standing being as follows: Mark street, 10 points; All Saints, 8 points; George Street, 6 points; St. James, 4 points; St. James' Cubs, 2 points and Knox Church, no points. The setup for the playoffs for the bantam honors includes the first three teams. All Saints and George Street will fight it out tonight for the right to enter the final series with a sudden death game at the Oval and the winner of this battle will meet Mark Street in a best two-of-three series to determine the championship. The three leading teams are well matched and some good battles are expected before the pennant is awarded. In the juvenile division the playdowns have already started with St. James defeating All Saints in the first game. They will meet again in the second battle on Friday of this week.

The Hardills, Milf and his seventeen-year-old son Jack, practically dominated things at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club in the week-end sweepstakes. Milf won the higher group honors with a net of 72 and his son came home in front in the second group with a net of 68, nice going for a youngster. Both had a gross of 88 for the 18 holes. Young Hardill is developing rapidly into a first-class golfer. According to old-timers he looks better every time out and they are predicting a bright future for the lad if he continues to improve as he has been doing. Out at Kawartha Al Heckman who twenty years ago was tossing baseballs past all and sundry as a hurler for the Peterborough Central Ontario League club was the low scorer in a smaller-than-usual sweepstake. Al in addition to throwing baseballs, used to hit them pretty well too and that power is helping to turn him into a good golfer.

Father And Son Win Low Nets

Many shot makers of the Peterborough Golf Club must have had other matters to attend to as a small number teed off in the weekly sweepstake held Saturday, June 13.

With the fairways tightening up, allowing a better roll, some of the boys are gradually cutting down their scores, and with a week of clear weather, which would permit the course coming around to championship shape, promise to shoot at their handicaps.

Seventeen-year-old Jack Hardill led the pack with low net, bracketing a 42-46—88-20—68.

This youngster looks better each time out and in a few years should go to the outer brackets of the Club championship.

Milf Hardill, playing in the same foursome with his son, shot exactly the same score on both nines to win low net in Group A—88-16—72.

Group A handicap—1 to 19

1st low net: M. Hardill.. 88-16—72
2nd low net: G. Putnam 88-15—73

1st low net: J. Hardill.. 86-20—68
2nd low net: G. Maniece 94-22—72
E. Braund 94-22—72

G. Maniece won the toss.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The main event in our local lawn bowling circle for this coming week is the big mixed tournament, sponsored by the ladies' games committee, in aid of the Milk For Britain Fund, to be held on Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The draw will be made from the board as usual and the committee is looking forward for a good crowd.

We know our bowlers are donating to this cause and that cause and all are trying to help each other but we believe our bowlers will respond to this appeal, just as they have always done in the past. And besides doing your little bit for the Milk for Britain Fund you will have about three hours of good bowling, and all for 25c per bowler.

We don't expect everybody will be out on that night, as we know of some who intend to contribute to the cause, even though they will be absent. And that's the spirit behind this movement, so let's all talk to one another about it and hope for a good night.

One of our bowlers, who is very much interested in our club and also interested in our column, sent us a little poem the other day and suggested that some time we might be able to use it, if we saw fit, so after reading it over we decided it is good and so we pass it along:

I Know Something Good About You.

Wouldn't this old world be better
If the folks we meet would say,
I know something good about you
And then treat you just that way.

Wouldn't it be fine and dandy
If the hand clasps warm and true
Carried with it the assurance
I know something good about you.

Wouldn't it be worth the trouble
If we praised the good we see
For there's such a lot of goodness
In the worst of you and me.

Wouldn't it be nice to practice
That fine way of thinking, too
You know something good about me
I know something good about you.

Offer $50 a Month

CALGARY, June 15 (CP) Farmers in southern Alberta are offering up to $50 a month and room and board for farm help but the local employment office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission has been unable to fill the demand, W. Harry Ross, manager, said today.

Casual laborers, who might otherwise be willing to accept work on the farms, are waiting for higher-paid construction and highway jobs, he said.

Al Heckman Leads Field

Al. Heckman and W. Gibbons led the field in the first ball sweep at Kawartha Club this week-end. Old Madam Weather did manage to go fifty-fifty with the golfers. Maybe that's a sign that better times are on their way. The results of the very small sweep follows:

	Gross	H'dicap	Net
Al. Heckman	43	9	34
W. Gibbons	52	16	36
C. A. Low	42	3½	38¼
R. Hay	42	3½	38½
L. Browne	48	7	41
T. J. Miller	52	4	48

Tommy Miller offers the old alibi for such a tall score. His hay cutter was out of practice. Don't stay away so long Tommy, that will fix it.

Tom MacArthur of curling fame remarked, the only thing he didn't like about golf was that you couldn't blame the other fellow; all your troubles are your own. Even that though is good for the waistline.

Harry MacGougan could give the Russians a few pointers in sniping. It was reported Harry steps up to a ball, and all the sparrows and starlings for miles around run for cover. Nice shooting, Harry.

Les. Reid, of the Prince of Wales Rangers, was home for the week-end and was seen up to his waist in the rough. Nice practice for army field work, eh Les.

They say lightning never strikes in same place twice so the Kawartha Club is giving it another chance. Our new flag pole is being dressed and is out in the weather, soon to be ready to keep the old flag flying.

Prof. Lex Robson is having a hard time getting started this year. He spent the winter producing guns to the little mister Hun and at the same time winding up with a lame left side. Nothing serious, but enough to slow up a top-notch golfer.

The ground keepers are having a tough time too working against rain, generally bad weather, and rough, that just won't stay down, but this week should be the end of all that and the course will be in better shape than it has been for years. All this is promised if Lex Robson's prediction of fine weather comes true.

Cat Starts Fire

TORONTO, June 16 (CP)—Firemen were called to put out a fire in a Brass Manufacturing Company caused by a short circuit. A cat on the premises had disturbed some lengths of brass pipe causing the short circuit. Only casualty was the cat.

JOE ORENGO HITS 3 HOMERS IN TWO GAMES AGAINST BUFFALO

Batting Way Back Into Major Leagues

By The Associated Press

Is Joe Orengo, Jersey City third baseman, batting his way back to the Major Leagues?

Orengo was sent to the Little Giants by the parent New York National League team this Spring because of his .214 batting average last season. In 1940, as a freshman member of St. Louis Cardinals, he put together a .287 aggregate.

But yesterday the 25-year-old athlete who is at home at any infield position, slugged out a trio of homers as Jersey City Giants divided a twin bill with Buffalo. Orengo clouted one four-master in the opening game which the Giants dropped, 6-3, and got two in the nightcap which his mates won 10 to 8.

The Bisons also were in a hitting mood during the day with Mike Rocco getting a homer in each game, Dutch Meyer one in the first and Mayo Smith connecting in the second.

Bears Split with Leafs

Newark, in the only other league games the weatherman permitted, shared a double bill with Toronto, the league leading Bears annexing the first, 9-5, and losing the aftermath, 6-5.

Toronto counted all of its five runs of the first game in the first innings but stout relief pitching by Al Gerheauser gave the Bears the opportunity of wiping out the deficit. The Leafs repeated the same tactics in the nightcap and then hung on to win although the Bears had the tying and winning run on base in the last frame.

Saturday Harry Gumbert pitched the Bears to a 4-0 shutout of the Leafs, allowing six hits. Earl Coombs beat back Montreal 3-1 for Jersey City, giving up only five hits, and Rochester beat Baltimore 4-1 on Hal Surkont's three hitter. In a night game Buffalo edged out Syracuse 4-3.

NO NUDE SPEECH!

LONDON—(CP). — The crowd didn't know whether the soldier wanted to make a speech or take a bath. He climbed to the fountain at Trafalgar Square, divested himself of all his clothes and while taking a dip started to address shocked onlookers. Police ended both bath and speech.

Ruffing Whips To Win His 251st Game

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Beside the name of Joe (Iron Man) McGinnity on the list of Gotham's greatest pitchers they wrote another one today—Charles Herbert Ruffing of the world champion New York Yankees.

Charley the Red, chalked up the 251st victory of his 19-year record yesterday to tie the mark left by McGinnity, who often pitched, and sometimes won, doubleheaders for New York Giants in the early days of John McGraw.

Only three pitchers in all New York's baseball history have topped the total reached by Ruffing. The one and only Christy Mathewson won 372 games. Amos Rusie won 352 and Mckey Welch won 309 while toiling for the Giants.

In 10 games this year, Ruffing has pitched 83 innings and has gone the distance seven times. He has yielded 69 hits while striking out 39 batters and issuing only 16 bases on balls.

Yesterday he tossed a five-hitter at St. Louis Browns, the the team that had beaten him twice before in the only reversals on his record for 1942. He pitched the Yankees to a 6-1 victory in the first game of a doubleheader and Ernie Bonham finished the job with a 5-4 decision in the second.

While Ruffing was adding to his achievements with his seventh win of the season and Bonham was turning in his ninth against only one defeat, another Yankee came to the end of the longest batting streak of 1942.

Yanks Lead Holds

Joe Gordon, whose single in the opener stretched his string to 29 consecutive games, went zero-for-four against John Niggeling in the afterpiece.

At that, the Yanks failed to increase their 9½-game lead in the American League for the second-place Boston Red Sox took a pair of close ones from Detroit, 3-2 in the regulation distance and 2-1 in 11 innings. Tony Lupien, first base successor to Jimmy Foxx, drove in both winning runs, with a double in the eighth inning of the first game and a single in the nightcap's 11th.

The only change of the day in either league came at the other end of the American standings where Chicago White Sox vacated the cellar and turned it over to Washington by crushing the Senators, 9-3 and 11-4.

Ted Lyons, preparing to join Ruffing soon in making the active 250-game winners' club a two-man organization, pitched his fourth victory of the season in the opener and the 249th of his career. And Edgar Smith, who had suffered 10 defeats, went the route in the nightcap for win No. 1.

Divide Bill

Cleveland Indians and Philadelphia Athletics divided a double bill, with Luman Harris pitching a three-hitter to give the A's a 5-1 decision in the nightcap after the tribe had won the frist game, 8-3.

Whitlow Wyatt pitched Brooklyn's National League leaders to a 4-1 triumph over Cincinnati Reds with a three-hit performance in the first game, but Ray Starr turned in a four-hitter that gave the Reds the second, 2-1.

A three-run homer by Dolph Camilli, his ninth four-bagger of the year, gave Wyatt his sixth triumph against one defeat and the nod over Bucky Walters. Frank McCormick's double drove in the runs that enabled Starr to shade Curt Davis.

The defeat cost the Dodgers a full game on their lead since St. Louis Cardinals downed Philadelphia Phils twice, 9-1 and 6-5. A six-hitter by Lon Warneke in the first game and a three-run homer by Johnny Hopp in the second helped the Cards pull within 5½ games of the Dodgers.

7-Game Streak Broken.

New York Giants snapped Pittsburgh's seven-game streak, 4-3, as Bob Carpenter went all the way but the Pirates bounced back to win the nightcap, 8-3, behind the seven-hit pitching of Rip Sewell.

Another streak ended for Boston Braves, who doomed Chicago Cubs, 10-1, for their first victory in 13 games after the Cubs had won the first half or the double bill, 8-6.

Saturday's games were featured by a one-hit pitching job turned in by Leslie (Bill) Fleming of Chicago Cubs in turning back Boston 1-0. A pop fly dropped in centre field for a single to halt Fleming's entry into baseball's hall of fame. The only other National League game resulted in an 8-2 victory for Pittsburgh over the Giants behind Bob Klinger's eight-hit pitching.

In the American League, the Red Sox got a ninth-inning run to beat the Tigers 6-5, Tommy Henrich hit a 10th inning homer, his second of the game, to beat St. Louis 4-3 for the Yanks, Philadelphia turned back Cleveland 4-1 and the Senators eked out a 4-3 decision over Chicago.

Next On Their Schedule, The Arlington Classic In July

Shut Out and Alsab, the leading three-year-olds, have another chance to settle their feud in the Arlington classic at Chicago in July. Shut Out, owned by the Greentree stable, beat Alsab in the Kentucky Derby. In the Preakness, Alsab won easily, Shut Out finishing way back. Next come the Withers, Alsab winning that although Shut Out was not entered. Last Saturday Shut Out took the lead again by winning the rich Belmont. Alsab ran a poor second, losing by three lengths, as shown ABOVE.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, June 15.— (CP). — Perhaps gasoline and tire rationing has led to more than casual interest in the horse It seems harness racing is staging a comeback on the Canadian prairies

Three decades ago nearly every small prairies town had its race-track. The general store, the livery barn or the poolroom might go unpainted but the track war kept spic and span. Then, gradually the automobile pushed the horse into oblivion. Could it be the shoes is now on the other foot? Officials report increased interest in the western harness circuit opening this week at Pilot Mound, Man. There will be meets at Deloraine, Carman and Brandon before the horses move into Saskatchewan July 9 for a three-day meet at Moose Jaw. Not satisfied with publicizing the harness racers, the Moose Jaw Exhibition will feature daily displays by the High Park Riding Club.

Great Heart.

Eddie (Winnipeg Free Press) Armstrong recalls the colorful career of Jack Cancilla, Winnipeg fight promoter and restaurateur who died Friday: "For a hobby he chose boxboxing and....it was well that his restaurant business flourished in the boom days because he chose an expensive hobby. It was expensive because Jack could not say no. He couldn't say no to anyone seeking a pass to a fight; he couldn't say no to a hard-up fighter seeking an extra dollar or a week's meals; he couldi't give a negative answer to anyone making any manner of request. and requests came often.... If he had had a million dollars to spread in boxing cards, Jack Cancilla would have shot the roll."

Incidentally:

After Les Webber pitched for Brooklyn Dodgers against Lefty Wilkie of Pittsburg Pirates in the National League a few days ago, Stu (Vancouver Province) Keate recalled that both played in the Vancouver City League not so long ago. This time Webber went the distance but Wilkie was knocked out in the third inning and Brooklyn won 7-2....Any chance the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps has its eye on hockey's Allan Cup won for Ottawa by the Air Force. Jack McGill of Boston Bruins and Ken Reardon of Montreal Canadians have been joined in the R.C.O.C. by a pair of Detroit Red Wings, Gus Giesebrecht and Ken Kilrea ....Joe (Winnipeg Free Press) Ryan passes on to the Amateur Athletic Union 'for what it's worth' the suggestion the reason attendances soar at horse racing meets and dwindle at human track meets is that track meet promoters have not introduced the pari-mutuels.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—After seeting the latest reports on the Hale America tournament, this corner has come around to the idea that the brassie brasshats knew what they were doing when they cancelled this year's regular championships...By junking the traditional tournaments and all their rules, they have been able to whoop it up for one big event that will bring in some real dough for the United States organizations and navy relief...Tipoff on how good a show they put on in that carnival at the Polo Grounds yesterday was that Francis Albertanti, who handled the publicity, bought himself a ticket. He claimed it was the first time he ever had paid for admission to any show.

Monday Matinee

Dolph Camilli, father of five children, has been chosen as "the outstanding father in sports for 1942." ...What's the matter with that Can-Am League umpire who has 23?... When Johnny Addie, the golden-voiced fight announcer at the Bronx Coliseum, couldn't get the fans' attention the other night, he started to sing the Star Spangled Banner.

Lost And Found

Tub Thumper George Strickler reports that auditors rummaging around the National Football League office recently discovered 36 completed forward passes that had been lost in moving the records from Dayton, O., to Chicago. They belonged to Sammy Baugh and the discovery gave him the league record of 414 completions, four more than Arnie Heber.

Remember When—

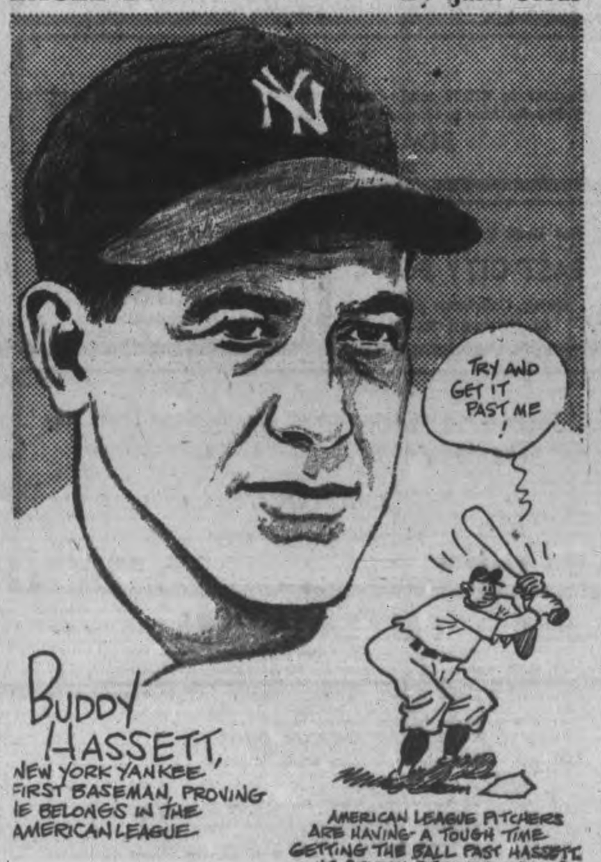
By The Canadian Press

Lefty Grove pitched Baltimore Orioles to a 10-0 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in the International Baseball League at Baltimore 19 years ago today. Grove gave away six hits in shutting out the Toronto team. He went to Philadelphia of the American League in 1925 and nine years later was traded to Boston Red Sox. Letfy retired after the 1941 season.

NATURE IN WARTIME.

HORSHAM, England —(CP) — Horsham council declined to take part in Britain's war on rooks, at least while they nested. "We are too much inclined today to upset the balance of nature," the war agriculture committee seeking the birds 'destruction was told.

EAGLE EYE - - - - By Jack Sords



Whirly Beaten By Doublrab

NEW YORK, June 15—Whirlaway failed Saturday at Aqueduct where the crowd of 25,289 made him the favorite for the $9,875 Carter Handicap, but it took the greatest race Doublrab ever flashed—seven furlongs in trackrecord time—to turn the trick on the long-tailed chestnut who tried to give ten pounds to the flying winner.

Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's silks never have been carried to a more thrilling triumph than that in which her grey colt smashed off the distance in 1:23 flat to win by a head from Swing and Sway. Whirlaway was a length away in third place.

Third In Row.

The Florida owner went into the unsaddling enclosure after the finish with her winner, and well she might, for Doublrab now has three in a row to his credit, and it is doubtful if ever again he will have a Whirlaway scalp dangling at his belt. The crowd broke all Aqueduct records by betting $1,570,340 much of it on the race in which Whirlaway essayed coming off a route to a sprint, conceding weight, and all under a strange rider, Leon (Buddy) Haas.

Haas did a smart job, as good as any one could ask but Whirlaway was unequal to beating a top sprinter at his own game. On top of all of which the speed star in question ripped off the best race of his career under a cracker-jack ride by Bernard Thompson.

Few, if any, professionals picked Whirlaway to win. Even so, the spirit that moves racing's masses spent the Calumet chestnut to the post the public choice.

At the end it was Doublrab by a head over Swing and Sway, who was piloted by Whirlaway's familiar companion— Eddie Arcaro. Then came Whirlaway, having rushed on from last place, more than thirty lengths off the leaders, at one time.

Little Too Short.

A few yards past the finish, Whirlaway had reached both Doublrab and Swing and Sway, but the pay-off was at the thin wire stretched at the seven-furlong finish mark. And it was Doublrab's payoff, $19.40 for $2.

Doublrab earned $7,250 and thus pushed his earnings for the year to $28,605. He was best ,and no mistake, for he always was with the pace, stood repeated challenges, and yet was right there at the end bttling it out in the face of the late rushes by Swing and Sway and Whirlaway.

Market Wise was scratched. It now looks as if Whirlaway's next effort will e in the Brooklyn Handicap on June 27, and in that test doubtless Market Wise will face him.

HARWOOD

WilliamKennedy Heads O.R.E.C.

HARWOOD, June 15 (ENS)—The Hamilton township Religious Educational Council met on Tuesday in Camborne United Church. Rev. T. Wesley conducted the worship service which preceded the evening session and Miss Shirley Drope sang the solo "Come Ye Blessed".

Rev. Dr. Smith of Baltimore spoke on the subject: "Reaching Every Person", the theme of a Christian forward movement in both Canada and the United States in an endeavor to stir up interest in boys and girls—in Sunday School—in things spiritual, to reach everyone with Christian teaching. Sunday school attendance has decreased.

Dr. Smith cited this from his own area, Baltimore of 42 families with children between 5 and 20 years, 13 families are not touched by the Sunday School and of the 29 touched, 10 families send their children irregularly, 11 send regularly and eight come with their families.

Bethesda South—28 families with children between five and 20. Six not touched by Sunday School, six go irregularly, six regularly and 10 attend with their family.

"This represented a cross section of a typical Canadian community," Dr. Smith said. Miss Harriet Christie representative from the O.R.E.C. of Toronto was the guest speaker and conducted a discussion on S. S. problems. The four main problems were as follows:

1. How to get adults to Sunday School.
2. What does one teach and how, to beginners of three and four.
3. How to link the Bible with the Junior graded lessons.
4. How to get suitable teachers.

The new officers were installed by Miss Christie: President, Wm. Kennedy, Camborne; vice president, M. McDonald, Gore's Landing; Sec.-Treas., Mary Philp, Bethesda South; Temperance Superintendent, Arch Bowman, Baltimore; Missions Superintendent, Mrs. G. Kennedy, Camborne.

Miss Kennedy Hostess To Millbrook W.M.S.

MILLBROOK, June 15— (ENS) —Miss Luella Kennedy extended the hospitality of her home, King street centre, for the June Meeting of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Church, over twenty-five being in attendence, and the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, in the chair. The secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, reports two quilts completed at the May meeting, with $14.00 received in the offering and fees. Two quilts are now for sale, since this year none are asked for in the bale.

The July meeting will be at Mrs. John Rowland's, when a quilting will follow the program, in charge of Mrs. Irwin Hatherly's group.

Mrs. Rowland gave the message on temperance, and Mrs. J. H. George the one on World Peace, Mrs. F. J. Smith bringing word of Christian Stewardship. The treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, reported $78.00 in the bank, the leader pointing out that $100 is the allocation needed by the end of June.

After the worship service Miss E. L. Hetheringon offered prayer, and those assisting with the study on West China, and 'second generation of missionaries," were Mrs. J. McGnight, Mrs. Sisco, and Mrs. Irwin Hatherly. The meeting closed wtih the W. M. S. watchword in unison.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXXV, No. 139 PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1942

MAIN STREET TOPICS

HASTINGS GRANT

Hastings county council last week contributed $50 to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for the county and city campaign to obtain urban assistance in expected emergencies of the harvest; Bancroft Red Cross Hospital $200; Coe Hill Hospital $100; Sick Children's Hospital $100; Junior Extension Agricultural Work $75; British Empire Cheese Exhibition $100; Belleville Fair Board $200; each Hastings county fair $100; Hastings Federation of Agriculture, $200; and various other grants.

BELLEVILLE BERRIES

Strawberries on the local market Saturday were 27 and 28 cents the large box. At Belleville, according to the "Intelligencer", the corresponding price was two boxes for 45 cents, and plenty at 20 cents a box. Their market opened at the high of 25 cents, but buyers of crate lots easily got the 20 cent figure, and that price applied even for many single boxes.

33 JOIN CHURCH.

At the Communion Services held in St. Paul's Presbyterian church on Sunday, Rev. J. D. Smart welcomed into membership of the congregation 33 new members, 20 by certificate from other churches and 13 by profession of faith.

OPENING DATE UNCHANGED

Despite a flock of rumors to the contrary, the opening date for the bass and maskinonge season in this part of Ontario remains at July 1st. Recent communications with J. D. Taylor, deputy minister of Game and Fisheries indicates that the department considers no change.

CHARAGED WITH VAGRANCY.

Arrested early Sunday morning, on Reid Street, Neil Novak, a youth who said he came from Toronto, was charged with vagrancy in police court this morning and pleaded not guilty. He said he had been on a car trip with a companion, that the automobile had broken down and he was endeavoring to hitch-hike when he was arrested. Novak was remanded for a week at the request of the police, Magistrate Langley remarking that if he told a true story his case would be disposed of sooner than that.

BASS FOR BUCKHORN

Ernie McDonald from the Deer Lake Hatchery had one deuce of a time this morning convincing two members of the Examiner staff that the season had not opened for catching bass by hand. He pulled up in front of the office about 10.45 with a load of two to four pounders to bolster the stock in Buckhorn lake, and said Charlie Kingan hadn't said anything about passing out samples to hungry newshounds. The fish numbering about 80 in four tanks looked in good shape and just nice pan size and Ernie didn't stay around long.

WEEK-END FIRES

The Fire Department responded to two calls over the week-end. At 9:52 an alarm was received for a chimney fire at 508 Weller street. Chief Gimblett reported that there was no damage. A second call was received at 11:05 a.m. when some grease on a gas stove in the Ritz Restaurant at the corner of George and Hunter streets, took fire. With the exception of a little smoke there was no damage.

SEASONAL GUIDANCE.

A few people in commenting on the holding of Decoration Day at Little Lake Cemetery on June 28, have remarked that this date is too late, because of the season. Flowers like everything else are early this year, and the peonies will be practically finished by that date. They are nearing their peak right now. The thought in their minds apparently is that holding the decoration day program one week earlier would be advisable.

FINED FOR CARELESS DRIVING.

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving, E. Heffernan, 266 Simcoe Street, was fined $15 and costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Monday morning. It was explained by Inspector Reid that Heffernan had backed a truck against another car near the entrance to the market square and that there was some evidence of drinking, although not enough to justify a drunken driving charge.

RESTOCKING, PERHAPS

A native of Rosedale, north of Lindsay, was casting for pickerel below the Rosedale dam on Friday and hooked a monster maskinonge. He landed the fish and it measured 52 inches in length, then the man and a couple of bystanders carried the muskie carefully up above the dam, and set it loose in Balsam lake. It was caught in Cameron lake, and perhaps this man wanted the the big fellow nearer his home.

SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

Charlie Kingan, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association reports that George Hull at Stoney Lake, and H. Coons at Haultain are having grand success with the seeds they planted for the Association. The grasses and plants are intended to supplement the natural supply of food for partridge and other game.

HOW YOU CAN GET

A $100 LOAN

AT HOUSEHOLD FINANCE

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $9.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors required

WOULD a cash loan help you? If you have a job, you can borrow at Household Finance without fuss or bother—and at reasonable cost. You may repay your loan in monthly instalments which fit your own pocketbook.

Just this to do

All you do to apply for a Household Finance loan is to tell us how much you need and how you wish to repay.

You may choose the most convenient payment plan from the table below. Suppose you borrow $100 to be repaid at $9.46 a month. Twelve instalments of $9.46 each will repay your loan in full. You may prefer to repay sooner in order to reduce the cost. Six monthly instalments of $17.85 each—a total of $107.10—will also repay a $100 loan. The cost of your loan, in this case, is just $7.10. A $25 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $4.46 each costs only $1.76.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household—just the ability to repay in monthly instalments. This spares you the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Household Finance loans are usually made on furniture or car. But we consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in 24 hours or even sooner if necessary. If you should get sick or lose your position while paying on your loan, Household will show you every consideration.

Let Household help you

People borrow at Household to pay taxes, insurance, medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses, school fees, and overdue bills of many kinds. Household service helps men and women, both married and single, to take care of emergency expenses and work their way out of debt.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. We are in business to make loans to folks with money problems. Phone or visit us without obligation.

C.G.E. Workers Give Aid To War Victims

Starting the day right, is an expression often heard, and when the secretary of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund arrives at his desk in the Examiner Office, no message can typify that expression in a better manner, than to find a message awaiting which says, there is some money for the fund awaiting your calling for it.

Such was the start for Saturday when a note on the desk intimated that a donation to the fund was awaiting from one of the departments in the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. plant.

Only a few short weeks ago, the employees of the Refrigerator-Cabinet department of this plant, of which C. G. Gertley is the foreman, made their fourth donation to the fund, so it speaks quite highly for them, that they are back again in such a short time with their fifth donation, this time in an amount of $11.75, which was secured in the usual manner of passing a box around on Saturday mornings.

Then as if to add a tiger to it, both on the part of the C.G.E. employees, and the fund, the secretary was informed that if he waited a few moments there might be another donation ready. This on being put to the test, proved to be an actual fact, when another $4.71 was forthcoming from the Structural Steel department of which A. E. Kelsey is the foreman. This is another group who have on several occasions given a contribution to the fund, doing their part towards the grand total which has already been given by the employee to help the people of Britain.

Not many days ago, a contribution from a district school was received, and as if to emphasize the fact that the children in the rural districts are as conscious as any of the help that they can give to help the need of the air raid victims in Britain, this day's list finds the sum of $6.13 from School Section No. 6 Douro, of which Miss Janet McIntosh is the teacher. This was raised by the students with a concert and other assists.

Draw for Afghan

The Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A. are sponsoring the sale of tickets at 10 cents each for a draw on an afghan made and donated for that purpose by Mrs. Mary Hurry. This is under the convenership of Mrs. E. Tait, and the draw is to be made in the Orange Hall on Brock street on July 25, with all the proceeds coming to the fund. This is their second effort to help the fund along.

Made Millions In West, War Born Here

A Peterborough carpenter who went west at the turn of the century, and as a contractor became reputedly a millionaire, died Sunday at his home in Winnipeg.

William H. McWilliams, who was born in Ashburnham eighty-one years ago, son of John McWilliams. As a youth he followed in his father's trade as a builder, and in 1902 he set out for Winnipeg. The Manitoba capital was booming, and opportunity was reaching out avid hands for men of experience in construction work. W. H. McWilliams developed a highly successful business as a contratcor, and became a pioneer grain and lumber merchant. He was identified with various grain companies and was also a director of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Frank H. Adams, retired city treasurer, recalled this morning that his brother Robert J. Adams of Calgary, set out with Mr. McWilliams in 1902 when he left Peterborough, attracted by the lure of the fast growing new section of the Dominion beyond the Great Lakes.

Mrs. E. R. Davidson, of Lakefield is a sister of Mr. McWilliams. She went west years ago, married there, and returned to this district with her husband

Silver Star Pin Is Given Mother By Salvation Army Commissioner

The Salvation Army Temple on Simcoe street had as it's guest speaker for Sunday's services Commissioner Benjamin Orames, Territorial Commander for the Salvation Army in Canada, Alaska, Newfoundland and Bermuda.

Commissioner Orames, a devout Christian leader is an Australian by birth serving for a number of years in the Salvation Army there. During the last war he was chaplain to some of the Australian troops.

He has spent many years in China and before coming to Canada was last stationed in the United States.

Accompanying the Commissioner to this city was his wife, Mrs. Orames, and Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. R. Spooner, Divisional Commander of the Toronto Division.

On Sunday morning a Holiness meeting was conducted by the Commissioner.

The visitors were welcomed by Adj. Norman Buckley, officer commanding the local corps.

The scripture lesson for the morning was Revelation the 3rd chapter read by the Commissioner.

The local Songster Brigade led by Leader A. Ben Smith sang soulfully a beautiful number 'Oh, Master Let Me Walk With Thee."

During the service Commissioner Orames assisted by his wife presented a Silver Star pin and diploma to Sister Mrs. J. French of the local corps as a token that she belonged to the Order of the Silver Star to which all mothers who have any children Salvation Army officers belong.

Mrs. French's daughter, Pro. Lieut. Dorothy French is now stationed at Goderich.

The Band under the leadership of Deputy-Bandmaster S. J. Richardson sang an old hymn tune "A Charge to Keep I Have."

The Commissioner led in an old Salvation Army hymn "Lord Jesus I long to be Perfect Whole." This song was the first song the Commissioner heard sang in the first meeting he ever attended in a Salvation Army hall.

The Commissioner, a very gifted speaker, stirred the hearts of his listeners in his morning sermon based on the 3rd chapter of Revelation.

"The Book of Revelation," stated the Commissioner "is divided into three sections, the things that were in the first section, the things that are in the second and in the third the things that are to come."

"In the 3rd chapter we find two churches mentioned which I would like to draw your attention to, the Church in Philadelphia and the church in Laodicea. These two churches he said were geographically very close together but spiritually were very far apart. The church in Philadelphia was approved by Jesus Christ while the church of Laodicea was condemned by Him."

The Commissioner urged his listeners to be more like the church members in the Philadelphian church who though they had little strength kept God's word and had not denied the name of Jesus.

This impressive service was brought to a close by the singing of the old hymn "Take My Life" and the benediction by Mrs. Lieut. Col. Spooner.

The Temple was almost packed last night as the Commissioner led in last service of the day..

The service was broadcast over Station CHEX from 7.30 to 8.30. The singing of the old gospel hymns was an inspiration

With the radio theme chorus, 'Grace There is My Every Debt to Pay,' the service commenced.

The opening song was an old Salvation Army song composed by the founder of the Salvation Army, General William Booth, 'Old Boundless Salvation.'

Lieut-Colonel Spooner offered prayer. Mrs Spooner brought the Scripture reading for the evening from second chapter of St. Luke's gospel

The Songster Brigade sang with much feeling, 'Come Home,' under Leader A. Ben Smith.

The Temple Band, with Bandmaster Gerald Routly in charge played a very beautiful selection based on the old hymn, 'The Old Rugged Cross.'

Commissioner Orames took as his topic for his forceful Salvation message, 'The Forgotten Christ.'

In his short message the Commissioner urged his audience not to forget Jesus Christ. He said that in these days people seem to have time for everything except Jesus Christ. His numerous illustrations of happenings in his own life and how people have failed and sunk in sin when they forget Jesus Christ was the means of bringing conviction to many hearts.

Visiting the local Corps for the week-end were Brigadier and Mrs. Heft of Florida, who are conducting a meeting at the Temple Wednesday, and Major and Mrs. Godden. Major Godden has just recently returned from India

Parkhill Crash Costs Youth $12

Seymour Jermey, 18, driver of a car which collided with an automobile driven by Howard A. Quinn on the Warsaw Road, Saturday night, pleaded guilty to careless driving in police court this morning and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Provincial Officer Price Morris said that the car had failed to make a turn and the accident resulted. Jermey's car had been practically wrecked, $60 damage done to the other automobile and three persons had been hurt.

'Was it a case of too much speed?' asked His Worship and the officer said that seemed to be the case.

Worried By Three Years

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am 20 years old, contemplating marrying a girl three years older than I am, but I am worrying if some day she won't begin to look old to me, making me want a younger companion. What about it? X.

ANSWER: It is a hunch, son. Take it. For if even before you marry a girl you are speculating about whether you will get tired of her some years hence, it is a sure thing that you are not enough in love with her to marry her.

Anyway, at 20 you are too young to tie yourself up for keeps. Stay free for a few years and look 'em all over.

$20,000 Damage To Plant In Fenelon Falls

LINDSAY, June 15 — (ENS). — Shortly after five o'clock on Saturday night, fire of unknown origin was discovered in the plant of the Standard Handle and Pattern Company's plant at Fenelon Falls, and before the fire was checked fully one-third of the plant was destroyed, with a loss estimated in the neighborhood of $20,000. The plant, which is situated on the river bank close to the bridge which crosses the dam and canal, employs some sixty hands, and was closed Saturday afternoon. The fire broke out in the large cement annex which houses the plant office, and in which valuable machinery was installed. A stiff breeze was blowing at the time, which fanned the blaze and which carried dense volumes of smoke over the village and also carried sparks considerable distances. Fenelon Falls has no fire-fighting equipment, the village pumper having been destroyed in the recent fire at Kinmount. A call for help was sent to both Lindsay and Bobcaygeon and pumpers from both places hurried to the scene.

Sawmill Saved.

The two brigades did excellent work and the fire was brought under control after a stiff battle lasting over two hours. The cement section of the plant was gutted and valuable machinery as well as a large quantity of manufactured material was destroyed. The yards of the plant were filled with material and there was considerable sawdust, etc., on the property. The firemen prevented the flames from spreading to this material and also to the sawmill. The plant is the leading industry in the village, employing some sixty hands. The management announced on Saturday night that it had a large number of orders for material on hand and that operations in portions of the plant would be disrupted temporarily until new machinery could be secured.

There was a rumor in the village during the evening that the fire was of incendiary origin, but this rumor was quickly punctured. Similar rumors, it will be remembered, were circulated following the fires both at Kinmount and Minden. Fenelon Falls council has purchased a new pumper, which is expected to reach the village in a week. Following the Kinmount fire, Fenelon Falls council entered into an agreement with Lindsay, which ensured fire protection for the village until the new pumper arrived.

13 Naval Cadets Graduate At Grove School

Thirteen naval cadets were graduated from the Lakefield Preparatory School, the Grove on Saturday afternoon in a colorful ceremony which was climaxed by the presentation of prizes to the boys who had been successful in scholastic and athletic endeavors. The graduates are Christopher Kirby, Barrie; Donald Tilley, New Jersey; Tom Hoan, Hamilton; Bill Urquhart, Owen Sound; Ted Pope, Sudbury; John Agnew, Kingston; Stephen Hemstead, Noranda; John Arnoldi, New York; Edgar Moore, Peterborough, and Bill Langmuir, Toronto.

A ceremony as old as the school itself took place when Cadet Major Phillip Carr-Harris of Kingston, commander of the cadet corps handed over the sword to Mackenzie Dickson of Montreal, his successor. Peter Wilkes of Toronto was sword bearer. Following this little ceremony, the graduating class "marched-off" for the last time, while the senior cadets stood smartly to attention, and the graduates filed into the school chapel.

Mrs. Frank Pullen of Oakville wife of the chairman of the Board presented the prizes, and Lt.-Col. Ponton Armour of Erindale and Capt. Jack Fosson, Clarkson were on the platform with G. W. Smith, headmaster, Mr. Frank Pullen and Dr. Ramsay Armitage, principal of Wycliffe College.

Outstanding students of the year in the matter of athletic awards are Phillip Carr-Harris, Bob Langmuir, who won the cross-the-lake swim for three consecutive years, Tom Hoan, for marksmanship and Christopher Kirby of Barrie who has several awards.

During the divine service, a memorial tablet was unveiled in the chapel to an old boy, Knox Beardmore "beloved and only son of Torrance and Nora Beardmore, 1914-1937. He being made perfect in so short a time, fulfilled a long time."

G. W. Smith, headmaster in his address of welcome pointed out that during the term just closing every effort had been made to keep the boys on the campus engaged in various sports rather than to have them rambling some distance off using up valuable gasoline. He spoke in tribute to the cadets for the fine showing made in their studies and in sports, and said that enrollment during the year was the highest in the history of the school with 103 boys in residence and five day students. Besides boys from distant point of the North American continent, students came from Honolulu, Ceylon, Argentine, Venezuela and many from England. He paid special tribute to Ted Pope who won the interscholastic championship at Huntsville last winter.

"We have now more than 150 old boys in uniform and for a school of this size, it is a record to be proud of. I regret however to tell you that five of our boys have already been killed in action."

In closing Mr. Smith expressed his pleasure at the fact that the cadets were able to go to Beausoleil Camp on the island of the same name, 15 minutes boat ride from Honey Harbor in Georgian Bay. This camp is being loaned to the cadets by the Navy League, and is modern in every respect. The training staff will consist of four of the Grove School staff, with Sub-Lieut. MacInnes, Dr. Smith, Ph.D., to teach navigation and A. O. Phillips, of Peterborough, veteran member of the St. John Ambulance Brigade who will teach first aid.

Following the dedication of the memorial tablet, Dr. Ramsay Armitage addressed the student body and visitors and he said in part:

"In such a time as this when British ideals of liberty and fair dealing are being ruthlessly challenged we are called to continue stedfast.

"When Drake sailed against Cadiz to cripple the ships gathering for the Armada against England his prayer held these words, "it is not the beginning of a matter but the continuing of the same until it be thoroughly finished which yield it the true glory."

"In Christian baptism we are called each one to continue Christ's faithful and soldier and servant.

"Continuing stedfastly" was also in Churchill's finest and bravest speech.

"We shall go on to the end. We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches. We shall fight on the landing fields, we shall fight in the fields, in the streets and in the hills. We shall never surrender, we shall go on to the end."

"Continuing stedfastly" will be the spirit of our service in whatever form we are called to give it.

"If we are resolutely faithful to it and reverently commit our cause to God we shall prevail.

"Keep us stedfast in this faith."

OUT OF BOUNDS

Maurice Wesley and Bill Roberts report that a fair sized porcupine was rambling around George street near the Y.M.C.A. on Monday morning at 2.30. The animal seemed quite undisturbed by the passing traffic and curious passersby, and when last seen it was heading up the lane to the rear of the Windsor Hotel. This town will soon be a menagerie. A short time ago, police were notified a wild raccoon was behind Barrie's store.

Hatton Property Chosen For Wartime Houses

Announcement was made here this morning that Wartme Housing Limited had decided to build 125 temporary houses on the Hatton property with the probability that the contract would be extended to 175 houses of the same types.

Entrance to the property will require the opening of a new street as an extension of Charlotte street from the point where it begins the curve to the south as part of the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway. The houses will be erected on lateral streets running north and south.

It is understood that no communicating streets will be carried through to Albertus Avenue, the westerly extension of Weller street, a concession of home owners in the west end residental section who have been persistently and vigorously opposing the Hatton estate site for wartime houses for workers in munitions factories. They obtained the support of North Monaghan council whose protest has been before Wartime Housing Limited for some time.

A special meeting of the city council was called for this evening, but has been postponed until Thursday, and rumor intimated that some similar representations would be considered in the prospect of forwarding it to bulwark the the township's objections. One of the aldermen said this afternoon that the company's decision would probably preclude the council's intervention.

Rear End Crash Injures Three

When an automobile failed to make a curve on the Warsaw Road a mile east of Peterborough late Saturday night and crashed into the rear end of another car that had stopped to let off a passenger, the driver of the machine and two passengers were injured and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

Howard A. Quinn, Douro township, was driving home from a school meeting and had stopped his car at the roadway leading to the home of Stanley Wood to let Mr. Wood out, when a westbound car driven by Seymour Jermey, 18, of 533 Downie street came along and instead of taking the curve continued until it collided with the rear of the Quinn machine. The light roadster with its top down then spun around but did not leave the road. One of the passengers, Dorothy Tobin, 28, of 88 McDonnel street, was however tossed into the ditch by the force of the impact.

She sustained cut lips, lost four or five teeth, had her eye injured and both arms and legs bruised. Seymour Jermey, driver of the car, had his hand injured and sustained a cut in his lip that required four stitches to close while the third occupant, Walter Varty, 18, of Downie street received a cut on his chin requiring 20 stitches and other injuries.

All three were taken to hospital. The women and the driver were released Sunday. Both cars were damaged but the occupants of the Quinn machine escaped injury.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic L. A. McClure and Provincial Constable Price Morris.

Trial Proceeds In Hotel Fraud Charges

Evidence as to the financial set-up of Genelco Limited and as to an arrangement between C.G.E. and carried on by Genelco with the Bromleigh Engineering Company of Detroit by which the Detroit company furnished a number of men for employment in the Genelco plant featured this morning's session of the hearing in police court of a charge of conspiracy to defraud against Miss Mary Robertson of the Hotel Champlain.

Miss Robertson was charged with conspiring with one W. A. Bennett to defraud the Department of Munitions and Supply by means of false receipts for room rent.

Defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., she elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

C.G.E. Subsidiary

Cecil E. Hipp, Toronto, controller of the C.G.E. and secretary-treasurer of Genelco was the first crown witness. He explained that Genelco was a company that had been formed to carry out the provisions of an contract that had been entered into between the Department of Munitions and Supply and the C.G.E. for the manufacture of certain munitions of war.

"I am in this position in this case," explained Mr. McElderry, "that the Department of Munitions and Supply has requested that the contract between it and the C.G.E. should not be put in as exhibit."

Mr. Hipp said that Genelco was a "wholly-owned subsidiary" of the C.G.E. It was operated on a management fee system and all the funds for its operation were supplied by the Dominion Government through the Department of Munitions and Munitions and Supply.

To Mr. Carley the witness said that the agreement had been taken over by Genelco on January 2, 1942, but he was not sure as to just how soon afterward the bank account was transferred to Genelco. Asked if he knew of a contract between C.G.E. and the Bromleigh Engineering Company of Detroit, Mr. Hipper said that he only had a general knowledge of that matter.

Gordon Hodgson, assistant to the manager of Genelco, told of an arrangement that had been entered into between C.G.E. and the Bromleigh Engineering Company of Detroit by which the Detroit Company was to furnish men for the plant here. The arrangement was that the Bromleigh Company was to pay the wages of the men supplied and the C.G.E., and afterwards the Genelco, paid their living expenses. In regard to room rent the maximum was to be $3. W. A. Bennett, witness said, was one of the men sent here by the Bromleigh Company. Witness identified three vouchers produced as representing money that had been paid Bennett by Genelco.

Hodgson said that he knew nothing of the signature of these vouchers. They had been presented by Bennett as representing room rent and had been paid.

Mr. Carley examined the witness at length as to the arrangements with Bromleigh Engineering and a previous agreement with the Triangle Company of Detroit who also furnished men for the C.G.E. Hodgson said that no formal contract had been entered into with the Bromleigh Company. Representatives of that company had visited Peterborough and terms were agreed upon, after which he had sent a letter to the Bromleigh concern, setting forth what had been agreed upon.

The witness said that in addition to allowance for rooms the Bromleigh employees were allowed a maximum of $2.25 a day for meals and in addition were given an allowance for laundry and valet service. Hodgson explained that in the case of expenses for meals no vouchers were required.

Two Systems

"I am suggesting then," said Mr. Carley, "that in every case you were paying $2.25 for meals."

Witness said that was the case. He added that no vouchers were required in the case of laundry or valet service expenses.

Mr. Carley elicited from the witness an explanation that the system in regard to Triangle employees had been different. In their cases bills for room rent had been sent in by the hotels themselves. In the case of the Triangle men witness said that $3.00 charges were not common but that in the room rent bills for the Bromleigh employees were nearly all at that figure.

"Did not that fact impress you as suspicious?" asked Mr. Carley and the witness replied in the negative.

The court adjourned at this stage with the understanding that at the afternoon session certain documents asked for by Mr. Carley would be produced by the witness.

after the stick-up and shooting the killer leaped in his car, drove furiously out of town, and came by back roads in this general direction."

"But for him to get in here, Sheriff!" Red protested, "That is absurb. It's really impossible."

"And why, Miss Ballard?"

"Why this is private grounds, that gate was locked as you find it now; it's perfectly clear the rusty chain has not been disturbed. That is, not recently—"

Sheriff Anderson examined the fastenings. "On the contrary, Miss Ballard, the chain and lock seem to have been used quite recently."

Hunter stepped from the cover of the tree which had hidden him. He smiled around the trio. "Pardon me but I couldn't help hearing the conversation." He glanced at the deep picture of the tread in the earth. "The tire marks were made by my car, gentlemen. It you will get into your car there in the road and drive around, coming in by way of the front, I'll be glad to show you the exact pattern. And Sheriff Anderson is correct when he says the gate has been opened recently. I came in here myself last night." He took a large key from his pocket. It closed like a jackknife. He walked over to the huge, old-timey lock. "This key fits the antique lock, as you can see, Sheriff. It is the only key to the lock on the place, and so, of course, it would be out of the question for any one else to have come through here in a car."

"I—I see." The sheriff stroked his chin. He'd shaved since noon. There were many pink veins in his almost childlike cheeks. The way he kept saying "I see" got on Hunter's nerves but he continued to smile. "Good thing," he thought, "Junior and I got a new set of tires at the same time before rationing started." The officers crossed the stone fence and drove around. Hunter nodded for Red to follow, and walked quickly back, cutting through to beat the car. He got the girl past the place where the car had gone into the brush. More and more he felt the absolute necessity of protecting Junior, and saving the girl. At the garage Hunter backed his car out. Anderson and Doolittle checked the tread. The sheriff did something Hunter did not like. He took a small camera and made photographs of the tires. Hunter noted there was no dirt in the tread at all!

Clever Chart Shows You How to Play the Piano

You Can Play Tunes Right Away

What delightful fun to play the piano and get gay compliments wherever you go!

You can so easily learn to play these days with a clever keyboard chart to help.

The chart is a "life-size" reproduction of your piano keyboard. With each key is pictured the note—A, B, C, D, E, F, G—as it appears on sheet music. When you stand the chart up behind your real keyboard you see at once which keys to strike for which notes.

Easy then to read simple sheet music right at the start. As for popular hits and complicated accompaniments, you can play them this short-cut way. Just follow the melody line with your right hand and play simple harmonizing chords with your left.

A table shows by number the keys to play for these harmonizing chords; the numbers correspond to numbered keys on your chart. Soon you have quite a repertoire, entertain friends!

Our 24-page instruction book includes keyboard chart, shows you how to read music, play chords in all keys, understand rhythm and rudiments of music. Has three easy popular pieces.

For your copy of Quick Course in Piano Playing, send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of Instruction Book.

NERVE AND VISION

IT REQUIRES either nerve or vision, or both, to put forth the singleton king of an unbid suit as the opening lead. When you can be reasonably sure your partner has the honor above or below it, that may be the winning choice. Upon the rarest of occasions, the singleton king of the opponent's trump suit can be the killing lead, but it takes quite a player to rise to that opportunity. If it works out wrong, he risks a terrific ti-… from his partner.

All by himself, in the scoring, stood the man who doubled that contract and then set it by most imaginative daring—Harold Conrad, the Packard automobile representative of Scranton, Pa. Other tables in the same tournament at the Skytop club in Pennsylvania produced a spade game, as the club K was led. After the A won that, a club was ruffed, a heart ruffed, a second club ruffed, a second heart ruffed, a third club ruffed, a third heart led, East ruffing with the spade A and returning the spade 4, after South discarded a diamond. Tricks for the spade K and one in diamonds completed the defensive allotment, the contract being made.

Mr. Conrad, however, realizing that weakness jump to game by North indicated great desire for ruffing something short, led his singleton spade K. East, with equal vision, overtook with his A and returned a spade to the Q. South scored his club A, ruffed one club, ruffed one heart, ruffed a second club with dummy's last trump, ruffed a second heart, leaving himself only one trump, gave up a club to West, ruffed the heart A with his last spade, but then had to give up two tricks in diamonds and one to East's spade 7, so that he was beaten two tricks.

Strike Threat Is Voiced By Dairymen

TORONTO, June 15—Milk producers, numbering approximately 1,000, threatened Toronto and other Ontario centres of population with absolute stoppage of milk supply by tomorrow when they loudly voiced protests against "inaction" of the Federal Government and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board during a meeting of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League in the King Edward Hotel on Saturday.

"Let's go on strike!" . . . "Put a ceiling on experts!" came shouts from the ruddy-faced herdsmen whose cheeks assumed a more crimson tinge as they vented their anger against those whom they termed "dollar-a-year men who draw twenty-five dollars a day for expenses."

Principal cause of their grievance was the removal of the Government subsidy of thirty cents per hundredweight for whole milk, which was granted from Dec. 22, 1941, until May 1 of this year.

The league approved an amendment to a resolution by W. H. Wilmot, secretary of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association, and Stanley May of the Belleville Milk Producers' Association, which read: "That the Producers' Association of Ontario notify their buyers to increase the retail price of milk sufficiently to pay producers an increase of forty cents per hundredweight for fluid milk, to take effect July 1."

Motion of Censure

Another highlight of the meeting was the approval of a motion of censure of the Federal Government and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board "for failure to be represented at this meeting."

To indicate their feelings, the members unanimously passed a resolution "that this meeting is 100 per cent behind their organization in their efforts to secure an adequate price for their milk, and that we ask our Provincial directors to go to Ottawa and present this feeling and requests, and we instruct them to stay there until a solution to our problem is achieved."

"We hope the Federal Government and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will grant our requests," stated Mr. Lick at the close of the meeting.

Some of the producers openly threatened at the meeting that unless Federal action is immediate they will slaughter their herds for beef and "turn to lines more profitable," such as sugar beets, soya beans and other ground crops.

Their only deterrent, one official stated, is the killing off of valuable Holstein and Jersey cattle and the long time required to build up milk-producing herds again.

Gives Present Prices

Dr. J. B. Reynolds, president of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association and one-time president of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, said that today $2.85 per hundredweight is the cost of producing milk, and $2.40 is the delivered price at Toronto.

R. F. Lick of Oshawa, secretary of the league, said the whole purpose of the meeting at Ottawa is to ask assurance of the Federal Government that the producers would receive higher prices for their product.

"They (the producers) must have consideration to take care of higher costs and labor," declared Mr. Lick, "otherwise they can turn to lines more profitable."

"There will be a serious milk shortage in 1942, if not before, unless something is done," said George Jackson vice-president of the Holtein Association at Toronto.

David Black of Montreal, president of the Montreal Milk Producers' Association, declared: "We are with you to a man. If the 'powers that be' at Ottawa don't sit up and take notice of this meeting, they won't be there later to have the chance."

As the tension among the members increased, Ward Hallman of Markham proposed that officials of the league telegraph Ottawa and state that unless the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, under the Dominion Government, granted a price of $2.85 per hundredweight for whole milk within seventy-two hours, a general strike should be called. No action was taken on this resolution.

Members of the league came from as far distant points as North Bay, Windsor and the Niagara Peninsula to participate in this meeting.

A Private Crossing

The car in which the five people, all of Pembroke, were riding was struck by a westbound Canadian Pacific Railway local train Saturday night on a private crossing three miles east of here.

Taken to hospital with a fractured skull and other severe injuries was Mrs. Alex Bathgate, 46, mother of Kathleen and daughter of Mrs. Richard Smith.

Three of the dead were killed instantly. The fourth, Andrew Johnston, died in hospital Sunday.

Angus Campbell, superintendent of a nearby dairy, who witnessed the accident, said the front wheels of the car were on the tracks when it was hit by the railway engine. The automobile turned over three times after the crash and the occupants were hurled out.

Old Wall Falls On Garage Wrecking Roof

For the second time in two days lives were endangered by flying bricks and falling debris when the south wall of the old Opera House fell with a crash on the garage back of the J. J. Turner factory.

As yet there has been no explanation as to why the two walls have topple the wrong way. These walls are between fifty and six feet high and once they start to go there is no stopping them.

One half of the J. J. Turner garage roof is entirely wrecked and only a heavy steel beam in the centre kept the other half of the roof and the wall on King street intact. The section of the building next to the Opera House was used as a storeroom and the rubble crashed right straight through on to it. There was one truck which was in the act of backing out of the garage and it escaped with only a dented top.

There have been a number of comments upon the probable insecurity of the walls but the Peterborough Waste and Metal Company were satisfied that there was no danger. Since the steel trusses have been removed there is a possibility that a high wind might carry away the remainder of the walls, it is said.

When Alan Moldaver of the Peterborough Metal, was questioned by the Examiner, he declined to make any statement until the matter had been thoroughly discussed with the foreman in charge of operations.

Army Torpedoers Heroes of Midway

By CLARK LEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, June 15 (AP)—Here's the story of the first American army torpedo planes' attack as told to me by Capt. James F. Collins, and Lieut. James B. Muri, whose plane had 500 bullet holes in it when he reached his base.

Capt. Collins, 26, comes from Meridian, Miss., Lieut. Muri, 23, from Miles City, Mont.

Collins' version:

"Before dawn June 4, all airmen on Midway Island were put on the alert....at 6:16 a messenger brought me a note giving the position of our target and its distance. It didn't occur to me at the time that other members of the squadron had not received similar notes. Afterwards I learned they thought we were just going aloft and that they did not know we were going to fight.

"At 7:05 a.m., we sighted the enemy fleet about 20 miles away and started looking for a carrier.

"Just as we sighted the ships we saw a group of our navy torpedo planes way up ahead and down close to the water. They had taken off from the base a short time before we did.

Zeros Like Bees

"As we watched, swarms of Zeros circled down on them like Bees. Six of the Zeros apparently received radio instructions and cut away and came at us, head-on. They were with us throughout the attack-they and many others.

"Simultaneously anti - aircraft started to come our way. We picked up our target, a carrier somewhat behind and in the centre of a large ring of destroyers, cruisers and battleships....

"We slipped between several destroyers and cruisers, turned sharply and headed toward the carrier. We had to get down lower to release the torpedoes so we headed closer to the water. "At this time we were about two miles from the carrier, which seemed to be by itself and was circling to the right.

"It was side on to us and its whole side appeared to ablaze as its anti-aircraft guns laid up a curtain through which we had to fly. We had the proper altitude and we released our torpedoes as close in as we could.

Right on Top of Them.

"I pulled up sharply and shot over the carrier's bow at only a couple of hundred feet.

"All this time our own guns were pounding away at the Zeros. Our tailgunner.....got two and maybe three Zeros during this attack."

Because his landing gear wouldn't work, Collins sent his crew to the back of the ship to hold the tail down and made a precarious landing, finally nosing over gently as the plane was about to run off the runway into the ocean.

Collins served 2½ years in the Air Corps and was assigned to the Royal Air Force in Britain as an observer from April to August last year.

Muri's story:

"....The pursuits (Zeros) were on me all the way in as I followed Collins toward the target.

"The first burst of an enemy fighter riddled the upper and rear gun turrets. The upper turret was shot to pieces and the electrical system was shot off. The gunner was wounded, though not seriously.

"The same burst hit the tail gunner, but did not hit his gun.

"Just before we fired our torpedo at the carrier, bullets from a Zero set fire to a cushion in the rear gunner's turret. Radio Operator Cpl. Frank Melo came running up and told me 'the tail gunner is dead and the airplane is on fire.'..

Tosses Cushion Out.

"My co-pilot went back and gave the wounded men sulfanilimide tablets. He threw the burning cushion out of a side window. So far as I knew, the plane was still on fire. In fact, I never even knew the fire was out until we landed

"All this time we were going in to attack. We levelled and it was just a matter of seconds until we were close enough to launch. We were so close and going so fast that as soon as the torpedo got away I had to turn sharply to get over the carrier's deck. I swung over the bow, then raced back the length of the deck, climbing as I went....

"While we were actually over the carrietr the Zeros left us, but they zoomed over and were on us as we drew away....

"There were about 50 Zeros in the air and about four or five of them were constantly on us....We were under constant attack, but could manoeuvre, and bullet hits which had been like hail on a tin roof began to be less frequent....Our plane was so shot up it was harder than hell to fly....

"My crew was wonderful. They all stayed in and pitched even though they were shot up."

Bishop To Dedicate Marmora Honor Roll

MARMORA, June 13 (ENS) — The Lord Bishop of Ontario is making his official visit to the parish of Marmora on Sunday morning, June 21st. At this service he will dedicate an honor roll of the men of the congregation on active service. Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and of the Canadian Legion are invited to be present.

Institute Meets

The monthly meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. C. Prentice. Mrs. L. R. Rundle presiding over an attendance of twenty-four members and four visitors. The meeting was opened in the usual manner, after which the president asked for the co-operation of members and touched upon items for the welfare of the branch. The roll call was "My favorite vegetable and how to prepare it." The report of the District Annual convention was given by Mrs. J. Gordenier. A motion was passed that the Branch start the Lady Tweedsmuir scrap book. Some quilt blocks were then handed in by members. A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president, Mrs. Frank Grant for her work of the past year.

A demonstration of First Aid was put on by three girls of the Girls' Club. A reading was given by Mrs. Perry Gray and a smile game was staged by Mrs. D. Sanderson. The playing of bingo ended the program and refreshments were served by the committee in charge. The next meeting of the branch, which will take place at the home of Mrs. Frank Grant in August will be in the form of a Grandmothers' party, and all grandmothers irrespective of association with the branch are being invited.

Commissioner Orames Addresses Drumhead Service At Centre

Soldiers and civilians jammed the huge drill hall at Exhibition Park, Military Training Centre, Sunday afternoon for a drumhead service that was both brief and impressive.

Commissioner Orames, a padre of World War 1, was the guest speaker and he was introduced by Adjutant Norman Buckley, of the Peterborough Salvation Army.

The speaker prefaced his address with a few statements describing present conditions and the questions in the minds of everyone who without meaning to do it, perhaps is taking stock of himself and asking "Whither am I going." These are days when the intensive training strain of the times is taking heavy toll of nerve and brain and sinew when theories of warfare advanced by covetous nations are being tried out before highly trained and equipped western armies and been found wanting, when brute force is being overcome by superior intelligence, and when once again the world is beginning to clearly see how right eventually overcomes might and how the forces of truth and justice do master the powers of darkness."

Looking back over thirty-three months of cruel warfare, the speaker said that history will record the fact in letters of gold, that the British Empire, and the U.S.A. did everything possible to prevent plunging the world into another baptism of blood.

"The subjugation of small countries, the enslavement and cruel torture and brutal unprovoked murder of harmless civilians are things now well known, and every fresh authentic story which reaches the ears of Canadians only stimulates their determination to do anything and everything to prevent such things happening here."

"Thank God for the past which is full of incidents of devotion, confidence and bulldog courage which must win out eventually. All battles are like tides—they ebb and flow for months, but we now stand in a much more secure position, and as that great man, the Honorable Winston Churchill said in effect, recently, "We may not have crossed the final hill top, but at any rate we are in sight of it."

In a summary of events to date, Commissioner Orames pointed out that our armies and material resources are largely intact, whereas the losses sustained by our enemies in China, in the Philippine Islands, in the East Indies in Malaya and Burma and on the Russian front have been tremendous and the loss of war material likewise. "Who can say it may be 1943 or 1944 before the war finishes, but with God's help we shall come through victoriously."

Former Aggressors

In looking to the future, the speaker recalled the inglorious ends of former aggressors who sought to rule the world, such as Ghengis Khan and the Tartars, Atilla and Huns, Caesar and Romans, Napoleon and the French, the Kaiser and the Germans, and now Hitler and the Germans, are well on the way to making history repeat itself.

Spiritual Foundation

Commissioner Orames stressed the fact that leading statesmen are charting a careful and long range course to ensure the peace of Europe after the war, they are thinking of a stabilized future so that we may guard against winning the war and losing the peace.

"The only safe foundations to build upon are sure spiritual foundations. The house of the future mut rest upon two fundamental principles, that is love to God and love to man. These two principles accepted and acted upon will see crystallized the first Christmas morning message, "Peace on earth and goodwill to men."

There were more than 700 soldiers on parade, and they joined with the civilian visitors in the singing the hymns. Local notables who were on the platform included His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke, Aldermen James Dutton and Adam Sands, and Captain Fred Hills. Captain Tyson, Protestant chaplain at the Camp said the United Nations prayers and Lt.-Col. R. T. Spooner, Divisional Commander of the Salvational Army at Toronto, read Psalm 46. The band of the Salvation Army supplied music for the service.

Jap Midway Grab Cost 10,000 Men

PEARL HARBOR, June 15 (AP) Japan's attempt to invade Midway Island cost her three and possibly four aircraft carriers, hundreds of planes and probably more than 10,000 men.

These figures are unofficial but based on first-hand reports of the battle.

Communiques from headquarters of Admiral Chester Nimitz, Commander in Chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, have listed two carriers, possibly three, destroyed; three battleships and 8 to 11 other warships damaged. Nimitz pointed out the report were not all in.

Against these announced American losses were only a destroyer sunk and an aircraft carrier damaged.

Cmdr. Murr E. Arnold, leader of a carrier-borne squadron, told of the destruction of the enemy carriers.

The first attack was against a group of three carriers June 4.

"We attacked at 12 o'clock," he said. "Ten minutes later three carriers were blazing from stem to stern....These three carriers never took part in any further air operations durin gthe battle. All was sunk within 24 hours."

Two of these ship Arnold estimated at about 30,000 tons each, the other at 20,000. Each, he said, "so far as we know had plane complements of 60 to 70 each and at least 1,500 personnel aboard each." That blow along would thus have accounted for at least 180 planes and 4,500 men.

Later the same day, the squadron attacked a fourth carrier. "Left it burning and attacked it again on the morning of June 5," he related. "We are pretty sure that carrier never got back to Japan. It was about 20,000-tons."

25 Cents A Box Asked For Strawberries

Strawberries grown in local gardens made an attractive display on the market Saturday, selling at 25 and 28 cents a large box. One of the conspicuous counters presented Ken Esson's berries at 27 cents a box. Fred McMahon of Millbrook quoted his at 25 to 28 cents. The supply was fairly plentiful and the quality appeared to be exceptionally good for the first picking.

Market attendance was larger than a week ago. Butter sold at 37 and 38 cents, and required a generous supply of ice to offset the June heat. Eggs were mostly 32 to 36 cents. The range was from 20 cents for the smallest grades to 40 cents for the largest, with the bulk of the business in the lower thirties bracket.

Chickens were 35 cents a pound, roosters 25 cents and pullets 30 cents. March chickens generally brought 35 cents and the year olds 30 cents. The perfume of peonies was heavy in the market hall. Women from the country offered armfuls of them in white, red and pink, and evidently sold most of them judging by the number of buyers who were noticed carrying them home or to their cars.

Potatoes seemed scarce at $1.80 to $2 a bag, mostly at the higher price. Herb Doig's prices were $2.00 and $2.15; asparagus at four bunches for 25 cents, and spinach at 20 cents a peck. Fred Clifford asked 10c a pound for his spinach, and lettuce and onions 5 cents a bunch.

Incidentally, Mr. Doig reported that the four girls helping him cut asparagus, "and they're doing a mighty fine job of it, too. Come down and get a picture of them."

Greenhouse men were offering the last of their seedling flower plants at 15 cents a box or two boxes for 35 cents. Parkers of Hastings also had geraniums at 20 cents each, hydrangas 50 cents, Calla lilies 50 cents ,and foliage plants 5 cents each .

Joseph Burns of Cavan, formerly of Zion, Otonabee, told the Examiner he had a field of fall rye averaging nine feet in height. He counted seventeen shoots from one seed, an indication of its luxuriant growth. Crops on the light rolling land out that way are exceptionally good.

Reports from the neighboring townships as a whole covered a wide variety of condition, from excellent all the way down to nearly hopeless. Some farmers have few potatoes planted. Others managed to sow some oats last week. Planting of corn has not made much headway. The rain early Saturday morning lodged many a field of grain and hay. The stalks are so 'sappy' that they cannot stand up to any weight of rain or wind, although the weekend lodging was expected to correct itself with better weather.

Rain has caused a serious loss of farm time, and that set back linked with shortage of labor is a complication which farmers said boded no good for everybody. "Folks had better get ready to tighten their belts by next winter the way things are going," said one man.

Seedling tomatoes were 75 cents a flat of one hundred, and celery plants 15 cents a dozen.

Big Day In London

Tumultuous, flag-waving crowds in London cheered and paraded before the King and Queen and the rulers of European governments. Addressing the empire, Prime Minister Churchill said:

"In this ceremony we pledge to each other not merely support and succor till victory comes but that wider understanding, that quickened sense of human sympathy, that recognition of common purpose of humanity without which the suffering and striving of the United Nations would not achieve its full award."

Flags flew from all public buildings in Moscow and the Soviet newspaper Izvestia pointed out the date for the demonstration was chosen "in connection with the fact that for many years June 14 has been annually observed in the United States of America as the day the American flag was consecrated by the traditions and struggle of the American people for independence and liberty."

"United we fight, united we win," was the favorite slogan in Chungking as the Chinese celebrated. Gen. and Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek with foreign and Chinese notables attended a foreign office reception and in the evening a lantern procession moved throughout the streets.

Indian, British, United States, Chinese and Netherlands troops paraded past the reviewing stand in New Delhi, India; all of South Africa displayed flags of the United Nations and special church services were held in Cairo.

$88.25 Raised In Millbrook For Navy League

MILLBROOK, June 15.—(ENS).—The Navy League tag day realized $88.25 locally, the girl Cadets who spent the day soliciting help for this worthy cause finding the large crowd at the Spring Fair responsive to the appeal, and undoubtedly adding muh to the amount received. Miss F. E Morgan, B.A., was in charge of the arrangements, and wishes to extend thanks to all who helped in any way in making the day such a success.

The next salvage collection is billed for Wednesday, June 17; last time two full car loads were shipped from the C.N.R. station, and it is hoped to have at least an equal quantity for the second appeal. If papers are tied in bundles, and boxes crushed flat, and then tied, it lessens the work of the committee. This time paper, rags, and glass are asked for. Homer Oullette is chairman of the salvage commmittee, and any information required may be obtained by applying to him, to P. Stinson at the station, to T. A. Campbell, or other committee members.

Jap Navy Reels Back In Aleutians

Britons Shift Eastward Upon Tobruk

Both Sides Believed Near Exhaustion, Deadlock Foreseen

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 16 — (AP). —The fierce Libyan battle, in which armored forces of both sides have taken a terrific hammering moved eastward toward Tobruk to-day as British and South African troops withdrew from their coastal anchor around Ain El Gazala while heroic anti-tank gunners and tank drivers fought to hold open the road to Acroma.

This meant the British Army had given up the old Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line of strong boxes and minefields which the Germans first went around, then pierced, and finally reduced one end at a time.

But it also meant the British Army had succeeded in escaping a threatened trap when the Germans drove their tanks at Acroma, 10 miles west of Tobruk, to cut off the Ain El Gazala forces, 30 miles farther west.

Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel thus had managed after three weeks of terrific battling to accomplish what he had aimed at in the first few days, the elimination of the British line for a direct attack on Tobruk and its screening position at Acroma and El Adem just to the south of Tobruk.

Taken Heavy Losses.

The effort is believed to have cost him heavily, and his offensive power is believed to have been spent.

To-day's communique said that two divisions took part in the withdrawal and that this completed the redisposition of forces which Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie announced yes-

Nazis Just Want France Quiet

VICHY, June 16 (AP)—An article in the controlled newspaper L'Effort said today the Germans no longer are primarily interested in collaboration, but for the time being regard France as a "strategic and economic space" of military importance.

"A strategic and economic space—that is what France stands the risk of seeming to Germany during these several months of military offensive: A sort of highway parallel to the sea front through which armies must move from one point to another of battle, and must be able to move easily and without risk."

The article added "it is consequently vital above all that this passive battle sector should not in the least be unnecessarily troubled by the activities of England or the Uned States or Russia, and transferred by their agents into an active sector of disorder and agitation."

Only 50 Miles Of Chekiang–Kiangu Railway In Chinese Hands As 20,000 Troops Flee East

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts), June 16—(AP).—Attacking from the west, Japanese troops have advanced to the outskirts of Kweiki, it was asserted here today, driving 20,000 Chinese soldiers back into the town and leaving only 50 miles of the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway in Chinese hands.

Domei claimed the Chinese were driven from a bitterly defended hill position 10 miles west of Kweiki. Japanese troops followed so closely the Chinese were unable to destroy their pontoon bridges which the Japanese used to pursue them across streams, it was asserted.

Supporting the drive from the west, a column which crossed into Kiangsi Province from Chekiang reported yesterday that it had captured Shanghjao, 50 miles east of Kweiki.

July To See Canada Use Lottery For Compulsory Call To The Army

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 16—(CP).—Call-up of men by lot for compulsory military training will start next month without fuss or show, it is learned at the Department of National War Services.

No public drawing of names from a hat or beans from a jar is contemplated as the compulsory call-up of men switches from the selective system in effect so far to the lottery system.

The lottery will work on a divisional basis. The registrar of each war services division will form a pool of the men in the age classes liable to compulsory service in his division and draw the names of the number required each month from the pool.

The selection of the men to be called in any given month will thus change to a basis of chance. Up to now they have been selected with a view to distributing the call-up equally through all localities in a particular division.

One of the results of the change may be that four or five young men will be called up in one month from one village, while in another village nearby none may be called, although there are an equal number in the callable class.

Be Different Now.

Working on the selective basis as in the past the registrar would pick his men so that about the same number would be called from each of the two villages but the law of chance may not work out that way.

Announcement was made recently that the lottery system would apply to the August call-up. The process of selecting and notifying the men required for the July call-up now is under way and the men are to report on successive days starting July 16.

Arrangements for the August call-up will be made in July and late in that month, it is expected, the divisional registrars will have their

Gandhi In Huddle Aid Or Fight UK?

By Preston Grover,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

NEW DELHI, India, June 16. —(AP)— Discussions which might have a tremendous effect on war operations in this part of the world are in progress at Wardha between Mohandas K. Gandhi and other major leaders of the All-India Congress party.

After several days of conferences on whether steps would be taken to help or hinder the British war effort, three participatants, Gandhi, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and the Congress President, Maulana Abul Kalan Azad, could only say they were exploring one another's minds.

Both Azad and Nehru admittedly disagreed on many points with Gandhi. Some observers say Nehru and Azad also disagree between themselves.

All are agreed on one aim—Independence.

Many observers in India, both Indians and Occidentals ,expressed belief that Gandhi, facing sharp factional disputes within the All-India Congress party, was planning a deliberate clash with the authorities, with the attendant possibilities of jail and hunger strike.

Gandhi has used these means before not only to revitalize his following but to re-focus attentin on himself.

If such a course should sueceed as fully as it has in the past, it would throw out of gear all efforts of Nehru and others to centre attention at present on the Japanese threat.

Until recently Gandhi has been minimizing the danger from the Japanese, but lately he has moderated somewhat. Observers ex-

Cruiser Sunk Carrier Hit By U.S. Fliers

Japs Cling To Attu Landing Parties Under Steady Attack

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The Japanese navy appeared today to be reeling under the third smashing attack it has suffered at the hands of the American air forces in as many operational areas of the Pacific.

Following up the Coral Sea and Midway Island victories, in the southwestern and middle Pacific areas respectively, the Navy Department reported late yesterday that American fliers were pounding a Japanese invasion force in the north, off the Aleutian Islands.

While reports on the progress of the battle were inconclusive, Japanese losses listed thus far included the sinking of one cruiser and the damaging of one aircraft carrier, at least three cruisers, one destroyer, one gunboat and one transport. Damage to some of the vessels was described as severe.

There were no reports of American losses.

In a communique breaking its three-day silence on what appears to have been a desperate attempt by the Japanese to gain a toehold on the barren, rocky island chain stretching away from Alaska, the navy said attack operations were continuing by both army and navy fliers.

"Except for these continuing air attacks upon the enemy landing parties and their supporting naval contingents," the communique said, "the general situation in the Aleutian Islands appears unchanged."

This was taken by some observers to mean the enemy had failed to improve his position during the week-end by landing at any point other than Attu, a craggy little islet that mark the westernmost tip of the Aleutian chain, 769 nautical miles from Dutch harbor.

Attu, surrounded by treacherous reefs and almost constantly fogbound, was considered of little mil-

Rome Admits Losing Heavy Cruiser Says 20 Ships In 2 Convoys Paid

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 16—(AP). — The Italian High Command announced today the loss of a heavy Italian cruiser, while claiming destruction of an Allied cruiser and two destroyers, the sinking or setting afire of five other Allied vessels and damage to 12 more in a series of naval and air battle in the central Mediterranean on Monday.

(There was no confirmation of the Italian report from any other source).

The fighting centred around two large Brtish convoys, one eastbound, the other west-bound.

The communique, giving a narrative of the actions, declared:

"Two great convoys arriving from the western and eastern ends of the sea have been attacked by our submarines which hit by torpedo two of the units of a squadron sailing from Gibraltar.

"At dawn on June 15 to the south of Pantelleria, the (Italian) fortified island between Sicily and the African coast, the 7th Naval Division, formed of two light cruisers and five destroyers, violently attacked a convoy on its way to Malta from Gibraltar.

"Although this convoy was escorted by superior forces composed of at least two cruisers and 12 destroyers, it withdrew, dispersed and covered itself in a smoke screen.

Claim She Blew Up.

Ask Teachers To Reconsider

(By Staff Reporter)

PORT HOPE, June 16—Unofficial but reliable sources at Port Hope, intimated today that the High School Board members had made overtures to certain members of the teaching staff seeking to have the teachers reconsider their decision to resign at the end of the term.

Actually the resignations are in, and as things stand the teachers are through at the end of the current term, and with a teacher shortage almost acute across the province, they will undoubtedly be grabbed off quickly the moment they make their wishes for a new position known.

Eight of the nine teachers on the staff tendered their resignations in protest of the Board's action in dismissing G. L. Brackenbury, principal of the Port Hope High School for the past nine years. So far the teachers have shown no signs of changing their minds, and it is understood that all of them are in such circumstances that they can transfer readily to any other position in Ontario.

All of the teachers who sent in their resignations have received letters of acceptance from the Secretary of the High School Board, and to date just two of the entire staff have been asked to reconsider their decision.

First American Air Action In Mediterranean Sea; Convoys Dock Malta, Tobruk

Italian Cruiser Sunk, 2 Others Hit, Fired; Big Four-Engined Liberators Make Good Account In Initial Scrap

LONDON, June 16—(CP).—The Admiralty and Air Ministry today branded as "without foundation" enemy claims of having sunk large numbers of British warships in the Mediterranean and stated supplies have been delivered to the garrisons in Malta and Tobruk, though they were not completed without loss.

CAIRO, June 16 — (CP). — The United States army air force and the Royal Air Force, operating together for the first time in the Mediterranean, have set fire to two Italian battleships, sunk a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser of the Trento class, and scored hits on a smaller cruiser and a destroyer in four days of heavy fighting, British air headquarters announced late today in a special communique.

In addition, the R.A.F. and the Royal Navy's fleet air arm set fire to another Italian cruiser and probably hit a destroyer in a second Italian naval force during the same period, the communique said.

The American airmen were operating big four-enginer Consolidated B-24 bombers, called Liberators by British airmen.

(The American planes which landed in Turkey after a reported raid on Rumania and the Black Sea area last week were the long-range Consolidated B-24's).

Italian communiques yesterday and to-day have described major naval-air battles in the central Mediterranean, claiming heavy damage to Allied convoys.

The British Account.

The British communique, confirming big scale operations in that area, and disclosing for the first time the United States army air force participation, gave this account:

"On the evening of June 14 an Italian naval force including two battleships and four destroyers was sighted south of Taranto.

"It was shadowed and during the following night, was attacked by torpedo planes from Malta and Africa and by a force of Liberator aircraft the majority of which were American-manned by the United States army air force.

"The attacks were simultaneous.

"A number of hits were made on the battleships, Fires were caused

"One Trento cruiser (10,000 tons) was set afire by bombs and sunk by aircraft torpedo.

One six-inch (gun) cruiser and one destroyer also are known to have been hit."

The communique the ntold how a second Italian naval force was spotted near the Italian Island of Pantelleria and attacked by torpedo aircraft. One cruiser was hit and set afire and a destroyer probably hit.

Really Worried

Lnodon, June 16 (CP)

THE Free French press service declared today Germany is so "nervous over the possibility of an Allied offensive in the west" that the guns of the Maginot Line have been reversed and new fortifications are being built along the Rhine.

The statement declared the German high command has ordered special anti-commando units, equipped for hand-to-hand and street fighting, to be stationed at major points along the coast, including the port of St. Nazaire.

Coast Shipyards To Work 7 Days

OTTAWA, June 16 —(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell announced today that he plans to "proceed with the enforcement" of the seven-day week plan for continuous production of ships in Pacific coast yards, despite failure of two of 11 unions to accept the plan.

In a statement he said he "expected" that next Sunday "all British Columbia shipyard employees who are scheduled to work on that day will be at their stations."

There had been some talk that shortage of materials, lack of adequate supply of skilled wor[illegible] and supervisors.

"Make no mistake about it, [illegible]pan's invasion of the Aleutian [illegible]lands is undertaken to provide [illegible]vance striking bases. The event[illegible] object.ve is to bomb Pacific co[illegible] cities, shipyards and airplane fa[illegible]tories," Mr. Mitchell said.

"Right now, the Japs are less than eight hours bomber distance from British Columbia ports. They will try to work steadily closer.

"The United States government is racing against time to build in Alaska this year the great defence system that was originally planned for completion in 1946.

"It is ships that will decide whether or not history will say of Alaska's and British Columbia's defence, 'too little and too late.'"

Allied Middle East Army Backing Turks

U. S. Bombers, Down In Land Of Harems, Hint Power Of Force Ready For Hitler

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Speaking of second fronts—the appearance of a United States bombing squadron in the white-hot southern Russo-German theatre (as disclosed through the forced landing of four of the planes in Turkey) is a potent reminder that Anglo-American forces are based n the Middle East ready to help the Russians.

Now that's of vast importance because this area which takes in Syria, Iraq and Iran (Persia) is one of the vital strategic zones of the entire war. While generalities are dangerous, one can say that the side which controls the Middle East has a mighty good grip on ultimate victory.

Not only is this territory of military value, but it possesses great resources. A lot of folk believe that the garden of Eden was somewhere here, and in any event it is an Eden to the degree that it possesses oil and other supplies which Mother Hubbard Hitler could do with.

London thinks the United States has opened up a new air front in the Mediterranean. Maybe so, and maybe not. One swallow doesn't make a summer. However, it's obvious that the bombers went into battle to assist the Russians, and it's fair to assume that other Allied aid will follow.

Certainly if Hitler should break into the Caucasus, which provides the Russian land-bridge between the Black and Caspian Seas into the Middle East, there is little doubt that the Anglo-American forces would come into immediate action, thereby opening up a new front. The advent of American bombers may indicate that the "front" already is in operation so far as the air goes, but that remains to be seen.

One highly important aspect of the Middle Eastern situation is that this territory lies up against Turkish borders, and the Allies thus are standing at Turkey's back like big brothers, encouraging her to remain firm in her effort to avoid giving aid to the Germans.

The Turks are in a delicate position, and are under constant pressure from Hitler through Nazi Ambassador Von Papen, one of the craftiest plotters in world diplomacy and, next to the Fuehrer, perhaps the most dangerous German from the stand point of the Allied world.

So long as the comparatively powerful Red Fleet continues to dominate the Black Sea the Turks may be able to withstand Nazi demands. But should there be any considerable increase in Axis strength, such as would be marked by the fall of Sevastopol, the situation might alter.

Time Trouble In Commons

Clocks 6 Mins. Apart Get Gardiner In Debate

OTTAWA June 16. —(CP) —The mystery of the House of Commons clocks and the time they keep caused a brief discussion in the house yesterday.

As Agriculture Minister Gardiner neared the end of an address in the debate on an amendment to the National Resources Mobilization Act, Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) said he regretted he must disagree with Mr. Gardiner continuing for more than 40 minutes, in line with a ruling by speaker James A. Glen that speeches must be limited to that length of time.

"The minister began at 3.20," said the speaker.

"Yes, that is the time I noted on the clock," said Mr. Gardiner.

"Then I regret to say the clocks do not agree because the Honorable Member began at 3.14, by the clock opposite us," said Mr. Stirling.

"Get yours fixed," said an unidentified member.

"I regret to have to disagree with my honorable friend, because usually we do not have occasion to do so," said Mr .Gardiner.

"The clock on your side is as bad as your war policy," said Earl Rowe (Con. Dufferin-Simcoe.)

Coal In 10,000 Gas Furnaces

Power Controller Orders Furnaces Switched

TORONTO, June 16 —(CP)—Ten thousand domestic consumers of natural gas between Hamilton and Windsor must convert to use of coal for heating, A. R. Crozier, Ontario Natural Gas Commissioner, said today commenting on the federal power controller order directing restrictions in use of natural gas for heating in southwestern Ontario. About 2,000 commercial firms are affected by the order, Mr. Crozier said.

Those who have to convert furnaces may be forced to buy new ones, Mr. Crozier said, because many are old and are not suitable for coal burning. Natural gas may still be used, however, for cooking and heating water, Mr. Crozier said. "It presents a serious problem to those who have to convert furnaces," he said.

RUSSIANS DESTROY 180 GERMAN TANKS IN DRIVE AT KHARKOV

Axis Launch New Push On Leningrad

Both Huns, Rumanians Are Flung Back Before Sevastopol

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 16 —(CP)—Red army troops were reported today to have slain more than 600 Germans, captured prisoners and driven survivors from their positions in a quick offensive thrust on the long-dormant Bryansk front while Russian lines again hurled back Nazi assaults in the Kharkov and Sevastopol sectors.

The Bryansk front is hinged at the Nazi-held railway city of Bryansk, 210 miles southwest of Moscow, on the plains between Kharkov and Smolensk. Two populated places and much war equipment—including five tanks—were declared seized by the Russians.

The Soviet information bureau said Marshal Fedor Von Bock's shock troops were suffering heavy losses in the Kharkov sector and that 180 tanks were destroyed or damaged yesterday.

Russian detachments in a single area destroyed 22 tanks, 18 field guns and 10 trucks and killed 900 of the invaders.

"In the Sevastopol sector," a communique reported, "Red army units, jointly with marines of the Red Navy, are repulsing furious attacks of German and Rumanian troops. A detachment of marines yesterday broke into the enemy trenches and killed 250 Hitlerites."

(Axis broadcasts were quoted by the BBC in London as saying German and Italian troops had launched a new drive by both land and sea upon Leningrad, beset for 10 months. The BBC said the enemy "even claims to have succeeded in landing some troops behind the Soviet lines in barges.")

Nazi Infantry Retreat

Tank-supported German infantry struck against a Soviet position on the Kalinin front, but lost a large number of men and four tanks under machine-gun and mortar fire and retreated, the information bureau said. Another thrust the same day was reported to have cost the Germans 220 dead.

The 180 tanks knocked out yesterday made up the largest toll credited to Red army men in a single day's action this year.

A communique said eight German tanks, including three heavies, were disabled by one Soviet machine in the Kharkov battle. Another Russian tank accounted for 10, six of which struggle and scored direct hits on the enemy convoy.

"Four ship were either set on fire or sunk. An enemy gasoline tanker was set afire.

"The other big convoy which was coming from Alexandria was attacked by bombers and torpedo-carrying planes coming from our air bases in Northern Africa and the Aegean.

"An enemy destroyer was sunk and six others hits.

"In naval engagements which took place to the east and west of Malta we lost a heavy cruiser which was first hit by aerial torpedoes and then by sea torpedoes.

"One of our destroyers was seriously damaged but was able to reach a home port. The greater part of the crews were saved."

The communique added that a Russian submarine had been sunk in the Black sea by Italian motor torpedo boats.

Convoy Through.

LONDON, June 16 — (CP). — Commenting on an Italian communique which reported a series of air and naval battles in the Central Mediterranean, the Evening Standard said to-day, "For the first time in four months a British convoy has made the perilous west-to-east voyage through the Mediterranean."

There was no official confirmation of any part of the Italian communique which claimed heavy blows to convoys bound both east and west and to ships on both sides of Malta.

In the fierce fighting which has accompanied the German effort to plunge through at Acroma, 10 miles west of Tobruk, both sides were said to have suffered heavy tank losses.

The British forces were reported to have suffered severe losses on Sunday when they ran into a German position studded with 88 millimetre anti-tank guns.

But there was no indication that Rommel had been reinforced and was believed to be fighting with the same three armored divisions with which he launched his offensive three weeks ago.

War, the dispatches said, but despite this weight of artillery the Red Army forces are holding firmly to their rockbound positions.

Tass, Soviet news agency, said the Germans were using at least seven infantry divisions and more than 150 tanks against Savastopol in addition to the artillery.

40 Tanks in a Day.

In repulsing the repeated heavy German assaults, the agency said, the Sevastopol garrison in a single day destroyed 40 tanks and killed the major part of three regiments of infantry, while Soviet planes burned 10 tanks, knocked out 12 more, and smashed 13 trucks loaded with infantry.

"The approaches to our advance line were littered with the bodies of Fascist officers and men" Tass said, with 950 counted in one small sector.

Tass warned however, that "the situation remains tense."

Having lost heavily in audacious tank charges, the Germans now are sending their tanks cautiously forward to take up stationary positions and use their guns to cover infantry assaults, Tass said.

On the Kharkov front, where a Soviet communique said 180 German tanks were destroyed or damaged yesterday, Tass reported the invaders struggled all day to gain one-third of a mile, only to be hurled back in the end.

On that battlefield a single Soviet tank set fire to six enemy tanks, put four others out of action, then burst into the ranks of German infantry and crushed or shot 70 men, despite the fact that it had been hit 18 times, Tass reported.

There was a flurry of activity also on the long-dormant Bryansk front in the central area, where a quick Red Army thrust was reported to have killed 600 Germans and driven others out of their positions.

Inadequate, CCF Says Of Bill On Conscription

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 16 —(CP)—The principle of the government bill to permit conscription for overseas service when the government sees fit was termed "inadequate and inequitable" in an amendment placed before the House of Commons last night by Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East).

The amendment said the bill also permitted the governor-in-council to conscript men for overseas service without reference to parliament and was therefore contrary to the peace and good government of Canada.

Earlier, the House heard Agriculture Minister Gardiner, speaking in support of the bill, say that Canada's "present policy in relation to the army" and providing for the maintaining of 750,000 men could possibly be carried out without conscription.

Mr. Gardiner said that Japanese activities in the Aleutian Islands had given point to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement that the power was desired quickly to send men to areas adjacent to Canada. He recalled the prime minister had also said that conscription for service overseas might never be required.

No Bar On Reinforcements

Victor Quelch (N.D. Acadia) said that while members of his group believed that soldiers should have an assurance of a better world when peace came, they would not add to injustice by refusing to guarantee them reinforcements for overseas service.

The group would not refuse to agree to removal of the overseas limitation in the present act.

Branch Bank Closes At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, June 16 (ENS)—Customers of the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce received letters this morning advising them that on June 30, their accounts would be transferred to the Bank of Montreal, branch bank, and that the Commerce branch would be closed.

The Bank of Commerce took over the Standard Bank branch in Campbellford back in 1928, and the latter had been serving Campbellford since 1880, and had two branches in the town. H. W. Lapp was manager at the time of the amalgamation, and A. G. Thompson who took over the managerial duties in January, 1931, still holds that position.

The bank is located on the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, and it is reported that the closing is a reciprocal exchange with the Bank of Montreal, who are closing a branch at Mitchell in Western Ontario. Six people are on the staff in Campbellford.

The Royal Bank branch closed in 1935 and with the closing of the Bank of Commerce, Campbellford has just one branch bank to meet the banking needs of the community and district.

itary value, although it might be used as a listening and reconnaissance base.

In addition to Attu, the enemy was reported last Friday to have sent a few ships into the little harbor at Kiska. To-day authorities said they had been driven out.

While the latest engagement apparently has not yet been resolved, strategists were inclined to believe the imperial command had suffered paralyzing defeats in three major campaigns:

1. To sever the American supply line through the Coral sea, preliminary to an attempt to invade Australia.

2. To capture Midway Island and use it a sa springboard for a grand assault on Pearl Harbor.

3. To establish bases in the North for an invasion of the North American continent.

Leaving out the Aleutian score pending more complete reports, a compilation of the enemy's losses in the first two engagements, Coral and Midway, add up to 18 ships sunk, including three aircraft carriers and a cruiser, and at least 27 damaged.

Although it was not mentioned specifically in the naval communique, Lt.-Gen. Henry Arnold, army air chief, said flight of B-26 bombers had sunk a cruiser in the Aleutians and dropped a torpedo on the deck of a carrier. He made this disclosure in a telegram of congratulations to Glenn L. Martin of Baltimore, builder of the B-26s. Army bombers were used as torpedo planes for the first time in the Midway battle.

Ganeraska Project Advocated

PORT HOPE, June 16—(ENS).—The regular meeting of the Port Hope Town Council was held in the Council Chambers on Monday night with a good attendance. The following resolutions were passed: Cheque for $30.30 transferred to direct relief fund, $25.00 to the treasurer's petty cash account, $1,800 transferred to the Public School account, $5,000 to the Port Hope High School account.

The clerk was authorized to loan to Mr. Richardson, chairman O.C.R.A., one set of report and plans submitted by Dr. Acres of Niagara Falls and the James Proctor Redferns, in connection with a survey made for a flood prevention scheme in the Ganeraska River. It appears that a few years ago Dr. Acres of Niagara Falls was engaged to make a hydrographic survey of the Ganeraska River with special reference to flood conditions in the town.

The Street and Bridge Committee was authorized to purchase six drums of cold patch and one minimum carload of ⅝ chips from the Consolidated Sand and Gravel Co.

The Town Property Committee was authorized to purchase eleven window shades for the Assembly Room and cloak room in the Town Hall.

Reeve Harry Sirrett of Brighton and a member of the County Council, addressed the Council on the Ontario Conservation and Rehabilitation Association, pointing out the suggested schemes for work on the Ganeraska River after the war.

Mr. Sirrett's suggestion was that the town supply a dinner to bring these bodies together to discuss this matter. It would involve some 125 men. It is understood that both Dominion and Provincial Governments are considering this scheme at the present time.

Good Treatment Wasted On Nazis

LONDON, June 16. —(CP) —Paul Winterton, B B C correspondent in Russia, reported to-day that although he talked for hours with dozens of German prisoners in a Russian camp, "he found no real disbelief in a German victory."

Winterton said he had the feeling that if a German officer marched in and gave a sharp order, " in five seconds these prisoners would be a fighting unit once again, and would cheerfully go out into the neighboring village and start smashing, burning and looting all over again."

Winterton said his conclusion was that many of the German prisoners particularly the young men, are impervious to new ideas and have gained nothing from their decent treatment in the prison camp.

Rotary To Play Big Part In Future World

An outline of the part that Rotary has played in the past and will play in the future was given Rotarians by Commissioner Benjamin Orames of the Salvation Army at the luncheon on Monday when he delivered an address on "United for Service."

Adjutant Norman Buckley introduced Commissioner Orames, and told briefly about his career. The speaker was born in Australia and served with Australian forces in the East in the last war. He returned to Australia at the conclusion of the war and then proceeded to China, where he was engaged in Salvation Army work. He has also served in the United States, England, and Canada and has held many important jobs in the Salvation Army.

A member of the Toronto Rotary Club, Commissioner Orames urged that all members of the Peterborough Club try to attend Rotary International which is being held in Toronto for the first time in a number of years. Even though there will probably be fewer in attendance, he said they expected over 8,000 delegates, including a large number from the United States. The difficulties of travel are so great at the pre-

Germany Calls All Stocks, Bonds

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP). — All German owners of stocks and bonds have been ordered to turn their holdings over to the Reichsbank and accept in compensation Reich treasury bonds of current issue, the New York Times reported to-day from Berne, Switzerand.

This amounts to virtual expropriation, the Times said, since the treasury bonds must remain in the custody of the Reichsbank and will be treated as blocked securities which cannot be disposed of by their owners

The Times correspondent interpreted the move as a forecast that the German stock market would be eliminated as a free clearing house for deals in industrial stocks and bonds. He said it was not yet known whether the decree might also lead to outright nationalization of stock companies but that German financial writers indicated far-reaching developments were expected.

The primary purpose of the decree was believed to be to curb stock market manipulations and to control war profits in conformity with Germany's drastic regulations of other economic activities the Times said.

British Leave El Gazala, Shorten Line

Ritchie Gathering Units For Counter As Axis Near Tobruk

CAIRO, June 16—(AP)—A British withdrawal from positions south of Ain El Gazala, anchor of Britain's Libyan defences west of Tobruk, was announced by general headquarters today.

The communique said the withdrawal was made successfully by the 50th Division and South African 1st Division "under cover of a magnificent fight by troops holding positions around Acroma and the 1st Armored Division who beat off determined enemy attacks throughout the whole of June 14."

In the El Adem area, due south of Tobruk, it said three strong Axis attacks on British positions yesterday were repulsed with "heavy loss to the enemy."

After three exhausting weeks of fighting, the see-saw struggle on the Libyan desert appeared to be reaching its finale.

The Axis, evidently having mustered its remaining armor for a last burst of power, was making what seemed to be one final lunge toward its prime goal, Tobruk, Britain's key to the defence of the Egyptian border.

On the other side, Britain's 8th Army was counter-attacking in a wild mix-up of tanks and other mechanized forces to prevent the enemy from splitting it up and cutting off Tobruk once again.

Costly Drain On Equipment

The fighting, which has continued virtually without respite in blistering heat and swirling sand since Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's tanks swept against the British line May 16, has cost both sides heavily in machines and fatigue.

British sources believe that Rommel failed in his original aim to take Tobruk in a swift thrust and is able to continue only because the British forces, too, are weakened and weary.

They surmised, therefore, that both sides are near the end of their

Quebec's Flood Costs Thousands

SHERBROOKE, Que., June 16 —(CP) —Flood waters which caused damage officially estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars on the shores of the St. Francois river here, are subsiding today.

Meanwhile at Thetford Mines, Que., 60 miles east of here, 50 families evacuated when the Becancourt overflowed its banks, prepared to return to their homes as swirling waters receded from the streets.

The floods coming after heavy rainfalls, halted operations in numerous business establishments and industrial plants here, with damage to equipment, machinery and stock reported heavy. East Sherbrooke was practically cut off from the central section of the city, as waters flowed over river banks to inundate approaches to Aylmer bridge. People had to be ferried across flooded areas by horse-drawn vehicles and high-wheeled army trucks.

Boats and wagons were also called on to help remove people in homes situated close to the river, as water rose as high as the first floor of their homes. Streets in the eastern section were without lights as the automatic sub-station near the gas plant on Wellington street was flooded.

Residents of the area were also without gas as the gas plant itself became flooded. It was reported that 7,000 gallons of gas oil were lost when water seeped into an open container at the gas plant, overflowing the oil into a field.

Call For Conscription

TORONTO, June 16 — (CP). — Grand Master James Black of Winnipeg today demanded the Dominion Government carry out the wishes of the majority of Canadians expressed in the recent plebiscite vote and enforce total conscription for overseas service when he spoke at the 67th annual session of the Grand Black Chapter of British America here.

He criticized the Dominion Government for "appeasing" French-Canadians in the Province of Quebec.

CITIZEN-SCHOOL BOARD TILT MOVES TO NEW FRONT ON TUESDAY

1,000 Residents Urge Prompt Action

PORT HOPE, June 16.—(ENS)—More than 1,000 people in the town of Port Hope have signed the petition seeking to have the members of the High School Board removed from office and the chain of events continue to develop along the lakeshore school front, with the ratepayer's committee sending a delegation to the counties council meeting in Cobourg on Monday.

J. L. Sheehan of Port Hope, addressed the council in connection with the storm in Port Hope over the High School board's dismissal of the principal, G. I. Brackenbury. He told the council that he represented 1,000 petitioners who wanted a new board. The school had been brought from a "C" rating to an "A" rating under the principal and staff and was in the best shape it had been in 25 years. Eight of the nine teachers had resigned in protest of the Board's action, Mr. Sheehan said and it would be difficult to get a new staff. The ratepayers felt that as the council had an appointee on the Board, the council might help. On motion of Reeve J. A. Box, seconded by Deputy Reeve J. Moncrief, both of Port Hope, the matter was referred to the special schools committee who would confer with the county appointee on the Board and a representative of the ratepayers, and report back at this session. Council then adjourned until this afternoon.

It was the intention of the special schools committee to have the meeting at eight o'clock on Monday night but Mr. W. J. B. Davidson, chairman of the school board, and the man appointed by the counties council to the Board could not be reached in time to complete arrangements. It was learned this morning that the meeting is now scheduled for one o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, with Mr. F. L. Johnston of Port Hope sitting in as the citizen's committee representative.

At present he is organist at the Yorkminster church, Toronto, where he presides over a large four-manual organ and directs a choir of 70 voices. He has presented many of the major works in both organ and choral literature.

Couple Honored At Their Silver Jubilee

ROSENEATH, June 16 (ENS) — Saturday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Timlin was the scene of a happy family gathering. The occasion was the hosts' 25th wedding anniversary and twenty-three sat down to dinner. Following dinner came a surprise when the members of St. James' Anglican church, and neighbors came in and presented Mr. and Mrs. Timlin with a chest of silver. Alex Brown read an address conveying good wishes and congratulations from church and neighbors, and Master Theodore McCracken made the presentation. Although completely surprised both recipients responded.

The immediate family presented a gift of silver also with Miss Merla Kelly doing the honors.

A buffet luncheon was served previous to the presentations.

Present from a distance were Mrs. W. H. Haynes, daughter of the house, and son Billie of Cobourg, Mrs. C. Stewart of Orono, Mr. Timlin's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown and Miss Luella Brown of Peterborough.

24 Young People Confirmed Gore's Landing

GORE'S LANDING, June 16—(ENS). — The dignified yet simple ritual of the Confirmation service of the Church of England was solemnized in St. George's-on-the-Hill on Sunday evening when 24 young people were confirmed by Bishop Beverley.

The church, which is one of the prettiest Anglican churches in the country, lends itself to decoration, and the altar with pink roses and the chancel with red and white peonies, presented a most attractive picture for the evening service.

The choir was augmented by several members of St. Paul's Church, Perrytown, assisting in the choral portion of the service. The church was filled to capacity with friends and relatives of those becoming members of the Anglican communion and the hearty singing and responses entered into the spirit of the occasion.

Bishop Beverley in his talk to the Confirmation class, said how glad he was to be present because it was a country church. He sketched the history of the Church of England in Canada from 100 years ago when Bishop Strachan began his ministry from Ottawa in the East to Sandwich and Windsor in the West, and for the most part these parishes were all country parishes. Only the past 25 years the pendulum has swung to more members in city churches than the country. Bishop Beverley hopes the pendulum will again swing the other way towards the country. He said the hope of the church was in the confirmed young people who had renewed the vows made at baptism by their godparents. They had come to years of discretion and now took those vows on themselves, steadfastly determined to be a follower of Jesus Christ. This embittered world with its wars and strife is the result of men trying to live without God. Christians should know we need God every step of the way. The Bishop spoke of a Confirmation he had attended recently where each member of the class received a card which was headed "Habit is ten times nature." He asked each member to first form the habit of putting God first in life and told the story of St. Paul who did more to change the world than anyone else except Jesus Christ.

The second habit Bishop Beverley stressed was that of reading God's Word. We do not know how to live aright unless we read the Bible. He spoke of the late Lord Roberts, who was a Christian leader and who gave to his troops this message: "I ask you to put your trust in God. He will watch over you and keep you. You will find in this little Book (the Bible) guidance, comfort and strength."

The third habit is daily prayer, and the Bishop said the issue of this war is in God's hands. The greatest thing we can do is lift our hearts to God in prayer. Failure to pray is to forfeit blessing.

The fourth habit is regular attendance at church. Bishop Beverley told a story of the great artist, Turner, who, before starting to paint had a handful of precious stones which he gazed at to keep his color sense acute. The habit of regular communicants at least once a month was advocated by the Bishop, and the last habit was to undertake work or service for God by serving man. This is a real test.

Members of St. Paul's Church, Perrytown, and from St. John's Church, Harwood, also were present.

SPORTING BLOOD

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

The Story.—Hunter Dent, who manages wealthy Strickland Ballard's farm, is suspected of being involved in the robbery and murder of a bank messenger, through his protection of Ballard's dissipated son, Junior. Hunter found Junior lying unconscious beside a satchel containing $17,000, the amount taken from the messenger. Hunter had put the boy to bed, discovered next day that Junior had not been drunk, but shot and seriously wounded.

Hunter hides the money, next day finds it gone from a safe to which only he knew the combination. The tires of his car match the tracks of the "death car" which Junior drove and crashed on the estate, and which Hunter is hiding. But the sheriff examines Hunter's tires, finds there is no dust on them.

THE PACK GATHERS

CHAPTER VI

Sheriff Anderson folded his camera and dropped it back in the car seat. He continued to eye Hunter in a way the farm manager did not like. He murmured under his breath, "Um-mmmm," took out a small notebook and wrote things down. He repeated the name, "Hunter Dent." He asked, "And your official title is farm manager, that it?" Hunter nodded. The two men drove off. Hunter and Red faced each other.

The afternoon was declining. Hunter had a strange sense of time, as if not hours but weeks and months had elapsed since all this began. Red dropped on the bottom step of the stairs. She talked as if to herself. "It couldn't have been Junior's car. It could not have been Junior. He was in town last night—yes. He came back some time in the night, that's true. But he was with some of the gang every minute. With Hankins Temple, with the Ghibartos, with the twins, with Neal, Bill—it couldn't have been Junior—" She became aware of Hunter's eyes closely upon her. Startled out of thinking out loud, she rose. "I guess I'd better be going, Hunter."

She moved toward the house. With a growing uneasiness that he was shielding Junior at the dangerous expense of himself, Hunter returned to the woods. He had said his key was the only one to the old chain-and-lock. That was not true. There were two keys and Junior had the other. He reached the wrecked car. He could not go on lying too long about as big an exhibit as the automobile. When night came he must get in here and haul the car out. He could use the big truck. Where he would secrete the car was another question.

Red was gone when Hunter returned to the house. He asked Warwick, "Where did Miss Bella go?"

"To town, sir, I believe."

A sudden question, which overshadowed all the others, popped into Hunter's mind. Red standing there ruminating, making what amounted to an alibi for her brother. She named all present at the party except herself.

"Warwick!"

"Yes, sir, Mr. Dent?"

"You saw all that were at the party last night. Was Miss Bella there?"

"Yes, sir, she was."

"I mean all through it. Did she leave with the rest, or go away alone or with her finance?"

"Now you raise the question, Mr. Dent, I don't believe she was here when the party abruptly broke. It happened rather on the spur of the moment, sir, I would say. You know how they do—some one screams something, and they all scream, and all make a dash for their cars, and the house becomes like a tomb." He reflected. "Now you ask, Miss Bella evidently did not go with the rest."

Hunter decided, "One thing seems sure. Red didn't know, couldn't vouch in her own mind, that Junior wasn't mixed in the stick-up, the killing. She suspects. She is afraid. She is beginning to be convinced that I am mixed in it, deeper than anyone believes. But because she was not with the gang she can't know for sure, and has no way so far for finding out. Am I stupidly slipping a noose around my own neck?"

Hunter got the paper and read the fairly meagre details. A girl and her boy friend were on their way home from the neighborhood picture show not far from the river front about midnight. This region of town was of fairly ill repute. Old frame houses, sorry little corner stores, dark stairways where dangerous characters lurked. The couple heard cries, shouts, a string of oaths, and some pistol shots. They darted into a dark doorway. A young man with hat drawn low over his face walked and ran past. He had something under his arm. Later it proved to be the leather bag with the money. Or that was the supposition. Another young man in tails and silk hat, came along. He had a gun. He was running pretty fast after the young man ahead. He shouted, "Hey stick 'em up." It all happened so fast the couple hardly knew just how the details came. Anyway, there seemed to be two more people. Men. They just appeared. From nowhere, it would seem. The shots came fast now. When the girl screamed her boy friend clapped his hand to her mouth, telling her to keep it shut. They didn't want to get mixed in what was going on. So the rest of the doings were blurred. She didn't see the two again. The man in tails after shooting once seemed to have disappeared. She could hear running steps. The echoes jumped up and down in the cobbled street. Then the police showed up and by that time the bank messenger, as he later proved to be was lying in the middle of the narrow street, shot. The bag was gone. The girl and her boy friend couldn't run. The boy friend, however, escaped by running up the dark stairs and not coming to her rescue when the police nabbed her. The name was Sarah Kiker, and she worked part time at the munitions plant.

That was the jumbled story of an eye-witness. Sarah Kiker now was in jail. She declined to divulge the identity of her friend.

Hunter laid the paper aside thoughtfully. "There's a gal for you. There's a real sport."

Warwick came and began arranging things. Hunter watched with surprise. "Something doing tonight?"

"The young folks, sir, are planning a meeting. Not a party, but just a get-together, as Miss Bella said."

"I see. Well, Id better clear out."

Hunter went down to the born. The time was almost dusk. He had to get Junior's car out but what he would do with it afterward he could hardly think. He could put it temporarily here in the barn. He got out the heavy truck, some chains and made ready for the wrecking job.

He ate supper. There was a small dining-room attached to the servants' quarters for his use. By the time he was ready to attack the job in the woods cars bearing the guests were arriving. Hunter went out and stood in the shadows, so slashing headbeams would not readily show him watching. The crowd was quiet. They entered the house without much talk and no laughter at all. Red didn't seem to be about. It struck Hunter with an ominous portent that he might be included in the topics to be discussed; for there was no question their purpose was with Junior.

Hunter went through the shrubbery and shadows around the west side of the mansion. Here the low-branched magnolia trees made the dark into ink. He crept up to the window, open to the bland evening. He could see the group. Hankins Temple, the McDougal girls, Mrs. Ballard's brother Neal Frazier; the the Ghibarto twins. Red and his fiancee were not present. Frazier was leaning against the mantel, finishing a cigarette. He crushed it out in an ash tray. He was a short but powerful man. A bachelor hurrying into his late 30's, with a pretty watermelon belly, he nevertheless had a bulldog face and pugilistic build. He occupied the advantage of being the oldest member of this rather cultish group that made sportsmanship their battle cry.

"I'll wager you the real culprit is not far from where we are," he said. "All of you read the Kiker girl's story in the afternoon paper. Without going into details at this moment, but speaking from some inside dope which in turn is made up of many small things, I'm willing to lay odds on the killer's being right here. I mean an this place."

There was a hush. He finished. "I'm speaking of Hunter Dent, the manager here."

NORWOOD

Permission Granted For Navy Tag Day

NORWOOD, June 16 — (ENS).—The regular monthly meeting of the Norwood Municipal Council was held in the Council Chamber, with Reeve Rork Ferguson in the chair, and all the Council members present.

The accounts were presented as follows:

R. A. Dean salary, $50.00; W. B. Parcels, $50.00; County Treasurer, balance re county rates, 1941, $6.86; Cliff Davey, 8 cords of wood for the Hall, $72.00; J. R. Thompson, one cord of wood, $7.50; Norwood Register, printing account, $19.20.

Correspondence from the Navy League asking permission to hold a tag day on July 4 was received and on motion of Councillors Lochhead and Rogers the request was granted.

A number of appeals for adjustment of tax levies were received on the grounds of apparent errors in the assessment. These were laid over in order to obtain further information.

There was a lengthy discussion of the various phases of the plan to spread a quantity of gravel on the village streets. It was moved by Councillors Lochhead and Bitten that the contract for hauling and spreading 1,000 cubic yards of gravel from Hogg's Pit be awarded to Richard R. Patterson at a price of 50 cents per yard, said gravel to meet the approval and to be placed according to instructions from the Street Commissioner.

Rotary Speaker Tells Of West

CAMPBELLFORD, June 16 (ENS)—Something of the present conditions in the West was told Rotarians at their noon-day luncheon at the Woodlawn on Monday. Speaker of the day was Dr. H. B. Longmore, who recently returned from a vacation trip to Saskatchowan by air. He not only told of the country itself, whose treeless lands made it appear barren after living in Ontario, but also added a few comments on the pleasure of air travel. "I never saw a more complete service than that offered by the T.C.A." In his travels throughout the province near Swift Current he noted the absence of barns and comparative smallness of the houses. This was in contrast to the fact that most farms were very large, comprising generally an entire section of land. Dr. O. C. Watson voiced the appreciation of the Club to the speaker.

United Counties Mill Rate Down .15 Mills

COBOURG, June 16. —(ENS) — June session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council opened Monday afternoon with a heavy budget of business on hand. The clerk and treasurer announced the budget for 1942 as $232,424.84 with a mill rate of 6.55 mills. The rate last year was 6.7 mills. There are two members this session, Reeve G. McCubbin who replaces the late Reeve Herb Nelson of Percy Township and Deputy-Reeve John Westington of Cobourg who replaces Alan Field, now counties solicitor. The new reeve of Percy Township is a grandson of the late John McCubbin who was warden in 1926. The new assistant clerk, W. E. Barr of Coburg, was introduced to the Council by the clerk, Major E. L. MacNachtan. At the opening of the session, Warden Roy Dodge of Cobourg, held one minute silence for late Reeve Nelson, ex-warden J. L. McCamus of Cavan; Judge L. V. O'Connor and the late J. F. MacMillan, superintendent of the counties home. The new counties solicitor, Alan Field, who succeeded the late Colonel F. D. Boggs, K. C., was welcomed by the council. Deputy-Reeve W. A. Smith of Murray Township, was also welcomed back to his seat in the council after a long illness.

The budget for 1942 was tabled by the clerk. It called for a levy of $232,424.84 to be raised by a mill rate of 6.55 mills. In the uncontrollable expenditures the administration of justice was budgeted at $22,000; charity and welfare, $39,000; public and separate schools, $10,000. Controllable—roads $53,277.05; debentures and interest, $74,678.62; patriotic grants, $5,000; agricultural grants, $4,500; administration costs, $22,000; registry offices, $2,000; sundries, $3,611; less surplus of 1041, of $3,592; total, $232,424.84.

A. S. Miller, counties road superintendent, addressed the session asking for an increase of $400 in salary, which would bring it up to $2,500 per year. He pointed out that six other engineers received salaries ranging from $2,400 to $3,000 and all except one had less mileage to look after than he did. The mileage in the counties here should rate over $3,000 a year to the road superintendent as compared with salaries paid in country road systems of similar systems of similar size. The Department of Highway's paid 50 per cent. Referred to Finance Committee. Miss McMahon, the clerk in the road office, asked for a $300 increase in salary. This was also referred to the Finance Committee. Another request for a salary increase came from Peter Duncan, the caretaker of the Town Hall, who pointed out that his wages had been cut 20 per cent during the depression. His request was restoration of that cut: Finance.

Counicl received a communication from town solicitor in Port Hope which pointed out that the town was suing a local citizen for hospital maintenance for one of his family. The solicitor was ready to sue on behalf of the counties if so advised ,the letter stated; referred to Legislative and By-Laws. Other grants which were referred to the Finance Committee were from the Cobourg Kinsmen Club for the Milk for Britain Fund; grant for junior farmers work in Durham County; grant for the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association; Chinese War Relief Fund; Canadian Institute for the Blind; Midland Regiment for two bass horns; Navy League.

An interesting letter was read frm Deputy-Reeve R. J. Payne of Manvers Township, "the Mayor of Pontypool" who is on active service in England. With his characteristic wit, Mr. Payne told of his experiences in England with particular reference to a St. Patrick's Night party. The Mayor of Pontypool pointed out, quite modestly that he had maintained his capacity to celebrate in his observance of the event, which drew several "he would" comments from the members of the council.

Lesson to School Boards

They were advised that statement covering maintenance of counties pupils at Colborne and Frankford was late, the council took the attitude that if the school boards in question had no valid excuse for the fact that the requisitions had not been sent, it might teach a lesson in promptness if the council passed the matter up for the session.

"This delay is more serious than some may realize" stated the clerk. "The Schools committee have struck their rate. It might be a good thing for them to do without it, as it might teach them to get in in time after this."

"I would suggest that the clerk write the boards and if they have no valid excuse, they can forfeit the allowance," suggested the warden.

The matter was referred to the Schools committee.

Sent to Committee

A resolution from Peterborough county council pointing out that rural students in secondary schools were taking subjects that were taking them away from agriculture, suggested that the Department of Education be petitioned to relieve the agricultural areas from some of the burden of costs in connection with secondary school education; referred to schools committee. Other resolutions from outside county councils were: Waterloo county council, resolution asking that no tax be on gas used for tractors, referred to legislative and bylaws; Hamilton township council urging establishment of Nurses Training Schools in hospitals of certain sizes, referred to legislative and bylaws;

Wentworth county council guarantee from Hepburn government that in the event of continued life of the government for the duration, that no legislation which would curtail the powers of municipalities be passed without due notice so that the municipalities would be given an opportunity to state their case, referred to legislative and bylaws; Lennox and Addington, asking that insurance companies lower their rates on road insurance; referred to legislative and bylaws.

Ask Fine Returned

Solicitor for Robert Bateson of Seymour township, the juror who was fined $20 for contempt of court by Judge Plaxton last March in the Horsburgh case, for discussing a case with a witness, wrote to the counties council pointing out that Bateson had satisfactorily explained to the Judge on the following day to the offense, that he had not been discussing the case, the Judge had directed return of the fine. The solicitor accordingly requested the council to refund Bateson the money. The letter was referred to the legislative and bylaws committee.

A communication from the Ontario Agricultural College advised the council that in connection with the Plant Disease Act, the government would pay 25 per cent of the costs of corn bore inspection. Request of Dr. A. R. Richards, jail surgeon, for a 15 per cent increase in salary was referred to the finance committee.

The report of the surgeon of the counties Home, showed that in the period from November 1, 1941 to June 1, 1942, there were 100 inmates. There were no births but seven deaths. Except for chronic diseases, the health of the inmates was satisfactory, the report said.

On recommendation of the Warden, the Counties Council appointed a three man committee to see that the council made some suitable reference in regard to the return of the clerk's wife from the hospital in Toronto to her home in Cobourg. Letters from the family of the late Judge L. V. O'Connor and the late J. F. MacMillan thanked the council for its expression of sympathy.

Letter From Crown Attorney.

The clerk read a letter from the Parliament Debates Conscription

The conscription debate is now well on its way and it has already provided plenty of excitement. The Prime Minister opened the debate with an excellent and clear exposition of the Government's position; Mr. Hanson spoke with unaccustomed eloquence in attacking that position; Mr. Cardin, despite repeated apologies for his English (which is better than that of many of the English-speaking members of the House) made a deeply touching address. Up to the moment the debate has lived up to expectation.

When the Prime Minister rose to open the debate he found himself in a peculiar position, partly as a result of his own manoeuvres and partly as a result of determined activity on the part of his political opponents. The debate will settle the vexed question of conscription in Canada, and the Prime Minister is anxious that it should do so without shattering our national unity. His own approach to the problem has been anything but bold; a long series of cautious moves culminated in a plebiscite which many Canadians felt was unnecessary and somehow disgraceful, and his opening of the debate which was to force conscription for a second time upon the unwilling Province of Quebec was a masterpiece of cautious persuasion.

But the difficult position in which the Prime Minister found himself was not all of his own making. A large group of his political opponents have made it an article of their faith that the present Government is reluctant to raise the war effort to its highest level and that it is particularly anxious to placate the French-Canadians for political purposes. Anyone who examines the situation with an unprejudiced eye must realize that this is untrue. The Government has made some bad blunders, but on the whole its record of achievement is a fine one. The character of the Government, however, and in particular the reclusive, evasive and uncommunicative character of the Prime Minister, has made it the subject of many accusations which are not borne out by fact. Certainly the recent conduct of the Government cannot be construed as an attempt to coddle Quebec, but the cry still goes up that the Government is playing politics. It is one of the paradoxes of our system that the Government in power is not supposed to play politics, although the Opposition party is permitted to do so to the full extent of its ability.

• • •

Mr. Hanson made an excellent speech when his turn came to contribute to the debate. But there was a fault of logic in it, or a change of position, which will not bear examination. Mr. Hanson gave it as his view that the "Yes" vote on the plebiscite was a vote for conscription at once. Mr. Hanson knows very well that that is not true. Anyone who read the plebiscite question knows that it is not true. The plebiscite was taken to release the Government from a previous obligation in order that it might introduce conscription when that measure was necessary. Just that and no more. Indeed, Mr. Hanson gave clear evidence that he knew what was what in this matter before the plebiscite was taken.

• • •

Mr. Cardin's speech was a fine one, but it was a speech for a lost cause, and lost causes are always a little pathetic. The speech increased our admiration for Mr. Cardin, and aroused in us a keen sympathy for his people, but neither of those factors can alter the circumstances in which the French-Canadians find themselves. Their position is understandable, and up to a point it is defensible, but it is also very selfish and it is calculated to do great harm to the development of this country. Therefore it must go. French-Canadian nationalism, charming and picturesque as it is, must accommodate itself to the exigencies of the modern world, for only by doing so can it save itself. The province of Quebec cannot enjoy the privileges of belonging to the Dominion unless it is prepared to shoulder the burdens. And as Canada without Quebec is unthinkable, there is but one course open. Nevertheless Mr. Cardin's speech was shot through with a spirit which we admire, profoundly as we disagree with it.

Some excitement was provided in the debate by Mr. Coldwell's vote of lack of confidence in the Government and his demand that the National Resources Mobilization Act be so amended as to stand Canada on its head for a couple of years at least. The first effect of the scheme which Mr. Coldwell proposed would have been the disruption of Canada's present war effort entirely. The impression which we received from Mr. Coldwell's speech was that the C.C.F. opposes the amendment of the N.R.M.A. unless the other changes in which it is interested are made at the same time. This scarcely seems logical. Surely the C.C.F. is interested in forwarding any movement which forms a part of its total scheme. But we cannot help wondering whether the elaborate program presented by Mr. Coldwell in his amendment represents the views of the C.C.F. as a whole. That party has shown itself possessed of a keen sense of political realism in the past, and the Coldwell scheme was anything but realistic.

Meanwhile, the debate progresses, and it will most certainly end by putting the power in the Governments' hands to introduce conscription for overseas service when it feels that such a move is necessary. The ardent conscriptionists are not pleased about this, but we cannot see what is nettling them. Even if conscription for overseas service were made effective now, no men would leave these shores until Government felt that they should go. Whatever the means adopted, the end will be the same. Nor are we impressed by the argument that Britain and the U.S. will hold us in contempt if we do not conscript at once. Britain and U.S. are not so deeply concerned with our doings as all that, and as long as our troops do well when the time comes they will not fuss about the manner in which they were brought on the field.

The Ambiguous Aleutians

At the time of writing the situation with regard to the Aleutian Islands is confused. Directly following a Japanese claim that some parts of the islands had been occupied by their forces the U.S. issued a bland denial; they had had no unexpected visitors, they said. Soon afterward they published a report that the Japs had indeed landed in the Aleutians, but not in sufficient numbers to cause alarm. As we write the situation is reported to be well in hand.

The Aleutians are mysterious to most of us. They are that long chain of islands, about 150 in all, which extends westward from the Alaskan peninsula for about 1,200 miles. They are not heavily settled, they have little in the way of modern means of communication, and they are foggy and insalubrious.

The Japs have been gleeful over their supposed success in the Aleutians. They have assured their people that these islands can no longer be used as bases from which U.S. bombers may attack Japan, and they claim that they can establish bases on the islands from which they will be able to attack this continent. This is true enough. They might be able to establish air bases there from which they could attack our coast (and it is highly probable that they would attack Canadian as well as American cities) and they could disrupt communications with Russia very badly. If Japan should attack Russia she would herself be in constant danger of attacks from the Aleutians, both upon her shipping and troops, and upon the Japanese islands themselves.

The Japs are using their success in the Aleutians to gloss over their defeat at Midway, but we cannot assume that they will be content with this. The Aleutians, from being a forgotten and neglected group of islands, have become extremely important and ambiguous. If the U.S. holds them she can perhaps prevent Japan from attacking Russia; if the Japs gain them, or a few of them, they may be able to cut down American supplies to Russia and make serious raids on our West Coast. But American air power, which worked so well at Midway, has not said its say yet, and it may alter the situation by giving the Japs another black eye.

A Time For Everything

The right to criticize the Government in power is one which we citizens of democratic countries cherish dearly and we should not tolerate any attempt to curtail it. But every right which we enjoy carries with it a corresponding duty, and our right to criticize the Government carries with it the obligation to do so at appropriate times and in appropriate ways; we must exercise a certain amount of discretion and taste in our criticisms. That is why we strongly disapprove of the remarks made by Lieutenant-Colonel Sidney Lambert, chaplain of the Christie Street Hospital of Toronto, when he spoke at the dedication of a soldier's plot and monument at Oshawa on Sunday.

The chaplain is reported to have spoken thus: "Canada needs a man at Ottawa who will not wait for bombs to drop on Canadian soil before he does something about it. It isn't fair for British Canadians to do all the fighting, and if the man in Ottawa would get the French-Canadians into the army as well as other nationals in Canada he would be doing something worthwhile."

Lieutenant-Colonel Lambert would do well to recall the words of the Preacher: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." We do not consider a gathering for the purpose of dedicating a soldiers' memorial a fitting occasion for an utterance calculated to prejudice one part of this country's population against another. Nor do we consider such a speech as this either discreet or in good taste from a man who bears the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. Nor do we consider it a speech becoming a clergyman. Whatever Mr. Lambert's private opinions of the Government may be, he is ill-advised to express them in his dual public capacity. As a soldier he owes a duty to the Crown, and public criticism of the Crown's chief advisor in this country is no part of that duty. As a clergyman his attempt to set one group of his countrymen against another is curious, to say the least.

What Army officer, not a chaplain, would dream of speaking in public as Mr. Lambert has done? What clergyman, speaking in his pulpit and not in the open air, would dream of speaking as Mr. Lambert has done? It seems that this gentleman has presumed too far upon his somewhat unusual position. Is there no military authority which suggests to chaplains that public criticism of the Government is unwise in a soldier? Is there no Church authority which suggests that the stirring up of national disunity is a poor way of preaching? Once again, we state our complete agreement with the right of free speech, but we like to see it allied with discretion.

A SAILOR'S SEA

The ocean's Winter tempests
  Roar fiercely dark and grey;
While cutting wind and icy blast
  Howl like a wolf at bay;
The jet black clouds in headling flight
  Anoint the sky with crown of night.

In Springtime when the gentler winds
  Bring warmer rain and sun,
When color moves from grey to blue
  With sky and sea as one;
Then ships are lifting to the seas
  And white sails filling in the breeze.

The Summer months with glassy sea
  And softly rolling swell,
With blood-red sun at eventide
  Caught in a fairy spell,
Display another Neptune's realm
  With peace around and steady helm.

When Autumn hovers once again,
  When days close in and night
With all her terrors deeply dark
  Invades the sailor's right,
Then it is he devoutly kneels
  And prays to God the things he feels.

Plan for Victory In the Air

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

WHEN a reviewer is confronted with a book concerning a matter of which he is wholly ignorant, two courses are open to him: he may bluff it out, knowing that only a few of his readers will catch him, or he may confess his ignorance and say only those things which will give his reader a notion of what the book is about. In my time I have pursued both courses, but on this occasion I am going to choose the latter, and safer one. I am going to write a review of Major Alexander P. de Seversky's new book, "Victory Through Air Power" (which is published in this country by Mussons), and I confess freely that I am no man to offer a judgment upon such a book.

But I may say quite honestly that I enjoyed reading the book. Major Seversky is a scientist and an enthusiast, and he writes with the clarity of the former and the sprightliness of the latter. His experience of aviation dates from the last war, when he left the Russian Navy to become a flier. When Russia dropped out of the war he was in the U.S. as a member of the Russian Naval Aviation Mission, and he offered his services to the Republic, which he later adopted as his homeland. For some time he was consulting engineer to the U.S. War Department, and when he became an American citizen he also became a major in the U.S. Air Corps Specialist Reserve. He has been responsible for designing some of the most remarkable planes in the world, and was a pioneer in high-altitude combat tactics. And he is also a prophet who has been right more often than he has been wrong, which is high praise for a prophet in this war.

SEVERSKY does not think that any nation has yet grasped the full meaning of air power in modern war. When he visited France in 1939, trying to sell U.S. planes, he found that nation so foolishly enamored of its Maginot Line that it was depending on an old-fashioned slow plane to pull it through in the air. French test pilots falsified the records of his plane, and the French Air Minister said that they did so "out of loyalty to the French aviation industry." In Britain the tests given his machines were scrupulously fair and the R.A.F. was enthusiastic about them, but manufacturers were unwilling to permit planes to be produced in the Dominions for fear of losing big profits at home. In Germany he found a splendid industry, but a reliance on numbers rather than quality; the German planes were inferior to the British. The story of Seversky's travels in pre-war Europe is a tale of greed, stupidity and fundamental indifference to the real problems of air war. France was relying upon her Maginot Line; Britain was relying upon her Navy; Germany was relying on her Army.

And what about the U.S.? Seversky is very severe on his own country. The States, in his opinion, has learned nothing from the mistakes of others, and has even now "scarcely a suspicion of anything resembling an over-all aviation strategy." American aviation, he says, is too much concerned with producing planes in great numbers, regardless of quality and design. He reveals, for instance, that the much-trumpeted Tomahawk fighters were so poor in performance that the British were unable to use them in heavy fighting, and—final disgrace—had to ship many of them to Libya to fight the wretched Italian planes! American flyers in the R.A.F. prefer to use the British Hurricanes and Spitfires, as these have the workmanship and sticking power which their own planes lack. No American planes were used in the recent big raids on Cologne and Essen. Seversky's complaint again and again is that the U.S. aircraft industry is more interested in amazing the public than in amazing the enemy. For instance, when U.S. planes still carried two machine guns the Europeans planes carried eight, and when cannon were mounted on European planes U.S. publicity rose to the emergency by renaming the machine guns cannon! This may be good "merchandizing" but it is not the way to win a war.

SEVERSKY'S strictures on the aviation concepts and the planes of his own country are severe, and many American officials have dismissed him as a 'crack-pot.' Many a genius has been called a 'crack-pot' by men of inferior intellect, and certainly Seversky has called the throw on most of the revolutionary changes in plane design. The first fully automatic bomb sight was his; so was the first low-wing monoplane; so was the first rapid-flying amphibian; so was the air-cooled engine. Has any man who has called Seversky a 'crack-pot' done better than this?

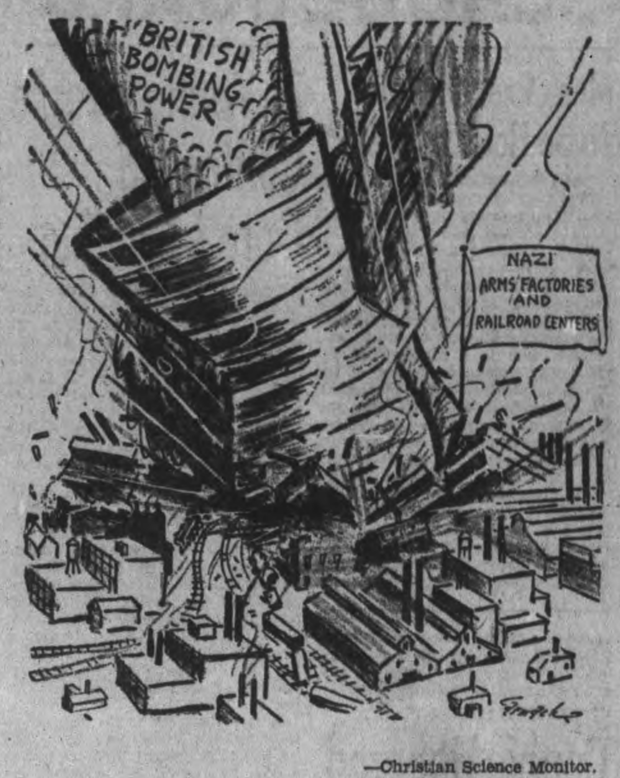
What Seversky begs for is what he calls "unhampered thinking" about air war. Such thinking in the U.S. is prohibited by the fact that that country has no independent Air Force; the Army has one air force and the Navy another. Britain could only be induced to form a separate R.A.F. by stark necessity. Unhampered thinking, in Seversky's opinion, would produce an air force with real power to strike. Of course the book was written before the recent great raids, and it may be that the R.A.F. has provided Seversky with what he wants. I recommend this book to you strongly; I am not competent to judge it but I found it the most stimulating book that I have read so far about aviation, and it contains some remarkable sidelights on human nature.

THE "FRUITS" OF AGGRESSION



—Christian Science Monitor.

• 2nd Front Looms Closer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

ON the heels of a disclosure that United States long-range bombing planes are taking a hand in the Mediterranean war theatre come Italian claims that heavily guarded British convoys have been spotted and bombed while moving eastward in that sea.

Taken together these reports create an impression that some sort of Allied nutcracker operation fraught with second-front possibilities might be shaping up against the Axis in the East as well as the West.

Forced landing of some of the American Army planes in Turkey for internment revealed their presence. Nothing is known as to their actual mission, the bases from which they operated or the size of the force. But from any British-held area in the Eastern Mediterranean ships of their fuel—and bomb load capacity are a grave menace to Germany's vital oil resources in Rumania.

IMPRESSIVE CLAIMS

So far as British convoys alleged to have been intercepted and badly knocked about in the Mediterranean waistline area go, the impressive aspect of the Italian reports is the stated size and composition of the naval escort. Damage to British battleships and plane carriers as well as cruisers and destroyers was recounted by Rome. Twin flotillas, strongly flanked by warships, were said to have been spotted moving eastward through relatively narrow and dangerous waters somewhere in the triangle formed by Sardina, Sicily and French Tunisia.

Only a major movement would seem to justify naval protection of that character. Just why heavy convoys of British troops or supplies should be travelling eastbound in those waters is difficult to see in any case. The Italian claim that the action took place on the Italian side of the Mediterranean waistline, between Sardinia and Sicily, instead of off the African coast, makes it all the more difficult to explain.

NOT LOGICAL ROUTE

The Sicilian Straits, which have been sufficiently dominated by Axis air power to be used to ferry reinforcements to Libya for Rommel's new offensive, would not seem to be the logical route for bolstering British forces in Eastern Libya. It seems hardly possible that as large a sea movement as Rome indicates could have been expected to slip through undetected.

There is no doubt, however, that a furious sea-air battle of some sort has been fought in Italian waters, so to speak. Rome admits the loss of twenty-one planes, while claiming fifteen British aircraft downed, seven British naval and supply ships sunk and many other vessels badly damaged.

There is at least a suggestion of a British attempt to seize a shore base somewhere in Italy or possibly to land forces in Western Libya in the rear of Rommel's fully engaged Axis armies trying to break through to Tobruk, hundreds of miles to the east. Success in either case would virtually cut Rommel off from his supply lines since the British Navy and air force controls the Eastern Mediterranean.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the Lord....

And I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage, and I have remembered my covenant. Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments.—Ex. vi, 2, 5, 6.

And they took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderness. And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night: he took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.—Ex. xiii, 20-22.

Our fathers understand not thy wonders in Egypt; they remembered not the multitude of thy mercies; but provoked him at the sea, even at the Red Sea. Nevertheless he saved them for his name's sake, that he might make his mighty power to be known.

He rebuked the Red sea also, and it was dried up: so he led them through the depths, as through the wilderness, And he saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.—Ps. cvi, 7-10.

JOIN THEM

An authoress of some note in her day once asked a famous editor to give his opinion on a book she had written, and which she proposed publishing. She wrote him:

"If the work is not up to the mark I beg you to tell me so as I have other irons in the fire."

The editor read just half a dozen pages of the manuscript, then rolled it up and returned it to the lady with a note that said:

"Madame, I suggest that you put this book with your other irons."

HUNGRY

Two very weary soldiers were hiking the long, long road back to camp. It was a lovely evening, and presently one paused to admire the sunset and the view.

"Isn't it lovely, he exclaimed. "It makes me feel like the poet. 'Oh, for the wings of a dove,' you know."

The other wiped his streaming brow and retorted: "I'd rather have the breast of a chicken, thanks."

PERFECT CONTINUITY

No less an authority than Hitler himself has designated the late Reinhard Heydrich as "one of our martyrs." The first one was the degenerate, Horst Wessel, so addition of the "Hangman" to the list is at least an assurance that the low level of Nazi martyrdom is being maintained.—Windsor Star.

HANGMAN'S REQUIEM

REINHARD HEYDRICH has gone where all men go, to his judgment. He was cut down in his prime. He had few friends to mourn him, but it may be said with some truth that his place will be hard to fill. His capacity was that of acting Reich's protector of Bohemia and Moravia; a public executioner familiarly and fearfully known as The Hangman.

The world has already judged him and vengeance has found him out. Moralizing about him is vain. He is beyond the pale of vengeance, removed from the recriminations of humanity. Neither Nazi eulogy nor bitter human opprobium now matter to the man. He is one with his victims in the camarederie of death.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

Belfield-Coughlin Vows Taken At St. Peter's

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral on Monday, June 15, 1942, when Victorine Anne, daughter of Mr. James Coughlin and the late Mrs. Coughlin of Douro was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Stanley Victor, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Belfield, London, Ont. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Wolff of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mary, while Martin Coughlin, brother of the bride, ably assisted the groom. The bride was charmingly attired in an ankle-length gown of white georgette with finger-tip veil and white accessories and carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. The bridesmaid wore an ankle-length frock of pale blue crepe and white accessories and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served to the immediate friends at Hooper's palm rooms. The bridal party left on the evening train for Toronto and other points west the bride travelling in a navy blue suit with white accessories. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a beautiful gold cross and chain, and to the groomsman a combination gold bar pin and file.

DOROTHY DIX

SEPARATION IS DANGEROUS FOR MARRIED BOY AND GIRL

A Scared Young Woman Is Advised Not to Wed Until War is Over.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young girl in love with a boy with whom I have been keeping company for a year. I have been trying to persuade him to marry me before he goes into the army, but he refuses and says it will be best to wait until the war is over. I am scared that I will never get married if I wait that long. Do you think I should wait, or break up with him and look for someone else?

UNDECIDED.

ANSWER: I think the boy is exactly right about waiting until the war is over to marry, and I only hope he has enough backbone to refuse to let you rush him into a hysterical war wedding. He knows that in these uncertain times it is folly to take on new responsibilities, and that he is going to have plenty of cares and anxieties to worry over without adding the troubles of a family man to them.

He also realizes, as you do not, that absence puts a great strain upon the affections of young people, and that it is a dangerous thing for a boy-husband and a girl-wife to be parted. Both soon tire of being cut off from the pleasures and amusements of their time of life. They want to dance and go places and do things and chum around with other boys and girls. And if they do that, there is always the chance that they may forget the absent wife or husband and find someone whom they like better.

Hence the wise thing is for them to keep themselves free until the time comes when they can marry and lead a normal family life. Believe me, daughter, you would get mighty tired sitting up waiting two or three years for your husband to come back, with no livelier amusement than reading an improving book, or looking for the letters that perhaps never will come.

Look Before You Leap

Apparently you want to marry this boy not because you are so much in love with him, but because you are afraid you will be an old maid. You want to marry just to be a-marrying, and that is about the silliest reason on earth for doing it.

Look about you and see how many of your girl friends who are married are better off than you are with your job. Look at Sally whose husband knocked off work when he got married and makes her support him. Look at Janey whose husband drinks and beats her up when he is in his cups. Look at Mable who has aged ten years in the two she has been married and who looks so dragged out with the cooking and washing and ironing and baby-tending she has to do that she makes you want to cry over her.

A good husband is God's best gift to a woman, but a bad husband is the worst curse the devil can send her. So don't marry any man until you find one you love enough to wait for until he is ready to marry.

Will Have to be Brutal

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband's brother has recently married. He and his wife have a nice home of their own in another part of the state, but they are chronic visitors who descend on us, bag and baggage, without any invitation whenever they want a outing. They use our house as a free hotel. The wife sleeps until 11 o'clock in the morning. Her husband wants his breakfast at 9. If they miss getting in at our dinner hour, they raid the icebox.

We are people in very moderate circumstances, with a small house. I work at home as an artist from eight to ten hours a day and do my own housework; so all of this extra work and responsibility is breaking me down. Now my new sister-in-law has informed me that she intends to spend her vacation with me and is going to bring her mother along. What in the world can I do? How can I tactfully brush them off without hurting my husband's feelings?

N. G. L.

ANSWER: There is no tactful way of dealing with deadbeats. You have to be brutal with them because if they had any delicacy of feeling they would not impose themselves upon you. All that they are considering is beating a hotel bill by wishing themselves off on you.

If you haven't the nerve to tell them to their faces that you cannot afford to finance their outings, wait until they get home and then write them a letter in which you can tell them in no unmistakable terms that you cannot afford the luxury of entertaining them and that, in addition to the expense they put you to, they interfere with your work and imperil your job, and that they will have to find another stopping place when they come to the city.

Too Many Beans

Lots of other people are also afflicted with grafting relatives, and a number of women have written me how they solved this problem. One woman said that she lved in the country and that every Sunday a horde of her and her husband's relatives not only drove out but brought their friends along, for a good dinner of fresh vegetables and country chicken. She stopped them by the simple expedient of serving beans. Just beans. Nothing but beans. She filled them so full of beans that they quit coming.

Another woman, faced with the same situation, stuck up sgns all over the house reading: "Dinner $2." And when her uninvited guests arrived she told them how nice it was that they were her first customers. That was that and the last of them.

When we let ourselves be imposed upon we have no one but ourselves to blame. If we had the backbone of a fishing worm we wouldn't stand for it.

13 Years Too Late

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am the mother of a 13-year-old girl who is pretty, attractive, whom we dress beautifully and whom we have given every advantage she could ask. But she is practically impossible to live with. She is rebellious, unruly, high-tempered, has even struck me, and says the most terrible things to her father. We have tried everything we can think of in the way of persuasion, indulgences and denying her things she wants, but nothing does any good. She defies us. What can we do?

TROUBLED MOTHER.

ANSWER—You are just thirteen years too late in asking that question. You have evidently spoiled the girl rotten and now you are reaping what you have sown.

The best thing you can do now for her is to send her off to a boarding school. She will be ashamed to act among strangers as she does at home, and when she is away from you perhaps she will begin to appreciate your love and kindness to her.

For Wednesday, June 17

An exceptionally eventful and progresive day, with many surprises and sudden developments, is read There may be strange, novel and from interesting planetary aspects, dramatic turns, and while momentarily breathtaking in the long run they combine to make for enduring, stable and well-organized good fortunes, with increased possessions, and enhanced credit and popularity. For such solid achievements it would be well not to be carried off a firm and conservative foundation.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an exceedingly lively, eventful and colorful if not hectic year. Much of a strange, unpredictable and dramatic nature may develop, with sudden situations or opportunities arising which may be momentarily thrilling and enticing yet in the long run make for enduring and solid success and good fortune. The danger is in being carried to extremes of excitements, extravagance or cupidity.

A child born on this day should have much initiative, courage, audacity and ingenuity, which should bring surprising success, but a proclivity to take long chances.

Wilson-Smith Nuptials At Port Hope

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Mark's Church, Port Hope, Wednesday afternoon, June 10, at three o'clock, when Mildred Viola, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith Port Hope, became the bride of John Wilson, younger son of Mrs. Melville Wilson and the late Mr. Wilson of Bewdley.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor-length wedding gown of white marquisette over white satin. The finger-tip veil had a halo headdress, and she carried a bouquet of roses and carnations with orange blosoms.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Scott, who wore a pale blue marquisette over satin gown and carried bouquet of mums.

Hilton Morton of Bewdley was the groom's attendant.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Crosthwaite, before the altar banked with the season's flowers, and the ushers were Melville Smith, brother of the bride, and Earl Wilson, the groom's brother.

Later, a reception to thirty-five guests was held at Seaton Hall, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of queen's blue sheer and a corsage of sweet-peas She was assisted by the groom's mother in a navy sheer, wearing a similar corsage.

Amid a shower of good wishes the happy young couple left on a honeymoon, to eastern points. The bride's travelling costume was a violet figured silk with white accessories.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside on the groom's farm near Bewdley.

Work On Quilts At Kinettes' Final Meeting

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Kinettes was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. R. L. Shill with Mrs. Maurice Holt presiding.

After a short business session the third quilt was completed, with Mrs. W. E. Fanning in charge. As a matter of interest, a letter from Mrs. Mary G. Hall, war convener of the Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., Toronto, concerning the second quilt sent by the Kinettes. This quilt has been included in the "Samples" that are being sent to the National meeting in Montreal. Mrs. Hall said the quilt was a work of art and beautifully warm.

The quilts are made from old socks and sweaters, and last evening enough squares were brought in to finish the fourth quilt and to start work on the fifth.

Meetings will not be held during the summer but work on the quilts will be continued and the milk bottles for "Milk for Britain" will be collected. The next meeting will be held the third Monday in September at the home of Mrs. Ken Smylie, 708 Bethune street.

Rotary to Play

sent time that it should be considered a real triumph if any international delegates should reach Canada, he said.

Good Fellowship.

"Rotarianism the world over has one outstanding characteristic," he said, "and that is a peculiar bond of unity and good fellowship. I urge that new and younger members get into Rotary work immediately because it is a great help in expressing ideas of service, wherever you go."

He explained that unity is found everywhere and that it has become the keynote of business, clubs and the totalitarian and democratic countries which are fighting this war, and that great strides have been made in religious unity. In this connection he told of a large meeting held recently in San Francisco where representatives of the Roman Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths met to discuss common ideas for the future action of the churches.

"Rotarianism and united service are synonymous terms. The name Rotarian means that in the case of business, sickness or the needy, that a sincere effort will be made by Rotarians to be kind to each other and those on the outside."

A description of the work of the Singapore Rotary Club, which was extremely cosmopolitan, was described, along with that of some of the American clubs from Alaska to Denver. He told of the experience of one Salvation Army man with the work of the Shanghai Club, where after the Japanese took over the city, on a cold night hundreds were frozen and there were 67,000 beggars to be washed, clothed and fed. The Shanghai Council helped, and the Rotarians contributed a great deal to this work.

For the Future.

"When Churchill and Roosevelt met on the high seas a few months ago they were legislating not just for to-day but for the future, and Rotary Clubs the world over will have the opportunity to make an outstanding contribution to a better world," he said. He recalled to his audience a vivid sight he had seen of three high peaks in Switzerland and how he was of the opinion that it was the lower peaks which helped hold up the higher ones. "Service clubs to-day are the lower mountains holding up the three peaks, the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force," Commissioner Orames concluded.

The vote of thanks for the club was moved by George Roper.

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. John's, Newfoundland, formerly of Peterborough, was a guest of the club and spoke a few words concerning the country of Newfoundland itself and of his work among the troops stationed there. He paid very high praise to the members of the armed forces and said they were the strong wall between freedom for Canada and tyranny.

Ten to Ace Back In Shape Again

TORONTO, June 16.—Ten to Ace, King's Plate and Prince of Wales Handicap winner, was taken down with a slight attack of car fever on his way to Winnipeg recently.

Rumors were current around Dufferin yesterday that the son of Stand Pat and Royalite was seriously ill. Harry Giddings, owner of the crack 3-year-old was contacted at Oakville before he left last night for Winnipeg. He said he had received word from R. J. Speers of Whittier Park race track that the cold had responded to treatment and was ready for training for the Canadian Derby to be run at Winnipeg.

Ten to Ace was found to be suffering from liver trouble after his last race at Thorncliffe. Dr. J. H. B. Black treated the horse, and he was fully recovered when he was shipped West. Owner Giddings intends putting Ten to Ace down to serious training just as soon as he arrives at Winnipeg. The course the Derby is to be run over is a three-quarter mile track. Jockey Charley Smith will work Ten to Ace in all his trials prior to the big race.

An effort was made to have Ten to Ace enter in the Belmont Stakes. A New York publication remarks that Giddings ignored the nomination blank and also checked back to note the Canadian-bred has not been nominated for race to be run at Saratoga. "We are doing all right here," said Giddings when asked about shipping to the United States.

TORONTO, June 16. — (CP).—The search for youth in bigtime baseball has been part of the regular program for years, but in strictly a leisurely fashion....Now the boys really mean it....Pittsburg Pirates opened a five-day baseball school in Toronto to-day and its bosses hope to come out of it with something more than sunburn....Several good baseballers have come out of Ontario and there may be a few more knicking around the corner lots.

Most prominent Ontario grads in the majors are Jeff Heath of Fort William (Cleveland), Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene and Dick Fowler of Toronto (Athletics) and Lefty Judd of Ingersoll (Boston) ....Fred (King) Lear and Bob Rice, head of the Pittsburg farm system will run the school and hope to plug some of the gaps caused by enlistments and the draft.

Paddock Patter

There's at least one race follower in the country who isn't impressed by Harry Giddings' great Ten to Ace....He's Arlin Bassett, jockey for the Hollywood stable in Winnipeg, who mused thusly on looking at the Ace: "Well, maybe he's pretty fast, but we got one faster—Son of War. He ran six furlongs in 1.10"....Aside to the Ace's groom ...."I'll bet him against yours." They may never meet, because Son of War isn't eligible for the Canadian Derby, the Ace's business in Winnipeg.

Incidentally:

A few days ago Les (Brooklyn Dodgers) Webber and Lefty (Pittsburg Pirates) Wilkie were opposing pitchers....Both once played in the Vancouver City League, Webber for Arnold and Quigley and Wilkie for Arrows....Neither showed enough stuff for Vancouver's Western International League Capilanos to tie a string....Webber stuck out only about five weeks with the amateur outfit and Wilkie was an in-and-outer.

Jack Carrigan, who umpired occasionally in the Northern League during recent years, worked a game in Halifax a few days ago....He's a stoker in the navy now....Shareholders of the Portage La Prairie junior hockey club estimate the Memorial Cup cost $8,653....It's one of the cheapest of the major championships, the Grey and Allan Cups coming much higher....Harness racing is booming on the prairies in the smaller centres....Moose Jaw, Brandon, Portage La Prairie and a host of other western towns expect a sharp increase in attendances and interest this year.. It's a great sport. One of the most exciting and its exponents are more intriguing (in a gentle sort of way) than the men who boss the greater running race industry

Cubs Defeat Sacred Heart 11-7

Cubs defeated Sacred Heart 11 to 7 in a Catholic League game at Memoria Park, Monday night. It was the fifth win in eleven starts for the East City club who are starting to show the form which enabled them to carry off the laurels last year.

This was the second loss in six games for Sacred Heart who are always a tough team to beat.

The winners were playing practically air-tight ball with the exception of a couple of innings, they were only scored on in two innings, the first and the fourth.

Reynolds, doing the pitching chores for the Sacred Heart was clipped for eleven hits, walked one and struck out three.

Hickey on the mound for Cubs held the Sacred Heart to eight hits and issued two free tickets.

The battle was close enough until the sixth when the Cubs clinched the argument by sending five runs across the plate.

Catches by Brady and Garvey were features. Brady went far to gather in a foul and Garvey ran out into centre field to take a fly over his right shoulder on the run, after juggling it a few times. Heffernan also shone with some nice fly catching.

Yanks Are Victors Over The Dodgers

Yesterday afternoon the Yanks took the Dodgers to camp in St. Peter's Softball League and gave them a 15 to 10 lacing, thus earning for themselves shield-shaped crests of their school colors of maroon and gold. These crests will indicate them as champions in the intermediate section of St. Peter's High School softball league for 1942.

Last Friday the Dodgers defeated the Yanks by 11 to 9 and were favored to take them again in the third game of their two of three series, the latter having taken the first game o. the [illegible].

There are some fine players in this league and they all take a deep interest in the game, sort of following an old rule "work while you work, play while you play, etc."

A good pair of batteries are Mickey Connelly, catching and Fred Sullivan pitching for the losers and Clark Ferren catching with his assistant Frank Murphy on the mound for the winners. Some of the infielders should receive credit for their fine work, such as John McIsaac, Paul Strano, Bill Doris and a few others.

The boys play a good brand of ball and are always on their toes, especially when the umpire makes a raw decision.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

The attraction in the Men's Softball League at Riverside Park tonight will be a battle between the Military Training Centre and the Plazas. It should be a honey. Both clubs want a win. The Plazas need one to shake off the Luckies and go out in front of the loop race again and the Soldiers require one to climb up the ladder a bit. The boys from the Training Centre have lost three games and they figure it is about time they pulled up their puttees and started in to win the odd ball game. Reports from the big camp at the foot of George street say that a couple of likely looking prospects blew in in the last draft which means a few new faces on the lineup tonight. The chances are that Lefty Ken Fleming will do the tossing for Soldiers with Irish Barnes handling the receiving while either Dave Wilson or Tom Parsons will heave them in for the Plazas and Eddie Starr will be behind the bat. The game will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp.

In a week the Luckies have climbed from the cellar position in the City Softball League to a tie for first place with Plazas and that is a record on which the newcomers to the loop deserve all kinds of credit. In winning three games in a row and all by the narrow margin of one run Luckies have shown steadiness and strong defensive ability and if they keep up that kind of ball they are most certainly a potent threat for league honors. The Griffin team had a battle on its hands last night when they just nosed out the battling Juveniles by pushing over a run in the ninth inning to win 7 to 6. The kids got good pitching from Bob Crowe and put up a valiant battle to break into the win column and they might have pulled off the trick if their own unsteadiness in the field had not robbed them of their chances. They drove Frank McCormick out of the pitching box when they came from behind to take the lead in the fifth and it was fortunate for the Luckies that Bill Lewis who was the fireman for the evening stopped the Juveniles' attack cold and in addition led the winners' attack with a triple, double and two singles, his fourth hit driving home the winning run. It was a good ball game and running catches in the outfield by Joe Stewart, Jack Carpenter and Bill Greatrix were gems.

Brintons girls team sprang a surprise on the Westclox girls in a league fixture at the Bowl last night, coming from behind with a six run rally in the eighth to beat the champs 11 to 9 and send Big Bens down into the cellar. There were few fans who saw the Brintons go down to defeat at the hands of the Porcelain team last week who figured that they would have a chance to beat the Westclockers and when the latter opened up a lead in the first inning and kept in front all the way until that disastrous eighth it looked as if the wise birds were right in predicting a Westclox win. But Brintons finally got rolling and that six-run rally in the last of the eighth knocked the losers right into the cellar. It was the best game of the current season and a big crowd of fans rooted lustily as the Carpet-makers came up from behind to take the decision. The next game in the Girls' loop will be played at the Bowl on Thursday night with Brintons and C.G.E. as the opposing teams.

The Men's City Softball League has decided to do its part in making Military Bat and Ball week a success by setting apart Friday night's game, one of the ace attractions of the season, a battle between the rivals, Royals and Plazas, as a benefit for the fund to supply softball equipment for Canada's armed forces. This move is in reply to a request from the Ontario Amateur Softball Association for assistance for this most worthy cause and the City League executive has decided to make the affair worth while by designating one of the best games in the schedule for the purpose of helping the fund. Draw prizes of a Kenwood blanket and a Brinton rug will be offered as a special attraction and in view of that fact and also because the Royals and Plazas promise to stage one of the best battles of the season there should be a record crowd at Riverside Park Friday night.

Soccer players in Peterborough who would welcome a chance to assist the British War Victims' Fund by playing a benefit game against the Royal Air Force eleven from Picton are asked to telephone in their names to Gordon Monkman at Whitaker's as soon as possible this week. The Royal Air Force men want to stage a game here early in the fall and devote all the proceeds to the War Victims' Fund and it is desired to pick up a Peterborough eleven strong enough to give the powerful Flyers from overseas a real argument. While no soccer is being played here this season some of the old players are still within the limits and it is felt that among the many newcomers to the city there may be some good players. The reason that the matter is being brought up now and local players who are willing to help are being asked to register is that the Peterborough-Whitaker cricket club will play the Picton R.A.F. this Saturday and it is hoped during the visit to make plans for the football benefit.

George Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette in a battle with Ken Colling over strikeout records in the Central League recalls a game that was always a headache to the Petes. Here is what he says about it: "Ken Colling had better check his figures. The other day he was looking up some C.O.B.L. history and came up with the fact that Freddy Goyer holds the strikeout record for the C.O.B.L., fanning 19 one afternoon in Port Hope, 1920. Williams is next in line with 18, against Oshawa in 1923. For Mr. Colling's benefit, we'd like to remind him that when Oshawa played their first "home" game of the season, May 24 or thereabouts, in 1936, a fellow named 'Jake' Biddle, pitching his first game in the C.O.B.L., chalked up a 17-0 shutout against Peterborough. He fanned 19 batters and registered a no-hit, no-run game while doing it. Not a single Peterborough batter reached second base. Incidentally, we believe that Al Heckman's no-hit, no-run game against Oshawa, back about twenty years ago, is the only other no-hitter in C.O.B.L. history. However, we might be wrong in that, but friend Colling, the old C.O.B.L. historian, should remember Biddle's effort in 1936 without much trouble."

There were only two games in the big leagues yesterday and both were in the National. A feature was the defeat of the Brooklyn Dodgers by the Chicago Cubs who took the Bums apart in front of a Flatbush crowd and won as they pleased by 6 to 0. Claude Passeau, only pitcher in either loop to attain double figures in the win column so far this season, only allowed five scattered hits while the Cubs collected 13 off Head, Allen and French, all of whom were called on by the Dodgers. Jimmy Foxx's big bat had a share in the win. In the other National League game New York Giants secured an even break in the series with Pittsburg by beating the Pirates 6 to 2. Hal Schumacher held the Corsairs well under control with a neat seven-hit effort while the Giants led by Rookie Babe Barna who had a double, triple and home run gave Butcher and Heintzelman a combing. Mel Ott had his eighth homer of the season to help things along.

Luckies Squeeze Out Win In Ninth Inning

Bunching three hits with one out in the ninth inning, Luckies chased over the winning run in Monday night's City league game at Riverside Park to take the decision over Juvenile 7 to 6 and move up into a tie for first place with Plazas.

It was the third win in succession for Manager Griffin's club and incidently their third in a row by a one-run margin.

It was a real battle and Luckies had to fight all the way to hold off the Juveniles who after a bad start that saw them down 4 to 1 at the end of the first roared back with five in the fifth to take the lead and Luckies just managed to head them at the wire.

Hero for the winners was Lefty Bill Lewis who went in the fifth after McCormick had been driven out of the game and held the youngsters for the balance of the game while he came through with four hits, the last of which drove in the winning tally in the final frame.

In the four and a third innings he worked Lewis allowed only two hits.

McCormick who started for the winners got along nicely until the fifth when he ran into grief.

It was a tough game for Bob Crowe to lose. The Juvenile pitcher held the Luckies to nine hits and would probably have taken the verdict if it had not been for costly fielding misplays by his supporting cast.

There was fine work in the gardens for both teams. Joe Stewart had a gem of a catch when he ran far to his left to garner in a hard hit drive to right centre, Jack Carpenter in centre field for Juveniles sprinted a long way to get under a high one and Bill Greatrix in left tore in fast to make a circus catch of a short fly.

Juveniles took the lead in the first half of the first. Anderson walked to start with and Garvey singled. Crowe tried to sacrifice but bunted a fly to McCormick and Garvey was doubled off first. Leether drove a long double to right, scoring Anderson but White rolled to second.

Luckies came back with 4. Llyost singled to centre and went to third when Carpenter let the ball roll through and then threw low to second. Stewart doubled to centre, A. Caccavella was safe on Detlor's error and Jameson walked to fill the bases. A wild pitch scored Stewart. M. Caccavella struck out but Lewis tripled to left to score A. Caccavella and Jameson. Corrigan struck out and Patterson popped up.

There wa sno further scoring until the fifth when Juveniles had their big inning. Carpenter walked, Detlor singed to left and Anderson moved the pair up with a sacrifice. Garvey singled to left scoring Carpenter. Crowe's double to centre sent Detlor and Anderson in. Leether rolled to short for the second out but White singled to left and McCormick passed both Jones and Greatrix, forcing in Crowe with the tieing run. That was enough for McCormick and he went to left field. Lewis coming in to pitch. The relief pitcher passed Carpenter, forcing in White but got out of the hole by striking out Detlor.

Luckies got one back in the sixth. Lewis opened with a double to left and went to third on a wild pitch. Woodcock struck out. Patterson tapped to Crowe and on the latter's high throw to first Lewis scored and the batter reached second but the next two were easy.

Antoher error caused trouble in the seventh, Stewart rolled to Anderson and went to second on the shortsctop low throw. Caccavella rolled to Jones. Jameson singled to centre to score Stewart with the run that sewed up the ball game. M. Caccavella walked.

Lewis tapped to Jones and was safe when the socond baseman tried to tag Caccavella on the line and missed. Woodcock struck out and Patterson forced Jameson at third.

Juveniles had a chance to take the lead in the first of the ninth when Jones opened with a double to centre and Greatrix scratched a hit to short. Carpenter struck out. Detlor bunted to Lewis and was safe when Jameson dropped the pitcher:'s throw but Jones as out trying to score on the play and Anderson struck out.

Luckies won out in their half. A. Caccavella struck out but Jameson singled to short and M. Caccavella singled over to third, sending Jameson to third. Lewis dropped a short single into left and the ball game was over.

Beyond Christmas

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—The United States war department evidently expects the war to continue beyond Christmas at least, judging from a list of "canned" messages which it has composed for communication between members of the American expeditionary forces and the folks back home. Messages No. 53 on the list of 102 fixed telegrams being distributed to commercial telegraph and cable companies, says: "Happy Christmas and New Year."

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Since our schedule commenced there have been two things that have stood out each night, and last night was no exception. The first one is that there has always been one or two games go into overtime and secondly there is always one or two games that seem to hold the attention of the audience, but strange as it may seem, both of these happen to centre around one the Gimblett-Sackville one. At the outset this game had all the earmarks of a good game, and it turned out just that way. For more than three-quarters of the game the Sackville boys held a slight lead, but were never so far ahead that the lead could not be overtaken. So far so good, but on the seventeenth and the Gimblett quartette helped themselves to a big five to put them up one coming home. Again, so far so good. On the last end Jimmy Price, playing lead for the Gimblett brigade, laid a nice bowl about eight inches from the kitty and there it stayed until Mr Sackville decided it was about time he took things in his own hands and he immediately drew a bowl a little closer, thereby tieing up the old ball game and forcing an extra end. On the extra end Jimmy Price was there with a couple of bowls and it looked all over for Sackville, but Eb. Taylor, playing vice for Sack, had other ideas. He didn't want to be left out of the picture so he promptly drew in a bowl a little closer and now it looked as if the Sackville boys were home free, but Judge S. Smoke, playing vice for G Gimblett, decided it was his turn to be mentioned in the dispatches, so he got steamed up and played a 100 p.c. bowl to touch the kitty and drag it back to within about two feet from the ditch and there it remained, and the game ended one up for Gimblett. It was a dandy game, one the crowd thoroughly enjoyed, and was by far the outstanding game of the evening.

B. Chesler and E. Wall are still running neck and neck for first place. Both won again last night.

Outside the Hendry-Long affair and the Payne-Jeffries game all other games were fairly one-sided. and the results were never in doubt. However, that's the way lawn bowling goes. One night you're a wonder and the next night you wonder what it's all about.

Carpet-Makers Are In Tie With Porcelains

Crashing through with nine runs in the seventh and eighth frames, Brintons came from behind in last night Girls' League game at the Bowl to defeat the Westclockers 11 to 9. It was the best game so far in the girls' loop and a big crowd of fans watched the battle.

As a result of the Brintons' win the Carpet-makers are now tied with Porcelain for second place. C.G.E. are out in front with two victories and no defeats, and the Big Bens are in the cellar with two straight losses and no wins.

Westclox with Marg. Watson pitching steady ball looked like the winners in the early stages. They opened up with a two-run attack in the first inning when Isobel Bullock started with a walk and V. Patterson singled and both eventually crossed the counting station.

Brintons got one back in the third when a pass to H. English was followed by singles by A. Weir and D. Walker to drive the run in. In the fourth Brintons added another counter to sew up the game. Leila Hughes singled with one out and a couple of errors allowed her to register with the run that evened the count.

However, Westclox staged an assault in the fifth that put them three runs in front again. I. Bullock and V. Patterson both singled Eunice Armstrong drove out a double and Marg. Hawthorne singled for the fourth hit in a row and three markers came over.

Eunice Armstrong opened the seventh for Westclock with a single and eventually scored to put the Clockmakers in front 6 to 2, but Brintons snapped back with three in their half. I. Stewart opened with a walk and after D. Smith struck out, H. English doubled and A. M. Batley, A. Weirm, D. Walker and E. Basciano all followed with singles to chase home three runs and bring the score to 6 to 5 before Westclocks could put the blakes on.

The clock-makers staged another rally in the first of the eighth to increase their lead. Four hits by I. Bullock, V. Patterson M. Hawthorne and V. McLean and an error did the trick and Westclock were in front 9 to 5.

Then came the big inning for the Brintons and when the smoke had cleared away they had sent six runners over the counting station and turned a deficit of four runs into a lead of two. Five hits, a double by E. Basciano and singles by A. Weir, Leila Hughes, I. Stewart and D. Smith, a base on balls and three Westclox errors were combined to set up the sextette of runs.

A. Weir did some smart fielding at shortstop for the winners and Doris Walker at second base for the Westclox started with a neat catch that resulted in a double play when a runner was picked off first.

Brintons outhit their opponents 17 to 12 with Catcher Walker leading the winners' attack with three hits in four trips to the plate. Leila Hughes went the route for the Brinton team, allowing twelve hits and V. Patterson getting three of them in four times up.

PASSEAU SHELLACS DODGERS 6 TO 0, 1st 10-GAME WINNER OF '42

Schumacher Sets Bucs Down By 6-2 Score

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

The moral of this piece is: Never throw a bean ball at Claude Passeau.

One of those slants tossed by Hugh Casey just about two years ago got Claude so steamed up he's been taking it out on the tne Dodgers ever since, and getting a lot of laughs out of it.

Claude was so peeved that afternoon at Wrigley Field that he started to take on the whole Brooklyn ball club, bare knuckles. He was punched around somewhat by Joe Gallagher, of whom you may have heard. These antics shocked National League President Ford Frick so that he pinned a $75 fine on the Chicago Cubs' ace elbower.

Ever since then, the man from Millsaps—that's no reflection, it's just Claude's College—has been taking that "six bits" out, a la Shylock. In the course of two years, he's knocked off the bums seven times and dropped only two to them.

Right now, he's pretty warm for June, or any other month for that matter. He hasn't been beaten since May 5. So last evening, Manager Jimmy Wilson, his old pal and co-refugee from the Phillies, asked him to go out there against the Brooklyns in a twilight game—the first big league game, incidentally, ever to start in daylight and end under the arcs.

Relations Not Too Close

"Them bums," Passeau shrugged—"Why they're my cousins."

What he did to the league leaders made the relationship seem even closer than that. He served up a five-hitter and he didn't let a Dodger get past second. In fact, only two got a ride as far as that on the line. And with the help of some fair country clouting by Lou Novikoff, Bill Nicholson and James Double-x Foxx he waltzed home with a 6-0 decision.

This was his eighth straight victory and made him the first Big League twirler to hit the 10-game-winner bulls-eye this year.

This win moved the Cubs back up into fifth place in the loop, and dropped the Pittsburg Pirates into sixth, because the Bucs lost the only other game on the big league schedule yesterday. This was a 6-2 setback pinned on them by New York Giants.

The Bucs had the misfortune to run into Prince Hal Schumacher on one of hs better afternoons. When this happens, the best any club can find is a lot of holes in its bats. For seven innings, Prince Hal tossed a two-hitter. Then he eased up, gave a pair of runs in the eighth and coasted home. By this time, Babe (the Bull) Barna and his bat had taken care of things, however. The Bull knocked in three runs during the proceedings, with a homer, triple and double. Mel Ott aso chipped in a four-bagger, his eighth of the year.

The American League's eastern clubs open their western swing today, and the National League's east entertain the folks from the wide open spaces, except that Brooklyn and the Cubs will take the day off to rest up, look over the situation, and count noses.

Horsemen Strike Tie Racing Suffolk Downs

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sport Writer

BOSTON, June 16—(AP).—Racing at Suffolk Downs, which provides more than $15,000 daily revenue to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, was suspended today when a deadlock between the Eastern Racing Association and more than 200 trainers and owners of thoroughbreds stabled at the palatial track forced a cancellation of the 32nd program of its 60-day meeting.

The suspension, the second in the 10-years' history of New England pari-mutuel racing, followed when the striking horseman's demands for an increase in minimum purses from $1,000 to $1,200 were rejected by President Charles F. Adams of the association.

At a meeting last night, according to Charles J. Goldman, a Lynn attorney serving as thel spokesman, more than 200 owners and trainers unanimously agreed to keep their horses idle until they came to an agreement with the track management.

During the meeting, Attorney Goldman said, the striking horsemen were assured of support by the jockeys and grooms now operating at the track. The jockeys, he said, had agreed not to accept any mounts and the grooms promised that they would not lead any horses from the stables to the paddock until a settlement was agreed upon.

Revise 20 P.C. Demand.

The horsemen's first demand was for a flat 20 per cent. increase in all purses but that was revised after Adams replied, "We are now doing all we can afford to do, for we cannot foretell what the future has in store for taxation and for transportation and we could not make promises that we might not be able to keep."

In their initial petition to Adams, the horsemen said that the upkeep of horses had increased far in excess of 30 per cent. and they claimed they were unable to make both ends meet even under the most favorable conditions that they could encounter at Suffolk Downs. They also stressed the fact that the track's handle for the first half of its 1942 meeting totalled $15,005,755, an increase of $1,938,707 over that same period last year.

Adams said Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan would open his entry box as usual this morning. "If they want to make entries, it will be all right, if not, all right, too," Adams explained. "If the same situation prevails, there will not be any racing tomorrow. We can't race without horses."

Red Wings Drop Tilt To Bears By Close 5 to 4

By the Associated Press.

Rochester Red Wings of the International League have convinced their most ardent followers by now that given the chance they will lose for anybody.

Ray Hayworth, veteran major league catcher, took over management of the club yesterday and the flock promptly lost to Newark 5-4. Hayworth is the third man to boss the Red Wings in less than a month, following Tony Kaufmann and Estel Crabtree in the job.

However, the tail-enders put up a strong fight before bowing in the ninth when Pitcher Tom Byrne of the Bears doubled over third to score Boyd Perry with the winning tally.

Byrne toiled all the way and was touched for nine blows.

Montreal, trying to close the gap and draw abreast the pace-setting Bears, was spilled in the first game of twilight-floodlight bargain bill by Syracuse, 11-7, but came right back to win the second 13-7.

The teams took turns doing the heavy hitting the Chiefs clouting out 14 blows in the first and having a six-run fifth inning while the Royals retaliated with an 18-hit barrage in the second.

Baltimore's crippled Orioles made a contest of their fray with Buffalo until the seventh frame when a five-run splurge sent the Bisons out in front and lifted them into sole possession of fourth place. Less Burge, Montreal first baseman, got two homers to hike his season's total to 16.

Jersey City slammed the offerings of five different Toronto hurlers to chalk up a 9-5 victory and end a 13-game home winning streak for the Leafs.

Nick Strincevich, who started for Toronto, was removed in the first inning after the first four men to face him had hit safely.

The outburst gave Giants three runs, a total the Leafs duplicated in their half of the frame.

Combines Floor Hamilton In 11-6 Battle

HAMILTON, June 16 (Special).—Mimico-Brampton Combines defeated Hamilton 11-6 in the first senior lacrosse game locally of the 1942 season and the invaders, always in front, were full value for their victory. Held to a pair of counters in the opening period, the Combines broke out in a scoring rash to tally seven times while Hamilton countered with four.

The attack of the winners, spearheaded by the Mullis brothers and Hayes, was much too strong for any defense combination and while they beat McVittie with some drives well out they scored the majority of their counters from close in.

Hamilton failed to produce a single forward with a keen eye or a defense that was hard to beat.

The game started out tame enough, but rough play cropped up in the third period, and after a free-for-all and much stick swinging in front of the Combines' net Southwick and Jim Mullis were given major penalties.

Southwick objected to the sentence and went after Referee Peart, but his mates forced him to earth before he reached the whistle-tooter.

The Mullis boys Masters, McPhail and Hayes, looked best for Combines, with Isaacs being most effective for Hamilton.

Mimico-Brampton Combines — Goal, Anthony; defense, Vaughan and Hatton; rover, Thompson; centre, Gowland; wings, J. Mullis and Arthurs; subs, Woods, McLean, Masters, McPhail, B. Mullis, Dixon and Hayes.

Fred (King) Lear Back In Toronto To Hold Five-Day Baseball School

By GORD WALKER.

TORONTO, June 16.—Fred (King) Lear, whose baseball career was cut short by a lame throwing arm, has dedicated the remainder of his active days to making better ball players of any performers who care to seek his beneficial advice.

The man who won a pennant for Toronto Maple Leafs on the final day of the 1918 season, arrived in Toronto late on Sunday night, along with Bob Rice head of the Pittsburg Pirates farm system, to open a five-day baseball school at Maple Leaf Stadium.

Baseball lost a really great player when an arm injury, the result of a twelve-year professional football career, cut down his diamond effectiveness, but the game derived untold benefits from the King's decision to stick with the sport as an instructor.

Lear slugged out a cool .361 average for Toronto in 1918, after five previous minor league campaigns in which he never hit under .350. Chicago Cubs bought him from Bridgeport after the 1917 season, but they optioned him to Toronto when Lear enlisted. The King was on immediate call, but he never was summoned until a week after he had wrapped up the flag for Dan Howley's team.

Arm Halted Career.

Howley, who should know, claimed that baseball never would have heard of any other infielder if Lear hadn't hurt his arm. The latter admits that he had a great arm until something happened during the '18 training campaign. But he could still hit and run the bases as well as any one in the business. He started out as a third sacker with the Leafs that season, finally moved over to second, and wound up at first, where he wouldn't have to throw so much.

The Cubs wanted to send him out to the coast in 1920, but John McGraw wouldn't pass waivers. Lear had beaten McGraw three days in a row as a pinchhitter and the Giants manager didn't want to let him get away. Lear finally hung up his glove for good in 1928.

Ability to diagnose the mechanical ailments of several players soon showed his value to baseball was better applied as a coach and teacher. He took Joe Hauser in hand one year, made a first-sacker of him and Hauser was later sold for enough money "to keep the Minneapolis Club in players for several years."

Oscar Melillo, now coach of Cleveland Indians, was an outfielder at one time. The King put him at second base and Oscar developed into one of the best fielding second sackers in the majors. Jimmy Cooney and Glen Myatt are others who benefitted greatly from Lear's timely hits.

One of Nine Classes.

Right now Lear and Rice are mainly concerned over stocking up the Pittsburg system with youthful prospects. Lear is quick to point out that his school is the only one in existence, in which lectures and instructions are given.

This is the first of nine baseball schools the Pirates will conduct this season—the most extensive search for player-talent the Pittsburg Club has ever instigated. According to Rice, if one player out of fifty shows enough to warrant a professional trial, a school is a success. "Maybe out of all nine schools we'll get one player who'll be worth the expense of them all," Rice said.

The school opened at 10 o'clock this morning, with the first hour devoted to a lecture.

Hagen Just Lacks Bobby Jones For Ryder Test

DETROIT, June 16 —(AP)—If he can get Capt. Bobby Jones of the Army Air Corps on his side, Walter Hagen is convinced he has the combination to beat the American Ryder Cup team.

Hagen, deserting his captaincy of the American Cuppers for the first time to pick an array of challengers for matches here July 18 and 19, said today he would ask Jones this week at Chicago, where they will meet in the Hale America championship.

Hagen intends to take active part this year in the matches, which have produced $30,000 for the Red Cross and United Service organizations the last two years. Hagen's Cuppers defeated Gene Sarazen's challengers, 7 to 5, in 1940 but last year Jones, beating Henry Picard in singles competition, led the challengers to a reversal of the margin.

Hagen invited 11 others headed by Lawson Little and Picard, to join his squad. Others are Sam Byrd, Ed Dudley, Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thompson, Al Watrous; two sensational youngsters, Melvin (Chick) Harbert and Chandler Harper, and Cpls. Jim Turnesa and Ed (Porky) Oliver.

MIKE AT BAT AND ON THE MOUND

Proving that "where there's a will, there's a way," Mike Marcin, 22-year-old one-armed Cleveland youth, is making a name for himself on the baseball diamond as a softball pitcher. Mike, who lost his arm when a child, recently hurled a no-hit game for the Cleveland Towmotor team as his club whipped another 17-0 in a Muny Industrial League game. To prove his ability, Mike socked out a homer, two singles and drew a walk in four trips to the plate. Mike is shown ABOVE on the mound and at bat.

MRS. ANNIE GRAY.

MILLBROOK, June 16. —(ENS) —The death of Mrs. Annie Gray, lige-long resident of Millbrook and vicinity, which took place with startling suddenness on Tuesday, June 9, while on a brief visit with friends in Peterborough, removed a citizen well known as a good neighbor, kindly and industrious in disposition, in her seventy-sixth yeat.

She was a daughter of the late Robert Deyell, for several years the agent at the then G. T. R. station at Carmel, and his wife, Elizabeth Brown, her mother's people coming to Canada as pioneer settlers from Ireland. The marriage of John Gray and Annie Deyell took place nearly forty-five years ago, her husband predeceasing his wife by three years. Mrs. Gray was the last surviving member of her family, which originally consisted of five sons and two daughters, and her immediate surviving relatives include two sons, Lawrence of Port Hope and Frank, of Millbrook; also one daughter, Mrs. Herbert Brown (Gertrude), of Detroit, Michigan; there are five grandchildren.

Since her husband's death, Mrs. Gray had spent a good deal of her time with her daughter at Detroit.

Twenty-one years ago Mr. and Mrs. Gray retired from the farm homestead, Carmel, and came to Millbrook to reside, purchasing the former Dawson Fair house on Main street. When it was burned down some years ago, they built the cosy bungalow which has been the family home ever since.

Although a Presbyterian in religion, as the local charge is at present without a minister, the funeral of Mrs. Gray, which took place on Friday at 2.30 p.m., was largely attended, was conducted by Rev. A. L. Sisco, B. D., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church. The pall bearers were all neighbors and included L. H. Winslow, F. R. Lowery, Harry Farrow, Delbert Sanderson, John Guthrie and A. J. Henderson. Interment was in the family burial plot in the Presbyterian cemetery.

A son, Wilbert, predeceased her several years ago. She is also survived by one brother, Reuben Brown, Ottawa; and one sister, Mrs. Lily Foote, Belleville.

The funeral will leave her late residence on Wednesday afternoon for service at St. Paul's Anglican Church at 2:30 with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiating. Interment will follow in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

and Eugene Durocher (Lib. Montreal-St. James) expressed their opposition to any change in the Mobilization Act, J. M. Dechene (Lib. Athabaska) said he would support the government.

Munitions Minister Howe will be the first speaker in the debate tomorrow, dealing with the manpower situation.

Mr. MacInnis said the amendment of the act meant "conscription for overseas service in spite of all the sophistry of the prime minister.

"And not only that," he continued. "It means conscription without any further reference of the question to Parliament."

The Issues At Stake

Mr. MacInnis said "the people of English-speaking Canada may and do feel pride in the courage and determination which the people of Britain have shown since May, 1940, but we support the war because of the issues at stake."

The issues were to maintain the position won by sacrifice and effort, the right of the common people to enlarge and enrich their lives by their own efforts, by their own organization, and to live under the rule of law.

The Vancouver East member's amendment was read by Speaker James A. Glen and vote on it will come later. A previous C.C.F. amendment, introduced by C.C.F. House leader Coldwell last Thursday was ruled out of order by Speaker Glen on the ground that it contained proposals which had previously been voted down by the House.

Roy Graham (Lib. Swift Current) said the address of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former transport minister, on Thursday, criticizing the government amendment, had made more apparent tension which it was recognized constituted a threat to Canadian unity.

Dealing with the C.C.F. suggestions, Mr. Graham said he believed it would be fatal to the war effort and the happiness, contentment and liberty of the Canadian people to establish a system of state socialism.

Mr. Coldwell interjected that the basic policy he enunciated was cooperation, not state socialism.

Mr. Quelch said it was obvious that unless the enemy were defeated overseas he would have to be defeated on the American continent and Canada should participate in the overseas conflict. But before people were called on to make further sacrifices there should be a declaration of principles showing the Atlantic charter provisions would be applied to Canada and thus assist in building morale.

Bertrand In Opposition.

Mr Bertrand said he was absolutely opposed to the bill and would vote against it. He had voted against the plebiscite. If he voted for the bill he would consider he was signing a blank cheque and should the bill pass the Government could send troops anywhere by Order-in-Council.

"I protest against this abuse of power, for it is not right, after assuring mobilized men that their efforts would be confined to the defence of Canada, to force them into other duties." Mr. Bertrand said.

Quebec was not opposed to the war effort and its people were not traitors to the British Crown.

Mr. Durocher said that if the amendment passed it would be too late to protect. Quebec had been prevented from using her war production facilities to the full. Factories had not been permitted to work to their full capacity.

If the voluntary system was furnishing satisfactory results it should be retained.

George Fulford (Lib., Leeds) said he believed the Government had the right to impose conscription, when the time arrived that reinforcements were necessary for present forces. This was not England's war but humanity's war.

He believed the majority of the people in his riding who voted in the manpower plebiscite thought they were voting for some sort of conscription. He personally thought that conscription was the fairest, most equitable way of raising an army or obtaining reinforcements. He would support the bill.

Mr. Gardiner said that the Prime Minister had wished to be free to send men outside what had been defined in the original Mobilization Act as the boundaries of Canada into the areas immediately surrounding Canadian coasts. Japanese activities on the Aleutians had stressed the necessity for such a change in the legislation.

Under the existing legislation a soldier called under the Act could not cross the boundaries of Canada.

The amendment did not mean troops would be sent overseas immediately, and the Prime Minister had indicated this might never be necessary. Mr. Gardiner believed that the majority of members on the Government side of the House would cast a "No" vote for conscription if the issue were presented to the House of calling men for service overseas immediately.

energy and that yet another of the seething battles of Libya will end without settling the fate of north-east Africa.

Even if Tobruk fell or again were besieged, they said, Rommel would be too spent to push beyond toward Egypt and the Nile Valley. They declared he would need two fresh, desert-trained armored divisions with infantry support and that there has been no sign he could produce such a force now.

The immediate peril to British troops in a fluid situation capable of momentary change was that the Axis might drive between Tobruk and its supporting forces in the Ain El Gazala area, 40 miles to the west.

(An Italian high command communique yesterday claimed this had been achieved with Axis penetration to the coast north of Acroma, 10 miles west of Tobruk, outflanking the British line and pocketing the forces around Ain El Gazala.)

Similarly it ignored a claim by German military quarters that the battle of Kharkov had ended with the German capture of 25,000 prisoners.)

Christians Should Be Front Seat Drivers

WARSAW, June 16 (ENS)— The topic "Back Seat Drivers" was presented by Mrs. Everett Moore at her house on Tuesday evening. She emphasized the absolute distrust of drivers but that the world is not without control because God is supreme over all.

"There is criticism of the church today," she said, "and we need more Christian men and women, courageous enough to live for Christ. Let us not be too quick to see the faults of others. Get in the front seat and drive."

The scripture was read by Betty Barr and Mrs. J. S. Kidd gave a reading "The Link That Binds." Isobel Girven gave the Bible questions. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Barr.

Clear Telephone Lines for All-Out Production

GOING PLACES!

These howitzer shells, all stacked and ready to "go places" are just one of the twenty different types of heavy ammunition being made in Canadian plants. These plants are going places, too: 1942 production of all types of shells totals a million rounds a month! And that means complete rounds—cases, explosive charges, fuses and other parts . . . all made in Canada.

It takes plenty of planning to keep all these shell components flowing smoothly to the right place at the right time. It takes a lot of telephoning, too. And that is where we can all lend a helping hand. Every call you make is carried over an interlocking network of telephone lines—lines already heavily taxed by the volume of war business. By being unselfish in your use of existing telephone facilities—by always observing "Wartime Telephone Tactics"—you may be helping Canada's war production more than you know.

WARTIME TELEPHONE TACTICS

1. BE SURE you have the right number . . . consult the directory.
2. SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece.
3. BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
4. ANSWER promptly when the bell rings.
5. USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9.30 a.m., 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.

MR. PORKY GOES TO TOWN.

An unusual nocturnal visitor was seen near the corner of McDonnel and Water streets shortly after midnight last night. He was a fat and somewhat sluggish porcupine which did not seem greatly perturbed by the bright lights of automobiles and ambled lazily across the road to the lawn of the George street church when pedestrians approached him.

WITH THE QUEEN.

Cpl. Tom Metcalfe, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Metcalfe, Water Street, attached to the Signal Corps, Somewhere in England, had a thrilling experience recently when he acted as part of Queen Elizabeth's escort. He shook hands with the Queen and the Princess Royal, and wrote home an excited account of the meeting.

BICYCLES RECOVERED

Two bicycles, bearing Peterborough licenses have been reported as abandoned near Chemong Park. One of these was a wheel stolen last Friday from the Collegiate Institute; the other machine had not been reported to the police as having been stolen.

TODAY'S POLICE COURT

Justices of the Peace Vincent Eastwood and E. B. Fowler were on the bench at police court this morning in the absence of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., who held court in Lindsay. A transient who pleaded guilty to being drunk in a restaurant last night was fined $10 and costs or seven days in jail. John King, who pleaded guilty to drunkenness as a second offender was fined $50 or a month in jail.

IS GIVEN HIS LIBERTY

Neil Novak, young Toronto boy who had appeared in police court Monday morning charged with vagrancy and had been remanded for a week was brought back before the magistrate late in the afternoon and when the crown offered no evidence the case was dismissed and the boy was given his liberty. In the meantime the police had investigated his story and satisfied themselves that he had told the truth about his movements.

ROAD IS GOOD

The gravel road north from Lakefield to Buckhorn, is in excellent shape at the present time, and the tributary roads leading in from Bridgenorth are also reported to be in first class condition. Drivers from the north country state too, that the Lakefield-Apsley highway No. 28 is in grand condition. These roads handle a lot of tourist traffic after July 1.

Wartime Houses Dispute Still Simmers

Of Wartime Housing Company's 307 temporary houses newly built for Peterborough munitions workers, all but three were occupied this morning.

"And it is just a matter of the tenants moving into them," E. S. Longhurst, local administrator for the company, informed the Examiner this morning.

"We have applications for fifty houses on file, and number would hop up to 125 if we could tell people we had the house for them."

Just as a reminder to citizens it may be mentioned again that the first group was the eighty-two houses built on Burnham's Point, and the second was the 225 in the Jackson Park community.

Closely related in necessity to that housing summary was the announcement Monday of Wartime Housing Company's intention to construct 125 houses at once on the Hatton farm, Charlotte Street West, and the intimation that eventually another fifty houses may be added to that undertaking.

Herb J. McCannan and D. B. Rodgers of the local advisory committee of W.H.C. said this morning that the "Examiner might point out again that the final decision is made by the authorities of Wartime Housing in Toronto, and not by the local committee as some people here still think."

Outside Decision.

"And say that experienced engineers were consulted and were sent here to make their own survey of properties as a guide to Wartime Housing officials in their decision," R. L. Dobbin, another member of the committee, said.

It was understood that the special meeting of the City Council, which was called for Monday night and then deferred on the announcement of the decision of Wartime Housing, would probably be called for Thursday night, as Kent Hamilton, now administrator of real estate for Wartime Housing has expressed a desire to meet the council.

DOCTORS ON CALL.

Setup On Milk Bettered Gordon Claims

OTTAWA, June 16.—(CP)—Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said last night they had no information on a delegation representing Ontario Milk Producers coming to Ottawa to seek higher prices.

At a convention attended by 1,000 producers in Toronto on Saturday it was decided to send a delegation to Ottawa to seek relief from problems they said resulted from the withdrawal of a federal milk subsidy of 80 cents a hundredweight.)

However, Donald Gordon, board chairman, made reference to the milk subsidy in a farm forum broadcast in which he participated last night.

"We paid a subsidy to milk distributors and processors for several months on the understanding that they would pay a higher price to the farmer for milk and thus encourage supply." Mr. Gordon said.

"Later on the Board carried out a complete re-organization of ceiling prices on milk and milk products allowing increases in the price of fluid milk in some areas, adjusting prices on evaporated milk and other concentrated products. These adjustments placed prices in better balance in the whole field of dairy products and generally enabled manufacturers to pay higher prices to producers."

Defence Moves For Dismissal Fraud Charge

After the Crown had completed its evidence in the conspiracy charge against Miss Mary Robertson, manager of the Hotel Champlain, at Monday afternoon's session of the police court, T. J. Carley, K.C., defence counsel, made a motion for a dismissal of the charge without the defence being called upon.

After hearing the arguments of Mr. Carley and of V. J. McElderry, K.C., Crown Attorney, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., reserved judgment on the motion until Wednesday. Two other charges of similar nature against Miss Robertson were also adjourned until that day.

When the afternoon session opened Mr. Carley resumed his cross-examination of Gordon Hodgson, assistant to the manager of Genelco who produced a number of documents that had been asked for by defence counsel. Mr. Carley asked the witness if it were not true that as a general rule in the case of employees of the Triangle Corporation that vouchers for $3 for hotel rooms were the exception while in the case of employees of Bromleigh Engineering the $3 rate was the rule rather than the exception and the witness replied in the affirmative.

R.C.M.P. Witness Testifies

Principal witness at the afternoon session was Corporal Karl Lockwood, in charge of the Cobourg detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He told Mr. McElderry that he had investigated the case and had several conversations with Miss Robertson and that statements made by her had been entirely voluntary, that no inducements had been offered or any threats made by him.

Magistrate Langley ruled that the statements were admissable and Corp. Lockwood testified that the Bennett receipts that had been put in as an exhibit, along with other receipts, had been shown to Miss Robertson and that she said they had been issued by her and that they bore her initial. He further added that the accused had said that Mr. Bennett had obtained the receipts for the purpose of collecting the amount from the Canadian General or the company by which he was employed and that all receipts were for larger amounts than had been actually paid.

In cross-examination by Mr. Carley, Corp. Lockwood admitted that the name Bennett may not have been mentioned at all in the conversations with Miss Robertson but that she had scanned all the receipts, including the three Bennett ones and had admitted that they had been issued by her.

Some Forged Receipts

Corp. Lockwood said that Miss Robertson had made an exception of six receipts, none of them the Bennett ones, saying that they had not been initialed by her.

"Those six receipts appeared to be forgeries," said the witness.

Admitting that perhaps 200 receipts had been shown Miss Robertson during the investigation interviews Corp. Lockwood said that he had special reason to remember her reply in regard to the Bennett receipts because the Bennett case was one of the three that he had selected in advance as the ones that would be prosecuted if proceedings were undertaken.

"Did not Miss Robertson tell you that all the Bromleigh Company men told her that they were each entitled to $3 a day and that the only thing that mattered was the number of days?" asked Mr. Carley.

"That is so," replied the witness. "I really think that she believed that," he added, stating that Miss Robertson had given him every co-operation in his investigation and had produced all documents asked for by him.

Moves For Dismissal

With Corp. Lockwood's evidence concluded Mr. Carley made a formal motion for dismissal saying that the Crown had completely failed to make a prima facie case against the accused. Reading out the information and stressing the section accusing Miss Robertson of conspiracy to defraud the Dominion of Canada, there was nothing in the evidence, he submitted, to show that the accused had any knowledge whatever that the Dominion of Canada was concerned in the matter. Defence counsel argued that cases on record showed that even complicity was not enough to establish conspiracy and he declared that there was nothing in the case before the courts that showed that Miss Robertson had conspired with Bennett.

Mr. McElderry submitted that the act of isuing a false receipt justified the inference that there was conspiracy to obtain more from the company than should have been paid.

Similar charges against other hotel employees are still to be heard.

District Baptists Meet Wednesday

The annual meeting of Peterborough Association of Baptist churches will be held in Murray Street church Wednesday, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Dr. H. H. Bingham, Dr. F. L. Orchard, both of Toronto, will speak at morning and afternoon sessions.

The evening session, which will be of special interest to young people, will be addressed by Flt.-Lt. Stanley N. Inman, R.C.A.F. chaplain, Trenton. His subject will be "Life Matching the Hour" and the Rev. F. L. Orchard, D.D., Toronto, will speak on "Youth's Place In To-day and To-morrow."

All meeting are open to the public.

Violated Gas Regulations Police Charge

The first charge to be laid here under the wartime regulations in regard to gasoline will be heard here on Friday when Russell Young, Anstruther youth, will be tried on a charge of having used in a motor vehicle gasoline other than graded gasoline obtained in exchange for a valid coupon issued in respect to such motor vehicle.

Young was arrested Monday afternoon by Provincial Constable Price Morris on that charge and also for the theft of gasoline from the Johnston Construction Company, contractors on the Apsley-Bancroft Road.

He appeared in police court before Justices of the Peace Vincent Eastwood and E. B. Fowler and at the request of the Crown was remanded until Friday. He was released later on bail of $500.

According to police the Johnston Construction Company has lost a large amount of gasoline recently from its machines on the road job. It is colored gas, instead of the ordinary white gas used for automobiles.

Billy Edgar Leads In Stamp Sales

The month of May was a very productive month for Examiner carriers who are doing their patriotic utmost towards the war effort. Their joint sales of War Savings Stamps amounted to the splendid sum of $2,210.50. Two weeks of May that have not previously reported were those of the week ending May 23 when the sales were $366.50 and the closing week of the month with $630.50. The star of the last few weeks Nancy Leith, is again in the spotlight with sales for the former week of $55.26 followed by a newcomer to top-ranking, Charles Russell of the North-end, with $34.25, and Keith Orde with $29.00.

The last week of May produced very respectable figures from many carriers. Another newcomer in the prize-winning ranks shows up for this past month in the person of Bill Edgar succeeding Wilbert Edgar in his route in the west end of the city. Bill's sales for the week were $115.00, and sincere congratulations go out to this youngster for his valiant efforts. With unusual regularity the following two names come up in these weekly reports: Nancy Leith, winner of the Gold Trophy in April, is tied for second place with another shining salesman, Keith Orde, former trophy winner. Their sales for May were $64.75 each.

Other very successful salesmen must be mentioned before passing on to the report of the monthly winners. Again Jack Harris of 239 Princess Street is making a worthwhile return in selling $51.00 in War Savings Stamps in that one week. Ray Douglas and Donald Pagett also tied with sales of $24.50 each. We must forego detailed mention of the weekly returns from many of the carriers owing to lack of space, but the monthly sales call for special attention.

A Fine Total.

The winner of the Examiner Gold Trophy for May is the afore-mentioned Bill Edgar, who is to be commended for this success so early in his carrying career. His sales for May were $244.50. The many-times-mentioned Nancy Leith is here again with second place secured, bringing in the splendid sum of $213.50. Keith Orde again makes his mark with $182.00, George Clark with $129.26, Jack Harris with $117.50, Victor Doughty with $115, and Donald Pagett with an even $100. Such totals for individual sales by young people for the short period of one month are remarkable to say the least, but they have become commonplace with these same youngsters who have repeatedly brought in hundreds of dollars during the short few months the campaign has been under way.

It is only fair that we should make mention of the other carriers whose efforts have produced sizeable sums of cash for the war effort during May, though their totals are not in the hundreds of dollars. Walter Noble makes a grand effort with another $51.25 and our very young

Lions Instal New Officers

Officers of the Peterborough Lions Club for 1942-43 were installed on Monday evening when the annual stag party was held at Buckhorn Lodge, where forty Lions and guests sat down to dinner.

Jack Connell, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Hotelmen's Association, was guest speaker of the evening and in lauding the Peterborough club for its fine service work during the year just closed, he added the warning that a club must exist for service to the community, and not just as a medium for good fellowship. Mr Connell, who has been a Lion for 20 years, was introduced by Lawrence McCarthy of the Peterborough Club.

J. E. Girven, retiring president of the club, called on J. J. Brown, of Bowmanville, to conduct the installation ceremony, and he in turn delegated this duty to Emmons Crawford, district secretary. There were six members at the meeting from the Bowmanville club, and the thanks of this group for the invitation was voiced by J. J. Brown. Frank Jobbitt, of the Peterborough Lock Company, as a guest, thanked the Lions for their hospitality.

The new officers are: S. A. Darling, president; Jim Dutton, Jr., vice-president; Jack Armitage, second vice-president; Arnold Deyell, 3rd vice-president; Fraser Watson, secretary; Joe Sharp and Ted Weir, one year directors; Bruce Sargent and Frank Edgar two year directors; Tail Twister, Vic Gallon; Lion Tamer, Lawrence McCarthy.

Annual Picnic Gives Help To War Victims

This season of the year is one when many enjoy the out-door life, and countless numbers join together in groups to find pleasure in taking advantage of all that nature has to offer in healthful recreation by holding picnics. Annually the draftsmen of the Canadian General Electric Company Ltd. plant have held a picnic at Max Metheral's cottage, and following this custom, this event took place on Friday, when a collection was taken for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, which in this instance amounted to $7, and it appears in today's list for the fund, per B. Wardle.

Last year, they did exactly the same thing, so this marks the second time when in the midst of their own pleasure they were not unmindful of the needs of less fortunate ones, and undoubtedly this must enhance their own pleasure, for it spells the opposite of just seeking their own selfish amusement. This deed will surely act suggestively to others, and may bear fruit from the very example it sets.

W. H. Lytle has kindly made and given four receptacles for the purpose of taking collections at any gatherings which in the olden days were known as pokes, and these can be secured for such on request to the secretary of the fund, who is indebted to Mr. Lytle for the assistance thus given. The box at the Regent Theatre has once again come through with a splendid assist to the fund in an amount of $8.85, which is credited in today's list from its most recent collecting.

Four children, Nina Campbell, Don Williams, Ruth Drury, and Sheila Airey, all residing in the southwest portion of the city held a bazaar when they sold orange drinks made by their mothers and canned goods donated by neighbors and friends as well as holding bingo games to make the sum of $3.54 to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain, demonstrating just what can be accomplished when they set about doing something to help others, and no one can measure just how much good will accrue to themselves in character and moral worth by so doing.

Garden Party On Friday

This next Friday, June 19, the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. of which Mrs. F. L. Robinson is the regent, are holding a garden party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kerr at 586 Rubidge street, from which the total proceeds will all be for war purposes, with this fund having a share.

There will be bridge, which ladies are invited to make up their own tables, and they may if they wish hold these at their own residence and go there for the service of afternoon tea and refreshments. There will also be a draw for a lamp, a cushion and other articles to help swell the proceeds. A very cordial invitation is extended to all by the hostess, and the members of the chapter to spend an afternoon among such lovely surroundings and at the same time assist the very worthy objects for which they work.

Wartime Board Blocks Price Increase

Members of the police commission believe that local traffic conditions are still far from desirable and that there are too many violations of the traffic regulations.

The followng resolution was carried at Monday's meeting of the commissoin:

Moved by Judge Smoke, seconded by Mayor Hamilton that the Chief Constable be requested to again institute a closer checkup of traffic violations in the city because the conditions appear to be little improved.

Instructions were also passed on to Chief Constable Newhall that the police department be instructed to see that the bylaw in regard to objectionable awnings is enforced.

Taxi Fare Question

There will be no increase in taxi fares in Peterborough, owing to the fact that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has declined to approve a request from the local taxi operators for an increase in the day schedule.

The letter from the Board was read at a meeting of the police commissioners, attended by Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman and Mayor James Hamilton on Monday afternoon and it was moved by Judge Smoke, seconded by Mayor Hamilton that in view of the decision of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that no action be taken by the commission to increase taxi fares as had been requested some time ago by the local operators.

The commission has already granted a taxi license to a woman driver but took no action yesterday when an application for a license was received from Ann Ellen Elmhirst. The reason for the refusal was that the applicant is only 18 years of age and the commissioners considered her too young to be granted a license. The application had been approved by the Chief Constable. C. A. McMaster applied for a license and it was granted by the commission.

Eleven Men Enlist For Active Service

Eleven more active service recruits have stepped out in uniform after signing in at the Peterborough Armories and have been posted to various units in Eastern Ontario, and the flow of men into the Canadian Army continues with an average of about three men presenting themselves daily.

Five other young men tried to enlist but were rejected because of low medical categories. These five are Harry McDonnell, 225 Caddy Street; Roy O. G. Blakeley, 307 Bethune Street; Clifford N. Johnston, Campbellford; Clayton T. McEwen, Campbellford, and Orville W. W. Smith, 492 Elm Street.

Those who were accepted for active service are as follows: Fred William Clarkson, R.R., Peterborough, to Ottawa; Calvert M. McConnell, 27 Lansdowne Street, to Ottawa; Maurice G. Rea, 105 Sophia Street, to Kingston; Dalton Albert Nelson, 348 Stewart Street, to the 36th Battery, R.C.A., Kingston; Wilbert E. West, Campbellford, to Kingston; George S. Bibby, Campbellford, to Kingston; Victor T. Shewen, Peterborough, to Kingston; Gerald W. Moffatt, 169 Princess Street, to Ottawa; Robert A. Loyst, Rodon, Ontario, to the Forestry Corps; F. Oscar Radey, 42 Lansdowne Street, to Ottawa, and Alfred T. Prout, 177 Adeline Avenue, to Ottawa.

Men In City Are Urged To Join Reserve Units

"There are a great many men in this city strolling the streets in the evening who should be in one of the local Reserve Force Units," Mayor James Hamilton stated in the course of his address Monday night at the first annual banquet of the 4th Field Battery RCA (RF). The mayor emphasized the importance of the 4th Battery and Prince of Wales Rangers as instruments of home defence in a world at war.

The banquet and entertainment, held in the Legion Hall, was a most successful affair with more than a hundred Battery members and guests present. Arrangements were under direction of 2-Lt. W. G. Ovens, chairman last evening, with efficient catering supplied by the Canadian Legion Women's Association.

At the head table were the Mayor; Lt.-Col. D. J. Lawrie, Commanding Officer of the 4th Field Brigade; Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, V.D., Commanding Officer of the Prince of Wales Rangers; Major A. H. Macdonald, M.C., Brigade adjutant; Major V. M. Eastwood, M.C., Rangers adjutant; Major McGrath, training officer of the Rangers; Major S. Y. Walsh, Brigade medical officer; Capt. W. H. Ackhurst, officer commanding the 4th Battery; Capt. G. A. Dundas of Cobourg, officer commanding the 14-22 Battery; Capt. Stabler of the 36th Battery (AF) of Cobourg; Lieut. G. S. Edwards of Cobourg; Lieut. R. A. Phillips, Lieut. R. D. MacKimmie, and 2-Lts. W. G. Ovens, G. M. Ingersoll, F. J. Green, J. O. Weldon and W. T. Fanjoy of Peterborough.

Jack Marshall played the piano for a short sing-song and also accompanied Pte. R. Abrahams of the Training Centre in two solos, which made a real hit with the gathering. Pte. Auger of the Training Centre also entertained, and a number of mystifying tricks of magic by Bob Hardy proved popular. Two movie reels, loaned by the C.G.E. Co., were run off under direction of 2-Lt. MacKimmie to hold the interest of the members and guests.

Among the guests were members of the A. & T. Staffs of the Brigade and Prince of Wales Rangers, C.Q.M.S. Harry Gabbutt of the Training Centre, Petty Officer Jack Archibald of the Canadian Navy—home on leave from Ottawa—and a number of others of the city and district.

25,000 Slain, 4 Days

Business Area For This Week's Salvage Drive

The collection of war salvage last Thursday was another great contribution by the south end of the city and the north end of North Monaghan. This Thursday the collection will be made in the business section of the city down town and will be the last district collection for some time

The ladies of the committee will continue to operate with regular customers and calls.

Following is the area:

Water street from Brock to King.

George street from Brock to Wolfe.

Aylmer street from Brock to King

Hunter street from the bridge to Aylmer.

Simcoe street from Queen to Aylmer.

Charlotte street from Water to Park street.

King street from George to Aylmer.

Extra help will again be required for this collection, which will be a very large one if the stores will start now and get together all they can between now and Thursday morning. So that the stores will have time in the morning to get the salvage out after they are opened the collection will not start until 9.30 o'clock

PLENTY OF BICYCLES

Peterborough apparently has a lot more bicycles than the authorities imagined. Up to today no fewer than 3316 licenses have been issued by the police department and there are still daily applications for markers.

Crown Attorney, Harry Deyman, in which the Crown Attorney enclosed a certificate of payment of fees in the Horsburgh case with a notice that in future he would send the accounts to the clerk.

"You will recall the Crown Attorney was to look after these fees. Now as you see by this letter, he refuses to do so. There have been complaints about witnesses' sheets not being paid. I received witness sheets on June 12th of a case last October," declared the clerk.

Warden Dodge expressed the opinion that the trouble over fees had been going on for a long time and he thought it had been straightened out. The clerk had received the blame for considerable time when the fault apparently not been his, the Warden said. He felt that there should be some definite arrangement once and for all to settle the difficulty.

The clerk replied that he doubted if the Crown Attorney could be compelled to look after the payment of the fees but if he wanted to cooperate in the matter he could. The plan of handling the fees which had been in effect was arranged last year when the Crown Attorney was authorized to keep an amount on hand for which to pay the witness' fees as they came up. The council yesterday decided to call in the Crown Attorney for a conference on it.

A letter from Sheriff John T. Field invited the counties council to attend the installation on Wednesday afternoon of J. C. German of Toronto as Judge for Northumberland and Durham counties. Tenders for the Road Insurance were opened, two in number and the tender of last year was renewed at $615.25, which is $233 less than the premium last year.

Revue Is Presented At Training Centre

One of the snappiest revues produced since the beginning of the war was presented to the entire personnel of the Military Training Centre here last evening.

The show, an all-star variety entertainment was produced by "Red" Foster. It is the only mobile theatre and perhaps the largest entertainment company touring Canada for the sole purpose of entertaining members of the three armed forces. Complete in every detail the members of the cast, 14 in all, excluding the management served up two hours of entertainment to the more than 1,000 troops who showed their appreciation by encoring every number on the lengthy program.

Included in the bevy of young ladies, 10 in number, were representatives of every province in the Dominion. In the majority of cases they were the winners of the various provincial beauty contests.

The entertainment was presented in front of the grandstand. The costuming of the entire cast was equal to that seen in former days when revues were among the most popular form of entertainment with the theatre-going public.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the cast was thanked by Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., officer commanding the centre, on behalf of the officers and men.

FOR POST-WAR RELIGION.

PONTIPRIDD, Wales — (CP) — Enlisting as an air force observer, Rev. John Emrys Jones, 36, Presbyterian, said "I want the same life as the boys so I can preach to them with understanding after the war."

Ugly Posture Corrected With Simple Exercises

Many Unaware Of Their Posture

She doesn't guess how she looks! She'd be so surprised to learn that as long as her head pokes forward and her buttocks stick out, her darling suit is all in vain. Only posture exercises will make her look smart.

So often you don't know what your posture is really like. Or you think you correct yours by holding your shoulders back—when you remember to!

Actually, posture starts at your middle section. Slack muscles there soon have you slumping. But exercise those muscles and what a difference! They hold you youthfully, beautifully erect without a bit of conscious effort from you.

Try this exercise to firm "middle" muscles. 1—Sitting, place hand behind hips. 2—Stretch body upward as far as you can without taking weight from seat. Back straight, chest out, abdomen in, head back. 3—Slump forward with rounded back. Repeat 5 to 7 times.

Right exercises correct other figure faults, too. In our 32-page booklet are exercises to slim waistline, hips and legs; to beautify arms, shoulders and bust; to correct posture, painful feet.

For your copy of Best Exercises For Health and Beauty, send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of Booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVING AND TAKING

SINCE marriage is supposed to be in some respects a matter of give-and-take, to produce the theoretically ideal 50-50 about which we hear so much, it is probably appropriate for a writer to release on his thirtieth wedding anniversary an anecdote which features the give-and-take idea. Deals on which either side can make a game are not especially infrequent, but it is rather edifying to see one on which both sides made game at the identically same contract, plus one or more extra tricks.

North: ♠ 10 ♥ J 8 5 ♦ J 10 9 5 3 2 ♣ Q 5 3

West: ♠ Q J 7 6 3 2 ♥ 10 7 6 3 ♦ 6 ♣ 9 2

East: ♠ A K 5 ♥ K 4 ♦ Q 7 ♣ A K J 10 6 4

South: ♠ 9 8 4 ♥ A Q 9 2 ♦ A K 8 4 ♣ 8 7

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

	West	North	East	South
1.	Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥
	Pass	1 NT	Dble	2 ♦
	Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
2.	Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥
	Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3 ♠	Pass	3 NT

There is no claim to that being fine bidding, at either table. At the first, North was desperately trying to gain some impossibly high scores, to catch up in the duplicate game in which his pair had scored none too well. Against him, East led the club K and A, next the J to the Q. Followed six tricks in diamonds, a finesse of the heart Q, the heart A and the heart J, producing an extra trick.

At the other table, South led the spade 9, imagining his partner to hold something over West's bid. So East promptly ran six tricks in spades and six in clubs, after winning that finesse, giving him 12 tricks all told and three over his contract.

Tomorrow's Lesson

North: ♠ 5 ♥ A 8 7 6 5 4 ♦ K 2 ♣ 10 7 5 3

West: ♠ 10 8 3 2 ♥ Q J 10 9 ♦ J 6 5 4 ♣ 2

East: ♠ Q J 6 ♥ K 3 2 ♦ Q 10 9 3 ♣ A J 9

South: ♠ A K 9 7 4 ♥ None ♦ A 8 7 ♣ K Q 8 6 4

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After West leads the heart Q, how should South plan his play of this deal to make 6-Clubs?

Some Rome Claims

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 15 (AP)—The Italian high command claimed today that British forces lost 69 tanks, 13 guns and 700 men taken prisoner in two days' fighting on the Libyan front June 12 and 13.

"Violent patrol and artillery activity" backed up by air blows on British concentrtions marked the action in the Ain el Gazala region yesterday, it said.

Chase Them To Japan

CHUNGKING, June 16 (AP) — The China Times urged in an editorial today that United States and Canadian action be taken at once to drive the Japanese from their foothold in the tip of the Aleutian Islands and "pursue them right to the heart of Japan."

"Now is the time," the Newspaper said, "for American and Canadian air fleets to strike hard."

The newspaper also urged that Soviet Russia give the United States plane bases in the Vladivostok area and on the Kamchatka peninsula, from which to attack Japan.

German's Diary Shows Him Sick Of Desert

LONDON, June 16—(CP) —"Poor homeland," the German diary said in part, "can you offer nothing better to your sons who are roasting in Africa's heat?"

Taken from a captured sergeant mechanic of the Africa Corps and released by the British Ministry of Information, the book reveals the Nazi soldier as sometimes boastful sometimes whining, homesick, war weary and always contemptuous of his Italian allies. It suggests a slow deterioration of Nazi morale.

Written in a period from July to November, 1941, the diary noted early that "I think that if the British had a go at us now they could walk over us— we are helpless here with no motor transport."

The diarist added: "I'd like to see the blurbs they're shoving in all the newspapers about our 'splendid' grub out here. Here we sit like birds in the wilderness and they give us food fit for owls."

'No break again for Sunday .... The whole boring war can just go han gas far as I'm concerned.... We started off the day again with an inoculation in the left breast, this time against cholera. If it goes on like this we shall shortly be walking medicine chests."

And later: "I've reached the stage that almost the whole company reached months ago. All the pride in my health has gone."

Of the defense of Tobruk, "this plague spot of Cyrenaica," the sergeant said: "I admire the iron resolution with which the British fight on from this isolated post. It was in their power to abandon it by sea long ago."

In August the writer said: "We get it pretty bad with British planes here. The beggars are here the whole time......Of the Luftwaffe there is nothing to be seen. I think they must be away in Russia."

"The Italians are gradually getting on my nerves. The whole livelong day these friends of our sound the air-raid alert, whether for a German, or an Italian, or a Britisher. They don't care a damn. Then they take to their heels and dive down their holes."

The last entry said that "British tanks are coming toward us."

Plan Parcels Already For Christmas

CAMPBELLFORD, June 16 (ENS) —Bemersyde Chapter members here are already laying plans for their Christmas parcels to the boys overseas. It was announced at their regular meeting on Thursday evening that each member would be made responsible for the completion of two sweaters and two pairs of gloves 'in time for the Christmas parcels.' The treasurer gave her report showing $85.35 in the general fund and $216.92 in the war services fund and following this Mrs. J. M. Ferris moved that all outstanding bills be paid. A letter from the high school enclosing a contribution of $6.50 was read explaining that the money was raised by the sale of a volume entitled "History of Campbellford" written and edited by the pupils. This money will be turned over to the I.O.D.E. cigarette fund.

Mrs. H. T. Scott gave the war convener's report emphasizing the need for army sweaters and she also thanked Miss E. Ferris for the splendid way in which she had completed the inventory of knitted goods. Out of this grew a lengthy discussion of knitting and the decision to include a sweater and two pair of sox in the embarkation parcels while two pair of sox and one pair of gloves will go into the Christmas parcels. On motion of Mrs. George Hawthorne an Mrs. H. Beatty it was decided to send as much as possible to the navy and every member was urged to co-operate in the matter of obtaining the names of soldiers on embarkation leave and turn them over to the conveners.

With the announcement that three quilts were scheduled for completion the Regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside made the suggestion that a lawn quilting should be held. This was greeted enthusiastically and after June 17 had been selected as the date for the affair Mrs. E. C. Roberts graciously offered to loan her garden for the occasion. Mrs. Bennett Morton, Mrs. Frank Linton, Mrs. A. J. Armour, Mrs. Stuart Anderson and Miss Dorothy Henson volunteered to act as a committee for tea during the afternoon.

Mrs. J. Gay reported four parcels of tinfoil has been sent away on June 10 and the cigarette convener, Mrs. F. Free said that although no cigarettes had been sent since the last meeting a parcel would be despatched within the next week. Mrs. V. Rutherford reported for the hospitality committee re the week-end entertainment of airmen and declared that arrangements were well in hand.

The salvaging of old gramphone records is proceeding favorably according to Group 1 leader Mrs. J. Storie who said they had ready sold a number of records and were also collecting coal hangers. Another problem under the head of salvage was the collection of glass bottles and a motion authorizing the secretary to write to the Rotary Club asking them to take this work over, was passed.

The Empire study portion of the evening was turned over to Mrs. W. A. Kingston who gave a talk on "Ceylon" folowing which the regular War Savings Stamp draw was held with a beautiful bouquet of peonies, a donation of the Regent, as second prize. The winners were Miss Eleanor Ferris and Mrs. James O. Benor.

SCOUTING AND THE A.R.P.

On looking through the Scout leader for the month we notice the many centres were Scouts from the age of 14 years up are taking active part in the preparation of messenger service and first aid work

St. Thomas, the Soo, Three Rivers, Timmins and the Scout leader is full of instructions regarding what to do for fire alarm services for the A.R.P., which points out the Scouts should be prepared for this sort of work. Then we read that the Toronto district has come to some arrangements for messengers with the A.R.P. to be covered by the group insurance.

All this points to one thing, we the Scouts of Peterborough should get busy and see that we too are preparing ourselves for work with the A.R.P. The recent appeal put out in this column brought very poor results and we are making another appeal, one which I will combine with our Scout Laws, the promise to do our duty to the King. Here then is our opportunity to serve. Do it now! Volunteer for the messenger services as Scouts. Phone Mr. Grant, Mr. Max Sloan or your scribe and get your application form today. ROMMEL SMASHES HARD TO BEAT OUT CONVOY AID

Reds Force Huns Back At Kharkov

Shore Planes Routed Duce's Fleet

Never Caught Convoy States London Of Tobruk Supplies

LONDOS, June 17.—(CP).—An Italian naval squadron in the Central Mediterranean was so battered and hurt by British and United States airmen that it never made contact with the Tobruk-bound convoy it had set out to intercept, a British source stated to-day.

It was declared officially that convoys early this week had delivered necessary supplies to both Malta and Tobruk "at considerable cost."

What this cost was in ships and men was not diclosed, but the convoy operations were described officially as "a limited success."

There was no London comment on German reports of yesterday that a United States battleship was among the escort of one of the convoys.

On both the Allied and Axis sides shore-based aircraft apparently did the major portion of damage to the opposing surface forces.

Failure of the heavy Italian squadron even to get into contact with the Tobruk convoy was declared here to have taught Mussolini's navy that "like the Japanese fleet in the Pacific," it was no match for shore-based planes.

Reports from the Middle East indicated that American pilots and planes were fighting at present within the framework of the R.A.F. while gaining experience, but that later they would operate as a separate force, sharing assignments with the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F.

Sources in London acknowledged the hazards of supplying such a base as Malta but emphasized the necessity of braving them.

Discontent Still Growing Petain Confesses Offering Little Hope For 3rd Year Under Hun

VICHY, June 17 (AP)—"Discontent is growing," Chief of State Petain admitted today in a brief broadcast to the French people on the second anniversary of his suing for peace with Germany.

The 86-year-old chief said, however, that he hoped to realize his country's salvation "even after my death."

"Frenchmen," he began, "on June 17, 1940, at the tragic hour of the armistice request, I summoned you to silence your anguish so as to hearten only your faith in the destiny of your country.

"A year later, on June 17, 1941, I declared to you that the trail would be long and hard. Today I cannot speak to you in different terms."

He insisted nevertheless that "the weariness, the neglect, the reproaches have not disheartened me...."

Refraining from mention of the international situation or French politics, the marshal castigated profiteers and "the vile powers of money."

Fifty Vessels Convoy Chased Back To Alexandria, Is Rome's Version

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), June 17—(AP).—The Italian High Command claimed today the presence of a strong Italian naval formation in waters near Crete forced a 50-ship British convoy to turn back to Alexandria under Axis aerial assault in one phase of this week's battles along the Mediterranean sea lanes.

(British authorities announced that their convoys—one bound from Alexandria to Tobruk and another from Gibr ltar to Malta—had fought their way through to both ports, althougl "at considerable cost.")

The Italians reported that their ships rescued everal hundred British officers and men belonging to enemy warships and merchant ships which had been set on fire or sunk" in attacks on another convoy in the central Mediterranean.

The convoy from Alexandria "turned back from its course as soon as it discovered a strong Italian naval squadron in Cretan waters," a communique aid.

The British ships were said to have been attacked by Axis planes before turning back, and the Italians said German planes inflicted further damage as the ships sped back to Alexandria.

The Axis Summary.

Summing up Axis claims, the High Command said:

"The German Air I ce sank four cruisers and destroyers and numerous merchant ships. Many other enemy ships were hit and damaged. Moreover one cruiser was sunk by a German submarine. Our air force sank a destroyer. Five enemy cruiser and four enemy (merchant) ships were seriously damaged."

(The German High Command claimed yesterday that six British warships and six mercha tmer had been sunk and 21 other vessels damaged in these operations)).

About 100 of the British officers and seamen rescued from sunken or burning vessels in the Sicilian channel were reported seriously wounded.

The communique, describing the action again as victory for Axis forces, said it "will henceforth be known as the Battle of Pantelleria," after an Italian is--l in the Channel.

Curtin Uneasy On War Outlook

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 17—(CP)— Prime Minister John Curtin told Australians sombrely to-day that the war news is not good, that "Australia can be lost," and that the fall of this continent would lay Hawaii and the whole North American coast open to Japenese attack.

In a radio address appealing for War Loan subscriptions at the rate of $9,000,000 a day for the remaining five days of a current drive, Mr. Curtin based his statements on

He declared the Axis is engaged in three powerful separate thrusts against the United Nations and that each is of vital importance to Australia.

The dynamic operations now proceeding, said Mr. Curtin, are the powerful German onslaught against Russia, the thrust in Libya and the sustained and widespread submarine attacks on Allied shipping.

Australia is irrevocably linked wtih the wars in Libya and Russia," he said.

Mr. Curtin said that a complete setback for the Allies in the Middle East would gravely affect Australia because it would give the enemy command of the Suez Canal and the gateway to India, leaving the Indian Ocean for enemy approach to Australia.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 17.—(CP)— As the result of an ill-fated canoe trip taken by three British airmen in nearby Portsmouth harbor last night, two men, including a would-be rescuer, are missing, one died in hospital after being rescued and another is recovering in hospital.

The mishap occurred when the canoe containing the three airmen, members of the fleet air arm, capsized. Their plight was noticed simultaneously by 17-year-old Lawrence McGeein of Portsmouth and by two unidentified Royal Air Force members who immediately set out on a rescue errand, McGeein in his sailboat and the R.A.F. members in an outboard motor boat.

The Air Force men were first to reach the capsized canoe where they found two men clinging to it, the other evidently having slipped

Soviets Cling To Famed Balaclava

Six Massed Assaults Troops, Tanks, Planes Roll Off Sevastopol

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 17.—(AP)—Soviet counter attacks on the Kharkov front were reported today to have forced the Germans to abandon several lines in one sector where they tried to dig in to new positions.

While the Nazis were rolled back there, Russian dispatches told of other Red Army counter attacks in several other Kharkov sectors.

In the battle for Sevastopol the fierce fighting swirled around an important highway against which the Germans launched masses of troops, tanks and planes in six assaults.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans also attacked the southern defences of Sevastopol five times only to be repulsed in every case.

The Red Army, the dispatches said, is still holding Balaclava, the fishing town 7½ miles south of Sevastopol made famous by Tennyson's poem "The Charge of the Light Brigade" which occurred during the Crimean war.

Midway Patrols Save 27 Fliers

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., June 17—Navy patrol planes, carrying out a ten-day search during and after the Midway battle, rescued twenty-seven servicemen floating in tiny rubber boats, the navy announced yesterday.

Several of the boats were capsized by sharks, but the men fought them off and there were no casualties from that quarter.

One of the most thrilling accounts was given by Aviation Ordnance Man Second Class Philip L. Fulghum, 20, Portland, Ore. The plane on which he was a bombardier was attacked by three Jap seaplane fighters. One was shot down and then the American plane was set afire. Fulghum released its bombs and his ammunition started exploding. The plane hit the water at a 45-degree angle. They were about 350 miles from Midway Island.

"Then everything became confused," Fulghum said. Both rear gunners were dead and the plane's commander was wounded in the

Single Men, Childless Widowers Up to 35 Subject To Forced Training Under New Order

OTTAWA, June 17—(CP) — Single men and childless widowers up to and including 35 years of age are subject to compulsory training under a proclamation tabled in the House of Commons to-day by War Services Minister Thorson.

This is an extension of five years in the upper age limit for men called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act for service within Canada and its territorial waters.

Now before the House of Commons is an amendment to the N.R.M.A. which would remove the restriction against compelling men to serve outside Canada. Today's proclamation contains the restriction.

The next step is expected to be the calling of married men, starting with those who were 21 years old and married in July, 1940.

Affected by the new proclamation are men born in the years 1911, 1910, 1909, 1908, and 1907, who were single or childless widowers at July 15, 1940.

Now subject to call are men born in the years 1921 to 1907 inclusive, but persons born in the year 1921 are not to be called until they reach the age of 21.

All From Executive To Office Boy Must Get Permit To Change Job

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 17—(CP).—New regulations to provide control over movement of labor by requiring official approval for job changes in most industries were announced today by Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service.

He said the regulations, under which practically all employment will be compulsorily channelled through Government employment offices, will "ultimately lead to rationing of labor by direction, not by compulsion."

Men and women of all ages are affected immediatel by the new order. Its range covers executives and office boys.

Mr. Little warned that the time will "probably" come when it will be necessary to transfer workers from one job to another to meet labor shortages in vital industries, but he added: "We do not want to do that until we have to."

To provide selective service officials with a day-to day picture of the labor supply situation, employers who anticipate a need for workers, or who anticipate they will be laying off workers, are required to report that fact to the officials.

The order extends to almost every form of work the same necessity for permits as was previously put into effect for physically-fit men from 17 to 45 who wished to enter a long list of so-called "restricted occupations"—but there are no health or age limits involved in the new system.

Decision of a selective service officer in granting or refusing a permit may be appealed to the District National War Services Board and decision of the board will be final.

Farmer Main Exception.

Exceptions from provisions of the order, in addition to agriculture, are fishing, huntin trapping, employment by provinces, scientific and technical employment, domestic service in a private home, part time employment of students, subsidiary employment not the principal means of livelihood, and casual or irregular employment.

Blown Into U.S. 4 RCAF Men Hurt

MALONE, N.Y. June 17—(AP).—Three men were injured, two seriously, and another escaped with cuts and bruises when two Royal Canadian Air Force planes, blown off their course on a training flight made forced landings to-day in a remote mountain region in Northern New York State.

State police said a third plane with a pilot officer and student was believed to have made a similar landing in the section, but several hours' search had failed to locate it.

PO. E. A. Wilson, brought to the hospital here for a head injury after walking several miles through dense woods, told State police he left a student unconscious near his damaged machine.

A student identified only as Saunders, flying in another plane and slightly injured, also made his way to a camp and notified authorities his pilot officer was hurt critically and unconscious.

Wilson told State police he saw flares dropped by two planes while he was attempting to land.

The planes landed near Ragged Lake Mountain about 15 miles south-east of here. They were in a flight of nine machines which left a Canadian field last night.

A State Conservation Department plane searched for a possible third R.C.A.F. aircraft. Forest Rangers, State and County Police, and physicians went to the scene of the two damaged planes.

British, Best Tanks Wrecked Cling To Tobruk Outposts Wait Newly-Docked Supplies

Surviving Old Type Tanks Inferior To Nazis, Axis Flings New Column Into Fray Claims 6,000 Troops, 224 Tanks Captured

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CAIRO, June 17—(AP).—British guns and tanks were reported today to have beaten off two Axis attacks at Sidi Rezegh and Acroma as Field Marshal Erwin Rommel sought to storm Tobruk before the vital supplies, newly landed at the port under cover of British and American planes, could be put into the fight.

A military commentator said the "position is substantially unchanged" with the British army holding a semi-circular position west, south and southeast of the port, and the Germans smashing steadily at that line with tanks and artillery.

The commentator said the Germans, for the moment, were in the favorable position of having superiority in numbers of tanks and anti-tank guns.

A German communique said more than 6,000 prisoners had been taken by the Axis in the fighting of the past few days in the Ain El Gazala region and that 224 tanks, 33 guns and more than 500 trucks had been captured or destroyed.

General Grants Used Up.

Three weeks of intensive fighting were said to have depleted the strength of General Grant tanks which the British force had at the outset, thus compelling the British command to fall back on older-type reserve tanks described as no match for the Mark Fours which Rommel's forces have thrown into action.

Some sources expressed the belief the supplies landed at Tobruk might include the necessary weapons to enable the British forces to counter attack and perhaps regain damaged but repairable tanks which they left behind in withdrawing from the Knightsbridge area and their Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line.

Tanks and truck-loads of infantry of both sides were reported engaged in fierce fighting between Sidi Rezegh, 25 miles south-east of Tobruk, and El Adem, 18 miles south of Tobruk. The Axis forces were believed to have been reinforced by a new column which moved up to this area at mid-day yesterday.

The British line apparently is anchored on the est at Acroma, dips southward through El Adem and veers northeastward from there to Sidi Rezegh, 25 miles southeast of Tobruk and 58 miles west of the Egyptian border.

Having escaped an Axis trap near Ain el Gazala in a successful withdrawal of two divisions to complete the reshaping of Britain's line, the 8th Army apparently was standing firm again as the fighting for Libya stretched into the fourth week of its newest, fiercest battle with the strain of heat, sandstorms and conflict telling on the men and machines of both sides.

Boost For Milk If Board Can Cut Costs

OTTAWA, June 17 (CP)—Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said today that no increase in the retail price of fluid milk will be permitted but that the Board will concur in an order of the Ontario Milk Board if that body "finds it feasible to provide for a higher price to be paid to producers in consequence of measures to reduce the cost of distribution."

Mr. Gordon's statement followed by three days a Toronto meeting at which Ontario Milk Producers discussed the possibility of a milk strike. They met to seek ways and mean to bring about what they termed some measure of economic security to the milk producing business.

Mr. Gordon's statement follows:

The (Wartime Prices and Trade) Board has received representatives from milk producers, particularly in the Toronto area, to the effect that milk prices should be increased in order to provide a higher return to the farmer.

RAF Loses Eight Bombing Ruhr

LONDON June 17 — (CP). — British bombers smashed again at Nazi war plants in the Ruhr and Rhineland regions of Germany last night although bad weather which had forced a week-long lull still had not fully cleared.

The size of the raiding formation was average, observers said, appreciably below the scope of the 1,000-plane attacks upon Cologne and Essen on May 30 and June 1.

A strong bombing force blasted at the industrial Ruhr Valley in the last previous raid upon the Reich the night of June 8. Adverse weather was reported to have prevailed thereafter through Monday night.

Eight British bombers failed to return from the night's offensives, which included mine-sowing in aerial waters, the Air Ministry said.

Its communique added that a German fighter was shot down attempting to intercept the R.A.F. bombers and that a British fighter also was lost on daylight offensive patrol over Northern France yesterday.

Gandhi's 'New Movement Threat' Serious

Civil Disobedience Now Seen Likely To Act As Direct Magnet To Japanese

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

Mohandas Gandhi's declaration that he soon will launch in India a movement which "will be felt by the whole world" is causing uneasiness among those who have some understanding of the politcal conditions in that great Empire of 400,000,000 people.

Gandhi doesn't specify what form this movement will take. The only certainty is that while the little ascetic weighs only 100 pounds, every ounce of that is dynamite, for he wields tremendous power. His statement that he is going to stir "the whole world" shouldn't be taken too lightly.

Observers in New Delhi believe Gandhi may be planning a deliberate clash with the authorities, bringing about the jail sentence and hunger strike which he has made famous around the globe. Some take the speculation a step further and express fear he may be contemplating leading his following once more into civil disobedience.

That can be a terrible weapon under any circumstances. In the midst of a war like this such a development would be grave, especially since the possibility of Japanese invasion of Inda hasn't been removed, and in any event the Allies are depending heavily on Hindustan to help defeat the Axis.

Civil disobedience as conceived by Gandhi means "peaceful resistance" to all Governmental authority. In the past it has involved boycotts of British-made goods withdrawal of Indians from Government positions, and the ignoring of all Government services including the legislatures, courts and tax officials.

Under Gandhi's plan of operation civil disobedience is calculated to be wholly non-violent. He doesn't believe in using force even to prevent the invasion of his country by the Japs. In past experiments with this volcanic idea, however, he has been unable to control the machine once he got t rolling. Non-violence has given way to violence, and there have been widespread disorders and bloodshed.

Such a development might be the magnet which would draw a Japanese invasion.

14-Yr. Old Girl Gets 20 Years

Shot Husband Fearing He was About To Shoot Her

MORRISTOWN, Tenn., June 16.—(AP).—Mattie Pearl Manning, 14 year old child-widow, told a jury of mountaineers yesterday that the day before her husband was shot to death he had been singing "tomorrow'll be a buryin' day for you.

Wearing a blue print dress, the little girl, as the only witness told the jury in almost inaudible tones:

"I shot him. I thought he was going to shoot me. He threatened to kill me."

Mattie Pearl and her father, Frank Morgan, 50, were tried together to-day in five hours for the murder of the girl's husband, Damon Manning, 35 year old house painter.

Within less than an hour, the jury found the girl guilty of second degree murder and her father guilty of aiding and abetting in second degree murder. Punishment of each was fixed at 20 years in prison. Defence counsel said a new trial would be sought.

Service Club Hoes Beets

60 Exeter Men Do 5 Acres Give Pay To Red Cross

LONDON, Ont., June 17 —(CP)— Aroused by fears of the fate of the sugar beet crop because of labor shortage, several Western Ontario districts took action yesterday to provide labor.

At a special meeting, business men in nearby Lucan decided to close their stores at 1 p.m. tomorrow and go to neighboring sugar beet fields.

At St. Mary's, a "save-the-crop club" was formed at an emergency mass meeting in the town hall.

Answering the call of a service club more than 60 Exeter men spent the early evening thinning and trimming five acres of sugar beets on Fred Ellerington's farm—and donated their "wages" to the Red Cross.

At $10 an acre, the men earned $50. Included in the group were lawyers, doctors, merchants and clergymen.

ITALIAN FLEET NO MATCH FOR BRITISH SHORE-BASED AIRCRAFT

Malta, Tobruk Bolstered At High Cost

Britain However Denies 53-Ship Toll; Duce's Fleet Fled

LONDON, June 17. —(CP) — British convoys fought through to Malta and Tobruk under heavy Axis air and naval attacks delivered necessary supplies "at considerable cost," it was stated officially in London to-day.

A British Admiralty-Air Ministry communique dismissed yesterday as "fantastic" the claims of the Italian and German high command that Axis forces sank or damaged 53 or more warships and merchantment in the Mediterranean Sunday or Monday.

The convoy operations were officially described to-day as "a limited success."

Actual costs in ships, planes and men were not announced but the hazards of supplying Malta were admitted and the necessity for braving them emphasized.

"If Malta was neutralized by the enemy or in his hands," a London source said, "the Axis supply problem in North Africa would be a comparatively simple one."

Duce's Fleet Turned Back

The Italian fleet which left the Taranto naval base to attack the Tobruk-bound convoy was turned back by heavy attacks of R.A.F. and United States air force bombers and did not make contact with its escort vessels, the source said.

Both convoys, steaming from Gibraltar and from Alexandria, were reported attacked heavily by shore-based aircraft from Axis bases in Sardinia, Sicily, Panteleria, Crete and Libya.

There were indications the Axis knew the convoy from Gibraltar was leaving and it was shadowed by long-range reconnaissance planes almost from the beginning of the voyage.

When it came within range of the Axis bases, high-level bombers, dive-bombers and torpedo planes attacked.

Nelson said British production chiefs now in the United States told him they had estimated several months ago that American output would top Britain's by this September.

"As a matter of fact," Nelson said, "we passed it last week, three months early."

ducers' Associations were informed by the Board some time ago that no increase in the retail price paid by the consumer for fluid milk would be sanctioned by the Board, but that studies were being made to ascertain whether by economies in distribution producers could obtain a larger share of the price paid by consumers.

Dickering On For Month.

Discussions have been proceeding for over a month between representatives of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the Ontario Milk Board and representatives of the Milk Producers' Associations.

J. G. Taggart, Foods Administrator, has met the Producers' Associations three times in the past three weeks, outlined to them the Board's policy as described above, and kept them informed of progress being made.

The Ontario Milk Board, with the assistance of the Wartime prices and Trade Board, has been studying methods of reducing costs of distribution in the Toronto area. The Board's division of simplified practice and the services administrator have made a special survey in that area to find the most effective and equitable means of reducing the overlapping of delivery routes.

The Milk Producers Associations are familiar with these developments, and have been informed that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will concur in an order of the Ontario Milk Board if the latter body finds it feasible to provide for a higher price to be paid to producers in consequence of distribution.

Average Seven Recruits For Each Day

R.S.M. Harold Chate of the staff at the Peterborough Armouries reports today that enlistment for the active service forces is averaging at least seven a day, and not three a day as was reported last week. Men are coming in from all parts of the district to join the various branches of the army, and many of them are showing a preferance for the Ordnance Corps.

In the Reserve Army, recruiting is also quite brisk, and on Tuesday night at the Armouries, nine more Peterborough men enlisted in the Prince of Wales Rangers for home defence. The new recruits are as follows: Ronald John Killens, 199 Reid street; Gordon Leroy Trull, 199 Reid street; Herbert Ireland, 235 George street; Jack Park, 301 Reid street; Donald Henry Barrett, 464 Bonaccord street; Donald Smith, 68 Monaghan Road; Wilfred Thomas Phillips 610 Yonge street; Ameon Shannon 139 James street; William Alfred Whawell, 103 Rubidge street.

Baptists Hold Convention In City Church

Ministers, at the 140th annual meeting of the Peterborough Association of Baptist Churches held in Murray Street church, today, were told that a little more passion and a little less of the essay type of sermon was needed at the present time, by Dr. H. H. Bingham, the General Secretary.

Dr. Bingham dealt in detail with some of the important items discussed at the Convention in Hamilton a week ago. He said that the question of superannuation had been discussed by experts and that it is hoped in a few more months to have a good working scheme in operation. He also cleared up a general misunderstanding about the budget. The Budget which was reached this year was $120,000 and next year it is to be raised with $130,000 as the objective. The money for this budget is confined to general offerings, and specials, such as missionary and Young People' offerings, go in as specials and will not be credited to the budget amount. Out of more than 300 churches, 160 went over the top this year, he said, and people are becoming more budget concious.

Spirtual Impetus

"Last year emphasis for the year was laid on stewardship and it was found that it gave a real spiritual impetus to the work," Dr. Bingham said. "But this year there should be a crusade for youth, a thing which is badly needed at the present time. This must start in the home, the spring which returns the streams to national life. This is a large program and it is very vital that the work be speeded up.

"We live by evangelism and people coming into the Church, and it is to be hoped that we will see a large increase of members through Baptism, the low number of which has been causing concern this last year, although in some cases people have been more sympathetic to joining the church during this period of time."

Give Reality

In his message to the pastors, the speaker said that people were hungry today to know the truth and to get a grip on faith, and that too often ministers presented that thing which is like "fiction" to an actor in his portrayal, instead of a vital flaming reality. He said that the same deep concern about the soul which flourished twenty-five years ago was lacking today, because sin was no longer a personal thing in the minds of most people, but a general thing to be blamed on institutions, governments and corporations.

"Get back to the family altar or something akin to it," he urged. He also paid high tribute to the Baptist chaplains who are serving with the forces and doing such a splendid job.

At the beginning of the meeting three committees were appointed to take charge of their respective fields and under the direction of the Rev. C. C. Boyter, Moderator, the following men were appointed: Committee on Arrangements, Dr. M. C. MacLean, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, and Rev. C. C. Boyter of Peterborough; Committee on Nominations, Rev. T. Meldrum, Eddystone H. O. Eastman, Belleville, Fred Darnell, Colborne, and H. K. Walker, Lakefield. The Resolutions Committee was composed of the Rev. Herbert Bryant, Campbellford, W. H. Wallace, Picton and Dr. N. S. McKechnie, Port Hope.

Good Year.

Reports from the different church areas were read, giving an indication of the progress made in the last year. Representatives from Belleville, Campbellford, Cobourg, Colborne and Brighton, Eddystone, Gilmour Memorial, Lakefield Warsaw, Norwood, and Indian River, Murray Street, Park Street, Picton, and Port Hope read their reports which were most encouraging. All showed a firm financial status and a fair increase in attendance, and the number of baptisms. Many went over the top in the fund for Missions and others were very close to the objective.

There was an unusually large crowd in attendance, over fifty delegates, and Mr. Boyter said it was one of the largest morning meetings that the Association had ever had.

All From Executive

"Now we say that no man or woman may take any job anywhere, with a few exceptions, without the approval of a selective service office" Mr. Little said. "It includes executives and messengers.

"This is not 'freezing' because a man or woman still has the right to seek a job and an employer has the right to seek an employee, but the man or woman can't take a job and the employer can't hire anyone without the approval of the local office.

"It enables us to control the movement of labor and guide it where it can contribute to winning this fight we're in. We have got to a stage where we must carefully measure out our manpower on a priority basis just as materials have to be rationed."

The new regulations will not ininterfere with current practices of advertising for employees, but before an employer actually engages an employee he will be required to obtain a permit. This responsibility rests equally on the employee but in practice it will be the employer who makes the application, Mr. Little said.

Outright refusals were not anticipated on any large scale but a determined effort would be made to channel workers into war industries and minimize the mobility of labor.

The leniency in granting permits will be dependent upon employment conditions in the area where the application is made.

Add Extra Offices.

In addition to using the 115 established offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, which will probably be increased, it is planned to licence certain offices, particularly in larger plants in isolated districts.

Already a licence has been granted to the Civil Service Commission which has undertaken to fulfil the regulations.

"We are going to try to take care of local needs with local help to avoid secondary problems," Mr. Little said. "We will probably reach the time when we have to transfer workers but we do not want to do that until we have to."

While employees of Provincial Governments do not come under the order it is applicable to both Dominion Government, and Municipal employees.

The order, which is signed by Labor Minister Mitchell and Mr. Little, provides that except for the specified exceptions "no employer shall take any person into employment except by notifying a local office of the vacancy to be filled and engaging for that vacancy either a person referred to him for such vacancy is approved by the local office."

It further provides that "whenever an employer learns that he requires or will require to engage any additional employees or to lay off any employees, he shall forthwith notify such vacancies or lay-offs to a local office."

The selective service officer is authorized, upon not less than 10 days notice, to revoke any approval granted by him.

"This the beginning of our running inventory," Mr. Little said. "We have a running registration of unemployed males now. With employers obtaining all help through the government employment offices from now on, we will be in a position to piece together demand and supply."

62,000 Not Working

Incomplete figures of the recent registration of unemployment men between the ages of 16 and 69 showed some 62,000 unemployable not working. In addition some 8,000 women were recorded, although they were not required to register. Unemployed men now are required to reregister every two weeks.

Under the Selective Service regulations announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King last March 24 able-bodied men between 17 and 45 were prohibited from entering any of a number of specified "restricted occupations" unless they received a special permit from a Selective Service officer.

An order applying to technical and scientific personnel required that any person in these classifications should notify the Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel that his services were available before he entered new employment.

The regulations also required employers of persons in the technical and scientific groups to report any intention to terminate a contract or enter into a new contract with such employees.

St. Laurent, Howe Both Back Conscription

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent last night placed himself in support of the government bill to impose conscription for overseas when the government feels such action is necessary.

The French-Canadian Minister, speaking in the House of Commons in debate on the bill, said he was convinced "we all want to win the war and that we are all prepared to submit to any measure which may be absolutely necessary for that purpose.

No thinking person have any objection to the government resorting to conscription for overseas service in the event of absolute necessity.

Munitions Minister Howe also spoke Tuesday in support of the bill and said there was nothing to indicate at the moment that men would be needed for service overseas beyond those who had volunteered. But with the war entering its critical phase, the Canadian electors had decided that the National Resources Mobilization Act must be extended to service overseas should the government decide such extension was necessary.

Mr. Howe said a balance must be maintained between the requirements of the armed forces and war production, along with essential civilian activities.

About 5,000,000 people were in the armed services, war industries, agriculture and essential civilian industries and services. This created "a tight manpower situation for a country with a total population of less than 12,000,000 people."

If the balanced program were maintained as between the armed services and the requirements of war industries reasonable expansion in both directions should be possible.

Gas Statement Due

At question time Tuesday, Mr. Howe said he expects to make a statement on the gasoline situation in the House today.

Finance Minister Ilsley said he hoped to be able to announce the date of his budget address before the end of the week.

War Services Minister Thorson adjourned the debate on the conscription - enabling measure last night and is scheduled as the first speaker when debate resumes today.

The whole House applauded as Mr. St. Laurent closed his address last night. He said in conclusion that he would vote for the bill because he thought its adoption would be an expression of confidence of Canadians in themselves "and (it) is our Fulghum, Weeks, Navigator Ensign Lee McCleary, and Aviation Machinists Mate First Class Marsh of Alameda, Cal., inflated the plane's rubber raft but did not have time to get first aid kit or emergency rations. They took the commander aboard.

All ducked under the raft as two Jap planes strafed them, then climbed back aboard.

"We tried to make the commander comfortable and he never lost consciousness and never complained," Fulghum said. "We rigged a sail, but the wind started to take us to Tokyo so we took it down.

"The boat was punctured and we had to pump air into it and bail out the water the entire fifty-eight hours before we were rescued. Blood from the wounded men leaking out through the holes in the boat attracted the sharks. Several times I felt their fins bump the bottom of the raft. One shark was 16 feet long."

On the third day a plane piloted by Lieutenant (J. G.) Norman K. Brady, 27, spotted the group and landed despite heavy swells. The rescued commander died before reaching Midway.

Guarantee Price For Farmer Reeve Suggests

"Give farmers a guarantee of price," was the suggestion of Reeve F. J. Mather, Otonabee, in reference to an appeal from Hon. P. M. Dewan, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, for increased production of sheep, read at the opening session of the County Council today "If the price goes down, where are we?" Mr. Mather commented.

"In the year 1930-39 we produced less than half our wool requirements," Mr. Dewan wrote in a general appeal to the province. Canada has been obtaining some supplies from the United States, but their production last year, 455,000,000 pounds, was approximately half that country's wool needs. Dependence on Australian source has become precarious by the operation of enemy warships.

Hon. Mr. Dewan appealed for an increase of 25 per cent. in wool output in Ontario for 1943, and solicited the co-operation of municipal officers in getting more flocks established.

Reeve Isaac Anderson, Belmont-Methuen, said that a former reeve, Chris Steenzurgh, recently sold all his sheep because of continuing inroads by bears on his flock. Losses caused by dogs of late have cost Douro $700, Reeve Mahoney remarked.

The council deferred discussion of Hon. Mr. Dewan's letter.

A letter from Capt. E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, on service overseas, thanked the council for its gift of cigarettes and tobacco last Christmas. He mentioned his promotion to the rank of captain because he thought it would be of interest to the members.

W. B. Gordon, secretary of the Peterborough Law Association, conveyed the appreciation of its members to Deputy-Reeve A. W. Archibald, chairman of the property committee, for the new lighting system in the law library, and requested him to thank all the members of the council.

Warden Norman Lean presided as the June sessions began, and all the members were present except Reeve A. B Mann of Smith.

High School Pupils Compile History

CAMPBELLFORD, June 17 (ENS) —Work done by High School pupils in preparing a History of Campbellford, copies of which were sold and proceeds donated to the Red Cross, drew praise from members of the Campbellford and Seymour Branch of the Red Cross at their meeting here on Tuesday afternoon. Not only did the secretary commend the pupils for this splendid work but she also thanked them for the generous contribution which sale of the volumes permitted. Thanks was also extended to the Junior Red Cross for afghan blocks completed by pupils in Miss Partridge's class in the Public School and to the Rotary for a contribution of $10.00 made this week.

Though there was a good attendance at the meeting members were again reminded of the importance of getting their latest quota completed on time and an appeal was made for volunteers who would be willing to make boy's shorts or a shirt. There are also a number of skirts, blouses and coats to be finished it was revealed.

Kharkov Line Blasts Off All Assaults

Whole Hun Column Is Wiped Out In Surprise Attack

By Henry C. Cassidy,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, June 17. —(AP) — Soviet detachments were reported to-day to have knifed into German lines at two points along the Russian battlefront while fresh attacks in Hitler's Kharkov and Savastopol offensives were repulsed with heavy Nazi losses.

More than 400 Germans were killed, two tanks were captured and an enemy defence position was occupied in a Bryansk sector, the Soviet information bureau said, reporting a gain in that region southwest of Moscow for the second successive day.

A German column was declared wiped out at a Nazi-held village on the Kharkov front, where the invaders generally still held the initiative.

The Information Bureau said yelling automatic riflemen struck toward Soviet lines in mass formation —a manoeuvre described as a psychological attack —and were dispersed by Red Army artillery, leaving behind a large number of casualties.

The Germans lost 20 tanks and about 600 dead during futile thrusts in another sector, its communique declared.

The Soviet Information Bureau said a sudden Red Army attack on a Nazi-held village in the Kharkov region where the divisions of Field Marshall Gen. Fedor Von Bock launched an offensive June 10, had taken the enemy "completely by surprise."

For Thursday, June 18

THE SIDEREAL forces operative on this day make for a lively enterprising and pleasant state of affairs, with much to be gained through travel, communications, change, agencies, literary and artistic pursuits of various phases and forms. The danger however may be found in a highly stimulated urge for the pursuit of pleasure of gratifications of the emotional or romantic impulses.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the pursuit of pleasure, romance or emotional indulgencies may predominate above business or practical endeavors. In the latter channels there is opportunity for profit and success through travel, change, agencies, communications.

A child born on this day may be disposed to the pursuit of pleasure with the emotional, sentimental and romantic uppermost rather than business.

13 UNLUCKY? LISTEN!

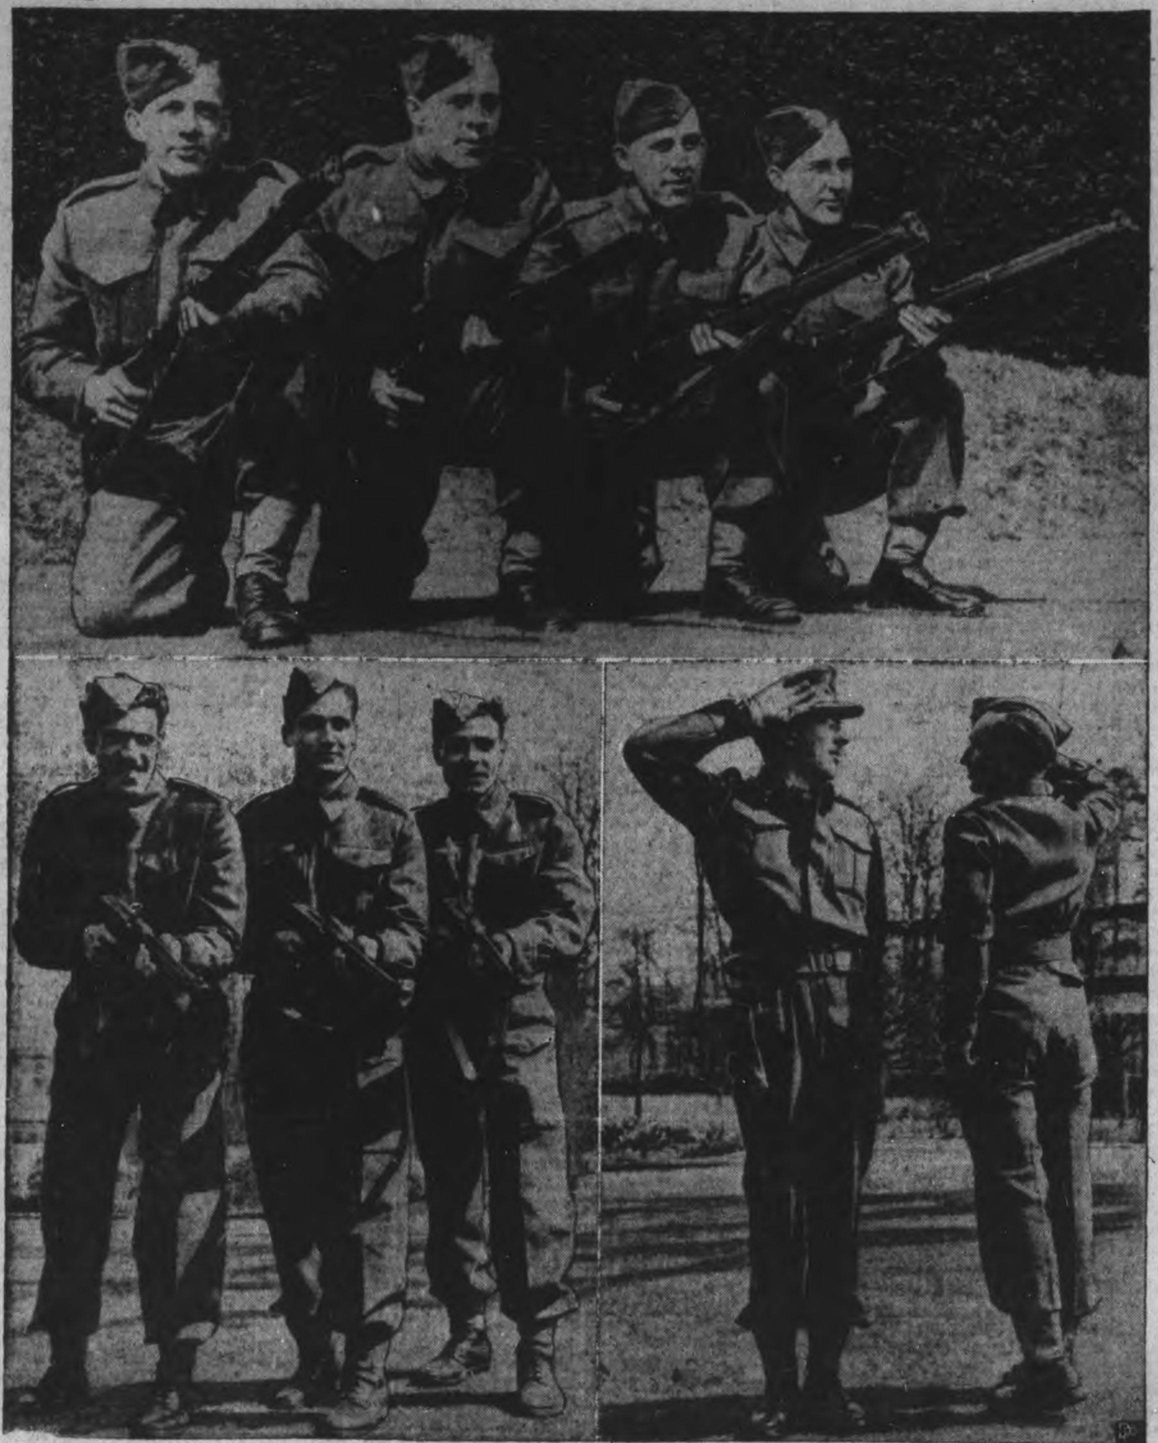
Yesterday we delivered 200 day-old Leghorn Pullets to D. A. McCook, Campbellford. Mr. McCook reminded us that this was the 14th year he had purchased his chicks at "Hillcrest." He continued, "Needless to say I have been well satisfied, and last year (the 13th), I had the best chicks and best results I ever had. Of the 200 Leghorn chicks (sexed by Mr. Lee), we had 100 per cent. pullets, (not a cockerel in the lot.)"

We believe our 1942 Chicks Our Best Ever. No started chicks, no surpluses, but we can still accept your order for day-old Leghorns (Hollywood), early maturing, heavy-producing New Hampshires and Hybrids (Rock and N. H. Cross), sexed and unsexed, for late June and July delivery. We are getting many orders daily, but "The early order gets the chick". Write or phone G. A. Brethen, Norwood.

TRUSTEES URGED TO REALIZE TEACHERS CARRYING HEAVIER LOAD

Story in Column 1.

Cobourg Brothers Go To The Wars



All from Cobourg, the "brother acts" impressively arrayed in the ABOVE photograph probably cause a mite of confusion in the ranks at muster parades and such. The quartet ABOVE presents the greatest problem, because when someone hollers 'Pearse' likely as not all four will answer; the Pearses, left to right, are: L. Pearse, H. Pearse, J. Pearse and F. Pearse. In the lower picture, LEFT, are L. H., D. J. and J. L. Erskine. Saluting one another at RIGHT are Lieut. H. H. Winter and Gunner J. A. Winter. The 34 men listed on the rolls of the Ontario ack-ack battery have only 15 different surnames to share among them.

Minister Makes Appeal To All Parents

PORT HOPE, June 17.—(ENS)—An appeal to school trustees across the province to realize that teachers both in elementary and secondary schools are carrying a much heavier burden by reason of the war, and therefore are entitled to the utmost cooperation and support, has been made by the Hon. Duncan McArthur, M.A., LL.D., Minister of Education.

This appeal is regarded by members of the special committee representing the citizens in Port Hope, as particularly applicable to the Port Hope situation.

Training Very Important

The message from the minister was as follows: "It is conceivable that at no other time in the history of our civilization has the training of youth been of greater importance than it is today. In our youth of today are centred our aspirations for the return of sanity and order in human relationships. This greater responsibility is being placed on our schools at a time when they are being subjected to new stresses and strains associated with the actual conduct of the war.

Three conditions, it seems to me, merit our consideration.

It becomes even of greater importance than in normal conditions that our teachers should acquire an intimate and sympathetic knowledge of their pupils. For many of our children the war may have created new and baffling problems which will be revealed only to those who earn the children's confidence.

It is important, likewise, that the child should be given the opportunity of making some contribution to the effort of the community and of the nation in the prosecution of the war. Whether he sells war savings stamps or assists in the salvaging of war supplies or works on the farm, he should be made to realize that he is a partner in the war effort whose contribution is of real value and is appreciated by the community.

Much is being said these days about education for the post-war world and detailed "blueprints" are being submitted almost daily. I suggest that there is too great an inclination to regard education as training for a life to be lived in the future, and too little emphasis placed on the education as an expression of a richer and more abundant life today. If we can assist our children in adjusting themselves satisfactorily to the rapidly changing and difficult conditions of today, we may be providing them with the best equipment for meeting the problems of a post-war world.

Finally, I would like to remind trustees that our teachers, both in the elementary and secondary schools, are being required to carry a much heavier burden by reason of the war and that they are entitled to the support and co-operation of trustees to a greater extent than ever before."

F. in 1916 and he is still regarded as one of the top instructors giving preliminary training.

Cobourg Council Passes Bylaw To Purchase Land

COBOURG, June 17 — (ENS).—Third reading to the by-law empowering the Parks Board to raise the sum of $4,000 for the purchase of the Lavis property at Victoria Park beach, in accordance with expropriation judgment, was given at the regular meeting of the Town Council here. The Council also gave three readings to a second by-law empowering the town to borrow $4,000 from the bank at a maximum rate of 4½ per cent to finance the Lavis lots purchase pending sale of the debentures. The by-law was sent up recently to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval. The passing of the by-law brings to a conclusion the long dispute over purchase of the Lavis lots.

At the last meeting of the Town Council it was made clear by the members that they were passing the by-law more or less under pressure, and in view of the fact that legal opinion obtained by the Council had stated that the board could go ahead and purchase the lots and could demand up to one mill annually on the town's assessment. The Parks Board has pointed out that it would not be necessary to sell the debentures as they could be held for two

Special Committee Of Council Probes Port Hope School Case

COBOURG, June 17—(ENS).—Port Hope's High School problem was tackled in a session held in camera Tuesday afternoon or Northumberland and Durham Counties Council. The facts in the dismissal of G. L. Brackenbury, principal of Port Hope High School, were sifted by a group consisting of the three members of the special schools committee and the Warden, along with W. J. B. Davison, counties appointee to the Boa and F. L. Johnston, representing some thousand petitioners of Port Hope wh. asked for action to unseat the Board. The findings of the special meeting were not revealed but will be reported to the session.

The report of the counties road superintendent, A. S Miller, pointed out that the $91,000.00 outlay on counties roads, authorized at the January session, had to be revised due to notice from the Department of Highways that a sub..y on $51,000.00 was all that th. Department would pay. The road appropriaton was accordingly fixed at $78,000. The auditors' report was received and referred to the Finance Committee for consideration.

Name Woman To Post?

The appointment of a successor to the late John MacMillan was discussed at some length The feeling of the council was that Mrs. Rena Thompson had been doing a very fine job as matron and in general, looking after the House of Refuge during the illness of Mr. MacMillan. Some members felt that if possible Mrs. Thompson should be appointed superintendent, providing the Act would permit a woman to hold that p.t. Warden Dodge declared that Mrs. Thompson's work had been exceptional. However, he felt that the farm could be made to produce more than it was. Another suggestion was that Mrs. Thompson look after the House of Refuge and a man be appointed to look after the farm end of it. On motion, council decided to defer the matter until the legal aspects of the matter could be looked into.

Request of .e Ontario Ploughman's Association for a grant was referred to the Finance Committee. The Special County Property Committee's report was given by Reeve Charles Calver of Campbellford. Five meetings had been held in the quarter and the registry offices visited. The clerk's office was repaired and arrangements made to house the office of the pro.incial police in one of the former counties council committee rooms.

F. Heyland of Bowmanville, J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope and W. Goodfellow spoke on behalf of the Northumberland and Durham Federation of Agriculture, asking for a grant this year of $600, the same amount as last year; referred to Finance Committee. D. Lawlay, re.senting the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, addressed the council on the work being done for the blind in the counties by the Institute, and asked for a grant of $500; referred to the Finance Committee. Colonel Grant of Kingston also addressed the council, speaking in connection with Army Week.

Estimates Revised.

Following is the report of the road superintendent:

Owing to the Department of Highways reducing the subsidizable amount of expenditures on county roads, the road commissioners found it necessary to revise the estimates for 1942. The by-law passed in January for an expenditure of $90,000.00 which was a reduction of over $13,0000 for our 1941 expenditures. The Department of Highways returned this by-law and stated that they would only pay 50 p.c. subsidy on $51,000. Throughout the province, whether county or province, the municipalities have received similar reductions. The Road Commission interviewed the Minister of Highways, accompanied by the members of the Legislature for Northumberland and Durham, and asked if it would be possible to have the amount increased upon which the Department would pay subsidy. It is possible that the amount will be increased by a small percentage, but no promise was given

Anti-Semitism In Poland

News reaches us of an appalling slaughter of Jews in the Polish city of Vilna. In less than two weeks 60,000 of these unfortunate people have been shot by Lithuanian police working under Nazi influence. The report stresses the fact that no German military or Gestapo forces were seen taking direct part in this butchery, but there appears to be no doubt that they organized it.

* * *

It is thought in some quarters that this atrocity is designed to prevent any anti-German incidents in Poland. A more brutal repressive measure could hardly be imagined. Although it may be effective it gives clear proof that the Nazis are seriously disturbed about affairs in the occupied countries and are allowing their fears to drive them to deeds of inhuman cruelty. It is unwise to make generalizations about the state of Nazi morale, but such acts as this latest one certainly give the impression that they are in the grip of a fear which might turn to panic if it were suitably aggravated.

Anti-Semitism is a blot upon our Western civilization with a history of more than a thousand years. But in modern times only two countries have used it as a political weapon—Germany and Czarist Russia. Modern anti-Semitism had its beginning in Germany in 1873. There had been a financial crash, and the country was unsettled; many people had been ruined. A Hamburg journalist named Wilhelm Marr wrote a pamphlet which he called The Triumph of Judaism Over Germanism in which he attempted to prove that Germany's misfortunes were attributable to the rise of Liberalism in politics, and that Liberalism and Jewish interests were closely allied. This suited the book of the reactionary political interests admirably, and it tied in also with the doctrine of nationality which the eminent philosopher, Hegel, had permitted to be fathered upon him. Marr's notions became popular and were incorporated in the beliefs of the so-called Christian Socialist party, which was neither Christian nor Socialist to any perceptible degree. For many years anti-Semitism was a factor in German politics and was used to advantage by Prince Bismarck in the realization of his ambitions.

Russian nationalism was greatly influenced by the German variety, and adopted anti-Semitism whole-heartedly. It is characteristic of anti-Semitism that it appeals to what is superstitious and vicious in all men, rich and poor, ignorant and educated. In Russia it was possible to circulate the old story that Jews use Christian blood in the preparation of their holy bread, and this fanciful idea, as much as anything else, led to the Russian pogroms of Easter, 1881, when Jews were massacred in 167 towns and villages.

Anti-Semitism was given its anti-Christian twist in Germany also. In 1879 a Professor Sepp proposed that, as Christ being the Son of God was of no human race, the Jewish basis of Christianity be repudiated, and a new basis be sought for it in antiquity. It was an easy step from this to the denunciation of Christianity as a manifestation of the Semitic spirit, and incompatible with the ideals of a virile Northern race. This idea was developed with great brilliance by Friedrich Nietzsche, many of whose ideas, in a simplified form, have been adopted by the Nazis. Christianity has always been a thorn in the flesh to the more aggressive modern German leaders.

The next country to become infected with anti-Semitism was France, where again it was used for reactionary political ends. A long campaign of terrorism against the Jews culminated in the Dreyfus case, the details of which are sufficiently familiar. Indirectly the Dreyfus scandal led to the disestablishment of the French Church.

* * *

The flare-up of nationalist spirit which accompanied the Great War brought anti-Semitism into prominence once again, and this time its prophet was a renegade Englishman, Houston Stewart Chamberlain, traces of whose ideas are clearly visible in Nazi theory. And in Russia the Bolshevist Revolution was represented as being the work of Jews, although this claim will not stand close examination. Certainly many Jews were prominent in it, but they took pleasure in oppressing their own people and in doing everything possible to stamp out Jewish religious teaching throughout the new republic. After the war appeared the widely credited Protocols of the Elders of Zion, which purported to be a record of a gigantic Jewish plot to gain control of the world and to overthrow Christian civilization. This laughable fraud was exposed by the London Times in 1921, but there are still people who take it seriously.

The history of anti-Semitism in Nazi Germany is too well-known to require comment. We have set down this necessarily brief account of the course of this prejudice here in order to show that anti-Semitism is nothing new, but an instrument of German policy which has been in use for seventy years or more, and always with a view to bolstering up the forces of reaction. The recent Vilna slaughter is one of the most horrible instances of Jewish persecution in history, and it is a bitter blow to our cherished idea that mankind progresses. There has been little appreciable progress from the Dark Ages if a European country can, in a few years, reduce itself to this level of tyranny and bestiality.

* * *

Why should the Jews be the scapegoat nation for the madmen of this world? We cannot answer that question. It belongs to the profound realms of psychology, and even the most renowned practitioners of that art and science have been unable to grapple with it successfully so far. And while we wait for an answer the name of Vilna must be written beside that of Lidice in the muster of Nazi crimes which have brought shame upon a century which was once thought to promise fair things.

Getting The News

Readers of newspapers do not, as a rule, bother their heads about how the news is made available to them, and in this they are very wise. There is an unexpressed compact between reputable newspapers and their readers that the news printed has been tested for veracity as carefully as time permits, and no newspaper which abuses or betrays this compact can expect to last long. In the words of the late C. P. Scott, for so many years editor of the Manchester Guardian: "Its primary office is the gathering of news. At the peril of its soul it must see that the supply is not tainted. Neither in what it gives, nor in what it does not give, nor in the mode of presentation, must the unclouded face of truth suffer wrong."

The element of time is of the greatest importance to newspaper workers. There are happy trades and professions in which tomorrow is as good as today, but not in the newspaper office. News must be sniffed out, tested for truth, and given to the public in the least possible time. And in times like these, when there is so much news, and so much important news, the difficulties of this task are phenomenal.

That is why we take this opportunity to tell our readers something about the work of Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news-gathering organization. Since the outbreak of war this agency, working closely with Associated Press, its American ally, has given Canadian readers a most complete report on all events which the censors would allow to be made public. Naturally the Canadian Press has done everything in its power to tell Canadians what their own men were doing and whenever possible (as in the recent great raids on Cologne and Essen) to give details of the activities of individual Canadians. There is no doubt whatever that Canadian Press is the most efficient news-gathering organization now operating for the benefit of this country.

In the work of such an organization rapidity in distributing news is of utmost importance, and sometimes a few minutes makes a great difference. To the reader it may seem unimportant that Canadian Press informed its members of the failure of Sir Stafford Cripps' mission to India six minutes before any other news agency in Canada, but in a newspaper office six minutes is an important gain in time. When South Africa broke with Vichy the margin of lead was two hours and five minutes—a remarkable record. When Sir Edward Beatty resigned as head of the C.P.R. the lead was fifteen minutes, and when British forces landed on Madagascar it was seven minutes. Canadian Press led by twenty-five minutes in its report on the surrender of Corregidor, and by twelve minutes in its report of the apprehension of the two German prisoners who escaped on May 11. When Mr. King made his first move to raise the ban on conscription for overseas service Canadian Press led other news agencies by 41 minutes, and when Germany began her drive on the Caucasus the lead was 28 minutes. We think that this record for April and May is a distinguished one.

The Examiner is proud to be allied with this Canadian organization which has done and is doing so much to keep Canada well and reliably informed. Not only does it take the utmost care that "the unclouded face of truth" shall suffer no wrong, but it does so with the greatest possible despatch, and in the newspaper world that is a most important matter.

Whimsical June

From time to time, during the past few weeks, we have felt ourself constrained to comment upon the weather, for its behavior has been an increasing source of amazement and worry. Last week we thought that the Weather Man had Summer well in hand and that we might safely cross the heading "Weather" off our lists of editorial subjects, but we were wrong. June still had a surprise in her sleeve—the sleeve of her long winter underwear.

On a morn in June
When the dew glistens on the pearled ears,
A shiver runs through the deep corn for joy.

wrote Matthew Arnold, but we submit that this was nothing to the shiver which ran through us yesterday morning when we awoke from a dream of winter fighting in Russia. A shiver, yes; but not for joy, dear reader, not for joy. Huddling the sheets about our quaking form we peeped out the window to see if the leaves were turning. They were not. We relaxed slightly, realizing that Autumn had not come after all.

Why gentle June should treat us in this way is a mystery. Having done her best to drown us she has made at least one valiant effort to freeze us. We should like to know where we stand with this capricious month. What have we done to deserve this? Or is it really the work of Nature herself, who is displeased with mankind because Herman Goering complained that Nature had used the Nazis very badly in Russia? Gracious and Mighty Mother, please do not be so sweeping. Not all men are Nazis, and for our part we shall continue to love you whatever you do. There is no need to chasten us; none at all. All we ask is the customary June weather; we are perfectly content with the traditional article.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Hitler is reported to have a vast fortune hidden away. If he is saving it for his old age he is crazier than we think.

The Japs are now reported to be in the Rat Island group of the Aleutians. As far as we are concerned they have been in the rat group for months.

A pregnant statement from the Vancouver Province: "The more you see of a controlled economy the more you are apt to realize that freedom is something to fight for."

When Napoleon died a great statesman said: "This is not an event; it is merely a piece of news." So perhaps Adolf will outstrip his great predecessor after all; when he dies, it will be an event.

A case in England has been settled thus, according to the Thames Valley Times: "Mr. Cresswell submitted that it had been decided in the High Court that to call a person a cow was not abusive, because the cow was a clean animal." The High Court ought to meet some of the cows we know.

LOVE IS ONE

There are things cannot be told,
Exchanged for kisses, or bought for gold,
Things for which great deeds must be done.
Love is one.

Though you may utter the deep desire,
And half-portray the inner fire;
Though with soft music you express
The heart's unutterable loneliness.

These things are not for mere lips' telling,
Neither for buying nor for selling;
Neither observance nor surmise
Can bring that vision to the eyes...

There are some things cannot be told,
Stolen or copied for young or old;
Things to be felt like wind and sun,
Love is one.

U. S. Editors Comment On Canada

Winnipeg Free Press

AN analysis of the comment in the U.S. newspaper press over the Canadian plebiscite prepared by the British Press Service in New York, shows a widespread though incomplete understanding of Canadian problems and attitudes. In summarized form the analysis follows:

Typical instances of the majority opinion, which considered that the vote gives the King government a free hand while discounting the Quebec vote as having any general significance, were as follows: "The Ottawa government can now claim that it is free to act by the free consent of its whole people" (New Orleans Item); "Americans can hail the result as another step on the road to ultimate victory. The people of Quebec are expected loyally to accept the will of the majority" (Buffalo Courier Express); "Canada, the real Canada, is right enough. It does not even need sympathy because its most populous province sees fit to oppose the national will, for it should be noted that its largest city, Montreal, voted 'right' in all four precincts" (Portland Oregon Journal); "In Quebec a vigorous anti-conscription campaign brought a heavy vote against the proposal, but this was swallowed up in the affirmative vote given by all the other provinces" (N.Y. Sun).

THE New York Sun, referring to King's calling for a plebiscite to release him from a campaign promise, also said: "Such scrupulous behavior these days is heart-warming. There is a kind of old-fashioned honesty about it that certainly appeals to those of us south of the border." The Memphis Commercial Appeal, Ohio State Journal, Columbus Dispatch rendered similar praise for Mr. King's scrupulousness.

The following papers and periodicals struck the note that the King government may have to act with caution in view of the minority vote: Sioux Falls Argus Leader, Kansas City Star, Washington Post, Ohio State Journal, Worcester Evening News, Washington Evening Star, Baltimore Sun, New York Herald Tribune, New York Times, Toledo Blade, Time, Des Moines Register, Louisville Courier Journal, Cincinnati Enquirer, Newark Evening News. These excerpts indicate the varying degrees of this line of thought: "If the government is chiefly concerned for Canada's unity, the result is to be construed as a warning" (Cincinnati Enquirer); "If the dissenting minority does not fall in line with the rest of the country there may be worse disorder than in 1914" (Louisville Courier Journal); "The Liberal government is bound to carry out the will of the majority with great caution" (N.Y. Herald Tribune); "Judging by past disturbances, Canada may be facing more trouble in Quebeq as hencefort it extends its newly won war powers" (Ohio State Journal); "Canada will still have the tough problem of how to deal with the minority dissent in Quebec" (Toledo Blade); "Fortunately the issue is not so sharp as it was a generation ago....unless driven by stern necessity, he (King) is unlikely to risk a revival of the controversy which almost split Canada in the last war" (Washington Evening Star; "....will bring problems, and one hopes that the Ottawa government will be able to persuade where it has the power to compel" (N.Y. Times); "....heavy adverse vote....makes conscription an expedient of doubtful value for some time to come" (Baltimore Sun).

TIME recalled the draft riots of 1918 and said "....the plebiscite will add little to national unity if Quebec turns thumbs down on conscription."

Several papers remarked that settlement of the conscription question in Canada would dispel the criticism of some people in the U.S. who thought that Canada has not been carrying her full share of the war burden (Newark News, Dallas News, Grand Rapids Herald, Boston Traveler, Miami Herald, Mobile Register, Toledo Blade, Memphis Commerical Appeal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Kansas City Times). The Birmingham News considered that Canada's vote was influenced by conscription action south of the border.

The Columbus Dispatch and N.Y. Herald Tribune made the observation that the U.S. led Canada in deciding the issue of conscription for overseas in spite of Canada's having been actively in the war longer than the U.S.

ONLY three instances of criticism levelled at Mr. King were seen. The Ann Arbor News remarked, "....might say that the absence of positive national leadership had worsened the situation....might be possible for the governments of Great Britain and the U.S. to suggest quietly to the government of Canada that courageous and intelligent leadership might be one way of minimizing an acute case of doubt and disunity." The Cleveland News thought that Mr. King "made a promise for political purposes....played on the ignorance and prejudices of the people." Time said that Mr. King has split the two great racial elements and created for himself a dangerous political crisis, this being "a kind of poetic justice for a safe-playing politician" who, by compromise and cautious moves backward and forward has got his way on many issues, but who has vacillated too long on the question of conscription.

Numerous papers followed up comment on the plebiscite with praise for Canada's war efforts in general and her large number of volunteers in particular (Los Angeles Times, Atlanta Constitution, Miami Herald, Oregon Journal, Saginaw News, New Bedford Times, Long Beach Press Telegram, Chicago Daily Tribune, Philadelphia Record, Pittsburgh Post Gazette, Philadelphia Enquirer, Cleveland News, N.Y. Post, Baltimore Sun, Boston Traveler, Florida Times Union, Washington Post, Cleveland Plain Dealer). A statement of the Los Angeles Times typifies the tone of this comment: "the Dominion has been fully represented, from the first, in the front line in all parts of the world. Canada's war effort has excited the admiration of all, and will continue to do so."

PUTTING ON THE SCREWS

—New York World-Telegram.

• Yanks On a New Front

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

IT NOW is clear that there has been a tremendous sea-air fight in the Central Mediterranean in which United States Army planes and pilots helped carry the war to the foe as their navy and army comrades in the Pacific already had done.

However, it is not yet possible to gauge the full significance of the protracted struggle, or the strategic design that brought it on, beyond the important fact that it grew out of British initiative. British convoys, according to Axis reports, converged from east and west on the narrow Sicilian Straits. Considerable naval and plane losses on both side is indicated.

London announces unspecified losses, but dismisses Axis claims as "fantastic," adding that fresh supplies had been landed both on Malta and at Tobruk.

Whatever the British losses may have been, the London version indicates that relatively heavier damage was inflicted, with American Air Force co-operation, on the already badly mauled Italian Fleet. One heavy Italian cruiser was sunk and two battleships set afire, as well as lesser craft battered from the air.

The scene of action was primarily in the straits that separate Sicily and North Africa. It is across those narrow waters that reinforcements and supplies for the Axis desert army battering at the British defensive front in Eastern Libya must be ferried even before they can be started on the difficult desert trek to Rommel's command.

If it proves true, as the Axis reports now say, that Britain was moving heavily guarded convoys both westward from Alexandria and eastward from Gibraltar, it can hardly be doubted that some move to isolate the Axis army in Libya from its supply sources was in motion as well as a plan to supply Malta and Tobruk.

The fact that United States Army Air Force pilots have joined battle with Italian and German foes in the Mediterranean theatre verifies President Roosevelt's repeated declaration that American arms will be brought to bear against the enemy wherever and whenever he can be struck. It gives added point, also, to the still mysterious flight of American heavy bombers on unreported missions in the Eastern Mediterranean region. This flight was revealed by internment of some of them after forced landings in Turkey.

Mr. Roosevelt has just informed Congress in his fifth tri-monthly report on lease-lend aid that action was being taken "to carry our men and weapons, on anything that will float or fly, to the places from which we can launch our offensives." One of those jump-off points may prove to be in the Mediterranean.

• King's Orders Not Obeyed

THAT was quite a ceremony they had aboard American warships the other day when King George visited them in a British port.

His Majesty was piped aboard between sideboys as a marine honor guard presented arms. His Majesty met the officers and reviewed the crew, stopping every now and then to speak to one of the sailors. Later he inspected ship and was the guest of honor at a luncheon presided over by Rear Admiral Robert C. Giffen, commander of the American task force in British waters.

When the King returned to his flagship, the battleship Duke of York, he sent this message to Admiral Giffen:

"It has given me great pleasure to have had this opportunity of visiting the United States ships and thus being enabled to meet some officers and men of the United States Navy task force of the Home Fleet.

"I have been deeply impressed by the smart and efficient appearance of the ships and the ships' companies, and I congratulate you and all those under your command upon the alert and cheerful spirit with which you are undertaking your duties in the common cause.

"The enjoyment of my visit has been enhanced by the presence of Admiral Harold R. Stark. I send you and your officers and men my best wishes for a safe return to your homes when victory is won."

So spake Britain's sailor King. And true to the traditions of the Royal Navy, he ordered the ancient signal to "splice the main brace" broken out from the yardarm of the Duke of York. "Splice the main brace" means a double issue of rum to the crew to drink the King's health. And since the days of Josephus Daniels, grog is not part of the equipment of American warships.

It seems a shame that American warships serving under British orders can't even obey an order from the King.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

ASKED FOR IT

He was charged with striking a woman in the bus, and the magistrate asked him what excuse he could offer.

"Well, sir, it was like this," replied the culprit. "She got in the bus and sat down. Then she opened her bag, took out her purse, closed her bag, opened her purse, and took out a penny. Then she noticed the conductor was going upstairs, so she opened her bag took out her purse, closed her bag, opened her purse, put in her penny, closed her purse, opened her bag, put in her purse, and closed her bag. Then she saw the conductor coming down the stairs, so she opened her bag, took out her purse, closed her bag, opened her purse, took out a penny, and closed her—"

The magistrate could bear it no longer.

"Stop!" he cried, "you'll drive me crazy!"

"That's just what happened to me, sir," said the man.

WET, TO WET FOREVER

THE incessant rain of the late spring of 1942 recalls a similar period more than 50 years ago when the "probs" read with regularity, "Showers, rain, continued cloudiness." A bored post office clerk then parodied the weather bulletin as issued in the classic style of the Observatory under the regime of the late Charles Carpmael:

"Wet, to wet, or more wet weather,
Stationary wet, to wet forever."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Now about that time Herod the king stretched forth his hand to vex certain of the church. And he killed James the brother of John with the sword. And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.) And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

Peter therefore was kept in prison: but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him. And forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the keepers before the door kept the prison. And, behold the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands. And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. And he went out, and followed him; and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel; but thought he saw a vision. When they were past that first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city: which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street: and forthwith the angel departed from him.

And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.—Acts xii, 1-11.

On motion it was decided the Branch would follow the plan adopted last year of contributing sufficient money to branches in the fruit district, to buy one bag of sugar, which will be used in jam making for the soldiers. So successful was their initial salvage effort last month that it was announced another collection was being made on June 20th and members were asked by the convener Mrs. George Airhart to have their contribution ready. Mrs. E. C. Pollock gave report of the District Annual Meeting held at Lakeview on May 22nd and the President expressed thanks for the splendid summary of the meeting. Mrs. George Craighead gave the motto of the day "What Is So Rare as A Day in June?" and Miss Edith Gibbons contributed a reading on "Peace" as the only other item on the program. Members responded well to the roll call "Pay the Fees." They will meet at Mrs. Alex. Milne's on July 9th for the next regular meeting.

At the close refreshments were served and a social time followed.

Shields Resents R.C. Aggression

VANCOUVER, June 17 — (CP) — An organization meeting of the Canadian Protestant League was held in Ruth Morton Memorial (Baptist) Church here Monday and was addressed by Dr. T. T. Shields, league president, who renewed charges against Roman Catholic Church made in an address last Wednesday at Winnipeg.

Congregation of the meeting was invited by letter. A booklet distributed said the league was formed in Toronto at a mass meeting in Jarvis Street Baptist Chuch Sept. 18, 1941, by a "group of protestant ministers and laymen alarmed by the increasing breadth and intensity of the aggression of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, culminating in the holding of a pontificial mass at the entrance to the Peace Tower in the House of Commons, Ottawa."

Dr. Shields, pastor of the Jarvis Street Church, said a picture of that mass "was published throughout the world, giving the impression that Canada was a Roman Catholic country."

He said he believed the Roman Catholic faith "the most potent agency for evil in all the wide, wide world" and that the "real Prime Minister (of Canada) is Cardinal Villeneuve," Archbishop of Quebec. "For that reason we have no conscription....only a half-hearted war effort."

Hastings Bride-to-Be Honored At Shower

After tea was served the brkle-elect was asked to cut the cake and underneath she found beautiful and useful gifts. Also a basket containing gifts was carried in. Miss Huycke, although taken by surprise, thanked her friends in a few well-chosen words.

TAMBLYN
Makes First-Aid Suggestions

The National Safety Council tell us that over 50% of all accidents happen around the Home. Some of us will say, "They cannot happen at our Home," but actually accidents have the habit of showing up when and where least expected. In case of a serious accident your physician should, of course, be called. For minor accidents, such as cuts, scratches, bruises, burns, etc., you can often take care of the treatment yourselves, but in any event, every burn, scratch, abrasion, etc., should be properly treated in order that nothing more serious may develop. Preparedness requires proper supplies, and as most of us are careless about our stock of such essentials we recommend that you take stock of your First-Aid materials to see if you have a sufficient supply, and if not, visit your Tamblyn Drug Store where you will find a comprehensive assortment from which to choose. As a matter of fact, it might be a good idea to determine your full requirements of Drug Store merchandise and replenish your present stocks at such economical prices as prevail in our list of

SOLDIERS TOPPLE PLAZAS OUT OF FIRST POSITION IN CITY LEAGUE

Hockey Squad Beaten 4-3 In Tough Battle

Playing their best ball of the season behind five-hit pitching by Lefty Ken Fleming, Soldiers toppled Plazas out of first place in the City League race by beating the hockey squad 4 to 3 at Riverside Park Tuesday evening in a battle that was close all the way. As a result of the Plaza defeat Luckies are alone at the top of the loop race.

It was a pitcher's battle between Fleming and big Dave Wilson on the rubber for the losers. Neither pitcher was hit hard but Wilson's lack of control and some costly errors by his teammates paved the way for his downfall. Fleming had the edge on the Plaza batters all the way and only Bun Kingdon managed to get more than one hit. In the pinches the Soldier southpaw bore down and the losers left eight runners stranded on the paths.

The Military team played fine ball in the field. Kerrigan at second base handled a flock of chances and his grab of an almost sure hit off the bat of Bun Kingdon was a feature. Sero at shortstop also performed smartly. For Plazas the feature play was a catch by Julian Wade who went away out and pulled down a long smash off the bat of Irish Kilfolyle in circus style. Joe Blewett came in fast to make a smart grab of a short fly in the same inning.

A double-play by Art Heal who tagged a runner out on the line and pegged the batter out at first was an early fielding feature.

Plazas took the lead in the first. After Heal had been tossed out by Fleming, Kingdon doubled to left. Julian Wade drew a pass. Blewett struck out but Web Starr doubled to right scoring Kingdon. Ellis rolled to Herrick.

Soldiers tied it up in the first of the third. Fleming walked to start with and after Jackson had fanned McIlveen tripled to right centre to score Fleming. He died on third, however, when Mortimer popped to Ellis and Sero flied to Wade.

Fleming came through with a timely single in the fourth to put the team from the Military Training Centre in front. With one out, McKerrigan singled to short. Barnes walked. Herrick forced McKerrigan at third on a tap to Vitarelli. Fleming singled to left scoring Barnes but Jackson rolled to Wilson.

Plazas tied it up in the sixth. With two out Ellis tripled to deep centre field. Starr rolled to Sero and was safe when Herrick juggled the shortstop's throw and Ellis went in with the run that put the teams on even footing.

The Soldiers had lost a run on an unusual play in the sixth when the bat boy ran out to the plate in time to interfere with Starr's catching of a throw home. McKerrigan scored on the play but was sent back to third on the interference.

The winners went out in front in the seventh. Mortimer opened with a walk but was forced at second on Sero's tap to Wilson, Kilfolyle rolled to Vitarelli who with a double play in sight tossed high to second and everybody was safe, Sero going to third. McKerrigan singled on the ground into right to send the run in. Barnes struck out and Herrick flied to Joe Blewett.

In the eighth the Soldiers made it 4 to 2 and drove Wilson out of the ball game. With one out Anderson walked and advanced on a wild ptich. McIlveen flied to Blewett in deep centre, Anderson going to third after the catch. Mortimer singled through short to score Anderson. Sero followed with a single to centre and Wilson was replaced by Tom Parsons who got Kilfoyle on his first ball on a roller to Ellis.

Plazas got one back in their half. Blewett drew a walk and after W. Starr had popped to Barnes in trying to bunt Blewett went to second on a wild pitch. Ellis rolled to Kerrigan, Blewett going to third. He scored when Kerrigan momentarily fumbled Eddie Starr's tap and the catcher beat the throw to first. Vitarelli walked, putting the tieing run on second but Tom Parsons rolled to Sero to end the frame.

Plazas did not move a wheel in the ninth inning.

Bombers Double Count On Cats

Taking an example from the Dodgers who won the junior championship, Monday afternoon, the Flying Cats won 14 to 7 last night in St. Peter's League to earn for themselves a set of school crests.

It was a hard fought game and close for five innings, then, the Bombers nosed out in front and made a strong finish. Cacavella for the losers had a bad time of it on the mound, walking about five in a row in two successive innings, he had to be replaced by Sullivan. The opposing hurler went all the way.

Each team has some good batters who are developing fast and their field work must not be over looked.

The Wambats of the senior league take on the Red Sox Wednesday night at the St. Peter's School diamond after supper, 6:30. This game has all the indications of being a fine contest. Red Sox copped the first game and the second was tied at 12 all when it was called. It is a two of three final series and the winners also get a set of crests of the school colors.

P. S. There was an error made last night when it was said that the Dodgers and Yanks were Intermediate. They are Juniors. The Bombers and Flying Cats are in the Intermediate group.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

This City Softball League is certainly upsetting the dope bucket all over the shop and already the fans have arrived at the conclusion that not a single game can be counted in the bag until the last man is out. In the past week the Luckies came along with surprise wins over Soldiers and Royals. Then up bobbed the Juveniles and came within an ace of knocking off Luckies Monday night. Last night the Soldiers kept the upsets rolling right along by handing the Plazas a 4 to 3 trimming. That incidentally was the fourth game in succession in which the winners have come through by the narrowest possible margin, a one-run win. Last night's victory of Soldiers over the hockey squad was earned. The boys from the camp got effective pitching from Ken Fleming who held Plazas to five hits and they played smart ball in the field to back up the good pitching. It was a real ball game all the way with the result in doubt until the final frame.

* * * * * *

The Soldiers swing right back into action tonight when they clash with the Juveniles and the team from the big camp will go all out to grab off their second win in succession. They had better not make the mistake of underestimating the youngsters at that. The Juveniles have been knocking at the door for some time making every game close and one of these nights their opposition is due for a K.O. They came within an ace of stopping the victory parade of Luckies Monday night when they were beaten 7 to 6 and the game could quite as easily have gone the other way. Irish Kilfoyle will likely be called upon to stop the youngsters tonight while the Juveniles will send Bob Crowe who pitched fine ball against Luckies on Monday in against the Soldiers. The Juveniles have been making it close for all and sundry and in their last start they were only beaten out in the final frame after coming from behind half way home to take the lead. They have been playing nice ball and sooner or later—they hope sooner—they are going to start to click. Tonight's game will get under way at 7 o'clock sharp and should be a thriller.

The leadership of the Girls' Softball League will be at stake when the Brintons clash with C.G.E. at the Ashburnham Bowl Thursday night. At present Mike O'Brien's Electricians are out in front with straight wins over Westclox and Porcelain while Brintons are tied with Porcelain for second place. If the Carpet-makers can come up with a win Thursday night they will be tied with C.G.E. for top position in the league standing. Brintons showed great improvement in their victory over Westclox Monday night and with Leila Hughes on the rubber they look strong enough to provide all kinds of opposition for the league leaders. It will probably be Norma Strickland on the hilltop for the C.G.E. The former Westclox twirler has not been seen in action on the rubber this season, Marilyn McCarthy pitching the first game and May Wade the second and that makes it look like it was the turn of Norma Strickland tomorrow night. There will be no other girls' games this week and the battle will attract a big following.

Red Sox Rolling

Boston Red Sox who are travelling at top speed right now hung up their ninth straight win at St. Louis last night when they handed the Brownies a 4 to 2 trimming. Oscar Judd, Ingersoll southpaw, pitched masterly ball for the Red Sox, holding St. Louis to six scattered hits. The Brownies used four pitchers trying to stop the Red Sox. Boston's win enabled them to pick up half a game at the expense of the New York Yanks who broke even with Detroit and thus had their margin cut to nine games, the lowest it has been for some weeks. Tigers beat New York 7 to 6 in the opening game, thanks to homers by Rudy York, his 14th of the season and Jimmy Bloodworth and lost the second 5 to 3 when Johnny Murphy came in as a relief hurler in the ninth inning and caused Bloodworth to hit into a doubleplay with the bases loaded. The veteran Roy Henshaw got credit for the Detroit win and Hank Borowy won the second game for the league leaders.

The skid of the Boston Braves in the National League is almost as hard to stop as the winning habits of the Yanks in the American. The Boston crew who were sensations early in the season can't stop losing. Yesterday the Cincinnati Reds and Johnny VanderMeer stopped them cold to win 5 to 0. Javery and Errickson worked for the Braves, with the former getting the loss, his seventh of the season. It was VanderMeer's seventh win as against four losses. St. Louis Cards toppled the Giants 4 to 3 but Hank Pollet had to have help from Beazley to turn the trick and the relief pitcher got credit for the victory. The veteran Carl Hubbell who has only won one game this season pitched for the Giants and absorbed his fifth defeat. Hank Leiber and Johnny Mize hit homers for the losers and a circuit clout by Enos Slaughter was the winning blow for the Cards. Johnny Podgyayny produced a six-hitter and the Phils took a 5 to 1 decision over the Pittsburg Pirates.

Should Draw Record Crowd

Softball fans are reminded of the benefit game Friday night at Riverside Park between Plazas and Royals, with the entire proceeds to be turned over to the fund to provide softball equipment for the men in the armed forces. The City League is not pulling its punches in this gesture of assistance. Friday night's game, a league fixture between two of the keenest rivals for the championship this season will be a natural and on its own merits should draw the biggest crowd of the campaign. With draw prizes of a Kenwood blanket and a Brinton rug going to two lucky fans there will be an added inducement for City League fans to turn out for this contest, the entire financial returns of which will be handed over to the fund to provide bats, balls and other softball equipment for the men in the army, navy and air force.

Referring to the fact that there has been much digging back into Central Ontario history recently by the scribes in the district Ken Colling wants to know if by any chance it could be a case of coming events casting their shadow before them. After all the Belleville sport writer—and now incidentally 'rassling impressario—points out the old Central Ontario League blossomed and rose in the 1919 post-war period. Then Colling somewhat wistfully asks: "Where is there a Moses of the calibre of Jake Solomon today?" As Peterborough fans know Solomon did a major job in resuscitating baseball here and in Central Ontario after the last war when the game was as dead as it is at the present moment. He was a one-man committee until he got enthusiasts at work in the different centres and the result was the Central League, for years one of the outstanding organizations in baseball.

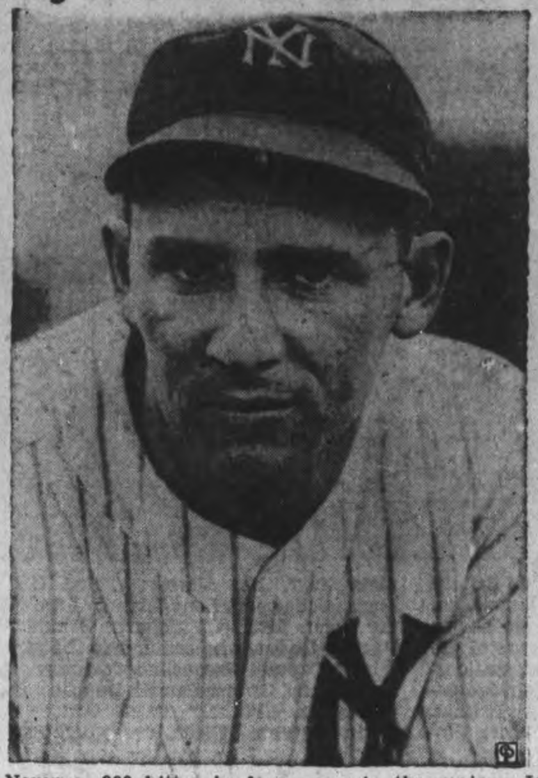
Sporting Chili Con Carne: Luckies, leading the City League parade, have signed Bill Moorhead, formerly of the Quakers. He should strengthen the Griffin outfit, especially in hitting.... Pitcher Jack Hallett was the whole works for Toronto Maple Leafs last night holding Jersey City to three hits and helping his own cause with a mammoth homer.... Interference by a bat boy was a new one that came up in last night's City League game and it cost Soldiers a run. Two or three long drives into left that would have been automatic doubles at the Bowl were pulled down in the Soldier-Plaza game at Riverside Park.... The win of the Philadelphia Phils yesterday was their first in ten starts.... Incidentally St. Louis Browns have dropped seven in a row.... St. Peter's in the Catholic League piled up one of the biggest scoring margins of the season last night when they defeated Barons 23 to 3, getting 27 hits for a record slugfest.... Johnny VanderMeer gave seven bases on balls in the game with Boston yesterday but still shutout the Braves. He had the faculty of regaining his stuff when he was in the hole.... The City Softball League race is tied in a knot as a result of recent games.

Pacing Yanks At The Plate



Never a .300 hitter in four years in the majors, Joe Gordon, star Yankee second baseman, is leading the Yanks at bat with a hefty .375 average and also draws the headlines for a hitting streak which reached 27 games June 10.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The probs this morning read that it is to be slightly warmer and that should be just about right for tonight's big tournament. Remember, the mixed tournament is in aid of the Milk for Britain Fund and everybody is invited. It is being sponsored by the ladies' games committee and they are appealing to all for their support. The draw will be made from the board by 7.30 o'clock. Please co-operate by being there on time.

The best games, from a spectators' point of view, were the Giroux-Ryan game and the Kerr-McFadden game. Both were close and the last end decided the issue In the Giroux-Ryan game, Mr. Giroux's boys had to come up from behind to tie it up in the seventeenth end and went on to win by one point on the last end. The other games—well, the scores speak for themselves.

In the ladies' section, Mrs. T. Doughty's and Mrs. J. Kingsbury's rinks are leading. Both have won all their games. although Mrs. Kingsbury had a close call last night. Had to make a real shot to win.

Release For Haying

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 17 — (CP). — Pondering the problem of getting badly-needed farm help, the Algoma Agricultural War Committee at a special meeting decided, among other things, to make a request to the Government to release conscientious objectors from a nearby camp to help in the haying and harvest.

St. Peter's Boys Whip East City Club

St. Peter's ran up the highest score of the season in the Catholic League Tuesday night when they defeated the East City Barons 23 runs to 3.

Barons were short several regulars and in addition played their worst ball of the season while on the other hand the Saints could do nothing wrong, cracking out 27 hits and scoring almost at will.

They went out in front by scoring two runs in the first inning, added three more in the second and in the third frame the game came apart at the seams when the leaders chased eleven runs over the counting station.

Wade, a youngster from St. Peter's school league, went the whole route for the winners and pitched smart ball to hold Barons to nine scattered hits and three runs. Hayes and Leonard were on the rubber for the losers.

St. Peter's had a field day at bat. Conroy had a triple and four singles in five times up, Honey Tompkins was right behind with a triple and three singles in six trips to the plate. Devine another recruit from the school league, had four for six and Condon came through with a homer with two on.

Shine with a single and double and Griffin with two singles led the Barons' attack.

Conroy's shoestring catch of B. Guerin's fly to short left was the fielding feature.

Cards Polish Off Giants 4-3 Behind Beezley

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

This is just to let the happy Gowanus girls and boys in general and Larry Macphail's Brooklyn bums in particular in on a little secret....There really is another team in the National League.

The way the pats on the back are bouncing around the Flatbush side of the East River these days, no one seems to realize that the Dodgers may be in a fight for that pennant yet. But just in case it's been overlooked over there, the St. Louis Cardinals are on the prowl. And with six wins in a row and 14 out of their last 17, they are strictly not an outfit to be brushed off like a blond hair on your coat lapel.

At any rate, the season's first crucial series is cooking up to start on Thursday, when the used-to-be Gas Housers wheel their circus into Ebbets Field. At this writing, the Cards are just 4½ games away, having disposed of the Giants 4-3 yesterday on the strength of Enos Slaughter's tenth-inning homer and some nifty relief elbowing by young Nig Beezley the kid who is making the rest of the pitching staff look good. That two-hit, five-inning job was the fifth game the tall Tennessean has either won or saved in relief since May 25.

And, taking another chunk out of the same steak, it might be pointed out that the Red Sox, over in the American League, also can still make trouble, even if the New York Yankees are bouncing along on a nine-game lead after splitting their five-hour twin bill with Detroit yesterday. For, the Red Sox, sparked by Lefty Judd's six-hit curving, knocked off the bewildered Brownits from St. Louis 4-2 last night to run their winning streak to nine—count 'em—in a row.

Hubbell Kept Scratching.

The Brooklyns were idle yesterday as the Cards started their eastern swing against the New Yorkers. For nine innings it was a tight affair between Old King Carl Hubbell on one side and first Howie Pollet and then Beezley on the other. Nig took over in the sixth after it became evident from two Giant homers that Howie had brought his boom-boom ball along. In the tenth Slaughter broke it up by parking one of the Hub's slants among the cash customers in the right field seats.

Over in the American League, the Yanks and Tigers put on something new — starting a double-header in Detroit at 3 p.m. The Bronx boys blew the first game 7-6 on Rudy York's 14th homer of the year and Jimmy Bloodworth's eighth. And they were on the way to kicking the afterpiece away when the Detroits loaded the bases on Hank Borowy in the ninth inning. But Fireman Johnny Murphy arrived with his hook-and-ladder curve as usual to save a 5-3 decision and keep Borowy among the season's undefeated elbowers with five wins.

Completing the American League picture Rookie Orval Grove and husky Bob Harris hooked up in a tight tussle at Chicago nuder the lights, and Grove won out 2-1 as the White Sox nipped the Athletics on a ninth-inning run to climb into sixth place in the league standings. The Washington-Cleveland party was postponed.

Johnny Vander Meer had his "swift" and his slants just right at Boston and pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-0 victory over the Braves with a seven-hit performance. Another of the day's neat twirling jobs was the seven-hitter served up by Johnny Podgajny. The result was the Phillies ended their nine-game losing string by pounding the Pittsburg Pirates 5-1.

Orioles Defeat Bisons 7-1; Bears Lose Two

By The Associated Press

Baltimore is waging a determined fight to remain in the first division of the International League and the all-round play of first baseman Eddie Robinson has been one of the chief reasons for the Birds high flying.

Robinson, along with teammates Joe Kracher and Hank Edwards, exploded homers as the Orioles defeated Buffalo Bisons 7-1 to displace the Bisons in fourth place in the standings. It was Robinson's 11th four-bagger of the season.

While this heavy cannonading was going on, Ken Trinkle scattered seven Bison hits in registering his seventh conquest. Floyd Giebell was making his first start on the mound for the Bisons since his jaw was fractured in April. The second game went three innings before it was postponed.

The league-leading Newark Bears dropped a double header to Rochester Red Wings, 4-3 and 4-0. The defeat coupled with Montreal's split with Syracuse Chiefs lowered the Bears' lead to 3½ games.

Davis Right in There

The opener went extra innings as the Wings, trailed 3-2 going into the seventh, tied it up on George Fallon's triple that scored Harry Davis. Davis singled in the first overtime session with the bases loaded to win the game.

In the nightcap Ira Hutchinson hurled a four-hit shutout in notching his seventh triumph of the campaign. Rochester's first two runs came as a result of second baseman Boyd Perry's boot in the second. Davis hammered a home run in the fourth.

Jack Hallett of Toronto Maple Leafs enjoyed a field day at the expense of the Jersey City Giants. He stopped the Giants, 7-2, and blasted a two-run homer. Warren Sandel, young lefthander, went all the way for the Jerseys.

Montreal split a double header with Syracuse, winning the first game 3-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Bob Chipman and dropping the second 7-4 as the Chiefs blasted Chet Kehn for six runs in the 10th. The Royals rallied for three runs in their half of the tenth but fell short of a tie.

Jersey Breeders Are Grateful To Donors

Through their president, Reg. H. Armstrong, Peterborough Jersey Club expresses appreciation to those who generously gave prizes for the judging at the Club's recent field day, including Charles Doughty; Campbell's Dairy; Mason's Groceteria; Co-operative Services; Dr. Johnston and Dr. Worton; Stewart Hall, Standard Farm Supplies; R. Charton, Lakefield; Reeve W. E. Ball, Millbrook; Frank Coyle, Lakefield; Quaker Oats Company, and E. Curtiss. In the draw for a Jersey Calf, "Glamorous Peggy," the winning ticket was held by Velma Bulmer, three years old.

See Low Scores At Chicago National Open

CHICAGO, June 17. — (AP).—Scoring promises to run extremely low in the Hale America national open golf tournament starting a four-day run at the Ridgemoor Country Club, Thursday. The 107 stars gathering for a shot at the $1,100 first prize figure to whisk around the compact course with a minimum of exercise.

Par for the course is 71, but that is for club members. Actually, the championship layout measures only 6,519 yards, and that means it is about par 68 for the top-ranking players Eighteen-hole rounds will be played each day, winding up Sunday.

Most of the big name players had a crack at the layout yesterday afternoon. The most prominent absentee was Sammy Snead, winner of the recent Professional Golfers' Association championship at Atlantic City and now in the navy. It was believed that Snead had failed to obtain a furlough

All of the entrants, incidentally, will have to buy admission tickets for their wives. There were none of the usual complimentaries for anybody. The receipts of the tournament will be divided equally between the Navy Relief and the United Service organizations

Lawson Little, in his first practice round, scored 33-33—66. Johnny Dawson, the semi-professional, who has applied for reinstatement as an amateur, went around in 68.

"It's the kind of a course all championship should be played on," said Little with obvious satisfaction.

Gordon Brydson and Bobby Gray of Toronto, the only Canadians in the tournaments, took a few licks around the course, but didn't post their rounds.

TORONTO, June 17 (CP) — The popular belief that baseball players would rather lose an eye than associate with an umpire has received a crushing blow in the morale department. George (Knotty) Lee actually has created one, and Lee is an oldtime pro who has baited more umpires than there are untended sugar beets. The world must be going soft.

The tale: Krotty runs a weekly baseball school for youngsters in Smiths Falls, Ont. One day he noticed a lad watching wistfully from the sidelines, found he had been injured and was unable to bat, throw and catch as well as other youngsters of his age. So Knotty got him some equipment, trained him in umpiring etiquette (details of this probably would run to extreme whimsy).

Knotty ran true to the textbooks only when commenting on the finished product. He mused: "As good as some of those professional umpires."

Absent fan:

A correspondent writes from Taber, Alta., to Stu (Vancouver Province) Keate asking for pictures of Vancouver Capilanos of the Western International League to "help me so I can remember." The writer: Wayne Sakamoto, a Japanese moved inland.

Incidentally:

Detroit Tigers will operate baseball schools in Western Ontario this summer...Tigers will get a better response than any other Major League club could in that district because in the days when border passes flowed like skim milk Tigers developed a big Western Ontario following...They still have it... NEW YORK, June 17 —(AP) — Larry MacPhail has served notice on Dodger fans that tickets bought from speculators will be refused at the gates....If anybody collects a "service charge," Larry wants to do it himself....Bill Tilden, one of the few "name" players missing from the pro tennis championships at Forest Hill, has just been appointed pro at the swanky town house in Los Angeles....When Jack Zeller, the Tigers' general manager began scouting around for another catcher in case the army should accept Birdie Tebbetts, he struck on the idea that the Braves might be persuaded to part with Ernie Lombardi....His first move was to soften up Casey Stengel with an expensive dinner; then he popped the question...."Well, No," Casey replied thoughtfully. "We're honest people. You see, Lom is class 1-A in the draft".... Zeller wrote off the dinner as a bad investment.

One minute sports page:

The Glen Ridge (N. J.) country club has named five traps around the green on a short hole "MacArthur traps." Anyone driving into one of the three front traps contributes a dime to the United Service organizations; a shot into the left bunker pays the army relief fund and the right collects for navy relief.... The day Lew Jenkins started training for his Boston scrap with Marine Garvey Young, he hurt his hand and had to postpone the fight. Lew always did suspect there was something dangerous about training....The Reds Ray Starr, who looks like a sure-fire candidate for the all-star team (and not on his name), says that when he's through in the majors, he'd like to have a small minor league club and pitch all the games himself.

Hint Ration Cut Will Hit 'A' Card Holders

OTTAWA, June 17 —(CP)—An announcement on gasoline rationing, with possible reduction in allowances, particularly for the lower categories, is expected within the next few days.

Oil control officials are expected in Ottawa, probably today, to confer with Munitions Minister Howe, and it appears likely that a decision will be reached at that conference.

Several thousand motorists who held preferred categories, above that of "A" allowed for non-essential drivers, have had their categories reduced as a result of a general survey of the past few weeks and attention now centres on the holders of "A" licenses.

A coupon now is good for five gallons, except in the Maritime Provinces, where a regional shortage resulted in a cut to two gallons. Holders of "A" licenses get 60 coupons which gives them 300 gallons a year.

Whether there will be a general cut in the five gallon unit, a cut in the unit which will apply only to "A" license holders or a division of "A" license holders into those who use their cars for driving to work and those who use them only for pleasure purposes is not yet known.

In an address delivered in Toronto yesterday Supplies Controller Williamson lent emphasis to the increasing seriousness of the oil situation with the prediction that pleasure travel may become a thing of the past.

ment a complete enemy column was destroyed, including 30 motor vehicles, 12 guns and four tanks," it said. The enemy lost more than 200 soldiers and officers killed.

Through the same area, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's men repelled several Nazi attacks.

The Russians said the defenders of Sevastopol, fighting from a system of entrenchments and fortifications 15 miles deep, cut heavily yesterday into German assault forces estimate to total 125,000 men—seven infantry divisions, several dozen artillery and mortar batteries, more than 150 tanks and many planes.

"All attacks of the Germans were repelled with big losses to the enemy," the information bureau reported.

Local fighting and scouting operations took place elsewhere and a Soviet detachment on the northeastern front occupied a strongly-fortified German pocket of resistance, killing more than 400.

Without disclosing the site of the attacks, the information bureau said Russian airmen sank a 3,000-ton Axis transport and two motorboats and damaged four transports and two patrol boats Monday. (Axis broadcasts Monday night reported renewed attacks by land and sea against defence of Leningrad.)

London circles said the convoy was "covered to some extent by our aircraft," but said they did not know whether a British aircraft carrier was present.

The Italian fleet which sought to halt the supply and reinforcement of Tobruk's garrison from Alexandria was declared to have found that, "like the Japanese fleet in the Pacific," it was no match for shore-based aircraft including the Liberator (Consolidated) bombers of the United States air force.

"There was no ship to ship contact between the enemy fleet and escort vessels of our convoy," a source emphasized. "The Italian Admiral was driven off his objective by air attacks."

British communiques yesterday announced the sinking of an Italian cruiser of the eight-inch-gun class and two destroyers and damaging of six other warships, including two battleships.

Italian communiques of Monday and Tuesday, possibly containing six duplications, listed three British cruisers and three destroyers sunk and 20 other warcraft and merchantmen damaged in 48 hours of fighting at the week-end.

Sinking of six warships and six merchantmen and damaging of 21 other vessels was claimed yesterday by the German high command, which said these were in addition to "the already reported Italian successes" in the Mediterranean.

St. Laurent

desire that Canada shall survive; and that future generations shall, as we ourselves have had, 'the right of men, rich and poor, to be treated as men; the right of men to make the laws by which they shall be governed; the right of men to work where they will at what they will; the right of womankind to the serenity and sanctity of the home; the right of children to play in safety under peaceful heavens; the right of old men and women to the tranquillity of their sunset; the right to speak the truth in our hearts; the right to worship in our own way, the God in whom we believe."

He quoted the words of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Mr. St. Laurent, who spoke in English, said the Canadian governmet, made up of sincere Canadians from all the principal races which made up the population, could be trusted even in a time of crisis to do the right thing, at the right time and in the right manner.

He added that 175 years of British connection had conclusively shown that 3,000,000 Canadians of French origin were not going to be assimilated.

Quebec Not Fully Informed.

Other Quebec members were opposing the measure. He suggested to his colleagues from Quebec that they knew their constituents were not fully informed on the present situation.

"The truth is that conscription or no conscription for overseas service is of very little practical consequence at the present time," said Mr. St. Laurent.

He saw the Government bill as a logical consequence of the vote registered in the manpower plebiscite. Divisions were unfortunate but should not be looked upon as discouraging. They were one of the "inescapable consequences of the situation in which Providence has placed the citizens of this nation."

He felt it the duty of the citizens to bear arms, to fight and to die was a duty he owned only to his own country. Salvation of his country might place upon the citizen, as it did in the present instance, full participation in all the joint ventures of his and the other nations banded together in the common task of overcoming the common enemy.

"But beyond that I recognize no obligation," he said.

"It may be great and glorious to fight and die for the world's salvation, for the salvation of the United Nations, for the salvation of democracy and Christian civilization, but that is not a duty which citizenship imposes as an obligation correlative to the rights which citizenship guarantees as a privilege."

Hughes Cleaver (Lib. Halton) said that Conservative House Leader Hanson, in an address on the amendment last Wednesday had made 'slighting" statements regarding the war effort.

"I wondered how the boys in our 25 air squadrons overseas would feel when they heard Canada's war effort being described as a stumbling, floundering effort," said Mr. Cleaver.

A majority of the people believed Canada would make a better war effort and raise better armed forces under the voluntary system than under conscription and conscription should be resorted to only when all else had failed.

"Education Slipping."

J. W. Noseworthy (C.C.F.-York South) protested that the educational systems of the provinces had failed to teach the essentials of a unified citizenship. The differences had been taught and emphasized.

The war was to preserve rights and freedoms and was not a mere question of preserving or saving British territory or the territory of any other country. The Govenment should be prepared to explain the terms under which the conscription for overseas powers would be enforced and the necessity for them.

He said he would oppose the Bill.

L. P. Lizotte (Lib. Kamouraska) said that if Mr. King consented to impose conscription for overseas service he would betray his past record and deny his best friends.

The Quebec bloc had been the cornerstone of the Liberal Party. It cornerstone of the Liberal Party. If forced to it, Quebec would allow herself to be isolated and could carry on alone. if an attempt were made to separate Ontario and Quebec.

Canadian Naval Officer Sticks To Guns

Mentioned in Canadian Press despatch from Montreal this morning was Lieutenant J. B. Frewer, Toronto, of the British cruiser "Edinburgh," recently sacrificed in an action which enabled a great convoy to elude submarines and reach a Russian port. He is a son-in-law of Fred M. Dela Fosse of this city.

Frewer and his chum Lieut. Ferguson were among the last to leave the sinking vessel. The Edinburgh may have accounted for several German destroyers that were sunk. The first attack put the steering gear out of use, "and she was just like a sponge, she had so many torpedoes in her. She settled until the lower deck was awash, but still floated."

Frewer and Ferguson stayed behind with the other officers of the anti-aircraft, and turrets and guns were kept firing until the last.

PARK UNKNOWN

A young English airman who visited the city over the week-end thinks it would be a good idea to educate some of the citizens as to where the important landmarks are. Upon arrival here, he saw a beautifully painted postcard view of Jackson Park, which aroused his interest. After wandering around a bit he saw a bus with the name Jackson Park and hopped aboard. As the bus made its rounds the young man saw houses and more houses until he finally ended up at his starting point where the conductor answered the young man's puzzled query as to where the park was with "We passed it ten minutes ago." On the next trip round he got off at the Wartime houses on Park Hill Road and as he wandered up the road he called to a householder on his verandah and asked if he was travelling in the right direction. The man in question said he was sorry but he had never heard of, Jackson Park. This airman is still wondering how it is that people living "Only a few hundred yards from a place" can be ignorant of its whereabouts.—J.S.

A BALL VANISHES.

The Keene bus and an exact timing of chance whisked off an Alparka softball the other evening as suddenly and almost as mysteriously as if by magic. Small boys who hang about the corner were playing catch with the ball. One of them muffed it and it rolled out on to Park street into the path of the Keene bus. The ball escaped the front wheels evidently, and then vanished. The muffer was shocked into silence for a moment, and then he ran to the rest of the gang with the bad news 'It got caught between the tires.' And apparently that's what happened, for there was no trace of the ball on the pavement. The boys looked for a block down Park street, hoping their ball might have shaken loose, but it was gone, perhaps wedged firmly between the double tires.—H. T.

REPORTER PUT TO FLIGHT.

The police department had to move into the assistance of a well known newspaper photographer and reporter this morning when he was fighting a losing battle on Simcoe street with a dive bomber in the form of a busy bumble bee. The newsman is allergic to bees, it seems and when he found the buzzing insect in possession of his automobile he borrowed a fly swatter from a nearby barber shop and went into action. The reporter won the first round and got the bee out but by the time he got seated at the wheel the winged pest sailed through an open window again and put the sleuth to flight. Only the arrival of Constable Harold Mesley, who drove the bee away, enabled the newsman to get started on his journey.

Bed Shortage Is Acute In Hospitals

The two hospitals, which serve Peterborough and surrounding districts with a population that might be around 60,000, using the basic method of allowing so many beds to every thousand people, ought to have 228 beds and this would be adequate. That is fine in theory. Actually there are close to that number. Nicholls Hospital has 114 beds and 19 bassinettes. St. Joseph's Hospital has 100 beds plus a few bassinettes, but in practice this is not sufficient to handle conditions in this community.

In February before the new wing opened at Nicholls Hospital there were 28 patients refused admittance but after that there was a drop for a short period, with 20 refused in March and 14 in April. The month of May took a jump upward and there were 25 who could not be accommodated. St. Joseph's Hospital does not keep a record of the number they cannot handle, but it is understood that a somewhat similar situation prevails there also. According to the general rules governing hospitals across Canada, of the total number of beds available there should be a 25 per cent surplus to take care of ordinary fluctuation and emergencies and this is not to be found here.

In the month of May, Nicholls Hospital had an average of 114 people there and 381 patients were treated.

Influx of Population.

The reason for this increase in hospital cases is thought by John Hornal, superintendent of Nicholls Hospital, and other informed quarters, to be due to a number of things. First, there are so many extra people moving into the city, and are living in duplex houses, apartments and rooms which lack the facilities for caring for the sick at home. Then there is more employment, and as a result when a member of the family falls ill there is often no one at home to do the nursing. More money is being circulated for a far greater number of people ask for private and semi-private rooms than has been the case for a number of years.

In general there is a great strain on both the nursing staff and the equipment in these crowded conditions. Many patients who are accepted cannot get the accommodation they want until others leave. The transfer is made as soon as possible, but this usually happens in the afternoon and means a great deal more work for the already busy staff.

Generally in hospitals across Canada there has never, except in an influenza epidemic years ago, been such a shortage of beds, even for acute cases, according to the Canadian Medical Association Journal. The great danger is not at present, where they are managing, but if a serious outbreak occurred, the hospitals at the present time could not possibly begin to cope with it, and this is especially true of Peterborough.

There are difficulties standing in the way of hospitals building new wings during the war. The construction costs are much greater and there is a scarcity of material for non-military use. The only solution at the present time is to erect a temporary but safe hospital wing such as was recently done at Nicholls.

More Turned Away.

At the present time out of 106 beds at Nicholls Hospital, there are 18 beds in private rooms, 43 in semi-private and 45 in public wards. With the new wing, there was an increased capacity of 24 actual beds, but due to the increase in the obstetrical department, Mr. Hornal said, they were using four extra cots, thus bringing the total to 28. Things are made a little heavier, too because of the fact that the more serious cases are sent up from the Basic Training Centre either to St. Joseph's Hospital or to Nicholls. For the whole of 1941, Nicholls turned away 227 patients, and if it continues as it has so far in 1942, the number will surpass that of last year.

To date some hospitals have had considerable difficulty in keeping a staff large enough to cope with the additional work. But up to the present there has been no serious shortage of nurses here. It is a good idea for people to try to watch their health just a bit more carefully, hospital authorities say, and perhaps it will keep a bed open for someone else.

Dairy Director To Address Farmers

A meeting of members and patrons of the Peterborough District Co-operative Services will be held in the Co-op Hall Thursday, June 18, at 8.30 p.m. The speaker will be J. Peter Nadeau, director of the Dairy Products Division, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa.

There will also be a review of the business done by Co-op Services for the last five months given by C. E. Moore. The program also provides for a general discussion on the feed situation for the near future, and Mr. Fitchie of the National Film Board will show a film, "Thoroughbred."

It may be that some of the farmers, especially the dairy men, will ask Mr. Nadeau questions which were intended for the several Ministers invited to the meeting in Toronto last Saturday.

Chimney repair men are busy this week atop the 137-foot high chimney at the C.G.E. Company, cleaning the top of the stack, and checking the chimney for any repairs that may be necessary. This picture was taken from the top of the paint shop, which is just west of the boiler house.

Ask Monaghan To Assume Cost Of Sewer

A rumor in municipal circles today intimated that Wartime Housing, Limited, was willing to consider allocation of temporary houses to the big field north of the C.P.R. and west of High Street, providing the township of North Monaghan would assume some part of the cost of supplying sewer and water services.

Estimates of the cost of a sewer from Romaine Street, part of it necessarily paralleling the present sewer on that section of the street, were mentioned a month or more ago at more than $60,000. It was said then that cost of extending services to the property which the township council was recommending with considerable urgency and insistence was an obstacle which turned the attention of Wartime Housing engineers in other directions.

The only definite information this morning confirmed the announcement of a special meeting of the City Council Thursday evening generally "in connection with wartime housing."

Three Men Are Removing Soot Cap From Top Of C.G.E. Smoke Stack

Three chimney repair men, first cousins to the steeple-jacks who paint church spires and flagpoles, are busy this week making repairs to the top of the huge radial brick smoke stack at the plant of the Canadian General Electric Company. Perched on a tiny scaffolding within a few feet from the top of the 137 feet-high chimney, the men have been going about their work, looking for all the world like tiny ants, to the people in the district who look up at them.

The purpose of the repair work is to remove the 18-inch thick soot cap visible on top of the chimney, to check and repair the lightning rods, to rake the brick joints and repair them with new mortar and to wash them down the outside of the chimney for about 25 feet from the top with a special solution. The contract has been let to the Taylor Engineering Company of Toronto, with F. MacPhee as foreman of this particular job.

Cross Currents of Air.

It appears that soot accumulates on the top face of the chimney, and changes in temperature and humidity at that point, combined with gas fumes, fine soot, and the cutting action of the wind often causes the mortar to disintegrate. The fine soot gets into the mortar joints, gets damp and fouls the chimney, particularly if it works right through the joint. This forms cross currents of air thus spoiling the chimney draft. On top of the stack are four lightning rods and a lightning band. These which are made of copper and sheeted with lead are anchored on the second top ring of bricks at the top of the stack. Leading from the lightning band to the ground is a heavy cable, to carry off any charge of electricity which might come during a storm.

A lot of people seem to have the idea that the soot cap on top of the chimney is several feet high. It forms on a four inch base, and is nto more than 18 inches in height, nor more than four inches wide at the bottom. The removal of this cap is not by any means the main part of the inspection and repair job.

The chimney sits on a concrete base 10 feet high, with 127 feet of brick work, giving it an overall height from the ground of 137 feet. It tapers from a 13½ feet diameter at the base to 9 feet at the top.

The repair men have a special type of ladder, built of wood and in sections which fit into one another, and they anchor the ladders to the ground cable and start to build it to the top, fitting in the sections of ladder as they climb. When they reach the spot where work is to be started, a five-eighths steel cable is placed around the stack, and this cable is equipped with a turnbuckle for adjusting. Before the cable is tightened, a series of wedges are placed between the cable and the brick to leave room for steel brackets which fit inside the cable and entend away from the stack at right angles to form the scaffold platform. A good repair man, can work around the chimney from the ladder is in short order, building the scaffolding as he goes. The scaffolding is also built so that a pipe hand railing can be used as a safety measure.

Completion of the scaffold means the workmen have about seven feet of chimney above them on which to work. When this is finished, one man climbs down the ladder for seven feet, encircles the chimney with another cable, and starts all over again to build another scaffold, while his mate above starts to remove the top one. The men have been working now for about three days and it is believed that it will take at least ten days to do the job.

Plans Under Way For Observing Of Army Week

Preliminary steps in the organizing of Army Week, June 29 to July 5, in Peterborough were taken on Tuesday evening at a meeting in the officers mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers. In attendance were the Citizens Committee, Lt. Col. M. H. Park and Major V. M. Eastwood of the Prince of Wales Rangers, Col. E. O. Keeler and Major J. Keir of the Military Training Centre and Col. L. F. Grant and Col. T. McMann of Kingston.

Col. Keeler offered the co-operaton of the Training Centre in every way possible to put the week across and Col. Grant promised that a military band would be here for a head service in Riverside Park on Sunday afternoon, June 28, with the possibility that it might return for the parade which is being planned for Dominion Day.

Soldiers from the Training Centre will in all probability give smoke demonstrations and carry out manoeuvres in the city parks and on the city streets during the week, and one day the Military Training Centre will be open to the general public, when the army in actual training may be seen at work.

Col. Keeler also reported that the Centre had planned a series of broadcasts during the week over CHEX.

The Service Clubs are being asked to invite private soldiers to their luncheons during the week and have military men as speakers.

The week has been organized in answer to the claims that Canadian people have been asked to finance the war effort, to conserve necessary war materials, to step up production in industry, but that little has been done to honor the Canadian soldier.

Because of the size of Canada, it was felt that a completely national program for observing Army Week would not be feasible. The national program, therefore, is having to be augmented and in some instances changed to meet local conditions, although various days during the week are devoted to certain specialized activities of a national nature.

Plans call for Monday as a day when the public will pay tribute by forwarding gifts and parcels to men in the army.

Tuesday will be "Civilians" Day, and radio, newspapers and other means of publicity have been asked to focus ttention on the question "What am I doing as a civilian to support the soldier in this war?" Women will be asked to use menus and rations in providing meals.

Wednesday will be set aside as "United Services Day," and being Dominion Day a big parade is being organized.

Thursday has been reserved for celebrations planned by district committees.

Friday will be "Reserve Army Day" and will focus public attention on the important role of the Canadian Army (Reserve).

Saturday, July 4, will be "United Nations' Day" and, since it is a national holiday in the United States it is hoped that representatives of the Canadian Army from M.D. 3 will visit points across the border.

Fraud Charge Judgment Is Reserved

Judgment was reserved for a week by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning in the charge of conspiracy to defraud the Department of Munitions and Supply against Miss Mary Robertson, manager of the Hotel Champlain.

His Worship had previously dismissed a motion by defence counsel, T. J. Carley, K.C., for a dismissal of the case without the defence being called upon.

"After considering the matter I have decided there is some evidence upon which a jury might convict," said the magistrate when the case opened this morning. "I therefore call for the defense."

"I am not going to call any evidence," T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for Miss Robertson, announced.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., for the Crown, and Mr. Carley then submitted their arguments in amplication of their previous arguments on the motion for dismissal.

Mr. Carley, however, introduced a new point when he argued that there was no evidence of fraud on anybody's part. He pointed out that Bennett with whom Miss Robertson was alleged to have conspired, was an employee of Bromleigh Engineering Company of Detroit, not of Genelco or C.G.E. and that no evidence was before the court as to the terms on which he was working in so far as the relations between himself and the Bromleigh Company were concerned.

After announcing that he would reserve judgment in the first charge against Miss Robertson, Magistrate Langley said that the other two charges against the accused would have to stand over.

"I have decided," he said, "to send all the other conspiracy charges to a higher court and merely hold the preliminaries here," said His Worship. "There are many points of law and evidence that might better be considered by such a court."

$580 Needed To Make 18th Donation

With almost three-quarters of the amount needed in hand, the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund requires some $580 to make up the balance of the $2,240 necessary to send the 18th donation of £500 to Britain. This when completed will bring the total amount sent within £400 of the £10,000 mark, an achievement which speaks highly of the generosity and sympathetic interest of the residents of this city and district for the people of Britain, who have so valiantly stood up against a barbaric type of warfare never known in all the history of the world. In the light of what has here-to-fore been accomplished for the people of Britain through the fund, it should not require such a long period of time to complete this donation and send it on its mission of cheer and helpfulness, which after all is what you, and you, and you want to be done.

Less than four months ago, a Peterborough and District Auxiliary for the R.C.N.V.R. was organized with Mrs. W. E. Dorrington as president, with the object of looking particularly after the comforts which mean so much to the boys serving in the Navy, of which there are a goodly number from this district. For the most part, the membership is made up of the mothers and wives of the men so serving the Empire, and their work has been meeting with very good success. In today's list for the fund there appears a donation of $10 in their name which adds a further interest to their accomplishments.

At the Curtis service station on Charlotte street, a box is kept, where A. C. Curtis the proprietor deposits the odd cent from every bottle of soft drink that is sold at the station. This policy has already benefitted the fund a number of times, and once again it appears today with a donation of $3.60.

One personal donor whose name "E.M.F." has many times appeared as a contributor to the fund, is once again listed with the usual donation.

Garden Party June 22

At the residence of Senator Iva Fallis, situated on Charles street at the extreme end of Burnham street in East City, a garden party and gala evening is being staged under the sponsorship of the Peterborough Women's Conservative Association next Monday June 22. This is a non-partisan and non-political effort on the part of the ladies to help along the war effort, the entire proceeds being divided equally between this fund, and a national fund for sending mobile kitchen units to Britain. It will commence at 4 p.m. and from then until 6 p.m., an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged, for which afternoon tea will be served. In the evening admission will be free, and there will be various attractions such as a wheel of fortune, booths for refreshments, fortune telling and tea cup readings, lucky horses and white elephants, and the Prince of Wales Rangers Boys Band, directed by Sgt. H. Parnell will dispense sweet music, in their usual capable manner. A cordial invitation is extended to all by the hostess, and ladies of the association to join with them in helping these worthy objects, for which in addition to the foregoing, a draw will be held on a beautiful quilt which has been given for that purpose and can now be seen on display in the windows of Grafton's Ltd.

Sgt. Air-Gunner Jim Lynch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch, 494 McDonnel Street. He was formerly employed in the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, and graduated from St. Peter's High School. He received his wings early in May of this year.

War Time Law On Speeding Being Enforced

A Collingwood commercial traveller and a Peterborough citizen have discovered that the war time regulations in regard to driving motor vehicles faster than 40 miles an hour really have teeth.

The traveller, Clare H Sproule, appeared before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to driving faster than 40 miles an hour on Highway 7.

Provincial Constable Archie Graylin of Havelock, who laid the charge, said that he had followed Sproule's car for two miles and it was travelling at 55 or 60 miles an hour.

Sproule said that he had not reached a speed of 60 miles and remarked that the officer might have given him a warning on the first offense.

"There is no warning in these cases," remarked Magistrate Langley. "The government has passed these regulations to conserve gasoline and tires and most people are satisfied that it is a wise provision."

Sproule was fined $15 and $12.55 costs, a total of $27.55.

H R. Buckley of Peterborough, also charged with driving faster than 40 miles an hour on Highway 7, did not appear but entered a written plea of guilty.

It was stated that he had been travelling at 70 miles an hour, with the result that the fine in his case was stepped up to $25 but the costs were only $2.50.

Two Tourists Fined For Fishing For Bass

Two Warren, O., fishermen, early visitors to this district yielded to the temptation of fishing for smallmouth black bass out of season, probably figuring that Loon Lake was far enough away to be safe.

However, Fish and Game Overseer I. J. Lyons happened along at the wrong time and as a result the two, W. F. McDonald and Jack Leifer, entered written plea in the Police Court to-day of guilty to a charge of fishing out of season, and were fined $10.00, and $2.50 costs.

Sergt. G. T. Puffer told the court that the visitors' outboard motor and fishing apparatus had been confiscated.

Weekend Camps For Training Reserve Army

The addition of 10 day's outdoor training on selected week-ends to the evening training in the Armoury and on the parade ground has presented a problem to the senior officers of the second battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers. Some weeks ago the matter was taken into consideration and the solution seemed to be to use the outdoor range property for this purpose, if arrangements could be made. A survey of the difficulties in the way of such a project was made, and the suggestion submitted to headquarters at Kingston.

Lieut.-Col. L. F. Grant, G.S.O., of M.D. 3, came to look over the ground and the possibilities of establishing a small permanent camp, and was very much impressed with the idea. He approved the general plan and with the assistance of district headquarters and Lieut.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., E.D., of the Training Centre, the plan has been put into effect.

The range proper, which contains from three to four hundred acres, is not only an ideal location for outdoor shooting, but also for infantry field work in all its branches. The nature of the ground east of the range itself is such as to afford opportunities for a practical application of the principles taught to the men in lectures. There is room enough on the property itself for practice in map-reading, fieldcraft, entrenching, camouflage and generally speaking, for all the manoeuvres which a modern infantry platoon has to undertake.

Tents Set Up

Under the capable direction of Major V. M. Eastwood, Major James McGrath and Capt. Gordon Dobbin the camp has been put into shape and will be ready for use on June 20. The usual routine of a modern summer camp will be followed, and it is anticipated that there will be a battalion waiting list for those anxious to take advantage of it.

Rations will be drawn from the Training Centre, which ensures excellent food, and transport to and from the ranges will also be provided by the Training Centre. The camp will provide sleeping accommodation for 75 officers, N.C.O.'s and men. The tents have board floors, and there is plenty of protection for all stores and equipment in the roomy brick storehouse. The hut used as a kitchen has been repaired, and houses two excellent army stoves. A small electric pump is being installed to supply running water for the kitchen and the ablution tables. The camp ground itself is very attractive and has excellent drainage, so that in case of rain there will be no more discomfort than that ordinarily experienced in any modern recreation camp in our lake district.

A Holiday for Men

This addition to training facilities in the Armoury should appeal strongly to those members of the battalion, or prospective members, who because of the nature of their work are prevented from having a real outdoor holiday during weekends. In addition to outdoor shooting and the kind of army work which takes men into the woods and fields, there will be suitable recreation facilities. Through the kindness of the Y.M.C.A. authorities equipment is being provided for football, baseball, volley ball, horseshoes and other sports.

The surroundings are pleasant, the work will not be strenuous, and it is anticipated that very successful results should be obtained in the advancement of the second battalion toward the state of efficiency which is the aim of all ranks.

The officers of the battalion are very enthusiastic about the prospects for training and recreation, and realize that they have an opportunity in the Range camp which could be provided for very few cities throughout Canada. After the camp gets underway it is hoped that arrangements can be made to give the citizens of Peterborough a chance to see the nature of the training of a modern infantryman.

Children's Aid Society Holds June Meeting

The regular meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held on Tuesday afternoon in the committee room of the city building with James Dutton in the chair.

In her report, Miss Rachael Young, reported that 17 families had come to the attention of the Society during the month, nine of which were investigations for the dependents allowance board. The others presented problems of child desertion, physical abuse, poor housing, children left alone, mental illness and marital discord and delinquency of child.

An increasing number of mothers of large families are finding employment and in too many cases the arrangements for taking care of the children are most inadequate. Another problem is the placing of infants in private homes by mothers who wish to work. Miss Young said that she found that mothers who were not too interested in their children were satisfied with any plan.

Two children are being sent to the "Y" camp through the Business and Professional Women's Club and one through a private donation. The Junior Welfare League is going to equip the play-barn with play material. The valuable contribution will facilitate the work at the Shelter with the younger children. Some of the children who come to the Shelter have no knowledge of how to use playthings and are very destructive. Donations of toys are always appreciated. Miss Young expressed regret that tentative plans for some kind of organized play for Peterborough children has been abandoned.

Two children, wards of the Society, have been placed in free adoptive homes, one child was placed for adoption, and one adoption was completed.

The action of the Dependents' Allowance Board in cutting off part of the separation allowance of a soldier's family because of misbehavior on the part of the mother was discussed, and it was pointed out that it was the children who suffered by this, and became the responsibility of the community. The withdrawal of the twice monthly mental clinic service from Peterborough was discussed and it was decided to send a resolution to the Department of Public Welfare requesting the early re-establishment of this service.

Investigations for the Dependents Allowance Board have become so heavy that Miss Young and her assistants are unable to cope with them and also to carry on their proper work. Other cases must be neglected in order that this work may be done for the government. It was decided that the matter should be discussed with Mr. Heise, Children's Aid representative in the Department of Public Health.

During the afternoon the convention was privileged in hearing a chorus by a group of Plainville school boys, also a delightful duet "Saved by Grace" by Mrs. M. Fisher and Mrs. Bowman.

Reports were heard from the corresponding secretary, the treasurer, "Y" secretary and L.T.L. secretary showing much fine work done by all the unions during the past year.

Mission Circle Holds June Meeting

Mrs. Percy Vannest, Victoria Ave., was hostess on Monday night to the girls of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle of Knox Church when a good attendance and a good program provided a successful meeting.

The theme for the evening was patriotism. The leader, Jean Hammond read a selection entitled "God comforts those who suffer in war."

The scripture reading called "The Way of Hope" was read in dialogue by Zetta Wood and Jean Hammond. Mrs. R. C. Searles led in prayer.

Zetta Wood gave an interesting paper on Christian Stewarship, in which she was assisted by several girls, when all joined in singing "My faith looks up to Thee."

A reading on the subject "There'll Always be an England," by Mrs. D. Sedgwick, was followed with the song of the same title, with Anne Deyell at the piano.

In connection with the Red Cross effort, a reading by Mrs. A. Rosborough, in a plea for support "It is more blessed to give than to receive" was enjoyed and met with generous response.

During business discussion it was decided to dispense with the usual July picnic and use the money for the picnic for buying war saving stamps. Another important decision by the girls was that in future no refreshments would be served for the duration at any Circle meeting. Mrs. Searles invited the Circle to her home on Armour Road for the September meeting.

Some beautiful articles were on display for the bale of supplies in which this Circle takes a great interest.

A delightful duet "Some day I shall hear God's call of Love" was contributed by Mrs. R. Kitchen and Mrs. L. McLaren. The last chapter of the book under study htis year was presented in an interesting synopsis by Gladys Langton.

Convention Asks Restriction On Liquor Sales

Hope that Provincial Authorities would restrict the time for the sale and consumption of liquor was expressed in a resolution adopted at the Otonabee Sunday School Convention, June 9.

The resolution also stressed the importance of self-control in combatting the social evil of the liquor traffic, as follows: "We emphasize the danger and waste which the liquor traffic causes, urge our people to abstain themselves, and discourage the use of alcoholic beverages by others, and express the hope that the powers that be will effect restrictions on hours of sale and consumption."

Enrolment of 591 young people by the eight Sunday Schools in the association was reported as follows: Keene United 246; Stewart Hall 74; Coldsprings 67; Salem 50; Hiawatha 47; Bethel 46; Zion 35 and Indian River 26.

More than $300 was raised for missions work. Keene United reported sixteen pupils coming into full church membership .The sum of $36, was collected for Mother's Day, sent to the Ontario Religious Educational Council.

The convention was held in the Zion United Sunday School. The worship period was conducted by Mrs. D. Rose, Mrs. Bruce and Miss M. Tully of Coldsprings. Subjects related to attendance at Sunday Schools were discussed under the leadership of Rev. G. Murray and Rev. E. Rowland.

Each school in the Association was visited during the year some Sunday by an official from a different school, and in this way an exact report was obtained about the work of each school.

At the evening session, Rev. G. Murray installed the members of the new executive: Honorary President:—David Edwards, Keene; President: Allan Borland, Indian River; vice-president Miss Marion Beatty, Zion; secretary-treasurer: W. W. Dawson, Stewart Hall.

Resolutions included expression of appreciation to the people of Zion United Church for the use of their church quarters, and to the women of Zion and Salem for their hospitality in providing supper. Acknowledgement was also made of the firm leadership of last year's executive, and a letter of sympathy was directed to be sent to Ormiston Stewart.

A group of teachers from Stewart Hall School gave a dialogue entitled "Back from the Convention." They discussed how they could apply to the local Sunday School and Church the things learned at the convention. It served as a summary of the afternoon session for those who could not attend until the evening. It also suggested action by local schools in connection wtih the Christian Education Advance. FRAZIER'S ACCUSATION

CHAPTER VII

HUNTER DENT stifled an oath. Now he knew why he had never cared for Strickland Ballard's brother-in-law. Hunter wanted to hurl something through the window and bash his face in.

"I'll explain why I have a hunch Dent is our man," Neal Frazier went on. "We've been moving on the theory that Junior must be protected at any cost. If he lives, we must save him from— well, you know what I mean. If he dies, we have to keep his memory clean. What are we saying? Simply this, that Junior Ballard killed this bank messenger, robbed him, managed to get away, though he was shot by the police.

"But that is absurb. Warwick would have heard Junior's car. The car would be here. The tracks Sheriff Anderson saw this afternoon would have been Junior's, when instead we know Dent assured the officer they were from his car; that he alone had a key to the private gate. Anderson was troubled about the clean tread in Dent's tire, until I explained that Dent took very good care of his automobile and it would require but a few minutes to wash it.

"Hunter Dent evidently was not here last night, or early this morning, for when Junior reached home he would most certainly have gone to the office where Dent sleeps. If he were in trouble I am certain he would. Instead he came to his room. Red told me that Dent himself said no one came to see him during the night.

"Well," he concluded, "I grant you this hypothesis is not foolproof. But it is the most plausible thing I am able to work out. I think we are losing valuable time trying to shield Junior, when Dent is likely to slip from between our fingers any moment."

One of the Ghibartos spoke up. "You think, then, Frazier, Dent was the man who killed the messenger?"

"I do. In the end I think that will prove to be the case."

The other twin said "He would have to have had a confederate."

"That is true. In case the account given by the Kiker girl is correct. She said there were two. But, then, you have to allow for the kind of person she is—obviously not too intelligent; she was afraid, confused, and suffered a mental aberration. Until the police find who her boy friend was and get his account of the stick-up you have to make allowances."

"But what about the money?" Hankins Temple asked. He was greatly worried.

"I'd bet my last cent that Dent has that money in his possession this moment!"

A murmur went up. Hunter drew back into the deeper gloom as he heard hurrying footsteps along the concrete walk from the highway. He knew Red's sharp, staccato heel-click. There was a young man with her. They came momentarily into a patch of light from the window. The two stopped. As Hunter had surmised, Red's companion was young Tisdale. Tisdale was harried, and Red was angry.

"I'll not have you forever dictating to me, Oliver! Once for all, I deny the whole business, and I ask you not to mention it again."

Oliver Tisdale growled. "Well, I know what I see. And I don't like it. If I catch you two-timing me—"

For an instant it seemed they might go at it tooth and nail. Red controlled herself. "They're waiting for us. Let's not fight here. I'm sick and tired of fighting."

RED and Oliver Tisdale's joining the group changed the discussion. Some one came to the window. Hunter slipped away. He wanted to hear the rest of the business, but the risk appeared too great. He was worried. Had he, he wondered, gone too far in protecting Junior Ballard? Had he, in fact, built up a powerful case against himself?

Moodily, he moved through the night, came to the parked truck. He got in, and ran with pale parking lights until he was within cover of the woods. He reached the spot where Junior's car had left the road and gone into a tree. Hunter began a none-too-simple job of snaking the wreck out. It was harder than he had planned, and he worked longer than he had expected. Finally, he had the roadster back in the road.

With the torch from the tool chest of the truck Hunter went over the interior of Junior's car. "Junior's still alive," he surmised. "Else the gang would have been in town tonight." By the torch beam he saw blood on the steering wheel. It must have been a pretty tough drive for Junior. Hunter had to tie the damaged door to keep it from banging to and fro. He took a look at the rear of the car. There was a bullet hole through the back. It was easy to trace the course of the bullet to the place where Junior had been sitting.

"Made by a heavy caliber revolver, too," Hunter mused. It seemed obvious the shot was from one of the policeman's guns.

Junior Ballard had been mixed in that stick-up. There was no way out of it. Hunter had tried to believe it was just a gag, done on a wager. It could have been. But the more he pondered the thing, the more he had to admit that fundamentally Ballard's boy, spoiled and pampered, allowed to run wild, was weak and maybe criminal. If only Hunter could account for the missing money. There he was stumped. Maybe he couldn't see straight when he looked in the safe. Maybe he just dreamed the bag and its contents had disappeared.

He got into the truck and drove the car to the barn. He backed it in, and hoped until he could find a better hiding place the big barn would keep the secret. He had a feeling every step he made was that much further on a fool's journey. Why should he be shielding Junior? It was because he loved the boy. Why did he, somehow, have a contrary affection for the kid? It got back to Red. She, too, was the one he was trying to do something for. That did not make particular sense, for she and Tisdale were going to be married. They might fight, but the Ballard-Tisdale money had to be kept intact.

WITH these muddled thoughts for companion, Hunter Dent put the truck in the garage next to the barn, and walked through the heavy darkness toward the house. Save for a low light in the rear, in Warwick's quarters, the mansion was deserted. As Hunter entered the yard, however, he became aware of voices. They were not loud, but they were charged with anger. Now he could make out in the dense gloom—the sky overhead was clouded, and rain was in the air—two cars. They were parked up the driveway, some distance from the wide doors of the garage. At the foot of the stairway to the office Hunter stopped and listened.

"I'm telling you for the last time, Red," Tisdale's voice warned. "Frankly, I think you're in love with Dent and won't admit it to yourself or you are simply stringing me along."

"Ah, shut up, Oliver!" Red Ballard said wearily. "I have never seen such a bitter, jealous person as you in all my life."

Tisdale's headbeams flashed on. His car left with a terrific scrunch of rubber. In a moment it was tearing away up the road. Bella Ballard came swiftly back to her car and got in.

"Red!" Hunter called. She must not have heard his voice. In a moment she started her motor and was gone after Tisdale.

Hunter went up the stairs. He opened the door. To his surprise it was not locked, though he was sure he had locked it when he left the last time. Without switching on the light he used the flashlight he had and went to the safe. He had to make sure about that $17,000. The whole thing made him feel crazy. He had to make two trials before he worked the combination. He threw open the door. The place was just as empty now as it had been when he missed the bag.

Then it seemed to him figures came from everywhere. Voices, flying fists, oaths, a biff on the back of his head that laid him out. Just before he lost consciousness he caught Frazier's voice. "We'll hand him over to the sheriff—" The others seemed to Hunter to be the Ghibartos, perhaps Hankins Temple. He didn't know and it didn't matter, for he went out then.

siderable time in paring down those expenditures they considered could be reduced without seriously impairing the road system. The revised estimates, a copy of which is attached, amount to approximately $78,000. If the counties raise 1.5 mills as a road rate, this amount together with the subsidy from the Department of Highways will give enough money to keep the roads in satisfactory shape. This is a tenth of a mill less than was raised last year. Expenditures on treating roads with calcium chloride have been reduced 50 p.c. There is no money for cutting weeds or brush. New construction was cut off. Our expenditures for five months this year are $32,000. Our expenditures of $8,000 on snow removal and $3,000 on frost boils and washouts were unavoidable. Should you approve the request of the Road Commission for 1.5 mill rate for roads, the attached list of expenditures, the chief of which is crushed gravel, can be taken care of. This gravel is necessary as a number of our roads have so little on them that no amount of grading nor with the treatment of calcium chloride can they be kept in shape."

Counties' Audit.

The year 1941 closed with a general surplus of $3,592.20, the auditors report revealed. The balance sheet showed an estimated accounts receivable of $47,000, due from the Province of Ontario, on account of the county roads grant for 1941. This is composed of $4,000, covering the 1940 special road levy and $43,000 as the estimated amount to be reimbursed by the province for 1941. These figures are subject to audit by the Provincial Highways Department. So detailed accounts of the operations of the counties home were available. Certain funds from the sale of farm products were turned over to the counties' treasurer during the year.

"In order that witness fees, etc., be paid promptly, we woud recommend that the Crown Attorney be given a cash fund which will be reimbursed on the Imprest System. This will call for periodic settlement and the fund will be kept up to date at all time," the report said.

"There was considerable improvement noted this year in the number of reports received from the treasurers of the minor municipalities. A determined effort should be made to have these reports available for audit purposes as they constitute the only verification of certain items in the revenue account. Only 6 school reports were available as at March 24, 1942.

Junior Farmers Of Durham Hold Field Day

PORT HOPE, June 17—The tenth annual Field Day was held at Bethany with the usual large crowd witnessing many interesting games. There were nine boys', two girls' and five public school teams from the following centres:

Boys' Teams—

Section A—Salem, Kirby and Newcastle.

Section B—Bailieboro, Millbrook, Blackstock, Bethany, Fairmount, and Fraserville.

Girls' Teams—

Newcastle and Bethany.

Public School Teams—

Bethany, Janetville, Bailieboro, Pontypool and Newtonville..

The final of section A in the Boys' schedule brought Salem and Newcastle together with Salem winning by a ten to three margin for the second consecutive year. Horne and John Rickard were the battery for Newcastle with the old reliable Ace Richards pitching for Salem. Courtice failed to field a team in either the boys' or girls' tournament, which breaks an otherwise perfect record. Sydney Nichols had to be marked up as an absentee for the first time as he with many of the other Courtice boys and girls is busily engaged at the Ajax Munitions plant.

In Section B we had a new winner when Bethany put out Fairmount twenty-two to eight.

The Bethany Girls' Team finally won thirteen to eight over Newcastle, after many gallant battles in past years between these teams. The Bethany girls were sure poison at the bat as not many of the boys had anything on some of their home run clouts. George Crowther, coach of the Newcastle girls, deserves particular credit as he has never failed to enter a Newcastle girls' team. Needless to say he stayed to see the last ball pitched in the boys' tournament.

A new feature, the Public School tournament, created an added interest. The skill shown by many of these young players won the admiration of the spectators. Janetville finally won from Bethany after one of the most interesting games of the day, as the score, twelve to ten would indicate. Seven girls played on the Bethany team, which was coached by the teacher, L. McNeil; with the coach and teacher, Walter Blaskburn, receiving much of the credit for Janetville's win with his lusty cheering.

The hard ball game found North Durham the winner for the second time in ten years by virtue of the eight to six score. Red Kennedy pitching for North Durham was a second Bob Feller, with nine strikeouts and a slightly swollen chest. Let us have a repeat in 1943, Red! Umpires for the day were Ray Brown, George Walton and Robert Bryans.

The dance was well attended and the crowd enjoyed to the full the usual popular music furnished by Galloway's Orchestra.

The Bethany Red Cross Society accepted the offer to operate the booth at the grounds and halls, with the net profit going for this excellent cause.

The usual good meals were served by the Anglican Ladies' Association.

years before it was necessary to sell them, and in that time the Parks Board were confident they could pay the $4,000 out of their annual mill rate.

Little other business came before Council at the brief meeting. Members were invited to be present at the swearing in of Judge J. C. M. German in the County Court Room to-day at 4:30 p.m. and it was decided that a letter of acceptance be sent.

Mrs. Denton, secretary of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary requested in a letter to Council permission to change the date of the Auxiliary's tag day from June 27 to August 29, and this was granted.

Mayor Burnet announced that a big military parade and spectacle would take place here on July 1 during the celebration of Army Week. All members were invited to view the parade.

On the motion of Councillors Field and Rollings, Council decided to adjourn for the months of July and August subject to the call of the chair. Last regular meeting of this season will be held on June 29.

On the motion of Reeve Dodge and Councillor Delanty, it was decided that a letter of thanks be sent to A. K. McIntosh for the recent help the Public Utilities Commission gave the Streets Committee.

Councillor Delanty inquired about the alleged Martin Transport nuisance on James Street. It was pointed out that notice had been given the company to bring the nuisance to an end, but that the order had been ignored. The mayor suggested that the night constable include the area in his patrol and if various parking offences are repeated, charges will be laid.

The Mayor complimented the Navy League on the way in which the recent municipal salvage drive had been conducted. Councillor Field invited Council to attend the 100th anniversary celebration of the establishment in Cobourg of the Diocesan Theological College. This will be observed at St. Peter's Church on Sunday.

Accounts ratified for payment were as follows: Highways and streets, $743.83; public buildings and printing, $28.81; police, $6.70; fire, water and light $35.85; health and sanitation, $23; direct relief, $309.77; finance and harbor, $99.11.

Bombs Damaged Historic Exeter Cathedral

By MRS. BLANCHE A. DRAPER.

Many Examiner Devonian readers will learn with regret that Exeter's famous 800-year-old cathedral was badly damaged in one of the many Nazis' recent "Baedeker" raids, but this latest wanton destruction comes home very closely to the writer as so many cherished memories are bound up within its walls.

Exeter was for many years my home town, and during Upper School days it was to the cathedral we marched two by two on Saints' days to kneel silently in prayer and reverently to follow the service. One of the most impressive was the three-hour service on Good Friday during which we seemed to live through all seven stations of the cross, and upon leaving the sacred edifice experienced a deep sense of loss as though we had attended the funeral of a loved one.

Bishop Ryle was then in charge of the Diocese, later he became Dean of Westminster and officiated at the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles. Bishop Ryle and his wife were godfather and godmother to my youngest sister who was born in Exeter during the time that my father was organizing secretary for the Diocese of Exeter. His office was to the right of the cathedral was facing the building, directly connected to the Bishop's palace, which has also been badly damaged in the latest raids.

Perhaps some of your readers will remember the musical Eisteddfodds organized by my father and the delightful garden parties held under the trees on the velvet lawns of the Bishop's palace grounds.

Here is a true story to round out associations with the cathedral:

My father, while in office in the cathedral close, preached quite frequently in St. Thomas' Church, Exeter.... Years before he had been a Church of England missionary up around Cumberland. Many a soul had been saved for Christ during these missions. Dad used to travel about with Jim Lucas who afterwards came to Canada and became the Bishop of Mackenzie River. Dad also followed to Canada and held several parishes. Many years passed before he was able to go back across the sea to visit his friends. One of the first places he called at was his old office off the Bishop's palace at Exeter. He shook hands with the man in charge of the position he used to hold and much to his surprise the stranger said:

"You, sir don't remember me, but I have reason never to forget you.. ..for years ago I was a poor, down-and-out nobody—I crept into your mission in the last stages of desperation, and your kindness and words of hope brought God into my life, and I vowed I'd live for Him, and here I am, sir, holding the very position you had before you left for Canada....God does answer prayer ....You see, sir, at the time I had no means of support or education, but prayer and faith gave me both."

One can understand the grateful hearts of these two as they faced each other across the gulf of years eternal rest and his mortal remains and one can almost hear them say:

"God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform."

To end the story....One of Dad's earlier parishes in Canada was the parish of St. Thomas at Noyan, Que. So the wheels of fate turned and after almost thirty years of faithful service as a Church of England minister, he passed on to his eternal rest, and his mortal remains were tenderly laid in a hallowed corner of St. Thomas' churchyard.

Miss Brownlee's room had an outstanding display also of knitting and two afghans on one of which tickets were sold and $49.10 realized. In Miss Violet Scott's room, grade 4 and 5, a Red Cross collection list was posted and it announced that $26.72 had been collected for the Red Cross during the past year. Miss O'Niel's room, grade 5 had a splendid display of art work, writing and a doll table with quite a variety of dolls and costumes. Miss P. Smith, grade 6, had added to her collection gay hogs and squares for an afghan. Mrs. Jordon's primer class displayed real talent in paper cutting and arrangements.

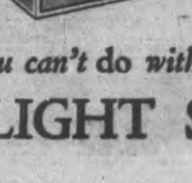
Whatever your washing method . . .

you need Sunlight's "EXTRA-SOAPINESS" for those extra dirty parts

As no doubt you know from your own wash-day experience, the very dirty parts of clothes are by far the most difficult to get really clean. Any cleanser—powders, flakes or bar soap—will remove the ordinary dirt. But wherever grime is concentrated you can't do without the Sunlight Soap method of washing clothes.

Sunlight safely gets the dirt from the extra soiled parts because of its "extra-soapiness," which enables you to get right at the stubborn dirt at once. There is no need to rub the soap hard. Just a light touch is sufficient to leave a thin film of Sunlight in contact with the dirt; sufficient, too, to remove the last tiny speck of grime. Women who use the Sunlight method have found it the easiest, safest and most thrifty way of getting clothes clean and white.



With household cleaning, as well as washing, Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" gives real help: A touch of Sunlight wherever dirt is troublesome loosens it instantly and removes it completely. And Sunlight is as gentle to your hands as it is to the finest fabrics: It is all good soap right through.

You can't do without
